QUEBEC PADLOCKS NEWSPAPER AS COMMUNISTIC

EDEN DEFENDS SENDING AGENTS TO REBEL SPAIN

Emphasizes It Is Not Step to Recognition

LONDON, Nov. 8 (C.P.-Havas).—Attacked by the Opposition in a three-hour House of Commons debate, Foreign Secretary Eden defended the Government's projected exchange of commercial agents with the Spanish insurgents last night.

Wearied by criticism of the arrangement Mr. Eden expressed "a little resentment" at the Opposition, whom he accused of inconsistency in their attitude toward non-intervention in the Spanish conflict.

The proposed exchange of agents was prompted solely by concern for Great Britain's considerable commercial interests in insurgent territory. He stressed it would in no way involve recognition either of General Franco's insurgent administration or of his belligerency rights.

The Opposition trained its big guns on Mr. Eden after he gave a detailed statement on negotiations with the insurgents, at the request of Clement Attlee, Labor Leader.

The necessities of British trade prompted the move, Mr. Eden said. Most British trade with Spain is normally in those sections now under insurgent control.

The arrangement will be completed within a short time and an official communique will make it absolutely clear that neither as a government nor as a belligerent was Franco's regime granted recognition by London, Mr. Eden said.

The opposition declared that behind the move was a step toward final full establishment of diplomatic relations with the Insurgents and a weakening of the Anglo-French understanding.

Fear World Opinion

"World opinion certainly thinks that this is meant as a first move in that direction," A. V. Alexander, former Labor first lord of the admiralty, informed the House.

William Gallacher, sole Communist M.P., suggested some cabinet

GALE LASHES LAKE SHIPS HUG PORTS

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (CP).—High winds sent shipping racing to cover on Lake Huron and Georgian Bay today as the gale that virtually halted shipping on Lake Superior yesterday moved east and south, somewhat diminished in force.

From Georgian Bay came a report of a vessel seemingly in distress 10 miles off Cape Croker Indian Reserve. Fishermen stood ready to brave the storm to go to her aid should distress signals be sent up. The unidentified ship seemed to be listing slightly.

The steamer Saskatoon reached shelter at Cape Croker Reserve after some trying moments in a 30-mile passage from Owen Sound. She will not resume her Collingwood trip until the storm is abated.

Water level in the Upper Niagara River touched a new year's record today as high winds blowing off Lake Erie piled it up. Small craft stayed at their docks but larger lake boats rode the storm easily.

Says Trial Mating Here In Practice

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9 (AP).—An eminent sociologist, Dr. Paul Popenoe, said today "trial marriage, long discussed as a theory, is actually here in practice."

Dr. Popenoe, director of the Institute of Family Relations, based his statement on Los Angeles county marriage and divorce records.

"If every adult married, divorced and then remarried once," Dr. Popenoe asserted, "the ratio of marriage licenses to divorce suits would be two to one.

"This is the ratio actually found here—but of course not every married persons divorces and re-marries. Hence, a minority must 're-marry a number of times, thus supplementing trial marriage by serial polygamy."

Grave Robbed

Carefully protecting the only clue they have found so far in second baffling stealing of a body in the Streetsville district, Oliver Borland, of the Toronto police force, is shown (BELOW) as he made plaster casts of footprints thought to have been made by the ghoul, who stole the body of William Thomson from Hillcrest cemetery, Woodbridge, five weeks after he had been buried.

Canada's Smallest Baby To Have First Party

29 Ounces At Birth And Only 14 Pounds Now Caroline Young Is Bright and Full of Pep

HUTTONSVILLE, Ont., Nov. 9 (C.P.). — A great big party was planned to-day for the girl who was reputedly Canada's smallest baby. She is Caroline Young, who celebrates her first birthday to-morrow in this Peel County village.

Caroline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Young, broke into international headlines a year ago upon her arrival at Peel Memorial Hospital, Brampton. She weighted just 29 ounces as against the normal 120 of average babies. She was two ounces lighter than Marie, lightest of the Dionne quintuplets.

Though perfectly formed, she was so frail she lived for weeks in an incubator. Even her parents could not see her for almost a month. In those critical weeks she also survived a pneumonia attack. It was weeks before she could be taken home.

Caroline weighs 14 pounds, still claiming the title of smallest baby at one year. She is, however, bright, full of pep, and, according to her parents, has a taste for music.

Boys Hold Up Bandit Get 15c, He Gets $15

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 9 (UP)

A BANDIT ordered a Negro deliveryman to hand over his money. Four small boys, seeing the bandit holding a gun against the Negro's head, yelled: "Look it's a holdup!"

"Beat it," said the bandit.

The boys stood there, wide-eyed.

The bandit handed each of them a dime. "Now, scram," he said.

One boy demanded a quarter. The bandit, cursing, gave them 15 cents.

The boys left, so did the bandit, taking with him $15 of the deliveryman's funds.

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE

TORONTO, November 9—(CP).—Pleading guilty to theft of approximately $1,500 from his employers, Smith and Long, electrical contractors, 27-year-old Roy F. Howe to-day was remanded to November 16 for sentence.

Unparalleled Disaster Looms If Peace Moves Fail

Premier King Issues Warning In His Annual Armistice Message To Canada

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP).—Canada this week will observe Remembrance Day with a warning before it from the Prime Minister that failure of efforts to bring about world peace may bring "unparalleled disaster to mankind."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King last night issued his annual Armistice message to the nation and called for development of "an interested and enlightened public opinion on matters affecting international friendship and good-will."

To his appeal, linking the annual Remembrance service Nov. 11 with the "peace action week" instituted by the League of Nations Society in Canada, three provincial Premiers joined theirs.

Premiers Macdonald of Nova Scotia, Dysart of New Brunswick and Patterson of Saskatchewan, added their pleas to Mr. Mackenzie King's that Canada's war-time sacrifices be remembered as a guide to work for elimination of armed conflict.

More Education Needed.

Coupling peace action week with the annual poppy day campaign for relief of indigent, unpensioned war veterans, the Prime Minister said:

"Peace action week seeks to develop in Canada an interested and enlightened public opinion on mat-

Bumper Rat Crop Reaped In 'Peg

Winnipeg, Nov. 9 (CP)

A BUMPER crops of rats has just been harvested in Winnipeg. Since January 8,249 rats were captured, killed, and five-cent bounty paid for each rat-tail. In the twenty-one years prior to 1937 the average catch was 5,360 rats a year.

Over 76 Per Cent High School Pupils Found To Be Studying French

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (CP).

THE Dominion Bureau of Statistics today reported 76.6 per cent of the high school students studying English in seven Canadian provinces also studied French, "a proportion that must be unique in English-speaking sections of the world."

In a new educational bulletin the bureau, reporting on linguistic studies in Canadian schools, presented statistics showing the percentages of English students studying other languages in this order:

French 76.6, Latin 50, German slightly less than four, Spanish, offered as a subject in schools of Ontario, Nova Scotia and Quebec has attracted few students. Only about 500 high school students in the whole country study Greek. Few students avail themselves of courses offered in Gaelic in Nova Scotia, Italian in Ontario, Icelandic and Swedish in Manitoba.

Statistics for the seven provinces of Canada which teach French, other than Quebec, expressed in percentages of English students: Nova Scotia 85.3, New Brunswick 87.5, Ontario 75, Manitoba 68.8, Saskatchewan 87, Alberta 66.6, British Columbia 68.4.

SOVIET WARNS POLES AGAINST ANTI-RED PACT

Litvinoff Suddenly Quits Brussels Meet

WARSAW, Nov. 9 (C.P.-Havas) The Soviet Union to-day warned Poland that it would consider Warsaw's adherence to the Italian-German-Japanese anti-Communism pact as a hostile act toward the U.S.S.R.

The warning was handed to Polish Foreign Minister Joseph Beck of the Soviet Charge d'Affaires, and it coincided with an unexplained shake-up in the personnel of the Soviet Embassy here.

Soviet Ambassador Janov K. Davtian announced he had resigned his post and abandoned his diplomatic career for private reasons.

It was also learned that the Assistant Military Attache, Colonel Barabanoff, and the First Secretary, George Alexandroff, had left their posts.

Litvinoff Quits Parley.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 9 (A.P.). — Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff, Russian delegate to the Brussels Conference seeking an end to the Chinese-Japanese War, announced suddenly to-day that he is leaving for Moscow to-night.

Litvinoff's departure in some circles was regarded as a protest against a move which he thinks is under way to eliminate Russia from major conference activities, particularly from conferences of committees. Such a move to exclude Russia presumably would be an effort to placate Japan.

More Troops at Border

TOKYO, Nov. 9—(AP).—A powerful Japanese force deployed today along the Soviet frontier of Japanese dominated Manchoukuo, while Japanese and neutral observers shared the almost unanimous belief relations between Russia and Japan were nearing the breaking point.

The strained diplomatic situation—and perhaps the presence of crack Japanese troops on the Manchoukuo border—grew out of the recent strengthening of the German-Japanese anti-Communism front with the entrance of Italy and friction over renewal of Soviet-granted fishing concessions.

The Tokyo newspaper Hochi reported Russian was taking strong measures to bolster her Far Eastern army and Marshal Klementi Voroshiloff, her defence commissar, was hurrying to Khabarovsk, Siberia, to execute a "sweeping reformation' of the trans-Baikal forces.

Dispatches to the newspaper from Vladivostok said Voroshiloff's "report to the Kremlin regarding the strength of the Far Eastern army was expected finally to determine the decision in Moscow."

Shoots His Wife And Best Friend

GLENDALE, Calif., Nov. 9 (A.P.) —Paul Wright, 38, president of the Union Air Terminal, shot and killed his wife, Evelyn, and then critically wounded John Bryant Kimmel, airport traffic manager, to-day when he told police he found his wife and Kimmel in an embrace.

Chief of Police E. D. Browne said Wright told him he had suspected his wife of "stepping out" for two years. "But I never thought it was with my best friend."

Mrs. Wright was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McBride, of Detroit, Mich.

$100 MONTH FOR 2 DOGS

TORONTO, November 9—(CP).—Col. Goodwin Gibson estimated today it costs him $100 a month to feed two Great Dane dogs he has given his daughter, Clarea May. The dogs, Mars of Trayhill and Dion of Send, are all-English champions.

Five pounds of fresh raw meat, a dozen eggs and several quarts of milk are given the dogs daily. A special "Palace Kennel" costing more than $1,000, was their home aboard the Empress of Britain on their Atlantic trip.

Poland has substantially reduced its tax on pocket lighters.

Gets His Deer In Forty-Five Minutes With Ancient Rifle And Ammuniton

FRANK BARRETT of this city recently went deer hunting and within forty-five minutes of entering the bush south west of Apsley had brought down a fine 2-year-old buck weighing 175 pounds. He is still wondering—a little regretfully it may be said, just how he did it.

An ex-Trooper of the Mounted Police and former deputy game warden, Mr. Barrett is said to be a real lover of wild life, with a strong dislike of killing game for mere sport.

When his friend, Fred Marshall, also an ex-"Mountie" and former game warden, prevailed on him to go hunting, Mr. Barrett welcomed the opportunity of a day in the bush, but his desire not to kill any game appears to be supported by the fact that he took along with him obsolete equipment. The only new thing he had was a 1937 deer hunting license.

Borrowing an 1892 model 44-calibre Winchester, Mr. Barrett wiped the dust and grime of the years off some old ammunition that he had kept lying around the house since the year Hing Eff died. On his feet he wore a pair of boots issued to him in 1902 when with the Royal North West Mounted (now R.C.M.P.), in the Yukon. A red handana kerchief that belonged to his late grandmother a hundred years ago, was draped around his cap.

Commenting on the weapon his friend used, Mr. Marshall declared, "It was considered obsolete long since, and I believe he took it along with him hoping he would not kill anything with it if he should have occasion to use the gun."

Describing the "kill," Mr. Marshall declared that Mr. Barrett fired at fairly close range. At the first shot the hunter and the hunted just stood still staring at each other. It was hard to tell who was the most surprised. A second shot penetrated the animal's lungs and with a last effort it ran for a hundred yards or so before crashing into a tree and dropping dead in its tracks.

150 Camp Borden Wolves To Be Given Chase

Wardens To Lead Posse After Boy Attacked, Man Treed, Sheep, Cattle Killed

BARRIE, Ont., Nov. 9 (CP) — Hundreds of wolves which have menaced the lives of residents in Camp Borden district, near here, and have caused loss to farmers by killing sheep, cattle and fowl will be hounded from the bush Thursday by a posse of hunters.

Game Warden Gordon D. Bule, Bunnidale Corners, and other game wardens have received permission from the Department of National Defence to lead the hunt against the wolves. It was estimated about 150 wolves were in the bush around Camp Borden, an air base, and farmers have been forced to lock livestock in at night.

A farmer's son near Lisle was attacked by a pack. His dog came to the rescue and drove the wolves off until the boy's father arrived with a shotgun. Another man was chased up a tree and kept there until a passing motorist discovered his plight and drove the wolves away.

A local legend has been revived by the wolves latest depredations. It is: A man was treed by the wolves. He tried their patience for hours. Finally two of the wolves left and returned with two beavers whom they set to work felling the tree. As the tree fell a moose happened along and the man fell astride the moose and was carried to safety.

Cattle Eat Apples Get Drunk

GALT, Ont., Nov. 9.—(CP). — When his cattle started staggering around the barnyard yesterday, a Glenmorirs farmer named Griffin called in a veterinary who pronounced trouble as "apple intoxication." The cattle entered a neighbors orchard yesterday and ate apples on the ground which had been nipped by the frost.

SEE ITALO-RUSSIAN BREAK OVER PACT AIMED AT MOSCOW

LONDON, Nov. 9 (CP)—The triangle" against Communism formed by Italy, Germany and Japan was weighed in government circles today.

Possible repercussions to the accord in which the three powers agreed on joint action on the "necessary defence measures" against Communism were considered. Among these was the possibility that diplomatic relations between Italy and Russia would be severed.

Chancellor Hitler, speaking last night in Munich, hailed the pact as creating a "great political triangle."

"It is not built on three weak structures, but on three states which are ready and determined to take care of their rights and their interests," the German leader declared.

France indicated she would seek to counteract the pact by striving to strengthen her ties with Great Britain and Russia and bring the Little Entente—Yugoslavia, Czecho-

Italians Plan Ethiopian Posts Bordering British Lands

Prepare New Conquest To Defend Self In Case Troops Needed At Home

ADDIS ABABA, Nov. 9.—(AP).—War nerves swelling under the surface even in this remote Italian domain have caused Viceroy General Rodolfo Graziana to intensify his border defence and internal police work.

The conquerer of Somaliland, known to other officers as the "wolf" of many Italian colonial campaigns, recently made a swing around East African territories under his care. He had in mind two military problems:

1. Strengthening of garrisons along the British and French Somaliland frontiers, on the Gulf of Aden to the east; and placing adequate defence forces along the frontiers shared with Great Britain to the north, east and west.

2. Police and military provision to restrain tribes traditionally turbulent during the dry season; and armed insurgence against possible infiltration of revolt propaganda within Ethiopian boundaries.

The first problem arose directly from tension in the Mediterranean over the Spanish situation. Premier Mussolini desires "military autocracy" in East Africa. That means he wants the territory to be able to defend itself in case he suddenly

Demand Space Rent For Electric Meters

Montreal, Nov. 9.

RENT for space occupied by electric and gas meters in private homes was urged yesterday by representatives of the Workers' Federation of Montreal.

In a petition presented to City Council the W. F. M. suggested $2 rent be charged for each meter, but added the members were willing to forget all about it if power companies would reduce rates by 50 per cent.

The petition was placed on file.

Benson and daughter Mary, all of Buffalo.

Loved By Duce, Dancer's Affair Bars Entry To U.S. And Night Club Job

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)

MAGDA de Fontanges today was barred from entering the United States by a board of U.S. immigration commissioners who heard her case at Ellis Island. They refused her entry on grounds of "moral turpitude."

The dark-eyed French girl, who shot the former French ambassador to Italy, Count Charles de Chambrun, after she said he ended her love affair with Premier Mussolini, was refused the right to enter the United States by a board of special inquiry. The formal decision was announced as follows:

"The board of special inquiry at Ellis Island, after a hearing, has excluded Magdeleine Jeanne Fontanges, a passenger on board the S.S. Normandie, because of an admission of a crime involving moral turpitude, to wit: assault with a dangerous weapon." Magda was to dance at a Broadway club.

Closure Only Start Says Premier In Wide Cleanup

Calls on Labor Union Chiefs for Co-operation, Lest Red Influences Result in Their Ruin

QUEBEC, Nov. 9.—(CP)—Padlocking of the Montreal offices of the newspaper "Clarte" was announced today by Premier Maurice Duplessis. The premier said provincial police acting on instructions of the Attorney-General's department closed the offices.

The announcement came while the Union Nationale government head received a delegation of Canadian officials of international labor unions and urged them to "clean out their organizations of undermining Communist influences which would lead to ruin."

The labor union chiefs were asking for "whole-hearted recognition" by the provincial government when Premier Duplessis declared Communists "are sliding into your organizations" and he asked for co-operation to fight the Communists.

The Premier said the Provincial government during its last legislative session had passed its "padlock law" designed to stop dissemination of Communist propaganda "and today in Montreal Provincial officers padlocked the offices of the newspaper Clarte. The padlocking was the first in the province since the law went into effect, permitting the Attorney-General's department to close buildings used for distribution of Communist propaganda.

Under the statute "padlocked" buildings would remain closed until such time as the attorney-general's department was satisfied they would not be used again for "illegal" purposes.

Duplessis' Order.

The Premier said he ordered closing of the French-language newspaper's office in his capacity of Attorney-General of the Province and all available issues of the paper were seized.

His action, he said, was "in accordance with our 'padlock law.' He have begun to apply this law and today's closure is just the beginning of our activities."

The Labor delegation to the Premier was led by Lucien Rodier of Montreal, legal counsel international unions in Canada, and Raoul Trepanier of Montreal, vice-president of the Canadian Trades and Labor Council.

In reply to the recognition demand on behalf of the labor unions, Premier Duplessis asserted: "I have said before today and I repeat that the Provincial Government recognizes bona fide labor organizations without favoritism.

"Communists are slipping into your bodies and their influence is not in the nature of providing the co-operation the government would like."

9,272 IMMIGRANTS COME INTO CANADA FIRST HALF 1937

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP).—Canadian immigration from all countries was 9,272 persons in the six months ended September 30, the Immigration Branch of the Department of Mines and Resources reported today. This compared with 7,005 immigrants in the corresponding period of 1936.

In addition, 3,115 Canadian returned from the United States, compared to 2,975 in the corresponding six months of 1936.

(The United States Consulate-General here reports 8,018 immigrants entered the United States from Canada in the year ended June 30, 1936. In the same 12 months, 4,424 American citizens returned home from Canadian residence).

Of the immigration total, 7,896 were from the British Isles, 1,262 English, 220 Irish, 382 Scotch and 32 Welsh. This compared with 1,410 a year ago.

From the United States came 3,246, compared with 2,835 in the six months a year ago.

Immigration from Europe showed the sharpest increase. Northern European races contributed 785 persons this half-year, a 54.5 increase, while other races contributed 3,345 persons, or an increase of 48.5 per cent.

Of the immigrant total, 2,261 were adult males, 3,671 adult females and 3,340 under 18 years.

Ontario was the destination of 3,799 of the total.

By occupation, the farming class accounted for 2,419; trading class, 723; female domestic servants, 489; mechanics, 463; laboring, 319, and mining, 48.

Appeal To Ghouls To Return Body

WOODBRIDGE, Ont., Nov. 9 (CP). —John Thomson today appealed to the robbers of his father's grave to return the body of William Thomson, discovered Saturday to be missing from Hillcrest Cemetery here.

If the ghouls are sane, said Mr. Thomson, they will have some idea of the mental anguish of the dead man's children and brothers. He appeals to them to leave the body at an open spot where it may be found and returned to the grave.

John Thomson said there had been no note or phone call to end the family's anguish. Police of York County widened their search as Inspector John Miller, criminal investigation department, Provincial Police, expressed belief a solution was near.

OFFER NO DEFENCE IN WOODMAN CASE

NAPANEE, Ont., Nov. 9 (CP).—A surprise was sprung today when the trial of Robert Woodman, 23-year-old Flinton miner, for the murder of Aubrey Sedore, a neighbor, was resumed. J. M. Simpson, K.C., defence counsel, announced no defence evidence would be called.

Court was adjourned by Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland until this afternoon to give the Crown prosecutor an opportunity to prepare address to the jury.

"Having considered the evidence of the Crown and in consultation with my client, I have decided not to call any witnesses for the defence, and in justice to the Crown Prosecutor (C. P. Hope, K.C.), I would ask an adjournment to allow him to prepare his address to the jury," said Mr. Simpson.

500 Toronto Women Get Organized In Milk Price War

Young Mother Leader Asks No Protection Despite Threat to Baby—"Afraid of No One"

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—(CP)—Toronto housewives, organized in a fight for reduced milk prices by a 23-year-old mother, completed plans today for a conference with the Toronto Trades and Labor Council in their rise against "profiteering corporations."

Mrs. Bertha Lamb, young leader in the movement to reduce the price of milk from 13 cents a quart to 10 started after a recent one-cent increase, presided at a meeting of about 600 women last night when it was decided to reduce consumption of milk to the barest necessity until Toronto dairies cut the price.

Committees of five women each were nominated to represent the nine wards of the city. The committees will elect a captain, secretary and treasurer among themselves before Wednesday when they are scheduled to meet the Trades and Labor Council.

Mrs. Lamb said the idea for the movement started in her home after the advance in milk prices. She addressed the meeting despite a letter received a few hours before threatening her 11-months-old child if she continued with the plan.

Asks No Police Guard

She said she had not asked for police protection when she arrived at the meeting unescorted. "I'm not afraid of anyone," she added. "My baby was outside sleeping today and he will be out again tomorrow. The whole thing is ridiculous to me."

"We are going to organize and threats like this will not stop us. I received hundreds of calls absolutely compelling me to call this meeting after I headed a deputation to the city council. Housewives have had to bear the brunt of low wages and high prices. It is our responsibility to make our husband's wages go as far as possible.

"Arise against the profiteering corporations that would make us pay through the nose for our privileges," she told the meeting. "We women can be a power for good in the community. It's up to you housewives to unite and see this thing through to a finish."

The women screamed their applause as Mrs. Lamb continued. She insisted all officers elected must not be members of political or other organizations. Sole purpose of the meeting was to promote organization among Toronto women to obtain cheaper milk.

Mrs. Lamb had decided against a milk boycott because children needed milk. Instead she urged the women to curtail consumption as much as possible to enforce their demand.

KINGSTON TO VOTE SMALLER COUNCIL

KINGSTON, Nov. 9.—A recommendation that the number of aldermen for this city be reduced from twenty-one to fourteen and that the question be submitted to the electors at the coming civic election was almost unanimously passed by the Kingston City Council here Monday night.

At the same time, Council passed an "honorarium scheme" whereby permanent civic employees with more than twenty years of service "will receive 3½ per cent. of their average yearly salary of the five years next preceding the date of such retirement, multiplied by the number of years of service." No honorarium will equal or exceed the amount of their salary for any one year, it was understood.

Alderman Hugh Nickle, in introducing the motion to reduce the size of the Council, claimed that no other city in Ontario was so overgoverned as Kingston in respect to population. Detroit and Toronto had more aldermen than Kingston, Mr. Nickle declared.

The question will be submitted to the electors, and, if gaining their approval, will be translated into a by-law by the 1938 Council. The reduction, if passed, will not be effective until 1939, it was disclosed.

R.C.M.P. GAZETTE TO BE INCREASED

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP).—Distribution of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Gazette throughout Canada may be undertaken in the future. The Gazette provides a means of acquainting police officers with facts of use to them in their work.

Established last March, the Gazette was an immediate success, the annual report of Sir James MacBrien, commissioner of the force, states. It is distributed to all police divisions, sub-divisions and detachments in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, to the chief constables of the cities in the same provinces and to the investigation departments of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

"This is the first occasion on which a Gazette has been available to the police forces in the West," says the report, "and most encouraging letters have been received. The probable circulation was originally estimated at 450 copies, but the number will have to be considerably increased. It may be possible later to extend it to the whole of Canada."

Among the subjects covered in the Gazette are: Persons wanted, recent important arrests, property and cars stolen or found, persons missing, persons in custody who may be wanted elsewhere, deaths of criminals, movements of expert criminals, recent crimes.

NINETY MILLIONS GOLD TO BE MINED THIS YEAR—McCREA

SARNIA, Nov. 9. (C.P.). — From 1910 to the end of 1936 gold production of Ontario amounted to more than $800,000,000, and when the depression came it was the mining industry and especially production of gold that enabled Canada to withstand its effect with the degree of stability it did, Charles McCrea, former Ontario Mines Minister, told the Canadian Club of Sarnia yesterday.

Mr. McCrea estimated between $88,000,000 and $90,000,000 of gold would be mined in Ontario this year and that the mineral wealth production of the Province, including metal and non-metal production, would approximate $200,000,000.

Total metal production since 1910 amounted to $2,000,000,000, which included $800,000,000 of gold. He compared production in Ontario, which he said had consistently increased year by year, with production in the Yukon which altogether had approximated only $192,000,000.

Invested in mining operations in the Province was capital of $400,000,000. Dividends paid up to 1936 in gold were $236,500,000, silver $100,000,000, and other metals $195,000,000. Mining dividends in 1936 alone were $53,000,000, and this year they would be substantially higher, he said.

In 1934, '35 and '36 the mineral production of the Province had a considerably greater value than that of field crops, Mr. McCrea said.

In the main, the prosperity of any Province or country was measured by the wealth crop of its basic industries. The potential mineral wealth of the Province and of the country as a whole was inestimable.

Speaks of Future.

There would be generation upon generation of people in the Province digging gold out of its rocks in the future, Mr. McCrea said, after a member of the audience questioned him as to what would the future of Ontario be when its gold was exhausted. Ontario's mineral wealth was practically inexhaustible, he added.

Regardless of the stock market, the mining industry would continue to its inevitable development, he believed.

MARLBANK DRIVER HAILED TO COURT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Nov. 9.—Robert Thompson, Marlbank, appeared in local police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., on Monday, charged with the negligent operation of a motor car resulting in grievous bodily harm to one Lena Taylor.

Thompson was not asked to plead, his case being enlarged one week at the request of Chief Constable J. C. Hayes, Tweed, who investigated the accident.

The charge against Thompson arose out of an accident that happened in Marlbank on October 30th last when a motor car reported to be operated by Thompson, struck Lena Taylor and knocked her down. The injured woman had been confined to Belleville General Hospital since that date

The ultimate case wil be heard in the county police court at Tweed next week.

CROWN CLOSES CASE IN SEDORF MURDER TRIAL

35 of 43 Witnesses Are Called in Week

NAPANEE, Nov. 9.—With five witnesses testifying that Robert Woodman, charged with the murder of Aubrey Sedore, attempted to sell them firearms alleged to have belonged to the murdered woodsman, and one witness swearing Woodman attempted to rent Sedore's house, the case for the Crown concluded before Mr. Justice McFarland here yesterday afternoon.

Thirty-five of forty-three Crown witnesses were called by C. P. Hope, K.C., of Toronto, special Crown Prosecutor, since the trial opened a week ago. J. M. Simpson, counsel for 23-year-old Woodman, called three Crown witnesses named on the indictment for cross-examination after the case for the Crown was concluded.

Mont Wood, a county constable, testified this afternoon that Woodman offered him a 30-30 Winchester carbine and three boxes of shells, on April 16, which he claimed to have bought from Sedore, and that he talked about buying Sedore's car for $25. Several others were present when the offer was made, the witness stated.

Robert Davidson, an employee of the Rich Rock Mine, testified Woodman offered him a 30-30 carbine for $10 on April 1, the first day Woodman began working at the mine.

Sister Is Witness

Mrs. Egerton Newton, a sister of the accused, after a warning from Mr. Justice McFarland that he would declare her a "hostile witness," said Woodman, in a letter received some time in February of this year, asked her to dispose of two rifles and a shotgun. Mr. Newton, her husband, testified that he was shown the letter asking them to sell the rifles but that no price was mentioned. The letter, the wife said, could not be found. Woodman also spoke to Wilfrid Renaud on March 22 about buying a rifle, and offered slovakia and Rumania—into closer harmony with French policy.

Referring to German references to Czechoslovakia as Europe's "outpost" of Communism, Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express in a front page editorial argued that if Great Britain tied herself more closely to France and Russia—both of whom are linked defensively with Czechoslovakia — "British citizens might find themselves fighting in trenches around Prague to keep 3,500,000 Germans by force inside the Czechoslovak state.

The German minority makes up approximately one-fifth of Czechoslovakia's population.

Bring Brazil In?

The possibility efforts might be made to extend the pact to the American continent, with Brazil or Bolivia joining for a start, were discussed. If this were to materialize it was felt the United States could not ignore the new situation.

The Evening Star, Yiberal, said: "It is known that the Fascist powers have high hopes of winning Brazil's adherence to the pact," and added: "If that happens, South American politics, already a witch's brew, will be furthered and bedevilled by the kind of intervention we are witnessing in Spain to-day and the Monroe Doctrine inevitably will drag in the United States.

"Again, in Nazi propaganda, Czechoslovakia is often described as a Red state, a tool of Moscow. The dread of German intervention in Czechoslovakia hangs like a shadow over Europe. Will the pact one day be invoked to justify an invasion of Czechoslovakia?"

British business firms with interests in the Orient were concerned with the possibility that Japan, if victorious in China, might attempt to give Italy and Germany trading rights at the expense of Great Britain and other powers. Officials quarters, however, were said to feel there was little chance of Japan being so generous towards her colleagues in the anti-Communism pact.

THOS. MONAGHAN KILLED IN SMASH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Chinese Defenders Retreat Orderly Into Winter Lines

Invaders Place Ring of Steel About Great Port; Bottle 4,000,000 Natives, Thousands Foreigners

SHANGHAI, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Shanghai fell into Japanese hands today with the retreat of General Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese troops who had held out 88 days against combined Japanese army, navy and air forces.

The city was asleep and unaware of its fate when, shortly after midnight, Chinese forces began an orderly, quiet retreat toward their "winter line" protecting Nanking, the capital.

Japanese, apparently, did not learn of the retreat until 8 a.m. (7 p.m. E.S.T., Monday.)

The withdrawal enabled Japan to place a ring of steel around China's greatest port, cutting off the metropolis from the rest of the nation and bottling up 2,000,000 Chinese resident, 1,000,000 refugees and many thousands of foreigners. Railroads and highways in all directions were cut or blocked by Japanese, leaving only a few foreign and Japanese vessels as the sole connection with the outside world.

Foreign communities breathed more easily, as if a long siege suddenly had been lifted. The plight of Chinese inhabitants and war refugees, was considered tragic, however, as they have no means of escape and must reconcile themselves to a long period of isolation surrounded by Japanese troops.

Chief Defences Intact.

While the loss of Shanghai undoubtedly will affect China's morale, at least temporarily, General Chiang said to-day Shanghai operations were purely local and did not form a vital part of the nation's chief defences, which he said were about the Yellow River region.

The warfare, the General said, will be transferred at present to the great delta lands of the lake region west of Shanghai where China has several so-called Hindenburg lines. These lines reach as far back as Changshu, Kashing, and Soochow, some 50 miles to the west.

"We will fight with the same vigor

DUFFERIN-SIMCOE GIVES EARL ROWE AN ACCLAMATION

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (C.P.). — Acclamation given Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative Leader, in Dufferin-Simcoe yesterday disposed of the 14th Federal by-election called since the Dominion general election of 1935. The 15th is set for November 26 in Victoria to fill the vacancy created by the death of Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Conservative.

Throughout the long series of by-elections the standing of the House has remained unchanged. In the great majority there were acclamations. A contest is in prospect for Victoria.

At the next session of Parliament there will be new members from Cape Breton North-Victoria, Frontenac-Addington, and Victoria. Mr. Rowe is not a newcomer, having represented Dufferin-Simcoe since 1925. He resigned to contest the Ontario general election in which he was defeated.

Death struck into the ranks of those returned in the general election of 1935. Eight of the by-elections necessitated since were caused through decease of the elected member.

In Victoria D. B. Plunkett, sitting member, died on May 3, 1936. In the subsequent by-election S. F Tolmie was the successful candidate. His death occurred a few weeks ago.

In Assiniboia (Saskatchewan) and Queens (Prince Edward Island) the newly elected Liberal members resigned to make way respectively for Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Finance Minister Dunning, neither of whom contested the general election. Mr. Gardiner had a contest in his by-election, but Mr. Dunning was given an acclamation.

There will be chances also in the Senate when Parliament next meets, five vacancies existing at the present time. Two are in Quebec, two in Ontario, and one in Alberta. The Conservative appointees in the Senate now number 57 to 34 appointed by Liberal administrations.

WITHDRAWING TROOPS

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(CP-Havas)—Withdrawal of Italian soldiers from Spain is underway, the Paris correspondent of the London News Chronicle wrote to-day.

The correspondent said the withdrawals were not ordered as a conciliatory gesture to the Non-Intervention committee, but due to the fact the insurgents do not need them.

MUCH WORK FOR LITTLE

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 9 (CP). —Thieves who broke into the Collegiate Institute building here last night had a great deal of work for small returns. Jimmying a window in the domestic science room, they removed a panel from the door and then jimmied their way into the manual training department, where they obtained tools. Using these to break into the first aid room, they then cut through a cement and brick partition into the vault which was ransacked and a small sum of money taken.

Ethiopian Prince Started To Fight Italian Forces Without Any Medical Help

Miss Leona MacGregor, Returned Missionary, Tells Of Experiences In Ethiopia

When Ras Dusta Dumpta mobilised his tribesmen of the Ethiopian province of Sidam and was about to march off toward the south to meet an Italian column led by Marshal Rodolfo Graziani approaching from the direction of the Kenya border and Italian Somaliland, he tried to enlist as the only available medical attendant a young lady who recalled the episode in an interview Monday afternoon in the home of Rev. C. C. Boyter, at the Park Street Baptist parsonage, 227 Westcott street.

The simple, matter of fact narrative Miss Leona MacGregor told to The Examiner sounded like a chapter out of a historic romance if its overtones had not carried the tragedy of a ravaged and conquered people. Her story seemed almost fabulous, as of another world and also of another age, impressions stimulated by the comparatively primitive conditions of the country, its feudal background and its remoteness almost in the heart of Africa and only a few degrees north of the equator. Miss MacGregor's youth and attractive femininity were other factors tending toward unreality by contrast with the incidents of which only a short time ago she was a witness.

When Ras Dusta's followers responded to his call, and through him the summons of the Emperor, inadequately armed and trained, they had no medical corps, not even one doctor and no nurses. As Governor of the province he had often met Miss MacGregor and knew of her helpful medical knowledge. He pleaded with her to accompany his army, and as a last resort telegraphed to Rev. Dr. T. A. Lambie of the mission headquarters staff at Addis Ababa to permit Miss MacGregor to go with his troops, but his appeal had to be refused.

Ras Dusta Killed

Ras Dusta was captured by the Italians last February and executed, his tribesmen were dispersed, and since last Spring the Italians have been gradually expanding their military establishment and control of Ethiopia.

Miss MacGregor spent five years in the country that was once known as Abyssinia as a member of the Sudan Interior Mission, and returned to Canada on furlough last June. Her home is on Manitoulin Island. Rev. Dr. R. V. Bingham is the director of the Mission which has been working in Nigeria, French West Africa, the Anglo-Egyptian Soudan and Ethiopia.

She has been in many of the places mentioned in the press despatches recounting the progress of the Italian invasion of Ethiopia, from Jibouti on the Gulf of Aden down the railway to Addis Ababa, and two hundred miles further south by mule caravan to Yerga Alam, the new town Ras Dusta Dumpta hewed out of the woods on a high shoulder of land only a few years ago. It was his seat of government or administration of the fertile province of Sidamo, with an altitude of 6,000 feet tempering the tropic heat, and providing a delightful climate.

From her residence in Yerga Alam and association with the people of that town and its district Miss MacGregor had become known to many of them including Ras Dusta, but when they marched away toward southeast that was the last she heard of them, although the news informed them of their dispersal and the death of the Ras. The column that entered Ethiopia from Italian Somaliland dug itself in far to the south while the main attack of the invaders was pressed by General Badoglio toward Addis Ababa from the north. But, that is all recent history whether or not Italy succeeds in consolidating Ethiopia as part of her African empire.

Two Racial Origins

Miss MacGregor said the people of Ethiopia were of two ethnic origins, the Amharas who traced back to Asia and the pagan tribes, a negroid and subordinate race. The Sudan Interior Mission is interdenominational with headquarters in Toronto. Its missionaries began their work in Africa in 1918 and have been making encouraging progress. They have been occupying 14 stations in the south and west of Ethiopia, radiating from Addis Ababa. Since the Italian occupation the number of missionaries has been reduced from sixty to twenty-five, and their area has been restricted to the capital.

The faith and courage of the missionary are illustrated by Miss MacGregor's confidence in her personal safety and security even among the pagan tribes with no police force or other local evidence or agency of law maintenance. Her only fright was one night in Addis Ababa, early in her experience, when she was awakened by a native trying to crawl through the window of the mission house. There were police in the capital, but none in the southern country where Miss MacGregor was later stationed.

Rapid Growth Of Town

"When I first went to Yerga Alam, the new town Ras Dusta created, there were only fifty huts. They were made of mud or straw with thatched roofs. Within four years the population had grown to 8[illegible]. You have to imagine what it was like, a long street with these primitive houses. When we went in there our houses was built for us by several of our men, and after that there were just myself and another woman who was apointed with me. It was slow work winning the confidence of the people."

Miss MacGregor has not a high opinion of the Coptic Christianity. Efforts of the missionaries was largely among the pagan tribes, and progress among them was gradually gaining in numbers and zeal when the Italians arrived. Learning the language was a primary requirement. Obtaining native domestic help was a slow approach, but through the servants information went out to and spread among the tribesmen, resulting in personal contacts and interviews and eventually the teaching of the gospel.

"They were really responsive to the gospel," Miss MacrGegor said, "and they made splendid Christians. Their idea of a Christian was a person who prayed. It was really inspiring to see how the gospel appealed to the heathen after their ages of darkness and to witness its force and effect among them."

Miss MacGregor said cryptically that the converts had stood the test of persecution since she left Ethiopia last Spring, arriving home in June.

Alone In Yerga Alam

For a time while a transfer of missionaries was being made she was the only white person in Yerga Alam, and although her doors and windows were unfastened she was not afraid of any harm coming to her. After the defeat of Ras Dumpta an order came to the mission to pack up hurriedly and leave for the capital.

"We packed what we could on a truck that was used in hauling coffee, taking enough food for three days. About the third day we were held up by a river that was swollen and unpassable. We had to live on native corn bread and guinea fowl. The native boy who was our driver finally took the engine out of the truck, carried it over, then pushed the chassis across, and on the other shore put the engine back in its place and we were able to go on after a delay of five days. At headquarters they were worried about us, because they could not imagine what was detaining us."

Miss MacGregor said the truck made good time through roadless country. It literally pushed and mowed its way through bushes, the driver following the way of least resistance however circuitous it might be. As to the future of the Mission in Ethiopia she declined to express an opinion other than she expected to return at the end of her furlough next spring. She said she hoped the Italians would allow the continuance of the work that was beginning to bear grateful fruit among the native tribes.

Supports Hitler

No dictator is Adolph Hitler, but a leader who achieved power by perfectly democratic means, Erich Windels, new German consul-general in Canada told Toronto newspapermen in his first visit to the Ontario capital since taking office. Mr. Windels has served his country in diplomatic posts under three regimes.

VETERANS HOLD CHURCH PARADE AT MILLBROOK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Nov. 9.—Headed by the Millbrook Citizens' Band, the ex-service men of Millbrook and district, including a number from Peterborough, marched from the Armouries to St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday morning for their annual church attendance.

Large Union Jacks made effective decorations for the occasion, one being draped on the hall table beneath the Roll of Honor, another in front of the pulpit, and others each side of the pipe organ.

Special music by the choir included the anthem, "The Lord Is In His Holy Temple," and a trio, "Onward and Upward," by Messrs. F. W. Edworthy, W. H. Coombe, and M. McDowell.

Rev. A. L. Sisco warmly welcomed the visiting veterans, and immediately preceding the second hymn, "Abide With Me," the two minutes' silence was observed in memory of those who had died on the field of battle, and the Last Post was sounded from the rear of the gallery by G. E. Burnham, followed by the Reveille.

"Rebuilding the Temple Of Our Civilization" was the theme chosen by the minister, who based his remarks on Zechariah 4-6: "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts." Stressing the fact that we are called upon to live so that we may build a temple of Christian civilization, the speaker pictured vividly the gladness of the Jews when they had succeeded in rebuilding the temple of Solomon which had been destroyed by fire. "We felt somewhat as they did of old when the word came that the war was over and the Armistice signed. Now our task is to build a civilization of Christian politics, Christian industrialism, Christian education, and Christian internationalism. We cannot do this by might, wealth, stealth, or power, but here is the voice of God as it comes to us, 'By My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts.' Let us do that part that we are required to do, by God's help, to make the world safer for all peoples, in memory of [illegible] who shed their blood that we might have a better world and [illegible] all—rebuilding a Christian civilization.

Kipling's Recessional Hymn appropriately closed the service. Sidesmen for the service were William and Earl Edworthy, Reg McKnight, and Gordon Might.

Ripe Tomatoes Greet Star

Movie extras had the time of their lives at Hollywood during the filming of a motion picture when they were permitted, nay requested, to throw nice ripe tomatoes at Gladys Swarthout, famed opera star, during a scene of her latest picture, "Romance In the Dark". Miss Swarthout apparently wasn't overjoyed at her part if the ABOVE photograph can be taken as an example. Note the tomato which is just flattening itself against her chin, while several other have already landed. The tomatoes were air expressed from New Jersey especially for the scene. California tomatoes being deemed "too brutal to the skin."

Crime Course Proves Skimpy Pupil Lands In Jail

Amateur Burglar Gets $40 But Overlooks Too Many Little Details

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 9—(CP)—Arthur Bennett, 35, an employee of the Lakeside Hotel near the canal, Burlington Beach, took a correspondence course in crime detection and emerged with $40 and a theft of money charge against him in Magistrate's Court here to-day.

Bennett pleaded guilty, and was remanded a week for sentence by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge.

Employed as caretaker and attendant in the beverage room, Bennett was in charge of the hotel during the absence of Mrs. Gertrude Perry, proprietress. On Saturday he called Chief Constable H. Nicklin of the Burlington Beach Police to report a breaking and entering at the office of the hotel.

Chief Nicklin found dust and cobwebs on the exterior sill of a window through which the thief was alleged to have entered the hotel office. Suspicions were aroused and the Chief found that three fine watch dogs were kept on the premises, although Bennett insisted there was no noise on the evening of the robbery. The same ice pick used to pry the window in the office had been employed to open a cash box from which $40 had been taken.

Bennett promised to help Chief Nicklin by loaning what his course in crime detection had taught him.

Enlisting the aid of Provincial Constable Donald Shervill of the Hamilton detachment, Chief Nicklin questioned the accused and made further inquiries. Bennett, according to the Chief's testimony, later admitted the theft and pleaded guilty to the charge.

After his arrest yesterday he was brought to Central Police Station, where he complained of abdominal pains. He was rushed to the General Hospital, and after treatment returned to answer the charge.

NEW ROTARIANS HEAR MESSAGE FROM DR. KENNER

New members of the Peterborough Rotary Club were welcomed at the luncheon Monday by Rotarian Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, who was delegated the task of addressing the duby Rotarians on the history of the Rotary movement and the responsibilities of Rotary service. There was a large attendance of members with Vice-president James Dutton presiding in the absence from the city of President Art Runions.

A resolution passed by the Brockville City Council and endorsed by the Brockville Rotary club, proposing that railway regulations be changed to permit of dogs trained to look after the blind being allowed to ride in passenger coaches with their handicapped masters was read and deferred to a committee for consideration.

Rotarian Dr. Kenner, who was introduced by the chairman began by giving a short history of Rotary since it was launched on February 23, 1905, by Paul Harris, a Chicago lawyer. Five years later the movement became international, and soon after, with the granting of charters to the Winnipeg, Canada, and London, England, clubs, International Rotary was born. To-day, the speaker said, Rotary comprised over 4,000 clubs, with a membership of 185,000, in 82 countries of the world.

The Peterborough Club.

Speaking of the Peterborough Rotary Club, Rotarian Kenner remarked that it had been founded in 1921 with Fred L. Roy as its first president, and ten of the charter members were still actively associated with the club. The Belleville Rotary Club had been the father of Peterborough in Rotary, and the Peterborough Club in turn had fathered the Lindsay Club.

In an eloquent exposition of the philosophy of Rotary and its aims and objects, the speaker stressed the International aspect of the movement which, he said, was the most important object of all at the present time, namely the furtherance of international friendship. In this connection Dr. Kenner said he was not begging for friendship between the United States and Britain, for that friendship already existed, while on the North American continent Canada and the United States gave an international object lesson with more than 4,000 miles of unguarded frontier, and a record of over 100 years at peace.

Dr. Kenner reminded the new members of the significance of the Rotary slogans, "He Profits Best Who Serves Best" and "Service Above Self," and eloquently explained what was involved in each of them.

On behalf of the new members Ian McRae moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for his inspirational address.

Rotarian W. R. Morris told the members of a conversation which he had with Past International President Johnston in which that official had lamented the present situation in Germany regarding Rotary and also the conditions in the Orient where Rotary had been making such splendid headway.

Something To Answer

Young man is serving a month for theft in the jail at Belleville, but that did not interfere with his wedding. Officials saw to that.

Just before the ceremony the man realized he had secured no wedding ring, but police solved that for him by getting one from a friend of the bridegroom who is also charged with theft.

The next obstacle was that after the wedding was performed the newly-married man found he had no money to pay the minister, but another friend made that right.

After which the married man went back to jail.

And if one cares to do any wondering or speculating he might find a good field in trying to figure out how this man is going to pay the bills when he gets out of jail and starts housekeeping.

The Request Is Late

At the Prophetic Bible Institute in Calgary Premier Aberhart regularly discusses the political situation. He speaks frankly enough as any politician might do at a campaign meeting; tells of his hopes and sends his barbs at those who are opposed to them. At best it appears to be a peculiar way of using the time supposed to be devoted to the work of a Prophetic Bible Institute.

On his last Sunday appearance the premier said: "Our problems must be solved by God. We can't hope for political parties to solve them." That is a high-sounding statement, but if one looks at the Alberta situation he must come to the conclusion that the Lord has probably not been consulted in the creation of the situation which the province faces.

Alberta has tried a good many forms of political administration; it has been a sort of testing ground for all the political experiments men have been minded to try, and we doubt if any of the experimenters have first taken their plans before the Almighty and asked for His guidance and direction. So when a people through various forms of government have worked themselves into a tight corner it is rather questionable to hear that the assistance of the Lord must and should be secured in straightening out a situation in the making of which He was not consulted.

Paying The Farmer

There have been some new and interesting facts made public regarding the increased price of milk in Toronto for which the dairy companies have been roundly blamed and against which a partial boycott has already been started. The Milk Board announces that the dairy companies did not apply for the increase, but the milk producers did. And the milk producers are farmers. There are 3,500 of them who supply milk to Toronto, and in a statement released by them it is claimed the price paid to the farmer has not been changed since 1934 although the cost of production has been steadily on the increase, and there have been times when the milk has been supplied at less than cost of production.

The statement from the farmers claims that in the last three years the price of dairy cows has increased by 60 per cent; the cost of concentrates for feed has increased by 100 per cent. The cost level today is equal to that of 1929, yet the new price which the farmer now receives for his milk is 17 per cent. less than the 1929 price.

We have merely set forth the facts contained in official statements made in Toronto, so it would seem that the boycott started in that city although directed primarily at the dairy companies, is actually aimed at the 3,500 farmers who are asking that they be paid a fair price for their milk. There is much said of a sympathetic sort at times about the farmer not being able to secure sufficient cash returns for his crops or produce, and as a rule most people are willing enough to participate in such argument in a favorable way. We agree that the farmer should receive a fair return, but we draw back in protest when it comes to paying the price for such sentiment.

Cannot Be Ignored

It is not likely there is anything missing from the National Motor Show in Toronto. All the new cars for 1938 are there, all the best ones, all the shiny ones. Probable too the best salesmen of all the car-making firms will be on hand, and if expert advice is sought on any point we dare say the men most capable of giving it will be present.

And yet when Hon. Dr. Herbert A. Bruce opened this great show in Toronto he started almost at the beginning of his address by saying people would have to learn how to drive these new and shiny cars so they would not kill people. So that feeling and appeal for a lessening of car slaughter is making its appearance almost every place. It may be it was not pleasant to have it brought into the opening of the Motor Show where there was nothing present to indicate or suggest a highway accident scene, but it came in just the same. And it should. Unless drivers change their habits some of those fine shiny cars of 1938 will be smashed long before they have outlived their usefulness. Not a pleasant thing about which to talk, but the drivers themselves are forcing the issue.

Same Hymns And Papers

Announcement is made from Toronto that there will be a degree of co-operation between the United Church of Canada and the Baptist Church in the production of Sunday School papers and leaflets which will be used in both Baptist and United schools. So far the Baptists have been using material secured from United States and some undenominational papers printed in this country. There has never been a supply of material issued particularly for Baptist Sunday schools in Canada.

A new hymn book has been authorized for use in Baptist churches, and it is plainly stated in the preface to the edition that it is virtually the same book which is now used by the United Church in Canada, and we have yet to hear of anything serious or mischievous happening to the Baptist churches where the new hymnal is being used.

So we have reached the stage where the little Baptists in Sunday school and the older and large Baptists in their church services will be respectively reading the same Sunday School papers and singing the same hymns to the same tunes as the folk in the United church. Nor have so many years passed since we were at a stage where there would have been considerable questioning regarding the fitness of such a thing, and perhaps too a bit of rumbling in the ranks because such a thing would have been regarded as dangerous or something of that sort. But nothing serious or alarming has yet taken place on account of the Baptists singing from a book which was compiled for the United Church, and it is quite likely the scholars in the Sunday Schools will not find themselves skidding, slipping or falling because they read papers prepared jointly for Baptist and United Church schools. It may be that the churches are realizing that the great things they have in common are of more importance than the lesser things over which many useless disputes have been staged.

The Man Who Lost His Grip

There was a picture of Kerensky in the paper the other day, and it cannot be said he has troubled the world much in recent years with either his picture, his voice or his plans. It is quite possible he has already become one of the unknowns to a good many, although he has been busy writing his memoirs of the Russian revolution.

Alexander Feodorevitch Kerensky lived through much of the revolution. He is one many who almost became head of a great nation but failed to retain his grip. He is now 56 years of age, and when a young man studied law and became a barrister in Moscow where he built a notable practice defending those accused of political offences, which is another way of saying that he was defending those who stood in danger of being exiled to Siberia for having offended the Czarist regime.

Kerensky joined himself to the Labor party and became a member of the Duma as a Moderate Socialist. He moved toward the front at the beginning of the revolution, becoming Minister of Justice. At that time the world heard much of two phrases "Bolshevist" and "Menshevist," but much more of the former than of the latter. He was in the provisional government of 1917 and he actually became chief figure in Russia, but was roundly blamed for the disorganization of the Russian army because of his move to grant privates almost the same standing as the officers. He became Minister of War and Marine and later premier. It was Kenensky who on Sept. 15, 1917, proclaimed the Russian republic with himself as president and chief of the Russian army. Admittedly the man had made rapid strides, but right there and then he came to the end of his road to greatness. The reason was he found himself faced with stronger and more fearless men, Trotsky and Lenin. Kerensky fled and was successful in getting out of Russia, being next reported in London in June of 1918. Of what has taken place in Russia since his departure he would have to depend on others to tell him because he never returned to his own land. But of the days immediately preceding and during the revolution he should have much about which to write as he lived through it all. If he tells all he knows he ought to be able to write a readable story.

As It Was On The Tenth

"It is nothing short of criminal to have such poor ventilation in a school building. The air in such a room is breathed again and again and it is worse during the winter season because the door and windows are kept closed."

We read that part of a report made by an official regarding a rural school in the western section of the province. Very likely what he said was true and probably something will be done about it.

Ventilation gets a good deal more attention today than it used to. In the school house on the Tenth Concession we cannot recall having heard much about it. There was one front door and three windows on each side and a sort of woodshed behind, but there would be no ventilation coming from that. Now and then there was a new teacher who in cold weather used to open the windows and have the children march around the room while the place was getting filled up with what she called fresh air, of which there was always considerable on the outside. One of the trustees heard of this and complained, his reason being that it was no good heating the room and then letting all the heat go out the open windows. Probably he was wrong but his contention received quite a favorable hearing at the time.

There was just one stove in the school, but it was large. Beneath it was a brick foundation, and around there the mittens of the boys and girls were placed to get dried out after snowballing particularly if the weather was a little soft. The mittens never seemed to get mixed as there was always a yarn string hitching the right and left together. It went up the sleeve, over the shoulder and down the other sleeve.

Most of the desks had little water bottles in them at that school, and the water was used for washing off the slates. There was a cork in the neck of the bottle with a V cut in one side to allow a little water to come out as required. When nights turned cold the water bottles used to freeze and then the slates had to be cleaned by administering a little saliva on the surface and doing the rubbing off with a rag or at times with the fat part of the hand just at the base of the thumb. They never kept the fire in over night as it was considered dangerous.

There was generally a pan of water on top of the stove, and we believe some person had once said it provided a certain amount of needed humidity in the atmosphere. So we take it that must have been a move calculated to benefit health in general. For the most part on cold days the windows were never opened. One good reason was they used to get frozen down, so in that way it was probably a fact that the air in the school house on the Tenth got breathed in and out a good many times during the day. It may even be that some of the air which went through the teacher finally got into the system of the boy who used to sit in the back seat and attend to putting wood in the box stove. If that was a criminal way to do things we never heard it referred to as such. We can recall having heard it said that the air felt a trifle stuffy, but the word criminal was never lugged into the discussion at all. Children used to get filled up with fresh air when they went out at recess or when they went to the pump for a drink. Just what effect that supply of fresh air had on the air in general in the room we do not know. The only point on which we have clear recollection was the time one of the trustees said it was all nonsense to open the door and windows and allow all the good heat to go outside. Possibly he never had taken a course in the art or science of ventilation.

SAFETY

¶ Young Jonas Bolt has got a car, nor has he gone so very far, but he is rash indeed; he trades his car in now and then, and tries to pass all other men, he is a bear for speed.

¶ He started out the other day, to travel eighty miles away, some chores he had to do; and people saw him as he passed, remarking he was going too fast, a speed cop saw him too.

¶ Young Jonas saw the speed-cop come, he'd shake him off 'fore he got done, he had a goodly crate; he'd show just what good driving meant, and that's the reason why he went, with speed at 98.

¶ Young Jonas paid a goodly fine, he's serving too a month of time, they took his license too; and he can't drive till comes next May, they've put his shiny car away, so for a while he's through.

¶ And Jonas like a smart young man, has scoffed about my pink sedan, he's called it just a crate; he laughs when I take out my car, and say's I can't go very far or else I'll get home late.

¶ But speed cops do not bother me, nor is the reason hard to see, the thing will gee and haw; my pink sedan will roar and go, but at its best it is too slow —for me to break the law.

A STORY FROM Port Darwin, Australia, tells us that one of the loneliest policemen in the world this Christmas will be Constable Peter Riley, for while Royal Canadian Mounted Police will be seeking warmth at their sub-Arctic posts, Riley will be fighting flies and mosquitoes in wild Arnhem Land, Northern Australia.

Riley will be stationed for three months at King River on the coast of Arnhem Land aboriginal reserve. His sole companion will be a black tracker and his only neighbors will be wild Myall blacks. Only when a government steamer, the Larrakia, calls on its periodical patrol of the northern coast will he see another white man.

The constable has been chosen to take charge of the first Watering and fuelling base established under the new Aboriginal Ordinance to ensure that fishing boats land in the reserve under proper supervision. All crews of Australian-owned fishing vessels using the base are Japanese.

Equipped with quantities of mosquito—exterminating liquid, Riley will probably spend Christmas with the blacks. Game abounds in the vicinity and he will at least be assured of duck and goose for his Yuletide dinner. He will be the only policeman on the 1,000 miles of coastline bounding the northern extremity of the aboriginal reserve.

Vigilance of customs officials at Pondicherry, India has resulted in many seizures of smuggled goods including a large quantity of silk concealed in a gasoline tank car. The action follows the widening of the officials' authority in a campaign to stamp out smuggling.

Murder Bands.

FOR YEARS ARABS, natives and whites lived amicably in Kenya colony in Africa but recently inexplicable friction has grown between Wakirini Arabs, immigrants from Arabia, and the negro inhabitants of the upcountry districts. Petty dispute became frequent to the extreme anxiety of British governor Sir Henry Robert Brooke-Popham.

In Mombasa recently frenzied rioters stormed into the streets, slashed at each other with razors and other weapons and took pot-shots at the police. His local force hopelessly outnumbered, the District Commissioner hurriedly called up Nairobi, 330 miles away, for reinforcements. Hardly had the trouble been quelled than new riots broke out on the coffee plantations in nearby Tanganyika and before order could be restored seventy persons were jailed.

According to Kenya opinion these demonstrations were the work of Italian agents whose orders are to keep the hands of British authorities full. The theory is that Mussolini is using this idea of keeping the Kenya government occupied, thus rendering the colony an unsuitable base for anti-Italian activities.

An old native at Van Reenen, Natal, South Africa, has learned that a bank is safer than a hut for keeping his spare cash. Finding that ants had badly mutilated his hoard of 30 one-pound notes, the man appealed to the bank. Officials spent many hours sorting the fragments, handling them with tweezers. Finally they managed to reconstruct sufficient of the bills to satisfy the Reserve Bank that the native's claim was genuine and he received the full amount in notes.

Crime On the Increase.

ACCORDING to East London reports the increase of crime among the natives in South Africa is causing apprehension. At the national congress of the Dominion party recently laws governing the native population were denounced as inadequate and antiquated, and motions were introduced referring to the need of augmenting the police force. One speaker declared that a riot at Vereeniging in the Transvaal in which two white constables were killed was the first shot in a long list of crimes that would soon break out in South Africa and another declared that the laws were based on conditions existing 40 years ago and that if they were not altered South Africa would soon not be liveable for the white race.

Since Japan's youngest and most alert policemen were called up for service in the war against China a petty crime wave has broken out in the country and the sum of 800,000 yen has been alloted for the adoption of new detection and prevention methods. The blood-test plan, rather than the finger-print system, is to be introduced.

Favorite small time crimes in Japan between nightfall and midnight include confidence tricks with playing-cards, the spots of which can be changed at will. Dice cups with false bottoms and concealed windows are used through which the crooks can see what is happening inside the cup.

A French Aviation Company has introduced a new low-wing monoplane which it claims to be the fastest airliner ever built in Europe. It can do the journey from London to Paris in just over an hour—half the time taken by the Imperial Airways oldfashioned biplanes.

It is said that tonsil and adenoid operations are so popular among British school doctors and family physicians that eight out of ten Britons have been treated. Yet along comes a distinguished surgeon James Crooks with the statement that in many cases treatment of the sinuses would be more effective than the removal of tonsils and adenoids.

Black Folk Not Yet Ready to Govern

That Is Big Problem For Those in S. Africa; Many More Blacks There Than White People

(By Bishop Walter Carey in The) Church Times)

WHAT Hertzog means is that in the population of roughly, one and a half million whites and seven million natives, it is the white man's civilization which is to be dominant. For assimilation is impossible; white does not marry black, nor vice versa. What I wish he had said is: "In a land peopled by mixed races, the white man's law must rule." For South Africa is the country of the natives as well as of the white man.

That the native should have justice and equity goes without saying. But always in South Africa there will be segregation of sorts. In Bloemfontein, twenty-five thousand whites live in Bloemfontein itself, and twenty-seven thousand natives at Waltheer, one and a half miles away.

This is just and necessary. Remember that the law which keeps black men out of Bloemfontein after nightfall also keeps the bad white man out of Waltheer and saves endless immorality.

My own ideal if of black and white living largely apart socially and territorially, and yet both acknowledged citizens of South Africa. Religion, justice, freedom, kindliness would be common to all. The black man must accept white law (e.g., as administered by those magnificent Courts, the High Courts of South Africa) as supreme. They have everything to learn and nothing to give here.

Politically, I hope that the black communities will first send white representatives to the Senate; as they develop, they will elect black men to Parliament (to represent, but not to swamp.) This will in time mean both suffrage (on some qualification) and actual representation. But it must take time; they are not ready for it yet, although in a few cases, with men like Jabavu or Calale, they would be worthily represented now.

I do fear two things. One is the conviction of the black man and his friends that he is a wonderful chap, quite fit to take his place with the white man as a voter or a statesman. He has much to learn, a long way to go.

I have loved the black man, have suffered for him. But I will not lie to him. He is not fit yet for responsible government, except on a limited scale in favored areas like the Transkei—where, by the way, he is neither a helot nor a slave, though under the Union.

My other fear is for the white man in Africa. Will the Dutchman and the Englishman give fair treatment to these wayward, lovable, kindly children, for whom they are, in God's sight, trustees? I say "Yes, in time." Hofmeyer says "Yes in time" but I know there is a large body of conservative opinion in South Africa which wants to keep them down permanently.

Sad Day Salem Orchard Came Down

People Recall the Apples That Once Grew There; Also Remember How They Were Given Away

(West Salem (Wis.) Nonpariel-Journal)

TO THE SOUND of the woodchopper's ax, Shane's orchard — that bit of rustic loveliness in town—has disappeared.

Planted by Daniel Shane in 1893, seven of the original nine or 10 apple trees still stood last week when the ax began its work. Trees of seven varieties were included in the orchard —McIntosh Red, Duchess, Northwestern Greening, McMahon, Eureka, Yellow Transparent and Lyman's Prolific.

Years ago there were plum trees in the orchard too, and grapevines and raspberry bushes — a veritable wilderness. Men and women grown now and with children of their own can look back to days when Shane's orchard was a pleasant place to wander in, especially in the late Summer when ripe apples lay temptingly on the ground. (Sometimes, though, childish impatience refused to wait for that time, and green apples no bigger than marbles were dauntlessly eaten.)

They remember on Summer mornings encountering "Grandpa" Shane, then an old man, who, instead of chasing the little intruders from his orchard, surprisingly welcomed them and urged them to heap their baskets full. Indeed, no youngster ever had a sense of stealing when he gathered apples from that spot, for the Shanes —Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shane, and later the George Shanes who moved from the farm to the house in town in 1920—gave generously of their yield.

Present-day children are as regretful at seeing the orchard go as yesterday's children in whose memories it lingers. On the day when the work of felling the trees began, several urchins gathered to voice the plaintive query, "Aren't there going to be any more apples?"

So, though the neighborhood will welcome the Ed. Youngs when they come to live in the home they will build on the orchard's site, there will be times when sentimental ones will close their eyes to remember the orchard as it once stood, the slanting rays of the late afternoon sun stealing through the gnarled old branches to cast a pattern of light and shadow on the grass beneath.

Children Were Taking No Part in War

But a Plane Dropped Bombs and Killed Them; We Find It Hard to Understand the Reason

(From the Montreal Star)

THE SCHOOL doors opened and lively streams of children came tumbling out into the afternoon. All at once a law whine cut the air, then swelled into a roar. Airplanes came swooping through the sky. The air was filled with the din of motors and the drill-hammer pounding of machine guns and with heavy dull explosions. One of the planes headed straight over the school. Suddenly, where the children were, earth and buildings went hurtling into the air.

That happened the other afternoon in Lerida, a Spanish town, according to the dispatches. After the killer airplanes had left, the bodies of fifty children were dug out of the debris.

None of those children who were killed had anything to do with the starting of the war. None of them, even if the war is dragged out longer than we can now conceive, could take any part in it. By no possible stretch of imagination could they be regarded as a danger to the other side, as "elements" who had to be liquidated.

Lerida is a town over 80 miles behind the battle lines. It could not be considered in the actual zone of land combat. But the other side found that the town, and the people living in it, including the children going to school should be bombed. They must have somehow thought that the bombing would help them on to victory.

For us in Canada, perhaps a little backward in such matters, it is unbearably hard to understand that kind of reasoning. But, according to reports from Europe, it is fashionable in some quarters. There is the well known Italian theory that severe bombing and machine-gunning of centres of civilian population is necessary to break the morale of the enemy. It does not matter, of course, what the rest of the world thinks, as we have been told a number of times. But it is worth reading about Lerida, and then stopping for just a few moments to think of what a European war would be like with nations fighting that are more efficient at these things than the Spaniards.

FOOTBALL MATCH.

(Letter in Ottawa Journal)

SIR:—Some of the criticisms appearing in your paper and elsewhere about Saturday's football match make me tired.

Ottawa was defeated by a hair's breadth. If the touch Ottawa scored had not been called back by a comparatively new technicality in the rules, Ottawa would have won—and then, no doubt, everybody would have cried they were wonderful.

Yet most people are blathering about how the Ottawa team fell down.

It was a great football battle, not spectacular, but with a splendid heap of fast and rugged work on both sides. The Argos won only because they showed better headwork, and were lucky at that.

For our home experts to belabor our fellows merely because they didn't happen to ride rough-shod over a splendid team like the Argos looks to me like pretty small potatoes.

Evidently still with most people including newspapers, the only thing that succeeds is success.

"It's your red hat, ma'am," explained the farmer.

She flushed, and looked upset.

To the Editor

THE FARM THEME

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In the course of an editorial of The Examiner, which was widely re-printed in the farm and weekly press, you deal the rural cards with a fine skill, indicating that "the farm home was rather lagging behind the rest of the world."

This reader would like to congratulate you on the accuracy of your conclusions, because, in my view, the central flaw in today's economic machinery (not only in the Dominion but across the world) is to be found in the fact that rural wheels and urban wheels are tuned to a different speed and, therefore, fail to mesh.

The economic rewards "on the pavements" are so out-of-line with the results of far heavier expenditures of intelligence and energy "down on the farm," I do not see how we can expect young and alert rural Canadians to choose agriculture as their life's work.

Everyone seems to readily understand that, in the secondary industries, wage-power is buying-power; but, when it comes to dealing with the primary producers, the general urban objective seems to "slip a cog," and too many of us have the foolish dream that our interests are best served by squeezing the last margin of profit from farm prices—leaving Mr. and Mrs. Farmer and family largely on a subsistence basis.

I recall the fact that the so-called "Industrial East" shipped just $400,000,000 worth of products in the single season of 1928 into the so-called "Agricultural West." In 1932 that traffic nose-dived to just $80,000,000. Last year it rose to $120,000,000.

A teen-age boy could not miss that lesson. Mr. Editor, as to the source of the growth of "urban relief" into the ranks of Big Business.

50,000 Busy Shaping Ethiopia For Colonization Drive

Build Roads, Hospitals, Schools To Make Italian Conquest Livable

ROME, Nov. 8—(AP)—A civilian army of 50,000 workmen is getting Ethiopia ready for the start of Premier Mussolini's large scale colonization program.

It is engaged on a large number of public improvements, including roads, hospitals, and schools, to make the new domain livable, probably within a year.

Of an appropriation of $600,000,000 recently decreed by Il Duce to be spent over a period of six years, $400,000,000 was set aside for road building and maintenance.

More than 1,000 miles of roads radiate from Addis Ababa, the capital. Two-day bus service has been established on the new imperial highway, connecting Addis Ababa with Massawa, Eritrean port on the Red Sea—reducing Ethiopia's dependence on the French-owned railroad connecting Addis Ababa and Djibouti, port in French somaliland. Another road nearing completion parallels the railroad between Addis Ababa and Djibouti.

Shut Off From Sea Before.

Before the Italian conquest, which started in the fall of 1935, Ethiopia was shut off from the sea. But now the 350,000 square miles of Ethiopia—most sizeable chunk of Italy's East African domain—has two important outlets to the sea through Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, parts of Italian East Africa.

Back in Addis Ababa from an empire-wide tour, Viceroy Rodolfo Graziani said the domain was ready to exploit on a paying basis.

In four regions—Tessenei, Aussa, Metemma and Gobo—he reported cotton plantations flourishing, aided by a $5,000,000 national ginning corporation.

The Viceroy said upland ranchers were increasing and improving their cattle, already estimated at 16,000,000 head.

BRITAIN TARGET OF 3-WAY PACT AGAINST REDS

Russian Influence Weakened By Purge

LONDON, Nov. 9—(CP)—The anti-communism pact signed by Italy, Germany and Japan at Rome was interpreted by the British press today as aimed at Great Britain rather than at Russia, whose internal difficulties have weakened her influence internationally.

The Daily Telegraph, Conservative, and two Liberal newspapers, the Manchester Guardian and the London News Chronicle, agreed that Britain was the principal target of the accord signed by the two European dictator states and Japan on Saturday.

Russian quarters in Rome indicated the Soviet might withhold oil supplies to Italy.

France planned to strengthen her ties with Great Britain and the United States possibly pointing out to the latter the possibilities of South American countries joining the anti-communism alignment. Tokyo dispatches indicated Bolivia might join, with other Latin-American countries following suit.

There seemed little chance, meanwhile, Japan would change her attitude of non-cooperation with the Brussels nine-power treaty conference, which will resume its deliberations in the Belgian capital tomorrow.

Guarantee For Peace?

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said it "was difficult not to read without a certain pardonable reserve Herr Von Ribbentrop's statement at the signing of the Rome pact on Saturday that this act 'is a guarantee for world peace.'

"It would be easier to believe it if Bolshevism today were the only formidable enemy to world peace. But recent events have strongly suggested that peace at the present time has the most to fear from the embattled allied enemies of Bolshevism.

"France, Great Britain and the United States might be excused for finding not much reassurance in the barrier against Bolshevism which extends from the Baltic and North Sea through the Mediterranean to the Pacific, where some of their vital interests might be affected and where, as Signor Gayda (Virginio Gayda, authoritative Italian commentator) amicably reminds us 2,000,000 tons of warships can be concentrated.

"Indeed France and Great Britain might be excused for believing that their concern in this anti-Bolshevist pact was more direct than that of Soviet Russia which has the advantage of being almost invulnerable."

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal emphasized that the Communist danger had been virtually eliminated by the purge within the Soviet Union and hence the new pact must have a hidden motive.

"Russia rapidly is being transformed into a Nationalist state," the newspaper declared. "Above all as a Nationalist is Stalin, who compared with Peter the Great and Ivan the Terrible. Russia appears reduced to great weakness by the purge. She is entirely on the defensive in her relations with the outside world.

"Although it is anti-Russia, the pact is not directed against Russia alone or even primarily against her. It is above all directed against Great Britain.

"Without Great Britain and to some extent the United States, Japan would have unchallenged hegemony of the entire Far East, including the Dutch East Indies.

"Without Great Britain Italy would be master of the western Mediterranean, and France would be at least immobilized by Germany."

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Herman Rosenzweig, a tailor, found a wallet containing $1,598 in cash while pressing a pair of pants.

Belling Turkeys Is New Experience

WHILE visiting near Keene recently, a local woman informs The Examiner, she was walking along the roadway when she heard the tinkling of a couple of bells. She thought it was perhaps a sheep or a cow near at hand, but could see no animals answering this description within sight. As she stood puzzling as to where the sound was coming from, she observed a flock of turkeys break from cover. Two old turkey hens had bells around their feathered necks. The woman said it was a new experience and struck her as being quite original. "I have often seen cows and sheep wearing bells, but never a turkey, so I thought it might be an item worth passing on", she said declining to reveal her name for publication.

Britain Sends 'Iron Man' To Curb Violence

With two British soldiers of the famous Black Watch regiment dead from Arab gunfire directed at them in the streets of Jerusalem, tension in the Holy Land again becomes acute. It was the first serious outbreak since September 26 when L. Y. Andrews, British commissioner in Galilee, was assassinated at Nazareth at the height of widespread Arab demonstrations against the British plan for partitioning of Palestine. To enforce British law and order the Colonial Office has sent Sir Charles Tegart, famed as "The Man of Iron" during pacification of Bengal, to Palestine. The bombing of Arab villages in reprisal for armed attacks has also been utilized. In CENTRE, ABOVE, is pictured such an explosion when British army engineers mined and blew to pieces an Arab village near Tel Aviv.

HOLD FOWL SUPPER REMEMBRANCE DAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Nov. 9.—Cavan W.M.S. and W.A. met in the church on Thursday afternoon for their November meeting.

Mrs. Trumpour conducted the devotional period and gave an inspiring talk on the theme, "A Worshipping Church." Mrs. Stider was secretary for the meeting in the absence of Miss A. Tinney. The president of the W.A., Mrs. R. Matchett, presided during a business session, when plans were completed for the serving of the annual fowl dinner in Cavan Community Hall on the evening of Armistice Day. The committee in charge of arrangements reported 20 geese purchased in addition to the fowl which will be donated by the congregation.

Arrangements were made to have ly offered to cook them in his oven.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $20.36. The table convenors, ladies in the pantry, and those in charge of the different departments were reported, appointed, also the program arranged—a play from Garden Hill, with suitable music.

W.M.S. Holds Meeting

Mrs. Swain took charge of the W.M.S. meeting. It was announced that in December the annual election of officers would be held. Fifty dollars and five cents was reported sent to the Presbyterial secretary.

The autumn thank-offering was requested to be handed in at the December meeting. Twp dozen Christmas cards were ordered from the missionary monthly advertisements, to be sold to the members. Mrs. Perrin took up the second chapter of the study book, "Unto the Ends of the Earth."

Miss Malone read an article on temperance, which maintained that the greatest economic enemy of the homes of America is intemperance. The president dismissed the meeting with prayer.

FIVE JEWS SHOT

JERUSALEM, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Five Jews were shot and killed while going to work at a quarry near Jerusalem in a renewal of Arab-Jewish violence to-day. Military authorities took added precautions at Haifa after Captain Norman Salew of the British Essex Regiment was stabbed in the neck by an intruder in his apartment. He was not wounded seriously.

Men past forty can no longer take chances with health and "get away with it," because the body has less resistance to disease and its powers of recuperation are lower.

Common sense must dictate the mode of living, including diet, exercise and habits. A precautionary health check-up should be made at regular intervals by a good physician.

Many People Living Today Who Have Never Eaten Beans

Some Excellent Bean Dishes Offered To Examiner Readers

By Mary Moore

THE FARMERS are selling pints of good looking beans for 10 cents in some places and that sounds like very economical and flavorful meals to me. We had this:

Lima Bean Casserole

As the plate de resistance of a vegetable plate dinner:

Soak 1½ cups lima beans overnight and in the morning cook in salted water until nearly tender. Crisp ¼ lb. bacon, finely chopped, in hot frying pan, then swim the bacon out of the fat and to the fat add 2 medium sized onions peeled and chopped finely and if you have a little bit of green pepper on hand, chop it and add it. Saute these until they are soft. In a buttered casserole spread a layer of cooked beans, then sprinkle over this some of the onion, pepper and bacon, salt and pepper and repeat layers until all is used. Pour 1 cup milk over all and bake thirty minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. Tomato juice may be used in place of milk. Chopped leftover ham may be used instead of bacon, and cooking oil used for sauteing the vegetables.

Secondly I want to put on record that beans are not plebeian food. To prove this to you I give you this:

Black Bean Soup

The like of which cannot be equalled.

One pint of black beans (the black and white speckled are just as good), 2 quarts cold water, 1 small onion, 2 stalks celery, or ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ½ tablespoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¾ teaspoon mustard, few grains cayenne, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 hard cooked eggs, 1 lemon (optional). Soak the beans overnight, and in the morning, saute the sliced onion in half the butter for 3 minutes, then add the beans, celery, and more water and simmer 2 or 3½ hours until beans are very soft. Add more water as it is necessary. Rub all through sieve, reheat to boiling point and add salt, pepper, mustard and cayenne all of which have been well mixed together. Add remaining butter. Slice the hard cooked eggs, and lemon in bottom of soup dishes or tureen and pour the boiling hot soup over them.

Needless to say this soup is so good it is worth the labor of straining which almost every housewife seems to avoid. Serve it at a meal where the main course is 'one-piece' and dessert is fruity.

Emem's Bean Loaf

Use any kind of beans for this but navy beans are preferable. For a family of four it is best to use 1 cup of beans and soak them overnight and in morning add more water and cook until tender. Rub through coarse sieve when done. To this add 1 cup soft crumbs, 2 eggs, 1 onion minced fine, which has been gently sauteed for 2 mins. in 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and ¼ cup tomato catsup. Pack into small loaf or round pan, brush top with melted butter or catsup and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until thoroughly heated through and browned on top. Turn out on hot platter, surround with accompanying vegetable such as broccoli or spinach and pour Tomato Sauce over the loaf.

Tomato Sauce (for bean loaf)

Boil 1 No. 2 can of tomatoes with 1 slice onion, 1 bay leaf, 4 peppercorns, and ¼ teaspoon pepper, and 1 teaspoon salt until onion is tender—about 10 minutes. Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 2 tablespoons flour and when blended add the strained tomato mixture stirring until it thickens.

The above tomato sauce is good on fish, or poached eggs on toast.

Bean Cakes

Leftover beans may be strained through a coarse sieve, cream added, and moulded into little cakes, sprinkled with cheese, and browned in hot oven. These are a nice substitute for potatoes for dinner.

You probably remember that my idea of a salad is not potato salad but leafy green things. However, salad seem to have become the name of many things that aren't salad and it is certainly that way with:

Bean Salad

But, ah, the flavor is there and what is in a name? Some people don't know beans when the bag's open anyway.

Mix one cup baked or flavored boiled beans (navy or lima) with 1 cup of squeezed out sauerkraut, ½ cup chopped green olives, mixed with sweet gherkins. Blend together with Lorenzo (see below) and serve in wooden bowl lined with delicate lettuce leaves.

Lorenzo Dressing

To French Dressing add 1 tablespoon chopped watercress and half teaspoon chili sauce and shake well. Mayonnaise is good with this salad too. I prefer it.

Speaking of the versatility of beans (we have gone through soup, main course and salad already). We used to play Bean Bag. Mamma sewed beans into little pillow ticking cases; Father bored about 5 inch holes in a board, our part was to aim the bags through the holes from a certain distance. Cheap, homemade game—good practice for prospective baseball and basketball players.

Mrs. Bigger's Baked Beans

These are so good that when our gang have a picnic, Mrs. Bigger is often implored to please bring her bean pot full of them.

One pint of small white beans, ½ lb. salt pork, 1 teaspoon mustard, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 dessertspoons sugar, 1 dessertspoon molasses, ½ teaspoon ginger, ¼ cayenne pepper. Rub bottom of bean pot with onion. (Soak beans overnight of course). Arrange layer on layer of soaked beans and pork which has been sliced. The seasonings having been added to the soaked beans. Put one whole onion on top for three hours then take out. Fill with water and keep moist when necessary with boiling water. Last hour or two fill with tomato juice.

If to be reheated on following day (when its flavor is invariably improved) moisten with Tomato juice and reheat in oven.

Missouri Boiled Beans

When I was young and ideas were sparse and away from home where we were soldom served pork—never fresh pork—I gave pork its innings in my new little household. In Missouri where we lived, hogs were butchered and the back bone was cut out with the tenderloins left attached, so pork "backbone" was a very choice cut. You paid about 15 cents a lb. for it and cooked it with sauerkraut usually, but my brand new husband didn't like their sauerkraut (nor does he now) so I boiled it with navy beans, adding some grated onion, white pepper and salt. In this way we had meat and vegetable in one dish and served with catsup, when were were hungry, which we always were, it made a grand boiled dinner. We would serve it now with shoulder of pork or spare ribs, or ham shin would be good.

MOTHER HELPED BY KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

"I have suffered from terrible constipation since the birth of my first child. I tried everything. Very reluctantly, I tried your ALL-BRAN with no faith in it at all.

"Much to my surprise, I have not had to take any medicine since starting to use ALL-BRAN."—Mrs. Doris Eyre King (address on request).

Common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies this needed "bulk."

Within the body, this cereal absorbs twice its weight in water, forms a soft mass, gently sponges out the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood.

Enjoy this food instead of taking weakening pills and drugs. Serve as a cereal, with milk or fruits, or cook into recipes.

ALL-BRAN is sold by your grocer. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

A rather unusual and quick dessert is made by boiling spice dumplings in a sugar syrup flavored with apple skins.

Spice Dumpling Dessert

Over low heat bring to boiling point ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon ginger, and when smooth add all at once 1 cup flour and stir until mixed through then add 2 egg yolks. Have ready a syrup made of 1 cup sugar, 1½ cups water in which you have boiled some red apple peelings to give it color and flavor. Lift out the skins after 5 minutes, drop in the dumpling batter by tablespoonfuls, cover and cook 10 minutes over low heat. When done and ready to serve lift the dumplings onto dessert plates, flavor the syrup with the juice of 1 lemon and pour this syrup over each dumpling.

A hearty and flavorful dessert after a soup and salad supper.

QUESTION: I would be very much obliged if you would give me a recipe or idea how to decorate a wedding cake and Christmas cake. Could I have books to learn how to decorate cakes of all kinds and how to make roses on cake and other decorations. Where could I get the coloring for icing?—Mrs. A. S. St. Paul.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter. The gadget I use for decorating cakes, and shaping cookie dough, and mayonnaise and whipped cream is called "Krag's DeLuxe Kookie Designer" and I bought it at Toronto Exhibition this year. However, I have seen similar articles demonstrated in many department stores in other cities, and such equipment can be bought in large hardware stores or in the hardware department in large department stores. Directions for using them come with the package. They comprise a tube in which is a plunger which is removable, for when icing on cookie or whipped cream is to be put into it. A nozzle fits on the bottom of the tube, and three or four different

The coloring can be bought in

The following can be bought in paste in tubes like tooth past or in liquid form in bottles, from large drug stores. It is called vegetable coloring.

On page 36 in the cook book "The Art of Cooking and Serving" by Sarah Field Splint, published by the Proctor and Gamble people in Cincinnati, Ohio, is an illustration of a cookie and icing tube and fancy designers, and on page 152 of the same book, picture of a woman using one and the type she has, called pastry bag and tube.

QUESTION: I have searched cook books for ages it seems and in vain, for a recipe for sweet pickled carrots; and so I turn to you with a plea for help.

The pickles I have in mind are rather thinly sliced carrots, sweet pickled and a little spicy; such as are served in Chinese restaurants. The description is rather vague, but I feel certain that you will be able to answer my S.O.S., and being very grateful to you for help derived from your successful columns every week, I will be doubly grateful for this.

Best wishes, I am.—Elsie P.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter, you are too kind, though.

Pickled Carrots

Scrape and wash carrots, and cut into slices of desired thickness, and cook in salt water until nearly tender. Then reserve some of the water (you will need ½ cup of it for each 4 pints of carrots) and drain the carrots from the remainder. Make a syrup of ½ cup water in which carrots were cooked, 2½ cups vinegar, 1½ cups white sugar, 2 tablespoons whole allspice, cloves mixed, and 4 sticks of cinnamon bark. Tie the spices in a bag so they may be removed when syrup is spicy enough. Boil together 10 minutes. Place the hot sliced carrots in sterile pint jars with rubber rings in place, and when syrup is ready pour it over the carrot slices to overflowing and seal.

I need not say I hope you will like this because it is an excellent recipe and I have made it myself.

QUESTION: Last year I took a recipe from your page for a sandwich spread and took sick and did not make it until this year. It was sent back to you for correction, and I would like you to explain a part for me. Do you cook the butter, cream and egg or have the eggs to be added raw, when you use the spread? If I am not asking too much will you give me a few sandwich spreads?—Mrs. L. H.

ANSWER: Although I cannot recall to which sandwich spread you refer, I am pretty sure the eggs would be added, after they were hard cooked and mashed, to the sandwich spread when it was made. Such sandwich spreads have to be kept in the refrigerator anyway, covered, and there is no reason why the egg could not be added at first.

Sandwich Spreads

No. 1.—Prepare 1 cup butter by creaming it thoroughly then add ¼ cup chili sauce, and 1½ cups devilled ham, or anchovy paste, or ¼ cup horseradish and 1 cup ground cold roast beef. Shill enough to make of right consistency to spread. This will keep covered for one week if on ice.

NOTE: Minced watercress or parsley improves the above filling if added just before it is ready for use.

No. 2.—One of the best fillings for storing is made of equal parts of ground dried beef (to be bought at large groceries or Jewish groceries) and Canadian cheese, all moistened with canned tomato soup. Do try this, it is surprisingly good.

No. 3—Blanched almonds are put through the course knife of the food chopper. To 1 cup of these add ½ lb. package of Canadian cheese and cream it well. This will keep very well in glass jar if covered and on ice. Excellent flavor.

LOOK AHEAD WARILY

IF YOU HAVE opened the bidding with a hand which is rather sickly in honor cards, it pays to give it delicate treatment later on. Particularly is it wise to be careful about making later bids which may cause the side to land in a no trump contract. It is better sometimes to select as an opening bid the one which probably will make it easier for you to act after your partner's probable response.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

This deal came up in a Team-of-Four match and the bidding was quite different at the two tables. In both instances the bidding passed around to South in the third position, where it was opened with a bid of 1-Spade. North's response was 2-Hearts and when South bid 3-Clubs, North went to 3-No Trump, feeling he had stoppers in the other two suits and fillers for both of his partner's suits. This contract was defeated two tricks.

At the other table South was more cautious. After his partner's 2-Heart bid, over his own 1-Spade, he rebid his spade suit rather than show another suit, which might give too much encouragement to his partner. Over the 2-Spades North called 2-No Trump, and when South now bid 3-Clubs North passed. The result was that they got a plus on the board rather than a minus. North figured that with the spade rebid South's hand might not have been very strong and he might as well discontinue the bidding.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What is the correct defense against South's contract of 3-No Trump?

Like tender, young PEAS the choice, young TEA LEAVES have a wonderful FLAVOR

Blended and packed in Canada

HOW disappointed you are when you start to shell the peas and find them big, coarse, bitter—simply too old to be good.

Yet the young peas from the very same plants are tender, sweet, delicious...

There's a lesson in this for tea buyers. Like most other plants, tea leaves have the flavor you like when they're choice, young.

In every package of Tender Leaf Tea, you get the choice, young leaves—picked at the peak of flavor and fragrance. No coarse, heavy leaves are included for bulk.

A new scientific instrument was used to measure the amount of aroma in 14 brands of tea—and what a difference it showed! Tender Leaf Tea—and one other, more expensive brand—came first. Some of the remaining brands had only one-sixth the aroma of Tender Leaf Tea.

Your grocer carries this tea in two convenient sizes. Buy "Tender Leaf Tea"—it lives up to its name!

Central H. and S.
Holds Interesting Meeting.

The changes that are being made in the school curriculum were fully explained by Inspector K. S. Wightman at the monthly meeting of Central Home and School Association on Monday evening.

Most of the provinces of Canada have adopted these new courses of study, which have been well prepared by leading educationists and which tend to create a more lasting interest on the part of pupils. Promotion in the future will be made on the basis of the year's work. The speaker's address cleared many doubts from the minds of the parents.

"Current Events" was the subject chosen by another guest speaker of the evening, F. E. Kerr, principal of King George School. Mr. Kerr gave a fascinating talk touching upon conditions in Europe and Asia at the present time.

A short business session, presided over by the president, Mrs. C. H. McWilliams, occupied the first part of the meeting, when reports from various convenors were heard. Mrs. J. Marshall gave an important report of the help given to needy children. Mrs. N. Stanger, as representative for the Local Council of Women, urged a good attendance for the election of officers at the afternoon meeting on November 18.

The attendance picture was again awarded to Mr. Bolton's room. A paper collection to assist in raising the treasury will be held as soon as can be arranged. All the H. and S. Associations will meet for Divine Service on the evening of Sunday, November 14, at George Street United Church.

An enjoyable musical program, included a vocal solo by Mrs. A. H. Radford, playing her own accompaniment; a piano solo by Eva Blanche Parr; a vocal solo by Agnes Hele, accompanied by Eva Blanche Parr at the piano.

The thanks of the Association was expressed by the president to the speakers and all who had taken part in the evening's entertainment.

Berardi-Anthony.

In the Church of the Immaculate Conception at half-past eight on Monday morning, a very lovely wedding took place when Adeline Anthony, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anthony of Mark street became the bride of Alex Berardi, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Berardi of Parnell street. The Nuptial Mass and ceremony was solemnized by the Very Rev. Dean O'Sullivan.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charming gown of white velvet, fashioned with long sleeves, and graceful skirt falling into a train. An elbow-length veil of tulle fell from her white velvet turban. She wore white kid gloves and satin slippers, and her flowers were a bouquet of eighteen white Calla lillies.

Miss Mary Anthony attended her sister as bridesmaid. She wore a cerise taffeta gown, a small turban of silver petals, and silver slippers. Her flowers were a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was attended by a cousin, Guy Clementi, and the ushers were Anthony and Joseph DeNoble.

The wedding music was played by Miss Leone Hummel, and during the progress of the mass, several hymns were sung by Mrs. D. Campanaro.

A reception was held later at the home of the bride's parents, when the parents of the bride and groom received the fifty guests, with the bridal party. Pink and white streamers and bells were prettily used as decorations in the rooms, and the bride's table, covered with an Irish linen cloth, and centred with the wedding cake, had pink roses and pink candles in silver holders as other charming decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Berardi left for a trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the latter travelling in a black wool coat with silver fox collar, a black dress, and accessories to match.

Many handsome gifts were received by the young couple from their wide circle of friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a black and silver dresser set, to the bridesmaid a pair of pearl rosaries and to the best man a silver cigarette lighter.

Turner-Wilson.

King Street Baptist Church, Hamilton, was beautifully decorated with mauve and yellow chrysanthemums and tall standards of ferns, when the Rev. H. I. Veals, pastor of the church, solemnized the marriage of Lillian Jean, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Wilson, formerly of Peterborough, and Howard Albert Turner, son of George Turner and the late Mrs. Turner.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a gown of white lace over satin, with a short train, and fitted jacket trimmed with tiny buttons. She wore a coronet of lace with shoulder-length veil, white satin sandals, and carried a bouquet of Premier Supreme roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Morris, was gowned in lavender taffeta, cut on princess lines, a braided halo, matching gloves and slippers, and carried an arm bouquet of yellow and mauve chrysanthemums.

J. Ashton Turner was groomsman for his brother, and the ushers were Norman Wilson, brother of the bride and Cecil J. Blake. The wedding music was played by Arthur J. Perison and J. Evans sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly," during the ceremony.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 24 Strathcona avenue. The bride's mother was gowned in navy chiffon, blue and white accessories, and wore a corsage of Souvenir roses. Miss Rita Turner, sister of the groom, assisted in receiving the guests. She was wearing navy sheer crepe, matching accessories, and a corsage of Briarcliff roses.

Brotherstone-Bullock.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 9. — A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Robert Bullock, Lakefield, at noon on Monday, November 8, when Miss Edith Eliza Bullock of Peterborough, daughter of Mrs. Cynthia Bullock of Lakefield and the late Robert Bullock, became the bride of Robert Brotherstone of Peterborough, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brotherstone.

The living-room, where the ceremony was performed, was decorated attractively with large orchid-pink and white chrysanthemums.

The bride entered the room on the arm of her brother-in-law, Thomas Cooper of Peterborough, who gave her in marriage. Miss Bullock looked charming in an afternoon dress of dark blue velvet with matching hat and shoes. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The couple were unattended. Mrs. Oliver McIlvenna of Warsaw, a niece of the bride, played the bridal march.

After the signing of the register the wedding breakfast was served in the dining-room. The bride's table was centered with a large three-storey bridal cake, and was decorated with baby mums in pink and white. The wedding breakfast was served by Hooper's of Peterborough.

About 4 p.m. the happy couple left for a month's motor trip to the East coast. Mrs. Brotherstone travelled in a rust metallic dress with blue coat, squirrel-trimmed, and hat to match. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

On Saturday evening, November 6, Mrs. John Murphy, Mrs. John Shields, of Flint, Mich., and Mrs. J. H. Payne, were joint hostesses at a shower held in Miss Bullock's honor, when between forty-five and fifty relatives and friends of the bride surprised the couple at Mrs. Bullock's home and presented them with a shower of miscellaneous gifts. Mr. Brotherstone, on behalf of his bride-to-be and himself, thanked the friends present for their remembrances.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Wednesday, November 10.

Sudden upheavals, with much commotion and excitement, is the presage based on the predominant astral influences. The result will not be adverse as these unexpected and intensified conditions are in quest of 'splendid adventure,' culminating in increased possessions, finances and general stability of the fortunes. A feminine influence or other private source may play a part in this, and may require a domestic readjustment and travel.

Those whose birthday it is are under a sign that precipitates very sudden and quite unexpected events with upheavals, change and travel but all in the direction of bettering the affairs and enlarging and stabilizing the fortunes as well as property values. Great enterprise, with domestic change in which feminine influence is a factor, is seen. Grasp all opportunities with sound judgment, not with confusion or excitement.

A child born on this day may have many original talents, with much initiative and spirit of adventure and speculative. These may bring it fine progress and solid fortunes, with probably some place in public service.

Safeguard Is Recommended On The Dock At Lakefield As Result Of Scobell Death

Verdict Of Accidental Death Is Returned At Inquest Held In Lakefield

(By a staff reporter)

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 9—An "accidental death" verdict absolving her husband Colonel S. B. Scobell, 66-year-old manufacturing chemist from any blame, was returned by a jury sitting under Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith at an adjourned inquest held here last evening, into the circumstances under which Mrs. Judith Scobell lost her life on October 17 last.

Finding that Mrs. Scobell came to her death by drowning, when the car in which she was a passenger backed off the government wharf, the verdict stated, "Death was purely accidental and as far as the jury can ascertain no one was to blame."

A rider to the verdict recommended that the Dominion government provide adequate safeguard to prevent any further accidents of such a nature, and further that the village volunteer fire brigade be provided with an inhalator.

Survivors Testify

At a previous hearing the evidence of twelve witnesses was heard, and all that remained last night was the testimony of Colonel Scobell and Mrs. S. H. Cutts, both of Toronto, as survivors of the tragedy. The hearing of their evidence occupied a combined space of but five minutes the questioning of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K. C., being confined to absolute essentials to save them both any unnecessary strain.

At the conclusion of his brief questioning the Crown Attorney remarked to the Coroner, "There is no necessity of me asking these witnesses anything further. Other witnesses have previously given the court a detailed account of what happened."

Colonel Scobell outwardly composed stated he came to Lakefield with his wife and Mrs. Cutts on the afternoon of October 17. He was driving the car and after proceeding to the wharf at the rear of Lakefield Hotel parked there for a short while.

The witness said he was driving a coupe. Mrs. Cutts was sitting in the middle of the seat and his wife was on the right side of the car. "We sat and talked for a time and I was intending to come out on the road up past the hotel. I started to back the car around. When I was within a few feet of the edge of the dock, I just cannot estimate the exact distance, the car seemed to plunge and we found ourselves under water."

Tried to Release Wife

Colonel Scobell continued," I tried to open the door on my wife's side of the car but could not do so. Mrs. Cutts was floating over my head."

He related that after Mrs. Cutts turned down the window on his side of the car he opened the door on the left side of the car with comparative ease. He grabbed Mrs. Cutts and with her managed to get to the surface of the water. He thought his wife would follow them, but she did not do so.

Mrs. Cutts asked by the Crown if she could state what caused the car to back off the wharf, could offer no explanation. Obviously still suffering from the effects of her harrowing experience, the witness replied in a strained voice," I really could not. Mrs. Scobell and I were talking at the time." She spoke of the efforts she had made when the car struck the water to open the windows and declared shortly after that she had lapsed into unconsciousness.

In his summation of the evidence, Coroner Dr. Smith told the jurors "I have made a new ruling and so long as I am coroner I intend to abide by it." He declared he was not prepared to accept any "half-hearted" verdicts and told the jury it was their duty either to attach blame or absolve from blame in their finding.

members possess financial interests in metal industries which would be favorably affected by the establishment of commerical relations. He was called to order by the speaker.

James Maxton, Independent Labor, "saw one bright spot" in the situation.

"The government has shown itself so consistently ablce to pick the wrong horse," declared Maxton, "that now we begin to back Franco it seems that it is an indication that he will prebably lose."

The charge which stirred Mr. Eden's "resentment" was voiced by several Labor speakers, including Lieut.-Col. Reginald Fletcher, that he failed to consult the French government on the negotiations.

"We informed the French government long before the negotiations reached anything like a concluding stage," Mr. Eden said. "We informed them what our intention was. In a case such as this, where British trade interests are at stake, the French government could of course, if they wished to do so, make representations against what we were doing, if it was so important internationally as to surpass our commercial intereats. They naturally made no representations against it."

France Better Off

The foreign secretary indicated that France has a greater consular representation in Insurgent Spain than has Great Britain.

"I resent a little the attitude which the opposition often takes when something is done in Anglo-French policy whereof they have not approved," he said. "In the early days of non-intervention the opposition approved of it. They laid bouquets at the feet of Blum (former French Premier Leon Blum) for having originated it.

"Then they didn't like it so much, the non-intervention became all our fault."

and determination in the future as we did at Shanghai," the General said.

Although it was impossible to determine precisely the financial loss and casualties of the two belligerents, neutral observers summarized cost of the conflict in the Shanghai and North China areas thus far as, roughly:

Expenditures: Chinese, $250,000,000; Japanese $800,000,000; property loss: Chinese $200,000,000; casualties (dead and wounded): Japanese 125,000, Chinese 300,000 ;trade loss: Japanese $250,000,000, Chinese $100,000,000.

Refugees Still Pour In.

During the day, about 50,000 Chinese refugees entered the French concession and the International Setlement. Many of them stormed barbed wire barricades and barred gates while police struggled to handle distracted Chinese throngs.

Although Mayor O. K. Yui was virtually without a city to govern, he said his office would function as usual from the French concession and added he had not thought of running away.

His jurisdiction extended only over a small area of the Nantao quarter.

Foreign military observers said the principal lesson of the Shanghai war was that poorly equipped but numerically superior forces had little chance against a small, well-mechanized and well-organized army.

to rent the Sedore premises for "two or three dollars a month," at the end of February or first of March, the witness claimed. He declared under cross examination that Woodman brought up the matter of renting Sedore's house first.

Mrs. Ezra Wood, a neighbor of the murdered woodsman, who took the stand this morning, testified that Sedore was seen walking past her house between February 8 and 11, carrying two loaves of bread under his arm.

Neighbor Gives Evidence

On Tuesday, February 11, Woodman was seen drawing "pole wood" from the Sedore swamp, Andrew Lloyd, a neighbor, testified. The wood was taken to Herbert Woodman's house, father of the accused, it was disclosed.

Wilfred Freeborn, another neighbor, who had bought large quantities of wood from Sedore, testified he had purchased the wood from Sedore alleged to have been taken by Woodman. He declared he saw the accused drawing the wood as well as Sedore's car to his own house.

Stafford Yanch, Flinton hotelkeeper, testified that Woodman purchased $5 worth of groceries from him, and a bottle of beer, for which he tendered a five-dollar bill. On one occasion he had changed a $10 bill for the accused, who was a frequent visitor in the hotel beer parlor.

Sedore bought the front wheel bearings for his car "a month after Christmas," and paid cash for them, displaying a "considerable roll of bills," John Reed of Northbrook testified. Reed estimated the amount of the roll to be "several hundred dollars."

Charles Champagne of Flinton testified he bought the car from Woodman for $16.50 some time during the latter part of April. He declared he knew the car was formerly owned by Sedore. Edward Barry said in evidence that Woodman bought second-hand parts for the car for $10. He paid cash for the parts.

What Would Happen In Your Case?

One of our policyholders told us this story the other day. He said that he had dreamed that he was his own executor, and as such he found that instead of leaving his family in the comfortable circumstances that he thought he had, he discovered that eight different creditors had prior claims against his estate before his wife and children could receive a dollar.

First came the Succession Duties Department, putting its seal and exacting a tax on every asset that he died possessed of. Then came Inspectors from the Income Tax Department; next, doctors, nurses, hospital and undertaker's bills. Then when the lawyers inserted the regular legal notice to creditors in the daily press, certain current bills came in, all representing prior claims against his estate.

The result was that before he could distribute a dollar to his wife and children, the estate had shrunk to alarming proportions.

The policyholder was a conscientious man, and when he realized that his dream was an actual picture of his affairs, he got in touch with the Confederation Life Association and bought additional insurance. It was on that occasion that he related this story to our representative.

THE DIONNE QUINS GIVE YOU THEIR "BEAUTY SECRET"

"When we were tiny babies, Dr. Dafoe bathed us only with Olive Oil. Later, when we were ready for soap and water baths, he chose the soap made from the most soothing ingredients."

"Dr. Dafoe chose Palmolive, made with gentle Olive Oil. We're glad he did, for we've never had any complexion trouble. In fact, everyone says we have unusually soft, smooth skin."

"Doesn't it just stand to reason, that if Palmolive is safest for our tender skin, it must be best for yours too? Well anyway, our advice is, only Palmolive, the soap made with Olive Oil."

PALMOLIVE WILL KEEP YOUR COMPLEXION YOUNG! Does your skin seem dry, lifeless . . . slightly coarse-looking? Even girls in their twenties have this condition. It is called "Middle-Age" Skin! Beauty experts say, "Use Palmolive Soap regularly." For Palmolive is made from a blend of real beauty ingredients, soothing Olive and Palm oils. That's why Palmolive's gentle, lather keeps your complexion soft, smooth, young!

WHY DR. DAFOE CHOSE PALMOLIVE

Because the Quins were born prematurely their skin has always required very special care. Dr. Dafoe's own statement:

"For some time after their birth, the Dionne Quintuplets were bathed with Olive Oil. When the time arrived for soap and water baths, we chose Palmolive Soap exclusively for bathing these famous babies."

ALTON, Ont.—Carpenter through the week, Baptist pastor on Sundays, Rev. John Hunter said today he couldn't find a bootlegger in his congregation. "Things have quieted down. I think my only adversary is the bootlegger I called on a while ago. This fellow doesn't go to any church."

Three Great Common Evils For Young People To Fight

Leaders Of Young People's Union Of United Church Hold Congress

"Christian Youth Building a New World by Example." The Rev. E. W. Young, addressing an officers' congress of the Peterborough Presbytery Young People's Union of the United Church on Monday evening in the Sunday School Mark Street United Church, listed under three headings, common evils of the day that young people can combat by their example.

"Young people are naturally interested in the question of war," said Mr. Young, "for they will have to fight the battles." Movements among students at universities and in other organizations in the interests of peace, were still growing and developing, said the speaker, who urged that young people would strive on the side of peace in their own circles and organizations.

Figures Ridiculous.

"To dwell in a world rid of intoxicating drink" should be another aspiration. "All young people are going out into a society, in which intoxicating liquor in beverage form is securely lodged," said the minister, "and what can we do about it?" Speaking of the Government figures that put accidents caused by intoxication at a very small per cent, it was claimed that the figures were ridiculous. "It is the man who has had a little and thinks he can drive better," said Mr. Young, "who causes so many of the accidents." The trend of medical science is in favor of the abolition of alcohol. Statistics published by the hospitals of London, England, showed that the amount of liquor used as a drug was practically negligible, with a growing opinion among medical men that the health of the moderate drinker is in danger, too. "Young people can set an example and be a powerful force," said the speaker, and added, "It is better to be on the safe side, and stand up for your principles."

Speaking of a class of young men, half of whom were of the opinion that business could not be accomplished without the use of liquor, Mr. Young declared, "If we cannot do business without liquor then leave that business out. . . drink is an enemy both of the body and the soul, and by force of your example a new world can be created in which this curse has been wiped out."

The Third Great Aim.

Excluding poverty from the world, should be the third aim of young people. "People in Peterborough have no idea of the dire distress caused by the depression," said the speaker, and one of the large percentage of people on the verge of destitution in his former London, Ontario, congregation. Ministers were constantly brought face to face with poverty. Though apparently nothing can be done at present about the existing evil of wealth in the hands of a few and many in distress, something must be done.

"Christian young people building a new world," said Mr. Young, "there have been great reforms in the last 20 or 30 years, and now it is up to you... war, liquor, poverty, the three great evils of our society. Where older people have failed there is a firm conviction you can do something about it. Building a world after the pattern of Christ, young people pledging themselves to follow in His footsteps, bringing the great principles of Christ into active operation, acquainting yourselves with the four Gospels which are full of dynamics and stimulus for great reforms; young people declaring themselves on the side of Christ will create a new world."

Young people from all parts of the Presbytery, extending from Bethany to Havelock, and from Baillieboro to Apsley, were present at the rally Monday evening, making a gathering of approximately two hundred in all, and presided over by the Presbytery President, Bruce Dawson. A banquet was served by the Women's Association of Mark Street Church at 6.30, followed by a sing-song led by the Rev. C. H. Ferguson of Bethany. Greetings were brought to the Peterborough Presbytery from the Young People's Union of the Bay of Quinte Conference by Homer Borland.

Following the Rev. E. W. Young's address, the young people gathered in the Church, where they were welcomed by the Rev. E. W. Rowland. Dividing into groups a discussion period followed with Presbytery convenors in charge, highlights of the discussion being reported to the assembled gathering later, with a few remarks from the president. The Rev. C. H. Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson were in charge of a closing worship service.

ARCHBISHOP OWEN GUEST PREACHER AT ST. GEORGE'S

"In this age when so many questions are asked the best argument for religion is 'Prayer'," Right Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Anglican Primate of Canada, declared in a sermon at St. George's Anglican Church here Monday night. The occasion was a service celebrating the 25th anniversary of the church.

"The Church stands for the House of Prayer," Archbishop Owen said. "It is hard to pray, some people say. What is a more beautiful prayer to say than the Lord's Prayer, or the one used in my confirmation service in All Saints' Church last week—'Defend, O Lord, this thy child with thy heavenly grace that he may continue thine forever; and daily increase in thy Holy Spirit more and more until he comes into Thy everlasting kingdom'?"

"A wonderful thing is prayer," he continued. "To know God is like having a friend. You have a friend, you give him your confidence, you tell him of things which make you happy, or unhappy. There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. That is entering into the friendship of God, and on this 25th anniversary you are here as a witness to people of the friendship of Jesus Christ. He will help you and be your guest."

Church Decorated

Decorated with flowers sprays, baskets of flowers and ferns, the church was crowded for the occasion. Rev. T. S. Gault, church rector, conducted the service, Rev. J. D. Paterson reading the lesson. Under the leadership of J. Bronson, the choir presented a special musical service, rendering two anthems, "I am Alpha Omega" and "O Taste and See How Gracious the Lord is."

Archbishop Owen took as his text St. Luke 11:1—"And it came to pass that as He was praying in a certain place, when He ceased, one of His disciples said unto Him, Lord teach us to pray as John taught His disciples."

Congratulating the congregation on its anniversary, the speaker said: "We can see all about us outward and inward signs. The interior has all been newly decorated, everything is shining with newness. The roof has been rebuilt, the basement painted and other changes made which all make it clear to see that much interest is taken in your church.

No Debt On Church

"One thing that is a great interest to me is that this church has no debt on hand. This alone is a marvelous thing, I think."

He congratulated Rev. Gault for his work and also the congregation. "I should also like to say a word to the choir who have done so splendidly in the musical portion of this service. I like the choir and the spirit in which they sing. It is a spirit of encouragement. I think too, this congregation are above the average in singing. I am sometimes alarmed. Our choirs are getting better but the congregations are getting worse in their singing."

Closing prayers were offered by the Archbishop after which the recessional hymn was sung, "The Church is One Foundation." A reception in the basement followed the service.

ITALIANS PLAN ETHIOPIAN POSTS

is pressed for troops to defend the homeland.

Danzer Zones?

Viceroy Graziani paid particular attention to military strength and discipline in garrison points along the British and French Somaliland frontiers.

It is understood the Viceroy ordered reinstatement of heavy garrisons, withdrawn shortly after the collapse of sanctions following the Ethiopian campaign and the signing of an Anglo-Italian agreement concerning grazing priviliges for native herders.

The system of enrolling natives in the army is semi-voluntary. Some tribesmen are told that if they enroll, take the oath of allegiance and submit to Italian army discipline, their past insurbordinations will be forgotten. Others are attracted simply by the glamour of uniforms, regular food and pay.

Another generation, however, will find the regular homeland conscript system in operation.

Following his tour Graziani reported "all well" in a military sense.

The natives were brought this year before the Italian authorities in villages and towns to renew allegiance. Many danced themselves to exhaustion peaceably. And as yet officially unnumbered mass of them rebelled. They killed an officially announced total of 41 white officers and 17 soldiers.

Graziani tersely reported the rebels "wiped out." His officers believe that no matter which way the masical smoke blows, next year there will be no garrison mutinies.

DETROIT, Nov. 9.—(AP).— One man was in custody to-day and two others sought for an attack upon Mrs. Loretta Butterly, 49-year-old widow, who apparently was beaten, thrown from an automobile and left to die from injuries and exposure.

She was found unconscious yesterday on a lawn in Dearborn and died last night in hospital.

Sergt. Youngquist said the investigation was based on a theory three men threw her from a car after a drinking party.

660 FAMILIES WERE HELPED FROM ONE CAR

A total of 660 destitute Western farmers in the neighborhood of Burnham, Saskatchewan shared in the relief carload of vegetables shipped recently from Millbrook, a letter from the West to one of the contributors revealed to-day. The Millbrook car, containing mainly vegetables, was one of fifteen sent from Peterborough and the Central Ontario region that month.

Received by James H. Johnston of Baillieboro, the letter acknowledging receipt of the car, was written by a member of the Burnham Relief Committee, Mrs. Charles Griffin. Requiring no elaboration in telling the story of the plight of the Western peoples the letter follows:

Dear Mr. Johnston:

A carload of relief vegetables was delivered to us last Thursday, and amongst them I found your note in the hamper of apples. We sure appreciate the kindness of you Eastern people in helping us out. We distributed that car to 660 persons. We found several addresses from your district, Baillieboro, in the car, and would ask as a favor if you would let these good folks know we received their welcome help.

I have turned over these notes to our councillor and he has promised to answer them all in due time. Conditions here are really serious regarding stock, for we have no feed at all. Speaking of our own home, we are seven, five children of school age, and have kept from relief until this year. We had a splendid dam on this farm overflowing in the spring, two good wells, and all are dried out, and our men have been hauling water five miles each day for the stock. We have reduced our stock of cattle to four. Still, I guess we will have to be a bit more patient and anxiously wait for next year.

We have a neighbor who has been here since 1904, and has never seen anything as bad as this year. He's hoping for next year, so we younger ones can pray and hope for next year. We came from Wales in 1929. My husband is a disabled veteran.

So once again I sincerely hope you have all the best of health, and thanking you again on behalf of our committee.

Yours faithfully,
Mrs. Charles Griffin.

Some Other Letters.

"We received your generous donation of vegetables and groceries and truly were grateful for them. It made me so happy. I just sat down and wept. May God bless you for your good works."

One of several letters received by Mayor George A. Macdonald this morning from Churchbridge and Fleming, Saskatchewan, in acknowledgment of Peterborough's wonderful response to the Western Relief Fund is quoted in part in the above paragraph.

It expresses the heartfelt gratitude of the mother of six small children, and is selected as being typical of the other letters received.

The writer of the letter goes on to state that with a long, cold winter ahead, "it is such a relief to know my children will not have to go hungry. Our crops here were almost a complete failure, with only odd bits here and there big enough to cut for feed."

She states her husband is a painter and interior decorator and he also plays the piano as an orchestra leader in addition to being organist and choir leader at their church.

"Most of his playing is for charity, so it does not help to provide for the children. Our one salvation in these times has been my husband's piano playing. He earns two dollars a night playing almost every Friday night besides what little he can earn painting," she writes.

In conclusion the correspondent states, "So we must thank you again with our whole hearts for your great kindness in helping us this way."

Mrs. George King and girls of Fleming, Saskatchewan in sending their acknowledgment, ask, "Do you know Thomas McMullin of Peterborough? He is a cousin of ours."

Coaches Favor Change In U.S. College Gridiron Rule System

Would Give Offence Better Break To Prevent Low Scoring

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP).—The collegiate gridiron defence, featuring such unorthodox measures as the five-man line, has gained the upper hand this season to such an extent that, unless offensive ingenuity develops more rebuttal, the United States Football Rules Committee will be asked to do something about it.

It's the coaches think there's danger of the game becoming unbalanced in favor of the defence. The veteran Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner of Temple spoke up strongly yesterday in favor of rules revision calculated to give the offence more of a "break." His views were quickly backed up by Columbia's Lou Little, Chairman of the Rules Committee of the American Football Coaches' Association.

Pop Warner Speaks

Speaking before the Football Writers' Association, Warner said:

"The defence has progressed, especially this year, to a much greater extent than the offense. Some teams use two or three defensive formations in the same game. The colleges are learning new tricks from the professionals.

"We have had this season more no-points ties than I can ever recall (Pop's own team has played three). It's getting so tough to score that it seems to me the rules makers should consider doing something to help."

Warner offered three suggestions designed to help the offense: (1) Legislation to compel the defence to keep six men on the line of scrimmage; (2) adoption of the professional rule permitting forward passing from any point behind the scrimmage line (instead of the present five-yard limit); and (3) restore the goal posts to the goal line.

May Abandon Huddle

Little suggested the solution of current problems for the offense may be the abandonment of the "huddle" system of signal-calling in favor of the old-fashioned quarterback method.

"The offense then could vary its strategy to take advantage of the defensive line-up," said Little, "but if it isn't effective, there's not much doubt the coaches will want remedial legislation."

To W. W. (Pudge) Heffelfinger of Minneapolis, All-American giant of the old days at Yale, it seems all this indicates the "softening" influences of modern football. Still insisting he knows how to hold his position in any line, and looking the part, Heffelfinger said:

"Maybe they weren't any bigger in my day, but they were tougher. We scrimmaged four times a week and played twice. Every man but the centre carried the ball."

HASTINGS CLUB INCREASES FEES OVER LAST YEAR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Nov. 9.—At a meeting of the Hastings Lawn Bowling Club, held in Lynch's Hall, Monday night, G. D. Gowans was elected president, for the 1938 season. Other officers elected were: F. Daly, vice president; H. A. Stephenson, secretary-treasurer. Newly elected members of the executive are: Dr. Campbell, L. E. Kelly, S. Stevenson, F. Pantling and T. A. Coughlan.

On a motion of C. D. Gowans, seconded by J. C. Wilson, honorary president were apointed as follows: L. O. Breithaupt, L. J. Breithaupt and W. McCullough.

A vote of thanks was tendered the retiring officers, on a motion of F. Pantling, second by B. Lemoire.

The secretary's report showed the net proceeds of the 1937 season to be $419.04 including a 1936 balance of $46.29. Expenditures for the year amounted to $361.59, including the purchase of a $62 mower. This leaves a balance on hand of $57.45. Membership for the year was forty men and twenty ladies.

The club's activities for the year were: two social evenings, three open tournaments and four local piney tournaments in addition to the scheduled games.

It was moved by T. A. Coughlan and seconded by S. Stevenson that any member in arrears be paid up before being allowed to bowl in the 1938 season and that other members of the club be paid by July 10, 1938.

On a motion of John Fleming, seconded by B. Lemoire, three tournaments will be held during the 1938 season.

Moved by Dr. Campbell, seconded by John Fleming one single schedule will be played during the summer. First, second and third teams will be in the playoffs. Second and third teams will playoff and the winner will play the first place team. The prizes will be to the extent of $5 and $3 for the winners.

Appoint Delegate

The president, G. D. Gowans was appointed delegate to the Trent Valley Lawn Bowling Association meeting to be held in Warkworth, Nov. 12 and also delegate to the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association and he is to choose delegates to accompany him.

It was moved by T. A. Coughlan, seconded by H. A. Stephenson that the fees for 1938 be: Men $3.50 and ladies $1.50. This is 50c increase on both amounts over the past year.

A discussion regarding the building of a new club house took place and it met with the unanimous approval of all present, that one be built. Nothing will be done this year, however, but it is expected that next year will see a spacious building put up.

ALBERT COLLEGE TAKES 11-1 WIN

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 9.—Sustained power in the line and backfield gave Albert College gridders an 11-1 victory over Marmora High School. The win brought the Bay of Quinte title to the college squad.

Marmora gave a plucky display, but the fine work of their backfield was offset by weakness along the wing line.

Following the game, Marmora officials announced they would forego the return match to facilitate the next playoff series with Peterborough Collegiate. Albert officials requested the first game be played next Thursday. The teams:

Albert College — Flying wing, Weir; halves, Goodfellow, Filmore and Armstrong; quarter, Fraserf snap, Musgrove; insides, Gill and Stevenson; middles, Downing and Mercer; outsides, McDowell and Yale; subs, Carter, Catton, Coleburn, Blackman, Ostrosser, Mady and James.

Marmora — Flying wing, Haacke; halves, Hart, Gray, Lennard; quarter, Hollingsworth; snap, Nobes; insides, C. Reynolds, B. Gray; middles, E. Reynolds, Regan; outsides, W. Reynolds, Bertrand; subs, Lumsden, MacInroy and W. Gray.

Officials—Cole, Belleville, referee; Richardson, Marmora, umpire; Andrews, Belleville, head linesman.

TRINIDAD TO HAVE B.E.G. DELEGATION

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Nov. 9 (CP).—Trinidad appeared today to be the only one of Britain's colonies scattered along the Atlantic seaboard definitely sending a team for competition in the British Empire Games at Sydney, Australia, in February, although Bermuda probably will have a one-man entry and British Guiana may have some representation.

Trinidad has selected a three-man team to represent the island in four events. J. N. Cumberbach, West Indies sprint champion, will compete in the 100 and 220-yard events.

Noel Stanford will make his bid in the mile run and Tracket J. Ashmead will perform in the broad jump. The team is expected to leave Trinidad December 10.

British Guiana is still trying to get an entry together, but officials are not hopeful. R. E. Lovell has gone to the United States to study dentistry. Leonard Spence, British Guiana's star swimmer is with New York Y.M.C.A., and Phil Edwards is a doctor in Barbados. Edwards, who competed for Canada in three Olympiads, won the half-mile even; in the London Empire Games in 1934.

Notre Dame's Simonick Hits Pitt Line For Gain

Hold on there fella! You can't get far with that play. That's what the Pitt tackler thought, but Simonick, of Notre Dame, fooled him and went through the Pitt line for a gain in the third quarter. Incidentally, this is probably the last meeting of these two teams, Pittsburg Panthers and Notre Dame for some time, as the Panthers have been dropped from the Irish schedule. Before a crowd of 56,000 frantic football fans, the Panthers trounced the Irish team by a score of 21-6, on Notre Dame's home field.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

TONIGHT AT eight in Duffus', the annual re-organization meeting of the Senior City Hockey League will be held. All those interested are urged to attend and get things lined up early. Officers will be elected, prospective entries canvassed, and general discussion held on plans for the coming season. This loop, revived a few years ago has been progressing right along and had a fine season last winter with Lakefield winning the title—but not without all kinds of opposition. Teams in were Lakefield, Bewdley, Millbrook, Westclox, Mayfairs and Outboard Marines. There should be at least as many this winter. The Blood and Thunder Loop dishes up a lot of rugged, exciting hockey for fans and takes care of many good local pucksters who aren't with the O.H.A. club.

SCHEDULE WILL be drafted sometime this week for the Kingston City Hockey League, a pre-seasonal loop sponsored by the Harty Arena in the Limestone City to make money and put teams in early condition—but especially to make money! Trenton Fliers and Belleville Redmen—both of whom were grouped with the Petes last year—have entered this circuit and should be in fine trim by the time the O.H.A. season opens. Yeah, local teams in Ontario competition are a bit behind in condition at the start of the puck grind.

EVEN ANDY Lytle, Toronto columnist who alone picked Farr to hold his own against Louis fears the Welshman is a trifle punch-drunk. He recently read an article in an English paper panning Farr, and adds this: "Farr is quoted as having said, 'Joe Louis is a great fighter but all the same I think I beat him. Do you think I would be as popular as I am in America if the people over there did not really think I won from Louis?' If Farr actually spoke like that to the reporter, the only conclusion I, as an eye-witness to that battle in the Stadium, can reach is that our friend Tommy has gone slap happy. The chief difference between Farr at the end of that fight and Billy Townsend against Luftspring is that Tommy was still able to think." We always rated Farr game but goofy, too. Aha, maybe this will revive some of those ring arguments we—and fight fans—lap up!

COACH BILL Turnbull will have his Orfuns tearing into each other tonight at Riverside in a stiff drill. Bill informed the gang the other day that he wasn't trekking over the bridge for his health—when he called a practise he wanted every player on hand and ready to work up a sweat, no matter what kind of weather it was. He figures his squad can lick the Fliers here Saturday and will whip them into fighting shape through the week. It's up to the players, now.

ALBERT COLLITCH of Belleville took an 11-1 win over Marmora High School gridders on Quinte terrain Saturday, so the former crew carry a 10-point lead into the return joust. According to the Belleville paper, it will be in Marmora on Thursday, which is Armistice Day. The Albert squad didn't quite live up to advance notices as being almost unbeatable, or else the Marmora boys played better than expected. The winner goes into the first round of C.O.S.S.A. playdowns against the senior P.C.I.-ers, who are idle until then. They may start their series next Saturday away from home. The junior P.C.I. players wind up their group schedule in Lindsay Saturday, but are out of the running now.

TWO DOZEN gals and guys sat down to the annual banquet of the Girls' Softball League last night in the Elite Court and a large time it was. Prexy Ev. Thomas presided while Fred Martin presented the Bond Cup to Westclox lasses. The latter bunch made presentations to Manager Ab Delahaye and Coach Harry Cordery. Mr. Thomas briefly outlined the season, thanked umps and press, and stated Lindsay would like to enter next year. He intimated the Scugog squad might be accepted and Cobourg dropped. Bond Trophy victors down the years have been: Colonial Weaving 1922-23, C.G.E. 1924—no competition then for a time—Keene 1931-32, Westclox 1933, Keene 1934, Westclox 1935, Keene 1936, and Westclox 1937. The Electrics have come close in recent years but couldn't quite crash the circle.

DRAW TICKETS for the Peterborough Hockey Club are on sale now, officials and players selling 'em. Prizes are merchandising orders on local stores, one for $50 and four for $25, draw to be made during Christmas week. Ducats are 15 cents or two for a quarter. Money raised will be used for equipment for the O.H.A. teams here and it takes considerable gelt, mes amis, to operate puck squads. The officers hope to sell a flock of tickets around town and through the district. They point out that winners may buy anything they want at any of the stores—a suit of clothes, coal, auto accessories, groceries, or what would you like? A good draw.

OSHAWA JUNIOR "A" puckists are holding drills now but will have no ice till early in December. They expect to enter the S.P.A. series with Doc Rowden doing the coaching. Among the newcomers are four imports, Ab Tonn, Bill Taylor and Ross Knipfel of Toronto, and George Adam of Western Ontario. Along with a good bunch of local lads. Tony Meader, smart junior centre from Toronto—who is on the Chicago Hawks' list—suddenly left Oshawa the other day to return to Toronto, after working in the Motor City several months. And are they mad! Wonder how come a junior O.H.A. team can import four or five players in one season. It might be interesting too see how many late imports the senior Oshawa and Hamilton teams get. Or are we being too nosey, again?

HITHER AND yawn: Quinte scribe says it was really astonishing to see so many of the Orfuns' veterans fumbling the football so much on Sat'day . . . . He says Kearns is a much better gridder than he is a slasher of the pellet in baseball . . . . There is some talk of another pro rassle show here Friday; but nothing definite . . . . Just 30 years ago today, Peterborough won a senior O.R.F.U. title by knocking off Westmounts . . . . C.A.S.A. charges Dot Prior and Mary Carthy with being pros for swimming with Marg Hutton—all three have appeared here in water pageants at the "Y" pool . . . . Bun Morgansen says the O.B.A.A. may sponsor a class "E" pro circuit as an outlet for good senior players who want pro schooling . . . . Most scribes rate the Orfuns a very good chance of knocking off the Fliers here on Sat'day . . . . Local O.H.A. prospects will likely start gym drills next week at the Y.M.C.A. . . . . As one of the boys remarked, you don't mind the Fliers playing straight football—that is, plunging and kicking—so long as they don't do 'em both together!

VETERAN PLAYERS GIVEN RELEASE BY HOCKEY CLUBS

New Haven Eagles have given releases to "Silver" Doran, veteran defenceman, and "Knucker" Irvine, a forward. Bod "Pinky" Davie, Winnipeg defenceman, and Sammy Godin, right winger, have been sent to Minneapolis of the American Hockey Association on option by the Springfield Indians of the International-American loop.

France has not yet decided whether a team wearing its colors will take an active part in the 1940 Olympics to be held at Tokio, Japan. This question will be decided by Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos at a later date.

The fire which did considerable damage at the Montreal baseball stadium early Sunday morning didn't reach the Royals' dressing room. The athletic equipment wasn't touched by the flames.

Frankie Frisch's announcement that he has definitely retired as a player and the removal of his name from the St. Louis Cardinals' active list recalls the time his name was first mentioned in a National League box score.

John McGraw sent the young Fordham Flash into a game against the Chicago Cubs as a pinch runner.

"I didn't catch the name," said Charlie Dryden, greatest of baseball wits.

"Frisch," Dryden was told.

"What's that?"

"Frisch, F-r-i-s-c-h; Frisch."

"Humph, commented Charley, "sounds like something frying."

The story of Walter Daly, now first string fullback of the University of Pennsylvania, is a living study in perseverance. All last season Daly performed with the third and fourth teams. He sat on the bench when a Quaker outfit was playing its games. Others dropped out discouraged, but he came out every day. Daly kept at it this fall, but was a fourth-string substitute until the Georgetown game of October 23, when the Penn injured list was a yard long. Daly arrived all at once and showed Harvey Harman blocking and ball-carrying that led to his starting the Navy game. The young man's varsity debut was a triumph. Among other things, he climaxed an 80-yard Pennsylvania drive by scoring the first touchdown in the upset.

True Sportsman

Under the heading, "The True Sportsman," the Aylmer Express editorially says: The thousands of men who are getting out in the woodlands and fields this month in pursuit of game, should consider a few things. One is that there is a very limited supply of game in Ontario. Unlimited hunting of game in Ontario. Unlimited hunting and lawless pursuit of animals and birds have exterminated some of the most valuable creatures which our rich land once produced in abundance. Game laws have been made to protect this game for the benefit of everybody. The hunters sneak through the woods with illegal prey, help to make the land poorer for everyone, including themselves. Also these hunters should remember that very many people are killed and wounded each year as the result of carelessness by sportsmen. The man who blazes away whenever he sees the bushes move, should stay at home and practice with a toy pistol.

R. O. BENSON

OVER AT the East City Club on Saturday night, they pried the lid off the new season. We counted over thirty of the clan on the first of the regular weekly social evenings.

Here are most of the first-nighters: Nan Boorman, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Muir, Mr. and Mrs. S. O Shields, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Huffman, F. W. Bowness, Mr. and Mrs. Rolly Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cuff, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mallory, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bundle, Mr. and Mrs. Sills, Mr. and Mrs. Tarr, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Baughn, Mrs. Medley, Mrs. Wellburn, Misses Tuna and Meta Hart, Marjorie Cox, Ethel Brownlee and Bob Huffman. Did we miss anyone? Being early in the year, most of the play was of the so-so variety—a trifle off color. But Clark Muir looked as though he might have been getting a little practice in his back yard or somewhere—quite hot stuff in fact. Nor did his partner, Mrs. Shields, let him down any. Mr. and Mrs. Rolly Hull, two more of the better players, should soon begin to hit their stride, along with Charlie Huffman and his wife. Indeed with a little more seasoning, most of the others should be "batting somewhere near the .300 mark."

ATTENDANCE at the Peterborough Club hit a "new high" on Saturday night as many came out for the first time and courts were taxed to the limit. Among those present, "the candid observer" noted, Dr. and Mrs. McGee, Rev. R. T. Brain, Mrs. Pat Hall, Mrs. Bradburn, Dr. and Mrs. Howson, Mrs. (Dr.) Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Grahaeme Faulkner, Mrs. Blakelock, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Brain, Dr. Knott, Mr. and Mrs. D. Ross, Herbert Bradburn, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Eason, Misses Lenore Lyle, Lahring Parsons, Eleanor Stacey, Russell, Ciara Morris, Anne Hederman, Muriel Wilson, Dorothy Brisbin, Dobbin, Henry, Brownscombe, Mary Mulholland, Phyllis Cruthers, Alicia Langley, Betsy Scott, and Doug Cruthers and Bill Scott. A spirit of enthusiasm and excitement seemed to dominate the play. We thought Dr. and Mrs. McGee showed up rather well, as did Mrs. Pat Hall, Muriel Wilson and Lahring Parsons. Walter Perks mentioned that he thought Mrs. (Dr.) Howson and Grahaeme Faulkner were showing a lot of "stuff" this year.

TRINITY CLUB held their opening party on Friday night. It assumed the form of a round-robin tournament run off under the direction of O. M. Steer. The executive was tickled with the excellent turnout—30 of the 35 members. The evening was a real social success, and everyone was pleased. It was well organized from start to finish, for which the ones in charge deserve a bouquet. Following the games, refreshments were served. Miss Lois Stewart, assisted by Mrs. A. D. Runions and Mrs. H. Rehill, had charge of this feature of the program.

MILITARY PARADE: (Saturday night) Jean Harvey and Toby Westbye, Isobel Reid and Jack Richardson, having a peppy but friendly game on court No. 1. . . Amy Soulby and Bob Baker giving Mrs. G. Maniece and Mrs. Wilf Hardill plenty to worry about in the next space. . . . Florence Adams, Mrs. Putnam, Mrs. Johnny Sparrow, Myrtle Burns, Evelyn Scott, five ladies whose playing was praise-worthy. . . . Ken Anderson and Howie Shields, who proved themselves good partners for Cliff Cadd and Gord Armstrong—a feature of this game was five returns from smashes on the part of Messrs. Cadd and Shields. Armouries people are all pepped up over the fine enthusiasm shown in the junior section. Seems they are turning out in large numbers after school and on Saturdays. Augurs well for the future of the game locally. Nice bunch of juniors at the market hall too. They are already talking tournaments at the armouries. Knox membership drive has reached the halfway mark. St. Andrew's Club is slow starting but have about thirty-five lined up. Expect to have an opening tournament next week.

$20 PER FIGHT DAYS ARE OVER FOR ARMSTRONG

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. — Henry Armstrong is sitting on top of the word at present, but only four years ago he couldn't obtain a four round preliminary fight at Western stadium, a neighborhood club on the north side of Chicago.

The colored lad, who formerly made his home in St. Louis, was said to have been paid $5,072 for his knockout of Petey Sarron at Madison Square Garden Oct. 29 to win undisputed possession of the featherweight championship. This sum is 17½ per cent. of the gate receipts of $34,708.

Sarron, who had held National Boxing Association title recognition, was guaranteed $15,000 with a privilege of 30 per cent., reports said.

The Difference a Few Years Make.

Even so, Armstrong's purse proves what a difference just a few years make. In 1933 Henry, a raggedly dressed, albeit ambitious lad appeared in Chicago, accompanied by his brother, seeking employment at his profession.

Cornelius Johnson, who competed in the lightweight division as Memphis Red twenty years back, a man of Armstrong's race, asked Sammy Atruscato, a matchmaker at the Western arena, if he could use a fighter like Armstrong on his impending card.

"I can't use him," Sammy explained. "My card is full, but you better bring him up to the boxing commission this afternoon anyway as an alternate. One of the principals in my featherweight bout might not show up."

He's Offered $17.50

"How much will you pay?" Memphis asked.

"Seventeen-fifty," was the reply. "Nothing doing; we'll take $20 or no Armstrong, Memphis demanded.

It finally was agreed that Armstrong would get $20, but the original contestants appeared and Henry didn't fight.

After hanging around town for a week or so without obtaining a match Armstrong headed for California, where eventually he struck gold under the co-management of Al Jolson and Ebbie Meade.

O.R.F.U. Predominates In Stars For Press Box Selections

No Outstanding Player In Big Four—College Stars Changing

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—(CP)—The press-box sweepstakes, from which are plucked the East's all star football teams, is getting under way. And the sensational running half who fumbled that punt on his goal line had better start worrying.

Judging by past performance, the sports writers and coaches who name all-stars for the Canadian Press in the Big Four, the Intercollegiate and the Ontario Unions are going to be critical. The long runs will count, but so will the fumbles.

Just to make the job harder, his hasn't been a season of great football players. The wets has had a Fritz Hanson, but no such dominating figure has run rampant on eastern gridirons. Instead, the east is full of good half-backs, hard-blocking forwards and fine passers.

When the selectors get down to business after Saturday's final round of scheduled games, they're going to remember all the miscues, the missed tackles, the wild lateral passes, errors of strategy and errors of mechanics. The all-stars will be pretty steady-going footballers.

Predominate in O.R.F.U.

Except in the O.R.F.U., with its starry Bummer Stirling, Pat Butler, Ormond Beach and Mike Clawson of Sarnia and Ab Box, Syd Reynolds, Herb Moore and Cal Moore of Balmy Beach, the business of selection wont be easy.

The outstanding player of the Big Four campaign hasn't yet been singled out. Among the backs are Teddy Morris, Art West, the Stukus brothers and Bob Isbister of Toronto Argos, Johnny Ferraro, Abe Eliowitz and Chapple O'Connor of Montreal Indians, Ted Moranek and Huck Welch of Hamilton Tigers and Stan O'Neil, Eddie Rogano and Andy Tommy of Ottawa Rough-riders.

It isn't as easy as it sounds to pick a backfield from this lot! Welch has had bad days, Rocano has punted below form, Eliowitz has been outkicked. The sophomore west has been stopped and Moranek has been benched for rough play. Ferraro has been hot and cold, Tommy brilliant and mediocre.

A prize crop of forwards has produced such defensive giants as Tiny Herman, Dave Sprague and Bunny Wadsworth of Ottawa, Jim Palmer, Red Vail and Clarence Burt of Argos, Tommy Burns, George Pigeon and Pete Jotkus of Montreal. But the offensive power of this outfit has faded and brightened from Saturday to Saturday.

The downfield tackling brigades may have been led by Jimmy Simpson of Tigers, Tony McCarthy and Rick Perley of Ottawa and West Cutler of Argos, but several other ends have starred, Eastern outside wings still come short. They're dazzling tacklers rather than pass receivers.

College Stars Changing.

College stars have changed from week to week though a scattering of such performers as Cam Gray, Don Mumford, and Jack Hold of Toronto, Russ Merifield and Andy Anton of McGill, Boyce Sherk and Charlie Box of Western, Johnny Munro, Bernie Thornton and George Sprague of Queen's have persisted in being warm.

The undergraduates haven't failed to produce fighting football players like MacArthur, Perowne and Keefer of McGill, Kennedy and Ewener of Western, Young and Stollery of Queen's and Edwards, Williams and Barry Gray of Toronto.

If the all-star choosing runs into brainstorming, it likely will be concerned with the Intercollegiate Union.

Remember When—

(By the Canadian Press).

Winnipegs, mightiest football squad in the west, moved another step in the Dominion title hunt two years ago today when they defeated Calgary Bronks 7-9 at Winnipeg for the Western Canada rugby title. This dynamite-packed team humbled Hamilton Tigers 18-2 in the Dominion final and took the Grey Cup west for the first time.

AUSTIN IS RANKED NO. 1 IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Nov. 9—Dorothy Round, all-England champion, and Henry W. (Bunny) Austin, strong man of England's Davis Cup team, headed the 1937 tennis rankings published by the British Lawn Tennis Association.

Miss Round retained the place she held last year, while Austin moved up from second, replacing Fred Perry whose desertion of amateur tennis moved him from the No. 1 spot he had occupied for six years.

The biggest surprise in the rankings came in the women's division where left-handed Kay Stammers, second last year, was dropped down to fourth place. In second was Mary Hardwick, who moved up from fifth, while Peggy Scriven, in third, made the greatest advance, coming up from tenth a year ago.

Charley Hare, the towering southpaw who was the sensation of England's Davis Cup team, took second place in the men's division. Pat Hughes, who was third last year, was unranked because of insufficient data. The rankings follow:

Men's—1, H. W. Austin; 2, Charles Hare; 3, Charles Tuckey; 4, Harold Lee; 5, Donald Butler; 6, Herman David; 7, Clarence Jones; 8, Frank Wilde; 9, Donald McPhail; 10, Ronald Shayes; 11, John Oliff; 12, Murray Deloford and Eric Pilby (ranked jointly).

Women's—1, Dorothy Round; 2, Mary Hardwick; 3, Peggy Scriven; 4, Kay Stammers; 5, Mary Heeley; 6, Jean Saunders; 7, Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King; 8, Freda James; 9, Evelyn Dearman; 10, Mrs. Effie Peters; 11, Margot Lumb; 12, Nancy Lyle.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.— (AP).—Ginger Foran, crack British featherweight, was no sooner off the boat than he was offered $2,500 to fight Henry Armstrong on Ed Bang's Cleveland News Christmas Fund show.... Ginger turned it down right now.....We don't blame him.....The way to debut in America is not against Henry Armstrong.

Put down Garry Kline of the Emporia State Teachers' College as a candidate for the Ap's "Little All America"...Besides being an outstanding defensive end, this bird carries the ball and does the bulk of the punting....He's been an All-Conference and All-State choice for three years.

Joe Guyon, Jr., son of one of Walter Camp's greatest All-America picks, is going great guns for Catholic U. at Washington....Murray Agricultural College at Tishomingo, Okla., with a student enrolment of only 525, has four golden glove boxers on its roster....Johns Hopkins is rating a big hand for "pioneering" in Simon-pure athletics by discarding gate receipts and guarantees, but little Bethany College near Wheeling, W.Va., threw open the gates to all athletic contests more than a decade ago....Police is still in effect. . . Charlie Hanneman, Detroit Lions' star, was captain of football, baseball, track and basketball at Michigan Normal.

In Boyd and Huessner, Baylor has two of the finest ends that ever came down the pike....Col. Henry Doherty of the Miami-Biltmore Coutry Club has offered more than $95,000 in golf prizes in the past 10 years.

BUMMER STIRLING LENGTHENS LEAD IN O.R.F.U. RACE

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Hugh (Bummer) Stirling, Sarnia's triple threat half, has two less games than college and Big Four gridders in which to score points—but he wreaks enough damage in the Ontario Union's short season that he may win the East's scoring championship just the same.

The Bummer lengthened his lead Saturday when he rolled up fifteen points against Hamilton Panthers for a 36-point total with the regular season finished. The fourth Canadian Press scoring summary shows Cam Gray of Toronto Blues has one more game to get ten points and Ottawa's Tiny Herman needs eighteen to pass the Imperial star.

Stirling led the O.R.F.U. by a wide margin, Orm Beach finishing behind his teammates with three touchdowns good for fifteen points. Herb Moores of Toronto Balmy Beach, with a game yet to play against Panthers, has eleven.

Tommy Burns of Montreal Indians booted two field goals against Argos to break a seven-man tie for second place in the Big Four. Tommy was left just three points behind Herman's nineteen, the Giant Ottawa inside being held to a single and two converts against Hamilton. Huck Welch, with fourteen, was all alone in third place.

Gray pushed his total to twenty-seven with two field goals and a single against McGill, holding an eleven-point lead over Bernie Thornton of Queen's. Punter Johnny Munro of Queen's moved past Western's Boyce Sherk into third place with eleven points, all from singles, while the Western ace had nine in fourth. The standings:

Oakville Hockeyist Is Out For Season

LONDON, Nov. 9.—(CP Cable)—Bert Peer, Oakville, Ont., hockey player, is out of the game for the season as a result of injuries he suffered Saturday night when he crashed into the boards during a London cup game.

X-ray examination Monday disclosed there are broken bones in both arms. Peer, a right winger for Harringay Racers, also suffered a bruised spine. Last season he was outstanding in Racers' fight with Wembley Lions for the National title, eventually won by Lions.

Jerry Fairhead Wins Lakefield Prep Run

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 9.—The 39th annual Cowley Handicap cross country run, held by the Lakefield Prep School yesterday, resulted in the following winners. The gold medal, a presentation of Mr. Hilliard, former secretary of the school, was won by Gerald Fairhead of Toronto. The time prize, also Mr. Hilliard's prize, was taken by Crampton, Ma., of Warren, Ontario, and was presented medal went to Crampton, Mi., of Warren, Ontario, and wah presented by Jack Langley. The junior medal was captured by Hague Mi., of Toronto, and was presented by Mrs. Kenneth Mackenzie.

HAMMOND REJOINS SIMON PURE RANKS

BRISTOL, England, Nov. 9 (CP Cable).—Walter Hammond, England's greatest all-round cricketer of modern times, is leaving professional ranks and next season will play as an amateur for Gloucestershire. It is thought likely that Hammond will be seriously considered as England's captain against Australia next year.

"I am relinquishing professional cricket because I am now 34 and must consider the future," said Hammond who has been appointed director of a London tire company. Gloucestershire County Cricket Club has released the famous star from a professional contract that expires in 1939. There is no bar to professional cricketers resuming amateur status.

Born at Dover in 1903, the son of a soldier, Hammond first stood up to the wickets in Malta, with the stumps chalked on a gun shed. His cricketing ability was noticed when he was at school in Cirencester, England, and he made his first appearance in first-class competition for Gloucestershire in 1920.

Kent, his native county, objected successfully to his qualification and it was not until 1923 that he appeared regularly for Gloucestershire. Since then he has represented England against Australia, South Africa, New Zealand and India.

WIN FRENCH TITLES

PARIS—(CP).—British and Irish players won all the titles in the French international badminton championships held here, repeating the British successes of 1936.

TIGERS CHARGE OTTAWA RIDERS FOR ROUGHNESS

HAMILTON, Nov. 9 (CP).—X-ray pictures showing a definite shoulder fracture, the result of a driving tackle during Saturday's battering by the Ottawa Roughriders, Denny Whitaker, star quarter of the Jungle Kings, is out of action for the balance of the season, and his departure from the gridiron arena marks another handicap the crippled Bengals will carry into the final scheduled game of the Big Four at Toronto on Saturday.

Whitaker was injured early in the second quarter, when Wood, outside wing for Ottawa, crashed into him as he was attempting to arise from the ground with the ball, after he had slipped trying to secure the leather, and while at first it was thought the injury was merely a bad sprain, further examination revealed the more serious injury.

While Seymour Wilson will be back in time for the final engagement, Abe Zvonkin, big middle wing, who was an absentee on Saturday, is a doubtful quantity. Zvonkin is suffering from a foot infection, received at his employment, and he was unable to dress for last week's game. Whether he will be in condition to start at Toronto is something that only the next few days will reveal.

As the Bengals took stock of their injuries, condemnation of unusually rough play by the Riders drifted about the city. Brian Timmis, burly line star, who has seen more than his share of tough arguments averred it was the roughest engagement he had ever participated in, and this was echoed by Huck Welch, kicking backfield star, who was a mass of bruises from the heavy shellacking administered by the Ottawas. Welch limped badly with a swollen right leg, the result of kicks and cleat marks are quite visible.

Jack Craig and Tommy Harrison are both badly marked about the face, while various other members are sporting prominent souvenirs attesting to the terrific going.

CONFIRM RECORD

LONDON—(CP).—The mark of Sydney C. Wooderson, noted English miler who ran a mile in four minutes, 6.6 seconds here in July, has been confirmed by the Amateur Athletic Association as an English native record. It has not yet come up for world recognition.

Starry Ice Player Quits Oshawa Job

OSHAWA, Nov. 9. — Tony Meader, husky centre ice star with Eddie Livingstone's Toronto Lions last year, who has been counted upon heavily to line up with Oshawa this season, quit his job at a local factory and moved back to Toronto Monday. It is understood that Meader will enter St. Michael's College, and if possible, play junior hockey with them this season. Meader, who is on the Chicago Black Hawk negotiation list, came to Oshawa in August, and his sudden desire to return to Toronto came as a distinct surprise to local hockey supporters, who had found employment for him here.

BLANK PICKERING 5-0

AURORA, Nov. 9.— St. Andrew's College fourth team won a hard-fought football contest from the Pickering College Fifth House team by a score of 5 to 0 Monday. The only score of the game was made in the third quarter when Pickering attempted to kick from behind their own goal line. Hopkins blocked the kick and McPherson fell on the loose ball for St. Andrew's. Pickering made a desperate attempt to tie up the score through the air in the last quarter but made little headway.

CHAPTER 22.

Tim tried his last card when he saw that Adams had him cornered. He took up the telephone, crooking his arm around it. "Police station," he called.

"Supposing you take your hand off the receiver hook," said Adams mockingly.

Tim did so. . . . "Police station," he repeated. He turned round to face Adams. "This is your last chance. What shall I say?"

Adams shrugged his shoulders. "please yourself. It's your jam, get yourself out of it. And remember they can trace the call."

A scrubbing voice came over the phone. Tim licked his lips.

"Police?" He looked once more at Adams, who gave no sign. There was no escape. . . . "It's Mr. Kennedy speaking. T. J. Kennedy, of The Wilderness. . . . I lost a pocket-book in town last night . . . between the Royal and Bentwich's garage, I think. . . . Red morocco leather. . . . Not much, only about 30 shillings. . . . Letters and papers, though. . . . No, no monogram or initials or anything. . . . Thanks. . . . No, I won't wait, I'm rather busy. . . . No, I'm really in a hurry, ring me here if it's been turned in." He replaced the receiver.

"Now we can talk business," said Adams.

Tim suddenly felt deathly sick. He allowed his head to slump forward onto the desk, and covered it with his hands.

"That's right, take it easy," said Adams. He rose and fetched a glass of water from the business end of the surgery.

"Drink this." Mechanically Tim obliged. His appearance was now pitiable, and he could find nothing to say. Adams spoke less roughly.

"Now, Kennedy, I know this is pretty tough on you. . . . You thought you'd got clean away and you haven't. It's a bad knock. But just think, it might be a lot worse. I might have thought it my duty to go straight to the police. Lucky I'm not that sort. All that's going to happen is that it's going to cost you a bit of money. You can afford it all right. And I shan't be unreasonable. I'll even go on working for you. Working here at the surgery, I mean, of course. I shall cut out the valeting and domestic business. I never could stand that. . . . It's only a question of getting used to it. So face facts and brace up, and you'll find we won't get along so badly together."

Tim raised his head. "How do I know you'll keep to any bargain we make?"

"Well, you'll have to hope for the best. We can't exactly draw up a contract. But I'm not a fool, Kennedy. It's not in my interest to drive you too far, or worry you too much. . . . You just pay me three times what I'm getting at present, regular and no nonsense, and you won't find me worrying you at all."

"Three times? You said double just now."

"Well, there again, that was just to let you down light. I've worked it out and I've decided three times is a fair figure."

"I can't afford it."

"I've got a pretty good idea of what you can afford."

"Adams, I'll buy that letter from you." Tim spoke pleadingly. "I've no private income to speak of, but I've managed to save a bit. I think I could raise a fairly substantial amount."

"What do you call a substantial amount?"

"Five hundred pounds, perhaps. But that's the absolute limit. I'll show you my passbook."

Adams shook his head. "It's not good enough. I can earn £500 off you in two or three years. And have a comfortable home into the bargain. Besides, I'm not keen on leaving West Shilston. I feel kind of settled here."

Tim made a gesture of resignation. "Very well, then. I agree to your terms."

"That's good. And there's no need for hard feelings, Kennedy, it's simply a matter of business. . . . But there's just one other thing. . . . Perhaps I'd better tell you where that letter is. I went to a solicitor in London some time ago and made my will. And I got the lawyer to do it up in a sealed packet, which also contains my birth certificate, army discharge, and a few other papers, including an envelope with your letter and a full explanation of how I came across it. Of course, the lawyer doesn't know what's in the envelope. But he'd find out fast enough if anything was to happen to me. . . . I'm telling you this in case any time you felt inclined to take another short cut out of your troubles."

Tim protested. "All right, I know what you mean. But you're not immortal, Adams. Suppose you were to die before me, a perfectly natural death?"

"That would be just too bad." Adams grinned. "Looks as if you'll have to coddle me. Make me change my shoes when I've been out in the rain, and look both ways before I cross a road. But I shouldn't worry about that too much, Kennedy. I'm a younger man than you, and there's nothing wrong with my health. Besides, one of these days, I may get tired of West Shilston, and then maybe we'll come to some arrangement."

Tim got to his feet.

"Have you finished with me now?" he asked tonelessly.

"Yes, I think that's about all." He scrutinized Tim's ashen face with something like pity.

"You do look a bit peaked," he added. "Go and take a run round with your Mrs. Shepherd, it'll do you good. . . . You haven't got bad taste, I must say that for you."

There followed an interlude, in which Tim gradually adjusted himself to the new situation. After the first shock had passed, a kind of numb indifference supervened. What had at first seemed a catastrophe was reduced to the dimensions of a distressing, but by no means intolerable incubus.

Indeed, what hurt him more than anything else during this time was the blow to his pride. The smooth immaculate murder which he thought he had executed was proved to have been by no means flawless, and his self-respect emerged badly damaged. The overlooking of that letter was quite unforgivable. He recalled the nervous haste with which he had rushed away from the dining table to secure those damning papers; if he had only sat tight and recovered them at his leisure, when the meal was over, the blunder would never have been made. He had been as

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PUMPKIN TREAT.

"Here are the pumpkins," said Buster. "I brought two because I didn't know how many you might want, Daddy."

"That's good, Buster. Two will be plenty. But how did you carry them? It is hard enough to carry one pumpkin to say nothing of two," said uncle Wiggily.

"I didn't carry them. I dragged them," said Buster. "It was easier that way. I just took hold of the pumpkin vines which were still fast to the pumpkin and I pulled them along on the ground."

"That was a good way," spoke the rabbit gentleman.

"And here is the flat stone you sent me for," spoke Baby Bunty the orphan rabbit. She and Buster were in the field with Mr. Longears. Buster had come bringing a message saying Mr. Twistytail, the fat pig gentleman, was anxious to see Mr. Longears.

Uncle Wiggily promised to go see his friend.

"But first," he said to the rabbit children, "I shall teach you how to eat pumpkin seeds."

Shows How.

They thought Uncle Wiggily was joking, but when he sent Buster for a pumpkin and Bunty for a flat stone they knew something was going to happen. It did, as I shall tell you.

"First we must get the seeds out of the pumpkin, for they are inside it," said Uncle Wiggily. "As I have no knife large enough, I shall bash the pumpkin open with the stone you brought, Bunty."

A few paddle whacks with the stone opened the pumpkin. Uncle Wiggily let the rabbit children look inside.

"Sort of icky, if you ask me," said Bunty.

"It is rather gooey," agreed Buster.

"Those are pumpkin seeds mixed with juice and mingled with pumpkin strings to hold them together," said the rabbit gentleman. "Gourd seeds, when they are fresh, are like that only there aren't so many of them."

"Are we supposed to eat that," said Baby Bunty as Uncle Wiggily scooped out some of the seeds with the stringy pulp that held them together. Truly, as Bunty said they were "icky," and also "gooey," as Buster had called them.

"You will like the pumpkin seeds when they have been dried and roasted brown like chestnuts," said Mr. Longears.

"Oh, like chestnuts Goody!" cried Baby Bunty.

"To dry the wet seeds and roast them we must have a fire," said Buster.

"Yes, and you may help build it if you are careful," promised Uncle Wiggily. "Always be careful building fires, so you don't get burned yourself or set fire to anything."

Smell Good.

When the fire was merrily crackling, Uncle Wiggily spread some of the wet pumpkin seeds out on a flat stone near the blaze. They began to dry. As the fire grew hotter and the fiberous strings that had held the seeds together were brushed away with twigs, the pumpkin seeds began to roast and brown to a lovely color.

"They have a lovely smell, to," said Buster.

"Do they taste as good as they smell?" asked Baby Bunty.

"You shall soon know," said Mr. Longears.

Slowly the pumpkin seeds roasted on the hot, flat stone. Uncle Wiggily turned them over as peanuts and chestnuts must be turned when they are roasting to keep them from burning.

"Now for the pumpkin treat!" said Mr. Longears when many of the seeds were roasted. He was just passing some to the rabbit children when Baby Bunty whispered:

"Hark! I hear a noise!"

And if the stop light doesn't go hide around the corner when the auto is watching it, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's present.

Mother Finds 'Tommy The Kid' Near Death In Hospital

Ready To Go Home After Year Selling Flowers To Drunks In Greenwich Village

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(CP). — A year ago this would have been a story of youth and its determination to live life as it pleased but today it's a story of "Tommy the Kid," and a mother's hope that death might pass by the son she regained.

Until Saturday hospital authorities knew the battered little boy only as "Tommy the Kid" who sold flowers to drunks in Greenwich village.

He was the 15-year-old who might be seen any night, wandering through the "spots" pleading with carmine-faced women and dissipated men to buy his faded blossoms.

Since the night of October 27 death has been near. That was the night a booze-fuddled man, perhaps angered at Tommy's sales chatter, struck him and fractured his skull. And until Saturday nobody outside Bellevue Hospital much cared about the "kid brother of Greenwich village."

Boys Called Him a Sissy.

Then Mrs. Adelaire Lee called at the hospital. She lost a "Tommy" a year ago. He would look after himself, he said, and left home because he had to take dancing lessons and neighbor boys called him "Sissy."

"I guess I'm just a worried mother," she told hospital authorities, "but I read in the papers you had a Tommy down here...It doesn't hurt to see, does it?"

It was her Tommy. But he wasn't the boy who would live his own life. He was just a kid again; a sick kid with his head smashed. But he smiled and renewed hope came to his peaked face.

Mrs. Lee—the doctors wouldn't let her stay long—showed renewed hope too. She was still a 'worried mother.' But there was hope she and Tommy could start over again — this time without the flowers.

Foot, Mouth Plague Hits Britain

LONDON, Nov. 9—(AP).—Drastic measures were employed to-day to fight foot-and-mouth disease which authorities said threatened to spread.

Officials ordered destruction of cattle in Eastern England to check the disease and closed many live stock shows.

The Ministry of Agriculture, which has paid £80,000 ($396,000) compensation for destroyed live stock this year, considered steps to prevent a repetition of the epidemics of 1923 and 1925, when all England was quarantined.

It was believed the disease was brought to England from the Continent or from Northern Africa.

Many more new automobiles are seen in Peru than a year ago.

Archibald Parker Dies In Montreal

MONTREAL, Nov. 9—(CP). — Archibald Gibson Parker, 79, member of a prominent Montreal family, died in hospital here yesterday.

Since 1898 Mr. Parker was manager successively of Bank of Montreal branches at Peterborough, Belleville, Braniford, Hamilton and Ottawa. He retired in 1928.

NEW CHINESE DRIVE THREATENS TO CUT 25,000 JAPS OFF

SHANGHAI, Nov. 9—(AP).—Chinese said tonight they had launched a counter-offensive to isolate a Japanese force south of Shanghai, estimated at 25,000 men, from its landing base on the seacoast. Severe fighting broke out both south and west of Shanghai.

In Chekiang province, to the south, Chinese said they had repulsed a surprise Japanese thrust toward Shanghai from Hangchow Bay area.

Japanese reported advances south of Soochow Creek, on the western edge of Shanghai's International Settlement.

Chinese reinforcements rushed to Sunkiang, a vital point in the Chinese defences against which one of three Japanese columns was striking from the south.

Another Japanese column, Chinese army communiques reported, was held on the far side of the Whangpoo river from Shanghai when Chinese defenders forced a vanguard back across the stream at Minhang, 15 miles south of Shanghai.

Lines Holding Fast

Chinese asserted that not only were their positions on the north side of the Whangpoo river secure against the Japanese offensive, but also the attackers in danger of being cut off from their shore base by a Chinese flanking operation.

Some Japanese officials said a flying column severed the Hangchow-Shanghai railroad near Sungkaing but the official Japanese spokesman to-night said he had no authoritative reports. The railroad is a main channel of Chinese communications from Shanghai to the southeast.

Chinese units from the Kashing-Kashan area, about 45 miles southwest of Shanhai, were reported to have routed Japanese from Changyen.

On the front sorth of Soochow Creek and west of Shanghai's French concession, Japanese said 4,000 Chinese were retreating under intense aerial and artillery bombardments from the area between St. Mary's Hall and Kwangwha university, adjoining the International Settlement.

They said a Japanese force captured the village of Tsukazah, south of the Lincoln Road, and seized 10,000 Chinese grenades. Japanese planes again bombed parts of Pootung.

H.R.H. Cancels Planned U.S. Tour

Criticized by labor organizations who blamed his friend and adviser, Charles Bedaux, for pro-Fascist and anti-Labor sympathies, H.R.H. the Duke of Windsor cancelled the tour of United States he had planned and with it his hopes of studying housing conditions and slum problems on this side of the Atlantic. His decision came a few hours after Bedaux, his guide on the proposed tour, had cabled a request to be allowed to withdraw from the party's plans because labor groups were critical of him personally. Mr. and Mrs. Bedaux are pictured here before the cancellation notice, mapping the tour for the Duke and his American-born Duchess. His Royal Highness, LOWER RIGHT, may make the trip "when public opinion has changed."

Pianist Plunges To Death From Train As Cars Race Along Side In Vain

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP)

RAILROAD detectives investigated today the death of a young Chicago pianist who motorists saw hanging by his finger tips from the window sill of a mile-a-minute Michigan Central train and battling vainly to pull himself back to safety. When and why he got outside the window remained a mystery.

The victim was William F. Erlandson, 30, returning from New York where he had competed in a contest for young pianists.

Automobiles on U.S. highway 12 raced abrease of the train yesterday as it passed through Galesburg, Mich. One motorist, Carl Solomon, of Kalamazoo, Mich., saw Erlandson dangling from the window. He blew his horn frantically and pointed to the man in an effort to direct train passengers' attention to him. Solomon said it appeared that Erlandson was attempting to climb back in the coach.

The motorist said Erlandson, exhausted, finally loosened his grip and plunged to his death along the tracks.

Japs Will Decline Call To Parley

TOKYO, Nov. 9—(CP-Havas). — Japan will decline the new invitation, extended by the Brussels conference, the newspaper Asahi predicted today.

Japan's reply to the communication of the Powers will simply reiterate the argument that Japan cannot participate in a parley stemming from the League of Nations, that its military operations in China are a matter of "legitimate self-defence," and that the only solution possible lies in direct negotiations with Nanking, the newspaper said.

Meanwhile considerable interest was aroused by a report published in the newspaper Yemiuri that Bolivia would soon adhere to the Italo-German-Japanese anti-communist pact and that other South American States would follow suit. Certain Balkan countries were also thought to be ready to join.

WEDDING FEES INCREASE

When a man in Yugoslavia wanted to marry his wife for the third time after two separations, he was charged triple fees and warned that a fourth wedding would be dearer still.

Cough Colds Often Dangerous

People are beginning to recognize the fact that a cough cold is a serious ailment, and when you contract a cold or cough the first question you ask yourself should be, "How am I going to get rid of it with the least possible delay and expense?" The answer is, "Use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

This cough medicine is composed of the well known properties of the Norway pine tree, wild cherry bark, and other soothing, absorbent, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, barks and balsams. A few doses should convince you it is just the remedy you have been looking for.

Mrs. H. Halligan, Camborne, Ont., writes:—"My father had a terrible cough, and we thought he was never going to get rid of it, as he had tried so many remedies without getting any relief.

A neighbour told us about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and it was the only medicine that helped to give him relief."

Operation At Sea Proves Vain

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Nov. 9—(A. P.). — Death on the high seas came to the third officer of the British freighter Sedgepool despite medical assistance by the Intercoastal liner Santa Paula.

Story of the effort to save the life of John Cromie, 21, was told here to-day after the Santa Paula docked.

A radio appeal from the captain of the Sedgepool caused the Santa Paula to turn off her course off Acapulco, Mexico, and take Cromie aboard.

Stricken with appendicitis, he was operated upon by Dr. R. H. Philbrick, the ship surgeon, and two surgeons who were passengers. Gangrene, however, set in and the patient died on Saturday.

FRANCO IS SORRY FOR SINKING SHIP

LONDON, Nov. 9—(AP). — Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons to-day that the Spanish insurgent leader, General Franco, had sent a note expressing regreat for the sinking of the British merchantman Jean Weems Oct. 31.

He said the insurgents offered to submit the questions of liability and compensation to arbitration.

The Foreign Secretary turned aside questions as to the identity of the pilot of the attacking plane who, some have hinted, might have been Bruno Mussolini, son of the Italian Premier.

Mr. Eden also disclosed the way was now clear for the proposed exchange of commercial agents between Great Britain and Franco's regime.

He said the insurgent leader had ordered the release of seven British freighters seized on the north Spanish coast and had ordered the equivalent of two seized cargoes of iron ore placed at the disposal of the British Ambassador to Spain in Hendaye.

The Foreign Secretary said the commercial exchange, held up by the matter of the captured ships, was "essential" to British economic interests involved in the part of Spain now controlled by Franco.

He denied the commercial agreement meant diplomatic recognition for the insurgents. He said Great Britain would keep its Charge d'Affaires at the seat of the Spanish government.

FRANCE UNEASY ON ANTI-RED PACT

PARIS, Nov. 9 — (AP). — The Foreign Office disclosed to-day that Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos has completed plans to visit Poland and the Little Entente nations to discuss the effects of the anti-Communist pact signed on Saturday by Germany, Italy, and Japan.

He will leave, it was said, as soon as the Brussels Conference on the Far Eastern conflict ends. This will be the first visit of a French Foreign Minister to France's Eastern Europe allies since the late Louis Barthou made his trip in April, 1934. Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania make up the Little Entente.

Reports here mentioned the possibility of Poland joining the anti-Communist pact.

It also was reported in diplomatic circles that Germany soon would extend an invitation to Czechoslovakia in the belief that the nation which the Nazi-Fascist press calls "The Soviet advance post in Europe" will be forced to join in the agreement or be branded as a Communist ally. Refusal to join would give any German intervention in Czechoslovakia the appearance of self-defence, these reports said.

SHANSI CAPITAL INVADED

TIENTSIN, Nov. 9—(CP-Havas) —Japanese troops entered Taiyuanfu, capital of Shansi province in North China, today, it was announced here. Fighting continued in the streets of the northwest section of the city where units of a "suicide" detachment of 5,000 men doggedly contested the Japanese entry.

LABOR CHAMPION JIM MACLACHLAN BORNE TO GRAVE

GLACE BAY, N.S., Nov. 10—(CP).—The body of J. B. (Jim) MacLachlan, Scottish-born labor leader and "champion of his class until the end" lay Monday in a hillside cemetery that overlooks the smoking stacks of this mining town's collieries. His challenging burr was stilled forever. His war against "the corporation" was over.

Hundreds of the older miners, bent funeral yesterday.

Some of the older miners, bent by year of toil underground, wept openly.

The service was as simple as Jim wished. Only one hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," was played at the graveside by a miners' band.

Rev. W. T. Mercer, minister of St. Luke's United church and a labor candidate in the last Nova Scotia election, paid tribute to MacLachlan at the service in the farm house. Rev. C. R. F. MacLennan prayed.

MacLachlan was an "honest, sincere friend of man," Rev. Mr. Mercer said, one who "held ideal for the betterment of mankind like those of Him who went about Palestine doing good for women and children.

"It was my privilege to have intimate contact with Comrade MacLachlan for four years. I met him four years ago and we talked of religion. On Christian principles we were at entire agreement." (MacLachlan, during his lifetime, had been termed an atheist.)

Fighter to the End.

He was a "champion of his class until the end," Rev. Mr. Mercer said. He had "turned aside what material wealth might have come his way in the earlier years because he had acted to better the condition of the workers."

All day long hundreds moved under pictures of Karl Marx and Joseph Stalin, hanging on the wall, to view the remains of the union leader. Many of them spoke in Austrian or Polish or other European languages.

MacLachlan was one of the founders of the Workers' Party which at a convention in Toronto seven years ago became the Communist Party of Canada. Last year he broke away from it over a matter of policy.

It was the last concrete link binding him to organized labor. In 1923 he was expelled from the U.M.W. by John L. Lewis for calling an outlaw strike.

Born in Ecclefechan, Scotland, MacLachlan came to Canada when little more than 20.

FISHERMAN SINKS AS AID ARRIVES

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Nov. 9.—(CP).—Alfred McConnell, 36, Wasaga Beach, was drowned as help arrived after he and two companions had struggled in the cold water for nearly two hours Saturday afternoon after the capsizing of their fishing boat a mile off Deanlea Beach, on Georgian Bay.

Rescued were Gordon Chapman, 31, Wasaga Beach, and George Brough, Kirkland Lake, Ont. McConnell was too weak to hold on as his companions were being pulled into the rescue boat. His body was recovered on the beach. George Richardson, owner of Deanlea Beach, and only winter resident on it, organized the rescue party after seeing the men's plight.

The three men set up living quarters on the beach Friday, using it as a base for hauling in whitefish. Saturday morning Richardson heard cries for help. Through his field glasses he saw the overturned boat.

Richardson in his car gathered up Walter Webb, William Webb and Jim Large and they set out in a leaky rowboat, beached for the season, to rescue the trio. Richardson stayed behind to make first aid arrangements.

COLUMN BRINGS LEAD

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 8—(AP) —Ted Burger, 17-year-old High school paper gossip columnist, admitted to-day "some students get pretty mad" about what he writes.

A bullet crashed through a window of his home and buried itself in the wall in front of his face. That convinced him.

"If I'd noddd they5d have had me," he said.

Ted's father, Dr. T. D. Burger, said the column, "ground up reputations," was "all in fun."

uncontrolled and susceptible to panic as any of the bunglers he had been wont to despise.

For Adams had been right all along the line. His acute observation and inference about the electric torch could be dismissed as unimportant, for the detail only acquired weight in the light of collateral evidence. But the episode of the cigaret—so natural to him who had been accustomed to smoke at every little nervous crisis and embarrassment, yet so inexcusable—haunted him with a devastating sense of his own inadequacy.

The self-sufficiency, the belief in his own superiority which had always sustained him, was eclipsed for the first time in his life. Inevitably it returned before long, but in the meantime he lost status, and went about his daily life with an almost perceptible decrease in confidence.

London Television Broadcasts Picked Up By Liner At Sea

Experiments, First Of Kind Ever Attempted Give Perfect Pictures

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Successful reception of television broadcasts by a liner at sea was reported today by Captain A. T. Brown of the Cunard White Star liner Britannic.

Captain Brown said the experiments, believed the first of their kind ever attempted, were performed October 29, 30 and 31 after the ship sailed from London.

The experiments were conducted by engineers of the British Broadcasting Corporation, who set up their receiving equipment in a vacant cabinet. Captain Brown said the Britannic, until it left the English Channel, was never more than 30 miles off shore.

"The pictures were extraordinarily clear, and the sound was perfect," he said.

"They broadcast special programs from Alexandria Palace, in London, and the reception on the ship seemed excellent.

"The pictures were reproduced on a screen about 10 by 12 inches. It was as distinct as if they'd been sending it from the next cabin."

WOODMAN FREED IN SEDORE MURDER MYSTERY

Ramsay MacDonald Great Laborite Statesman Passes

Death Strikes Thrice Premier of Great Britain As He Sails to South America Seeking Rest

LONDON, Nov. 10.—(CP)—Death has ended the turbulent career of J. Ramsay MacDonald, the dour Scot from the fishing village of Lossiemouth who championed labor's cause and thrice became Prime Minister of Great Britain.

He died peacefully last night on the liner Reina Del Pacifico while en route to South America to seek, in his own words, "the most elusive of all forms of happiness — rest."

Troubled with a serious eye condition and tired from the long strain of office, Mr. MacDonald resigned the Prime Ministership in June, 1935. This year in company with his successor as Prime Minister, Earl Baldwin, he withdrew from the cabinet.

Physicians advised a lengthy rest. He sailed for South America last Thursday with his daughter, Sheila. Last night his son-in-law Dr. Alastair MacKinnon, husband of his second daughter Joan, announced receipt of a wireless message stating he had died apparently of a heart attack.

The body will be taken from the liner at Bermuda Monday and returned to England.

His elder son, Malcolm, secretary of state for the Dominions was in Brussels as a member of the British delegation to the Nine-Power Conference. His other son, Alastair, was in the north of England. Isobel MacDonald, his companion on many of his ramblings throughout the world, was at home.

Shock to Friends.

Mr. MacDonald's death shocked his friends who had hoped he would enjoy a long twilight of comparative inactivity. His old friend, Sir Alexander Grant, recently bequeathed him sufficient funds to make his declining year secure and he had made tentative plans to write his memoirs from the days when he was a disheveled young orator calling for government ownership on a soap box in Hyde Park.

They would have included the story of his break with the Labor party in 1914 when he refused to support the Great War and was succeeded as Parliamentary leader by Arthur Henderson; his return to the leadership after the war, and the historic day in 1924 when King George V entrusted him with the mission of forming the first Labor government in the history of the United Kingdom.

The fall of that government came nine months later. Five years in Opposition followed. In 1929 Mr. MacDonald again took office as Prime Minister.

He worked incessantly toward the goals of international co-operation and disarmament. He went to the United States and with President Herbert Hoover laid the foundation of the 1930 London Naval Conference.

Meanwhile the United Kingdom met severe economic difficulties. The pound sterling fell, unemployment rose and the government was lashed with criticism in the House.

Mr. MacDonald called upon the Labor party in 1931 to follow him into a National government, with Conservatives and Liberals. Only

TURNKEY SLUGGED TOSSED INTO CELL FOUR ESCAPE JAIL

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Nov. 10 (CP).—Four prisoners made a successful break from St. Hyacinthe jail today after assaulting Romeo Robert, the turnkey, with an iron bar they had wrenched from the cells. Turnkey Robert was not seriously injured.

The governor of the jail gave the names of the quartet as Lupien, alias Bastien, St. Laurent, Bestor, and a man named Dubois, alias Labarre. He did not know their first names.

When Turnkey Robert opened the cell block at 6.45 a.m. to bring the men breakfast, they attacked him with the iron bar. Semi-conscious and bleeding from gashes about the face and arms, he was thrust into the cells and the door closed on him.

CONSUL'S SLAYER HANGED SINGING

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Nov. 10. — (AP).—Singing a song in Turkish, Meguerdich Karayan, 29-year-old assassin of James Theodore Marriner, United States' Consul-General, went to his death on the gallows to-day.

The significance of the song went unexplained but the words were: "I have waited for thee but thou hath not come."

Karayan, an Armenian who had lived in Boston, in his last words told witnesses of the execution that an "insult caused my crime." He ended his last words with: "Down with Washington!"

The body remained for two hours on the scaffold in front of the French High Commission's offices.

(Karayan, angered because he had not received permission from Marriner to re-enter the United States, emptied a revolver at the American consul Oct. 12 as he stepped from his automobile.

(Karayan told police he had felt "insulted" because he had not received the re-entry permit. Actually, it developed, Marriner had granted the visa but the letter informing the Armenian had not been delivered because Karayan had changed his address).

HALF CANADA'S EIGHT STRIKES ARE IN TORONTO

Peace Returning Fast After 229 Walkouts

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—(CP).—Mid-autumn finds Canadian industry in co-operative peace. At the end of last week, according to figures compiled by the Labor Department, there were only eight strikes in Canada, affecting a small number of workers.

Officials noted a decided contrast between the labor picture in November and May. Then there were a large number of strikes, some large such as the automobile workers' strike in Oshawa, Ont. In midsummer came the Quebec textile workers' strike in which about 10,000 workers were reported to have left their jobs.

Four of the eight strikes in progress on Nov. 8 were in Toronto, involving bakers, dairy and dress factory employees and cleaners and dyers. Coal mines were on strike at Minto, N.B., River Hebert, N.S., and Canmore, Alta. At Grimsby, Ont., cannery workers were on strike.

Despite the slackening of industrial warfare as the year draws to a close, 1937 will go down in the records as a big year for labor disturbances.

Up to the end of October 229 strikes were reported compared with 132 in the corresponding 1936 period, 63,500 workers were affected against 30,000 and 860,323 man-days were lost against 257,408.

The highest year on record was 1919 when the time loss was more than 3,000,000 man-days. In several other years the million mark has been exceeded, usually due to coal

Clubwomen Offer In Blood Tests

MONTCLAIR, N.J., Nov. 10 (AP).—The State Department of Health laboratories at Trenton began Wassерman tests today on blood specimens taken from 25 socially prominent Montclair clubwomen who volunteered in a movement to bring "the warfare against syphilis into the open."

Seventy-five more clubwomen will take tests Friday.

The 25, members of the executive board of the League of Women and the Local Red Cross Chapter, were tested yesterday at the town department of health. Two of the volunteers took along their maids for examination.

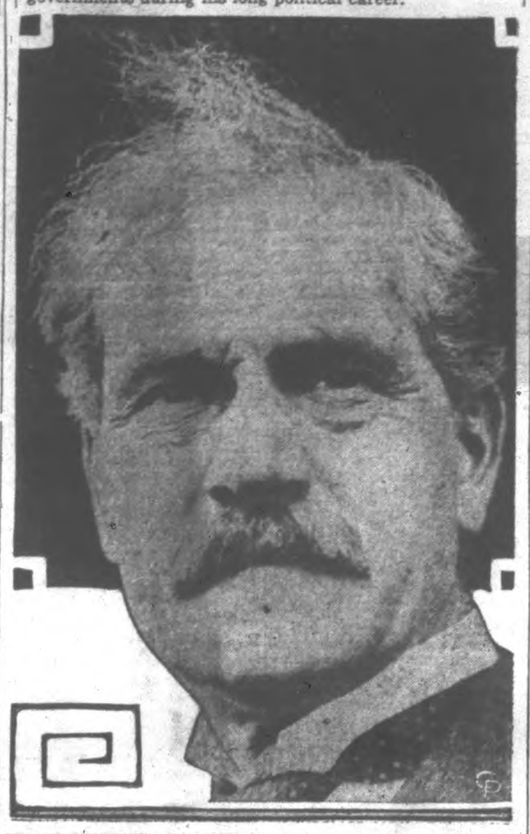
200 Housewives Ask Milk Probe

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP).—A public investigation into the milk business and consideration of "the merits of incorporating milk as a public utility" were demanded by a deputation of 200 Toronto and York Townships housewives to the Board of Control today.

"You can't get away with selling milk at 12 cents," an anonymous note today told Dr. Charles W. Cook, proprietor of a York dairy, who has said he will flout the Milk Board order to raise the price to 13 cents a quart. Dr. Cook says he can make a satisfactory profit at that price.

Called By Death

The Right Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, former British Prime Minister, died yesterday on a steamer en route to South America. Mr. MacDonald was Britain's outstanding labor statesman who headed three governments during his long political career.



Jobless Insurance Is Being Sought

National Employment Services Held Need Under Any Plan Passed, Premier Says in Letter

OTTAWA, Nov. 10—(CP)—A call has gone out to premiers of nine provinces from Prime Minister Mackenzie King asking approval for an amendment to the British North America Act that would enable passage at the next parliamentary session of an unemployment insurance act.

It was proposed, the Prime Minister announced last night that if assent of the provinces is obtained a constitutional amendment would be sought early in the session to empower parliament to enact a national unemployment insurance measure to be administered by the Dominion government.

Under the constitution the provinces have jurisdiction over such social services and the "Unemployment and Social Insurance Act" passed by the parliament of 1935 during the Bennett administration was found unconstitutional by the Supreme Court and the Privy Council because it invaded the rights of the provinces.

If it were backed by the approval of the provinces a joint resolution of the House of Commons and the Senate petitioning the British parliament to effect the necessary amendment would be quickly granted, the Prime Minister believed.

No Details Given

No details of the proposed measure were given and Mr. Mackenzie King would not say whether the scheme would involve contributions from workers, employers and the government as was the case with the 1935 act.

He said, however, national employment services under federal jurisdiction would be considered a necessary complement of any plan of national unemployment insurance.

Mr. Mackenzie King's letter to the provincial premiers was dated Nov. 5. It was not necessary, he said, to have a Dominion-provincial conference on the subject.

In making the announcement the prime minister said it was not the government's intention to await the report of the royal commission on Dominion-provincial relations before proceeding with social measures that might require constitution

HOUSE SUSPENDS FIERY LABORITE

LONDON, Nov. 10—(AP).—David Kirkwood, Labor, was suspended today from the House of Commons, by vote of 178 to 104, after a stormy scene in which he shouted from the floor: "I don't give a d——n for the lot of you."

Kirkwood was asked to withdraw when he repeatedly interrupted other speakers to insist on an answer to his question about the effect of the cost of living on the unemployed.

He refused to retire, and Prime Minister Chamberlain moved his suspension.

Walking toward the door, Kirkwood turned to shout: "You think you are going to treat me like a boy .... Well, I don't give a d——n."

He then strode from the Chamber.

Under Parliamentary rules, the suspension will be effective for a week.

Friends said later that Kirkwood was overwrought by the death of Ramsay MacDonald, his close friend.

ORDERED CASKET

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (C.P.). — James Cunningham, 17, Hamilton-born, asked a local undertaker to ship a $350 casket to the home of his late grandmother in Detroit. But he didn't give his own name to the undertaker. He used another.

To-day in Police Court he was charged with vagrancy and remanded in custody of the Church Army, who will see he gets back to his family in Detroit.

Birmingham, England, will ban all radios that bother neighbors.

CONTRIBUTORY BASIS HINTED FOR INSURANCE

Rogers Thinks Ottawa Shoulder Whole Thing

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (C.P.).—Labor Minister Rogers to-day said it "might be fair to assume" the national unemployment insurance scheme which Prime Minister Mackenzie King has proposed to the provinces would be on some contributory basis.

He intimated, too, the Dominion Government probably would be prepared to accept responsibility, administrative and financial, for the operation of an insurance plan if the provinces agreed to give the Dominion jurisdiction in this field.

The Prime Minister announced last night letters were sent to all the Provincial Premiers asking their approval to an amendment to the British North America Act to enable the Government to introduce an Unemployment Insurance Act at the next session of Parliament.

Mr. Rogers said to-day the Department of Labor was giving attention for some months to unemployment insurance schemes. For the past month it had the personal assistance of D. Christie Tait, British insurance expert attached to the International Labor Office, Geneva. All indications, Mr. Rogers said pointed to the desirability of unemployment insurance on a national scale.

There were "strong reasons" for proceeding with the scheme at once chief being to take advantage of a normal phase of the business cycle in establishing the insurance on a substantial foundation. The hope in any insurance scheme, of course, was that it should be self-sustaining, but that depended on the length of any unemployment period.

Changes In Service

"There is great value in having unemployment insurance and great value in having an organization under that act to deal with any recurrence of unemployment," he said.

16 Arabs Arrested For Killing Jews

JERUSALEM, Nov. 10—(AP). — Sixteen Arabs were arrested to-day by British troops searching hills near Jerusalem for an Arab gang believed responsible for the ambush slaying of five Jews yesterday.

Military units and Royal Air Force planes co-operated in the search. The five Jewish youths were shot while on their way to work at a quarry near the Jewish community of Kiriatanavim on the Jerusalem-Haifa road.

The Palestine Post asked in an editorial that the government grant Jews the right to place armed patrols about their areas with the privilege of pursuing criminals.

TO VISIT FACTORIES

TORONTO—Hon. Harold Kirby, Ontario Minister of Health, has announced he will visit factories to get information on the alleged use of second-hand filling in mattresses. Failing federal legislation to control its use, he would consider provincial action, he said.

Perfectly Justified In Your Verdict Judge Tells Jury

Accused Weeps As He Thanks Court at Acquittal; Jurors Require But Two Hours for Decision

NAPANEE, Nov. 10.—(CP)—Robert Woodman, 23, Flinton miner, was acquitted today by a Supreme Court jury of the murder of Aubrey Sedore, a neighbor, who disappeared from his home last February, three months before charred remains of a body were found in a hemlock grove near the home of the two men.

The jury retired at 11 o'clock and returned shortly before two this afternoon when the foreman announced to Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland that they found Woodman not guilty. The trial lasted more than a week.

"I feel you are perfectly justified in rendering this verdict, the judge told the jury as he discharged Woodman from custody.

The jury reported at 1.40 p.m. after having retired at 11 a.m. but it was learned it was ready to bring in its verdict half an hour earlier had His Lordship been at the courthouse.

Officers warned the capacity audience in the courtroom there must be no demonstration but when George Nicol, foreman, announced the verdict there was hand-clapping. J. M. Simpson, defence counsel, immediately asked for Woodman's discharge.

Verdict Justified

Addressing the jury, Mr. Justice McFarland said: "Yours has been a long, arduous and tedious task inadequately remunerated but you have the consciousness of a duty well done. I am of the opinion you were perfectly justified in bringing in a verdict of acquittal."

His Lordship asked Woodman to stand and said "There was plenty of evidence collected by the police to put you on trial and, as I said to the jury, I agree with the verdict and you are discharged."

Woodman, his eyes filled with tears, uttered a simple "thank you" to the judge and repeated it to the jury. His father congratulated him and in the courtroom corridor Woodman embraced his wife. The acquitted man went to the jail, collected his belongings and with his family left for Flinton.

Woodman was charged with murdering Sedore and then burning his body. The Crown alleged he committed the crime for greed. Crown witnesses testified he had sold or attempted to sell Sedore's belongings after his death.

The defense maintained evidence against Sedore was largely circumstantial, and there was no definite proof the bones found were those of the missing man.

NEW GHOUL NOTE FOUND IN DITCH HOLLAND LANDING

WOODBRIDGE, Ont., Nov. 10. — (CP).—A new note, apparently written by the ghouls who desecrated graves in Woodbridge and Streetsville, has been placed in the hands of police investigating the twin crimes.

The note was given police by a 14-year-old school girl who said she found it in a ditch near the village of Holland Landing, 40 miles north of Toronto. The note read:

"Chuck—haven't got us yet. Meet me at Stretsville—you know where. Buz."

A rough diagram on the note depicted a hill. Near the indication of the hill, the word "grave" was scrawled. As in a previous note, "Streetsville was mis-spelled.

The girl said just before she picked up the note, two rough-looking men in an old car asked her to get in and go for a ride. She refused, and the car then continued towards Bradford.

Son Leads Posse.

Meanwhile a posse of 50 led by the dead man's son, set out to find the body of William Thomson, stolen from its Woodbridge grave last week. The body of Heyden Pope was recovered in a nearby ditch soon after it was removed from its grave in Streetsville. A ransom of $100 was demanded for its return, but was not paid.

Two rewards of $300 have been offered by the Ontario Government for information leading to the apprehension of the person or persons who raided the two graves. Both crimes occurred in the district surrounding Toronto.

Police said the note found at Holland Landing may be a hoax, but it has been turned over to the Criminal Investigation Department. They said they were satisfied only two of a half-dozen notes, purported to have been written by the ghoul, were genuine.

Car Strikes Wagon One Man Is Killed

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Nov. 10—(CP).—Percy Godby, 28, was killed to-day when a car in which he was riding with Clifford Wolfe and Gar Smith, collided with a horse-drawn milk delivery wagon driven by Ernest Holman, in Staffordville. The three men were on their way to their homes in Staffordville from their work on night shift building a bridge at Vienna. Wolfe and Smith were injured in the crash.

FACING FIVE YEARS BURGLAR ESCAPES

WALKERTON, Ont., Nov. 10 (C. P.). — Norval Bell, 30-year-old Kincardine prisoner, escaped from Bruce County Jail during the night and took a long lead on police who did not learn of the escape until daybreak. Bell was sentenced here yesterday to five years in Kingston Penitentiary for breaking and entering.

Jail officials concluded Bell must have used a key to open the door of his cell. He went down to the kitchen, piled boxes in a corner, and got through a ventilator window to the roof. He stepped across to the jail wall, and dropped 15 feet to the ground outside.

Sixteen miles away, at Teeswater, the motor car of Tom Collison was reported stolen at 12.30 a.m., and police believed Bell was the thief.

Believing Turnkey C. T. Boss said he discovered Bell was missing at 6.30 a.m. when he made his regular morning round.

Also in jail was Leonard Bell, brother of the escaper. Leonard, sentenced yesterday to 18 months determinate and 18 months indeterminate in Reformatory, said he knew nothing about Norval's escape.

The Bells were convicted and sentenced in connection with burglaries at Staynor and Bruce Beach. Norval for breaking, entering and theft, Leonard for receiving stolen goods and theft.

Norval was to have been taken to Goderich to-day to face similar charges. He is six feet tall, dark-complexioned, and wears a black pullover sweater and blue trousers.

Minister Of Agriculture Paints Bright Reward For Efforts Of Automotive Men

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (C.P.). — Before the youth of Quebec and Ontario to-day lay the claim of Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, of vast opportunities in the fields of transportation and radio.

The Agriculture Minister told a gathering of motor men at the National Motor Show dinner here last night there never was an age when transportation gave more opportunities than those now given in your industry." These opportunities were open particularly in the area between Quebec City and Windsor, Ont., he said.

Mr. Gardiner placed emphasis in his speech on the "task" that confronted the automotive industry in Canada of reduction of initial cost and operation of automobiles. He claimed also the "agricultural element" in Canada welcomed industry as a supplement to agriculture and that completion of a trans-Canadian highway would further the goodwill between peoples of Canada and the United States.

Mr. Gardiner said "if this organization works at the problem of bringing about a levelling of costs, it will go ahead as never before." He urged the automotive and oil industries to tackle the problem of the spread in prices of automobiles and motor

Montreal, Nov. 10 (CP)

THERE was no need for that "please answer," Frankie, the mayor answers all his letters — all those that end with a question mark, anyway.

Montreal's Mayor J. Adhemar Raynault, chief magistrate of Canada's largest city, must have grinned when he read your letter asking "what do you do for a living?"

But he read it all. He knows now there's a Frank March in Detroit's Estabrook school "studying about Canada in the social science room," and he's pleased you chose Montreal as the destination of your query.

Your letter was only one of hundreds pouring into his office daily; some complaining, a few praising, others requesting jobs, some signed, some not. He receives quite a few, too, like yours, from other schoolboys in different parts of the world, seeking stamps, maps and coins. He earns his living partly by answering them.

Mayor Raynault is 45 years old and a French-Canadian. Besides fulfilling his duties as Montreal's No. 1 citizen, he is also a member of the Quebec legislature for L'Assomption county and he runs an insurance business in his spare time.

He spends considerable time answering letters. The other day one came from a man in Northern Ireland who asked the mayor to find him a wife. The mayor answered he was sorry he couldn't be of much assistance, being rather tied up with other duties.

Rancher's Sword vs. Knife Duel Ends In Double Death

Cuts Burglar's Hand Off And Finally Shoots Him Before Dying Himself

SANTA ROSA, Calif., Nov. 10 — (AP).—Story of a duel between a 79-year-old rancher armed with an old, rusty sword and an intruder, brandishing a butcher knife, was pieced together by officers to-day from the dying survivor's gasps.

Thomas Elliott, the rancher, cut off the intruder's left hand, but finally was overpowered. Surrendering, he promised to get his money. Instead, he grabbed a gun and killed the invader with one shot.

Sheriff Harry Patteson reconstructed this story of the battle:

Answering a knock at the door of the house where he lives alone, Elliott was confronted late last night by a hooded intruder, holding a flashlight in one hand and a butcher knife in the other.

"This is a robbery," the hooded man said. "I want your money."

Elliot fled upstairs, grabbed the old sword from its scabbard on the wall and wheeled to battle his assailant. A sudden swipe of Elliot's sword cut off the stranger's left hand. The stranger stooped, picked up the hand, stuffed it into his pocket. Then, despite loss of his hand, the intruder suddenly overpowered the elderly rancher. "I'll get the money!" the rancher shouted.

Elliot stumbled toward a cupboard. But instead of cash, he grabbed a gun, turned and fired. The invader dropped dead

"Cops And Robbers" Cost Boy's Life

Boston, Nov. 10 (AP)

A SCHOOLBOY'S game of "cops and robbers" cost 7-year-old Martin Olsen his life today.

The "robber" Martin was trussed up by playmates playing "cops," and tossed into a gutter to await the next episode of the game.

A truck rolled up to the curb. Martin squirmed to avoid it, but there was rope around his legs and toy handcuffs about his wrists. The truck rolled over him.

He died in hospital.

Drunk May Sock Officer, Cadi Rules And Escape Rap When Sober

Walkerton, Nov. 10. (CP)

A MAN admittedly drunk should not be charged with striking an officer or resisting arrest, ruled Magistrate F. W. Walker in dismissing an assault charge here against a man later found guilty of being drunk.

"There is a feeling by some people they can say and do what they please with police officers," the bench remarked.

"There is also a feeling that some police officers think they can say and do what they please in ejecting people from dances or making arrests," said D. E. Klein, defence counsel.

Magistrate Walker: "A man admittedly intoxicated should not be charged with striking an officer or resisting arrest. An officer sometimes in arresting a drunken man has to put up with a lot of abuse. I don't want the impression to go forth, however, that officers are not to be given the protection of this court."

ARMS BETTER THAN LEAGUE SAYS ILSLEY

General Fear of War Disquieting Factor

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—(CP)—Under present conditions the League of Nations was not "an effective means of defence against aggression," Revenue Minister Ilsley told a "peace action week" gathering here last night. "A strongly armed United Kingdom is, in my opinion, a much surer guarantee of peace," he added.

Mr. Ilsey, one of Canada's delegates to the 18th Assembly of the League this year, said he had gone to Geneva somewhat pessimistic about the operations of the League. His observations and experiences had, however, greatly encouraged him, he said, and hereafter the League's movement would be upward.

The League's critics should distinguish between the League itself and factors not essentially connected with the League, the Minister asserted. Two hampering factors were the state of public opinion in member-countries which prevented governments from taking steps that might possibly involve them in risk or loss and lack of universality of League membership.

If those factors could be removed, the League, said Mr. Ilsley, "would be one of the greatest human institutions, for its objective—the welfare of humanity—is a high one." It was a necessary world agency, envisaging a society in which men and women would be safe, healthy, free, well nourished, well-housed and well clothed. Its vision contemplated a state in which fear of want, disease, exploitation and attack would be absent and people would live sanely, normally and happily.

Unless and until Canadians became convinced no progress was being made through League channels toward the establishment of such a society, they should co-operate with other nations to this end, he said.

League Doubly Shackled.

The Minister's address was delivered to a gathering of those interested in the "Peace Action Week" program of the League of Nations Society in Canada. It took the form of a survey of the problems which had confronted the 18th assembly and the manner in which that organization had dealt with them.

For two reasons the League could do little in the question of Spain, he said. Germany and Italy were not members; and public opinion was sharply divided, not only as between nations comprising the League but as between the people of member countries themselves.

Turning to the vote registered on Spain's eligibility for re-election as a Council member, Mr. Ilsley voiced criticism of despatches which had purported to give information on its make up.

"This kind of vote has to be, and is, by secret ballot," said the Minister. "Fifty-two nations voted; five cast blank or spoiled ballots, and of the 47 who cast good ballots, 23 voted for re-eligibility of Spain, and 24 against.

"I do not know how any nation voted except Canada, nor, as I understand it, are the Canadian Government or the Canadian delegates, except possibly at the instance of parliament, free to state how Canada voted," Mr. Ilsley said. "Unfortunately a newspaper correspondent made a guess as to how we voted and sent a despatch to Canada, which formed the basis of certain editorial criticism of the government.

"While I can neither confirm nor deny the accuracy of that journalist's guess, for the reason I have stated, I venture to question whether press criticism of a delegation or a government based upon a conjectural report of a secret vote is a legitimate exercise of the right of comment," said the Minister.

Mr. Ilsley touched upon the troubles in Palestine and the League's acceptance of the British Royal Commission's report which recommended partition of the country."

DOG FEED, FUEL BIG R.C.M.P. ITEM

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (C.P.). — Dog feed and fuel are two of the big items of expense in the maintenance of Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts in the Far North. The annual report of the force, recently published, states attempts are being made to cut down the cost of the former by obtaining as much fish locally as possible and of the latter by insulating the buildings.

More than 100,000 pounds of fish were obtained last year despite a poor fishing season. This eliminates the cost of shipping dog feed in from the South.

It costs approximately $24,350 to keep 260 dogs a year on purchased feed, but by using northern-caught fish the cost is kept down to about $2,000.

Walrus meat as well as fish is used for the dogs. Walrus hunts are operated among the detachments in the Eastern Arctic, but in order to minimize the loss of wounded walrus and overcome a tendency of the animals to migrate they are hunted only once at each post.

HUDSON PLANT CLOSES

DETROIT, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Hudson Motor Car Co. closed its plant today because of a dispute over the laying off of eight men in the paint department.

The company has between 10,000 and 12,000 employees.

Spokesmen for the company and the United Automobile Workers of America said negotiations were in progress and predicted the plant would reopen Wednesday.

"Heil Roosevelt" No Joke To Nazis

Cleveland, Nov. 10 (UP)

PAUL Zarrs, a machine designer, returned today from a 4,000-mile automobile tour of Germany, during which he answered all greetings of "Heil Hitler" with "Heil Roosevelt."

"It seemed to give offense," said Zarrs, "Nobody there could see the joke."

SEED GRAIN LOW DEWAN REVEALS AT OTTAWA FAIR

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—(CP)— Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, formally opened the four-day Ottawa Winter Fair last night.

The Minister, who grew up in the Ottawa Valley, lauded such agricultural fairs for the healthy rivalry they inspired between competing farmers, for the incentive they provided to those not competing and for their example to the farmers of the future.

The Horse Show, attended by an enthusiastic cross-section of capital society, was featured by the traditional musical ride of the scarlet-tunicked Royal Canadian Mounted Police and a series of saddle and harness events.

At the opening of the show Mr. Dewan presented championship prizes in beef cattle and calf club classes, awarded during the day's stock judging.

Mr. Dewan predicted a shortage of seed grain in Eastern Ontario next spring in an earlier address to the Ottawa Liberal Study Club. The shortage was the result of a wet season, he said.

He urged consideration of soil depletion and animal nutrition as one of the chief problems facing agriculture. He linked the two since crops from soil lacking phosphorous produced animals also lacking in that mineral. An animal nutrition bran would be opened next spring at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, to deal with this field.

The Best Calves.

Neil Cumming of Lancaster, Ont., was awarded the Senator Cairine Wilson trophy for the best Ayrshire heifer calf and Hereford or Aberdeen-Angus calf, steer, heifer in the Junior Agriculture Department.

The Holstein-Friesian Association special for the best Holstein heifer calf or yearling went to Gordon McCrae of Moose Creek, while the special by the Eastern Ontario Jersey Breeder's Association for the best heifer calf went to Lyman Boyd of Stittsville.

J. C. and Roy R. Cimmons of Aylmer East, Que., won the special by the Ottawa Valley Breeders' Club for the best pair of Ayrshire calves exhibited by members of a calf club. NAPANEE PASTOR GUEST PREACHER

WESTWOOD, Nov. 10.—Large congregations were present at the anniversary services of St. Andrew's United church on Sunday morning and evening. Rev. R. T. Richards, B.A., B.D., of Napanee, preached two very eloquent and inspirational sermons. "The Church Whither" was the subject chosen for the morning service, and in the evening the remarks were based on the text I Timothy, 6.12, "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life."

Two anthems "Rejoice Ye," and "Rock of Ages" were sung in the morning by the choir, and Mrs. E. Kitney of Peterborough, rendered a very pleasing solo "As pants the Hart," to Largo's composition.

In the evening Mrs. Kitney sang two beautiful solos "God's Tomorrow" and "In the Garden with Jesus" and the choir rendered an anthem "The Sure Refuge."

W.M.S. Meets

Mrs. James Clysdale was hostess to the members of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society for their November meeting. Ten ladies were present and a very pleasant and profitable meeting was held.

"A Worshipping Church" was the theme for the meeting and five passages of scripture were read, the following five ladies taking part: Mrs. R. Wilson, Mrs. J. S. Sargent, Miss Mary Cameron, Mrs. Manley, and Mrs. Don Cameron. Prayer was offered by Mrs Hugh Cameron and a reading 'The Worshipping Church' was read by Mrs. Clysdale. Readings from the Study Book, "A New Church faces a New World" proved very interesting.

It was decided to send a bale of clothing to the needy in Saskatchewan, contributions to be left at the home of Mrs. John Hooper on Tuesday, November 16. A pot-luck dinner and quilting will be held in Wesley Hall on December 1st.

POLICE OFFERING $600 IN REWARDS TO TRAP GHOULS

BRAMPTON, Nov. 10.—Posting of separate $300 rewards for information leading to the apprehension of the Streetsville and Woodbridge ghouls has whetted local interest in the Provincial Police search and today has tended to render even more jittery the nerves of residents of the surrounding countryside.

Announcement of the reward decision, made in Toronto by Attorney-General Gordon Conant, has the local wiseacres convinced that the police have no very hot clues. On the other hand, opposed to this opinion is the belief that the reward is part of the police scheme to tempt a suspect, already being watched, to betray himself.

No new developments in the case were revealed by police last night. It was indicated, however, they are convinced they are dealing with a necrophile — a mentally deranged person whose aberrations are evidenced by a morbid interest in bodies. The person, they believe, is cunning, but is of a type whose ego is fed by the clamor he has aroused. If that clamor subsides, he will seek to arouse it by sending notes, placing the stolen body of the late William Thompson in some bizarre place or attempting to steal another body.

Reward May Be Incentive.

It is suspected locally that police believe the posting of a reward will act as an incentive in spurring voluntary searchers, and also may prime the ego of the necrophile to do something in his effort to show just how smart he is. Whatever that action changes. He did not indicate any other legislation that might be in prospect.

For some time the government had been giving consideration to an unemployment insurance measure, the prime minister said. He and his colleagues were convinced that "a national system of unemployment insurance would contribute materially to individual security and industrial stability throughout Canada."

Provincial premiers were asked to submit, at their earliest convenience, the views of their respective governments on the project. Questioned as to the possible contingency of one or more of the provinces refusing to approve, the prime minister said it would be better to have unanimous agreement but did not indicate what would be done if such unanimity could not be obtained.

Commission Never Worked

The 1936 unemployment measure, a feature of the Bennett government's social reform program, passed through parliament with considerable opposition criticism on the question of its constitutionality and a commission was set up to administer it.

Hon. G. S. Harrington, former premier of Nova Scotia, was chief commissioner. Before any progress was made in organization the Mackenzie King government took office and the act was referred to the courts. Mr. Harrington resigned before the appeal was decided and the commission never functioned.

The act called for contributions to the scheme from workers, employers and the government, payable weekly for 40 weeks before benefits might be received. Workers and employers would have contributed equal amounts, the government a fractional amount of the total. There was a sliding scale of rates and benefits depending on age and sex of workers.

It was designed for application, chiefly among permanently employed laborers including miners, railway workers, automobile transport workers, machinists, manufacturing employees, clerks and office workers, other than those in financial houses, who salaries were less than $2,000 yearly.

A wide list of exempted classes included domestic servants, civil servants, policemen, nurses, teachers, trappers, farm workers, fishermen, lumbermen, workers in sea and air transportation and stevedores.

Compensation for unemployment was to have ranged downward from $6 a week.

ANNIVERSARY OF BETHEL CHURCH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

EAST EMILY, Nov. 10.—The annual anniversary services were held in Bethel Unit 1 church on Sunday, November 7th, with services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. conducted by Rev. H. B. Neal of Campbellford, a former pastor, in the circuit 23 years ago.

The church was filled for both services and the choir did exceptionally well. Mrs. W. Hanbridge was organist. At the morning service, Mrs. Harry McCarrell rendered a solo in her sweet voice and Mrs. Elwood Faulkner and Miss Dorothy Dayman sang a duet.

At the evening service the choir rendered special music and singing and the male voice quartette from Fairmount church sang two numbers. The quartette was Messrs. Batten, Preston, McBain and Hanbridge.

"In the last few years we have dealt with a problem of tremendous proportion without benefit of a predetermined organization. An essential part of the equipment necessary to deal with unemployment on a large scale is such machinery already in operations."

Mr. Rogers called attention to the fact leaders of organized labor had endorsed the national scheme proposed. Labor had always suggested a national scheme as the most effective method of dealing with the problem.

Asked if the government had in mind a contributory system, the minister observed the British system, in force since 1912 was on a contributory basis.

"I think it would be fair to assume that if the government is able to introduce legislation through the co-operation of the provinces it will be on the contributory principle," he said. At the same time, he noted there was a wide variety of contributory plans in effect in various countries at present.

Mr. Rogers declined to go into the details of whatever plan the Dominion government had in mind. Further conferences with industry and labor would have to be held before a bill could be drafted, once the government had been assured of the full co-operation of the provinces.

BRITISH EMPIRE BOWS IN TRIBUTE TO J. R. MACDONALD

(By the Canadian Press.)

The British Empire to-day paid tribute to Ramsay MacDonald, one-time Labor leader who climbed from a fisherman's cottage to international fame as a peace leader and was three times Prime Minister of the United Kingdom. He died last night aboard ship, seeking to regain the health visits to this country formerly helped him preserve.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada who had known the statesman from Lossiemouth, Scotland, for 40 years issued a statement at Ottawa saying he had "lost an old and deeply-valued friend."

Last night Mr. Mackenzie King said of him: "However men may differ concerning some of the courses Mr. MacDonald pursued, none will deny that it was through sheer ability and force of character that he rose unaided, and often handicapped by circumstances, to the highest place in the gift of his country."

In Toronto James Simpson, Labor man and the city's former Mayor, said: "He was one of the Empire's greatest statesmen and devoted his life to service of the Mother Country."

Mr. Simpson was a friend of the former Prime Minister for 30 years.

Message From King, Queen.

The King and Queen were understood to have sent a message of sympathy to Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary of State for Dominions, who returned from the nine power treaty conference at Brussels by air on learning of the death of his father.

David Lloyd George, paying tribute declared: "While obvious his vigor was exhausted and his health broken up, news of his death comes as a great shock. No one could have attained so exalted a position without possessing some notable gifts. He held a conspicuous place in the public eye for a quarter-century, for he had the gift of personality."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader in the House of Commons, said: "The Commons have lots a distinguished figure, the State a man who shrank from no sacrifice in public duty, and Scotland a devoted son who proved himself in bitter political controversy to be a man of proud, indomitable courage."

Son to Carry On.

In Australia, Prime Minister Joseph Lyons paid tribute to his outstanding services to the United Kingdom, particularly his 1931 accomplishments. "I and my wife feel we have lost a dear friend, but are gratified that his splendid name will be carried on by Malcolm," Mr. Lyons said.

J. H. Thomas, who served under MacDonald throughout his three administrations, said: "For many years I was not only his colleague, but probably his closest friend. I know that to the end he felt no regrets for the course he took in 1931. I am satisfied history will show he was right. He loved his country, and, sad and sudden as the end has been, I am personally satisfied it was the end he would have desired."

The Western Mail of Cardiff (Independent) said: "It was MacDonald's misfortune, incurred through an imperative sense of duty and motives of the purest patriotism, to suffer the most implacable hostility from his former friends.... The British people will never fail to appreciate the example of one who, almost more than any other, made possible the happy turn in the nation's fortunes."

around steady, $8.50 to $9.75; throwouts, $7.75 to $8.25; fat ewes, $4.50 to $5.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Brisk trading disappeared along with a portion of early three-cent gains in wheat futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Preholiday dullness and profit-taking left final prices 2¼ to 1⅞ higher, November, $1.16; December, 1.11⅛; May, $1.89¼ to ⅜, and July $1.04⅛.

Frost in Western Argentina and higher Liverpool quotations led to continued commission house and export buying at the opening which yesterday sent prices up around two cents in the market's biggest recovery since November 1, when a steady daily decline sent values down 10 to 12 cents.

November future opened three cents higher, chiefly due to the early rush of export orders. Later support thinned while profit-taking cut down the advance. Sales of Canadian wheat were estimated between 250,000 and 300,000 bushels.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR NOMINATION OF BOY MEMBER

The Ontario Older Boys' Parliament is to meet for the seventeenth time December 27 to 31. About 100 boys from all parts of Ontario will meet and using parliamentary forms and rules of procedure will not discuss such questions as tariff and highways but matters concerning boys' work.

Peterborough city has had some worthy representatives in the Older Boys' Parliament. Jim Hunter at one time was premier, Reg Kingdon served a term as leader of the Opposition.

Nominations are scheduled next Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. from eight until nine o'clock with Reg Kingdon acting as returning officer. At present seven or eight names are being mentioned as candidates and a lively contest is expected.

Cameron Gorrie of the Y. M. C. A. staff and a former premier of the Older Boys' Parliament of British Columbia is aiding the local boys in organization.

The parliament is fostered by six denominations and the Y. M. C. A. working through the Boys' Work Board of the Ontario Religious Education Council.

Any boy who has passed his 12th but not his 21st birthday on December 1st 1937 who is a member in attendance for at least twenty-five percent of the meetings of a Trail Ranger Tuxis or church group or Sunday School class that is duly registered with the Ontario Boys' Work Board and had the names of its members placed on the Returning officer's lists by Monday November 22 is entitled to vote.

The Boys' Work Board for Ontario has no less than 100 different kinds of programme helps, a regular bulletin service is maintained to the 425 groups organized which have an enrolment of 5,785. During 1937 there were 30 camps held in the various parts of the province while conferences and 66 Standard schools provided inspiration and training to boys and leaders. The most vital work however can never be expressed in statistics.

CAMPBELLFORD Y.P.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Charles Fraser presided over an interesting program which was presented by the St. Andrew's Young People's Society at the regular Monday meeting. Opening with a hymn which was followed by prayer, Mrs. Edison Wynn gave a vocal solo accompanied by Charles Allan. Jack Bell gave a violin solo after which Mrs. A. G. Thompson gave a report from Missionary Allan Beech who was recently at Burnt Brae. Rev. B. Simpson Black pronounced the Benediction which brought the evening to a close.

INSPIRING RALLY BY YOUNG PEOPLE

WARKWORTH, Nov. 10. — A young people's rally was held in St. Paul's United Church here Monday evening when members of Dartford and Norham societies met with the local society. Orval Kelly president of the young people's union of the Cobourg Presbytery presided and on the platform with him were Miss Beatrice Bragg, president of the Norham Society, and Rev. Plant, minister of Trinity United Church, Norham.

Following hymn, "Jesus Shall Reign," the scripture lesson, John 3:16 was read by Miss Bragg after which prayer was given by Rev. Plant. Mrs. Arthur Ward and James Bailey, Dartford sang "Speed Away." O. E. Kelly based his remarks on "Giving More." Hymn "In Christ there is no East or West" was sung after which Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper introduced Dr. Mitchell, a retired missionary who has spent forty-two years in Honan, China. The topic of his address, "Then an now," was very interesting, in this the speaker compared the work of forty-two years ago with what it is today. He stated that the Church of Christ in China is a combination of churches and means the same as the United Church of Canada. The United Church of Canada is called the mother church and the churches in China are called the daughter churches.

A vocal duet by Mrs. F. W. Bowen and Miss Francis Bowen and hymn "O Master of the waking world" closed the meeting.

Destruction And Joy Seen In Two Views Of Spanish War

Presenting two sides of the story, the (ABOVE) photographs depict entirely different views of the Spanish war, one showing happiness and the other destruction. Ablaze from stem to stern, the Spanish loyalist freighter, Caba Santo Tome is shown off the coast of Algeria, near Cape Rosa, after she had been shelled by two insurgent warships. All members of the crew were saved from the burning ship. At the RIGHT, fairly breathing the spirit of victory, rebel troops are shown entering Gijon after their march through the Asturians to capture the loyalist city. Women of the city met the victors and escorted them dancing and singing through the battered streets of the war-torn city.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 10. — The charges from Seymour, including Zion, Hoards, and the English Line, have been invited to participate in the missionary rally which is being conducted by the Young People's Union of St. John's United Church next week, it was reported from the weekly meeting held on Monday. Following the opening hymn the president, Miss Ruth Pailliser, gave a very interesting reading entitled "Enough," after which Harold Outingdyke gave the Scripture reading. A reading, "This Is Friendship," also by the president, and prayers by Miss Velma Reynolds, concluded the opening exercises.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the continuance of the fall series of addresses by the minister, entitled "The Spread of Christianity Through Canada."

Donald Holmes took the chair for the balance of the program, which included a vocal duet by the Misses Evelyn and Mae Stotts; piano solo, Thelma Menzies; the topic, "Drought," by Ruth Pailliser; community singing led by Dr. H. R. McLaren.

WAR UPON RATS

DETROIT, Nov. 10—(CP)—Steps were taken yesterday to end a plague of rats bothering Detroit civic officials. Three members of the Civic Pride Association exterminated thousands of rats, with the new Mayor Frank Couzens and other dignitaries.

The rats were driven out of their holes with carbon monoxide fumes from the exhaust pipe of a truck. As the pests emerged their executioners had about them with shovels and clubs in merciless slaughter.

Bruno Mussolini's Death Denied

PARIS, Nov. 10—(CP-Havas).—Reports Bruno Mussolini, 20-year-old aviator son of the Italian Premier, was killed, wounded or captured in Spain were denied to-day in dispatches from London.

Along with reports from Valencia and Barcelona declaring the young Italian had met with misfortune, the newspaper Le Matin ran a despatch from London relating a newspaper there had telephoned the Italian Propaganda Ministry at Rome about the matter. Ministry officials were quoted as replying: Bruno Mussolini in good health. The rumors stating he is dead, wounded or a prisoner are groundless. He is carrying out military duties at this moment and it is impossible to state where he is."

Debater Counts On Grave-Digging To Help Put Him Through College

Winnipeg, Nov. 10

GRAVE-DIGGING not only keeps Jerry Gobeille's muscles in shape, but it's going to help him through college. Jerry, who attends University of Ottawa, spend his summers digging graves and he is now rated as a "six man" by the Grave Diggers' Union.

That means Jerry, member of the Eastern Canada Debating Team making a tour of the West, can dig six graves a week when hitting his real dirt-tossing form. Gobeille is also a good debater. He helped Norman Dobbs of McMaster University, Hamilton, defeat the Winnipeg debaters last night, taking the affirmative on the question: "That Canada Should Support an Economic Boycott of Japan for the Duration of Her Aggression in China."

His money - earning abilities were once in the bell-hopping and office-boy field, but he turned to 'grave-digging to help support his education because it pays "$5 a day, which is not to be sneezed at."

"I am one of the few, I might add, who have had both feet in the grave and lived to tell about it," declared the black-haired Gobeille.

A very interesting program included a piano solo, Paderewski Minuet, by Miss Jean Anderson; a paper entitled "Peace Education," by Miss Mae Seeney.

Lunch was served at the conclusion of the meeting by the refreshment convenor, Miss Margaret Voyer.

The tea tables, prettily decorated with flowers, were in charge of Misses R. Rice, B. Holdcroft, M. Isaac, H. Clark, and S. Fleming. At the candy and lotion table were Miss R. Fleming and Miss G. Thoms. Miss V. McQuigge and Miss B. Davies presided at the fish pond, while Mrs. E. J. Leeson took charge of the home-baking table.

ANNUAL SUPPER DRAWS 450 FOLK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Nov. 10.—The annual fowl supper of Springbrook United church was held in Springbrook Orange Hall on Monday evening of this week and was a splendid success, about 450 persons partaking of the bountiful supper provided in the basement, after which a capacity audience repaired to the auditorium above and listened to a first class program, Rev. A. W. Harding acting very capably as chairman.

Miss Laurene Scott, A.T.C.M., and elocutionist, of Harold, contributed an extremely bright and pleasing piano solo and three readings which were much appreciated. Two splendid vocal solos were given by Miss Evelyn Barnum and the voices of Miss Irene Tucker and Mr. Eric Cappell blended beautifully in two duets and an encore.

A violin solo by Master Wally Ketcheson called forth an encore and a vocal duet by Master Glynn and Bert Sine was much enjoyed as was also a number by a mixed quartette composed of Mrs. Geo. Williams, Miss Thelma Ketcheson, Mr. Bruce Barnum and Rev. A. W. Harding.

In short addresses Canon W. G. Swayne of Rawdon parish and Rev. Dr. Reddick of Campbellford brought greetings from their congregations and expressed their pleasure at being present.

Seventy Years Old Never Lost Day's Work

As the years creep on little sicknesses and ailments become harder to shake off than formerly, and evidences of a breakdown appear.

Now is the time when aged people need a tonic, such as Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to help them maintain their health, vigor and energy, and to brace up and invigorate the nervous system.

MR. A. C. BIGGAR, Palermo, Ont., writes:—"I am seventy years of age; never lost a day's work, missed a meal, or took any medicine in my life, but last year I had a nervous breakdown; had headaches; no appetite; hid from people; and was in fear and anxiety; had to have someone sit beside my bed at night until I went to sleep. Hell could not be worse. I began taking Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills, and from the first I became calm and collected, and to-day I feel the same as I did years ago."

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1937

It Was All Worth While

"I trust that next year we will be blessed with sufficient moisture to give us our usual good crops which we have not had since 1930."

"We distributed that car to 660 persons. . . . Speaking of our own home we are seven, and have managed to keep off relief until this year.

"It is such a relief to know that my children will not have to go hungry. Our crops here were almost a complete failure."

Those lines were taken from some of the letters which have come to people of Peterborough and points in the district telling of the receipt and distribution of cars of provisions which were forwarded to those in need in Western Canada. There is no complaint in the letters and yet the plain statement of fact which they contain explains to our people better than anything else could do the conditions under which some of the unfortunate Westerners are living.

When people have been working on land where they have not had a crop since 1930 it must take high hope to look forward to something better in the year to come. There would be seven seasons of planting and no corresponding season of harvest. It would be a brave heart which would not break in face of that.

When a woman writes in thankfulness that her children will not have to go hungry the meaning is plain enough. Just this—if the relief cars had not arrived they would have gone hungry.

The folk of this district are not looking for praise for that which they have done, but they cannot but have a feeling of satisfaction that the gifts they gave so willingly went directly to people who were hard pressed and powerless to do anything to assist themselves—for they had nothing with which to come to their own assistance.

Right Here In Ontario

It is difficult to believe that a son living in Woodbridge, a well-established place in the older-settled part of the province of Ontario, would ever have to send out an appeal to grave-despoilers to return the remains of his father so they might again be given decent burial.

One has to think of the matter only a moment to appreciate the extent of the anguish and mental agony which must have gripped the son and all the relatives as well as every red-blooded individual in the entire district.

It may be the individual responsible for such a deed is sane and in his right mind, but that we are moved to doubt. There is a feeling which may well be called inborn which without being touched or appealed to will instinctively respect the resting place of the departed. We can hardly conceive of a sane person departing from that accustomed and proper course. We can only hope that the police themselves will come to grips with the guilty party, for even in a normal and respectable community it is sometimes difficult to estimate what an outraged public will do if they happen to discover such an offender.

Pumpkins And Pies

This has been a great growing season. One man at Port Severn has a pumpkin which weighs 95 pounds. In the Examiner office window there has been a 19-pound turnip, and now we learn of Emile Kiel of Steinback, Man., who has a pumpkin which weighs 106 pounds. On nearly every occasion the newspaper people put in these stories and say something about the large pumpkin being sufficient to make pumpkin pies for the entire winter, and sometimes they become so enthusiastic that it is made to appear one huge pumpkin might even feed a township.

From Canada Packers we learn that one ton of pumpkins will produce 800 pounds of pulp; that is 40 per cent. of the pumpkin is pie material. Also that 14 ounces of pulp will make an average pumpkin pie.

So this large Manitoba pumpkin of 106 pounds would have within it 42.4 pounds, or 678.4 ounces of pulp, and allowing 14 ounces to a pie it would account for 48.4 pumpkin pies.

As It Is In Denmark

Dr. J. H. Putman gave an address in Ottawa and told about the hard-working people of Denmark. The speaker was impressed by the amount of produce they took from 15 acres. After having looked at it for some time Dr. Putman came away with the feeling that although we in Canada have a wonderful country "we don't begin to till it; we just scratch it a bit." If we were as industrious as the Danes "We would drain the swamps, paint the houses and make orchards."

The Ottawa Journal man was apparently not as impressed as Dr. Putman. He says Denmark has about the same population as Ontario, but while our province has 407,262 square miles there are but 16,568 square miles in Denmark. That means we have 8.5 people living on a square mile in Ontario, while in Denmark there are 211.2. We dislike reducing people to decimal points, but that is the way it came out. It also means if we had the same density of population in Ontario as exists in Denmark our population would be 86,013,734.

The Journal says, rightly enough we think, there is no need for us trying to make our land produce as much as the Danes get from their small farms. We would be growing too much of everything, and at the moment we do not know where we would dispose of all we could produce if we stepped our cultivation to the degree of intensity known in Denmark.

We can approve of painting houses and making some good orchards, but Dr. Putman should not have told the people we should be draining off the swamps. In our quest to secure more acres we have drained too many swamps already. The result is we have engineers and commissions working on schemes to try and restore parts of our province to the condition which existed fifty or sixty years ago when there were swamps and larger tracts of bush lands. In the natural and well-planned order of things swamps were made to serve a good purpose; they were to be natural reservoirs against dry times, but we either did not know that or failed to recognize it, and we cleaned out too many of them. Much better to paint a house than to clean out yet another swamp.

A Changing System

There is trouble enough between the tobacco growers of southwestern Ontario, the Tobacco Marketing Board and we suppose the ultimate buyers are also in the background. It all has to do with the price to be paid and the quality grading. The average minimum price is set at 24½ cents per pound, but the system of grading is said to be such that it reduces the price from eight to as much as ten cents per pound. The result is that the growers are on strike and refuse to sell.

Whether we desire it or not business is turning toward centralized handling, and the Minister of Agriculture is trying to see what he can do about it. This year growers were instructed to increase their acreage by 15 per cent. and permits were given to some additional 500 growers, bringing the total acreage up to 50,000. So when a system of government control starts at the first of the season by telling the people how much to grow and regulating the number who can be growers, it is natural enough to expect the same system to remain operative until the crop is sold.

The rough spot in any such plan is that it puts the responsibility on the government agency to see that the price for the crop is satisfactory. It is no longer a case of a man working on the land growing something and then finding some person who wants to buy it. It is as different as can be from the old order of doing business. To illustrate: Some years ago when a farmer wanted to kill a pig he did so himself. Perhaps a neighbor might come over and lend a hand. There was the old cauldron for boiling water and the dressing and scraping was all done right there. Then on the day he went to town the front of the bob sleigh might be filled with bags of wheat which he intended to sell or other grain which he was going to get put through for chop stuff. At the back of the sleigh would be placed the dressed pig. The farmer would look around town to see who wanted to buy the pig and he would make his own bargain; if he wanted to sell the wheat he would deal with the grain buyer. He was handling his own business entirely. Today a good deal of our wheat is sold for us; the price of bacon and the quality is regulated by the price and demand of a foreign market and our producers are more and more being drawn into a regulated sort of business in which direct contact between a producer and a consumer is being lessened. And when government agencies fail to sell at fair prices probably it will be regarded as another reason for turning out the government.

Rules For Eating Soup

We have been looking up a little booklet on "Table Manners." These can be secured by sending a small sum to the Examiner office, and the table manners one is just part of a series. Although the matters dealt with are somewhat separate and apart from the usual topics chosen for discussion in editorial columns, it is a fact the thing became interesting. Where we agreed all was well, and where we could not readily assent then it produced a frown and a combative state of mind.

We learned from reading this book that soup should always be dipped away from the soup eater and that the side of the spoon and not the tip should be placed in the mouth, and also that bread and crackers should not be broken and placed in the soup nor should the dish ever be tipped up to permit easier spoon work.

If the entire community were to begin eating soup that way it would reduce us to the point of monotonous soup eating. All folk would eat soup just the same; there would be no channel left open for the demonstrating of what they call self expression; the rugged individual would lose his ruggedness, and he would become as other men.

We are not so sure that it is not well to tip the dish when getting down near the bottom. It facilitates the loading of the spoon to something like capacity and it saves a great many little dips into shallow soup. Then we believe the hostess would be pleased to see that element of eagerness being injected into the movements of the soup eater; she would know for certain she had produced a good article and might be inclined to suggest that the exuberant soup eater might like a second draught.

Nor do we know who made the rule to say that crackers or bread should not be broken and eaten in the soup. What can be more natural than taking three or four crackers and crumbling them in the hand and then slowly stirring them to bring the soup to the desired thickness? And the same with bread. If a man desired to take a piece of bread and dip it in his soup and then convey it to the mouth with a swooping motion, who is there to say he should not do so? There is something rather mysterious about this making of rules and regulations for eating soup, and we cannot well understand just how or why it is done. When we make laws, change the tariff or amend the Ditches and Watercourses Act we can see the people who are doing such things. They are regularly elected and they meet openly, and if we do not like what they do we can turn them out of office. But it is different with those who make these rules and regulations and bylaws about the eating of soup. It is something about which we never had a chance to vote, nor as far as we can learn has there ever been a meeting where a show of hands would settle a question. So we're not much in favor of people having to abide by any set of rules when eating soup. We'd be inclined to grant a candidate rather a high rating who could get the soup from the dish into the mouth without making too much noise and without leaving too much of a trail to mark the direction of the spoon. The accomplished fact must always be regarded as greater than the peculiar technique employed.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Deer are reported as plentiful in Peterborough county this year. The same can be said about hunters.

Germans who have died fighting in Spain are to be honored as heroes so that should soften the blow for the bereaved relatives at home.

Two British naval officers are to be reprimanded for stranding their ship. That is equivalent to being given a slap on the wrist, we understand.

It is complained that thieves are stealing swine in Huron county oblivious to the danger that the pigs may squeal on them.

Over 160,000 guns have been registered by Canadians during the year, a Mounted police report shows. That allows for a sizable number to be left around loaded.

American professor says 45,000 persons in the United States and Canada will be killed by motor cars during the next year. And yet folk are worrying over the war scare.

British Columbia proposes to test the driving ability of all its motorists and if the examination is adequate we have an idea that the number of drivers may be reduced materially.

Numerous traffic signs carried away by Hallowe'en pranksters in New Toronto have not been returned. There may be something amusing in that kind of thing although up to the present we have been unable to discover it.

The champion corn husker of the United States, Ray Hanson of Minnesota shucked 1497 pounds of corn in 80 minutes. He at least demonstrated that there is no trace of rheumatism in his fingers.

CASTOR OIL

¶ We're scientific in our ways, compared to older sorts of days. we sterilize and boil; and now some person comes to say, they've found a new and better way of taking castor oil.

¶ They have a way that works quite well, they put it in a little shell, and it slides down with ease; and you don't have to hate the stuff, or in the taking get used rough, it's slick as you can please.

¶ I liked not castor oil at all, the bottle looked unkind and tall, 'twas on the pantry shelf; when my insides would turn and balk, why then I'd hear the folk all talk, on my declining health.

¶ I never backed up at a pill, when I was feeling kind of ill, and I'd take turpentine; I think I acted like my best, when they put goose grease on my chest, and some upon my spine.

¶ But when they came with castor oil, my wickedness would start to boil, all sorts of stuff I'd say; if I was feeling fit to die, I know right well I'd up and lie, the pain was going away.

¶ And then grandfather's steps would come, I'd count them on the stairs each one, for they were sure and slow; and then the door he'd firmly close, and he would take me by the nose—and down the thing would go.

DURING HIS ten weeks' holiday in Scotland King George shot more than ninety stag. With those that fell victim to his guests this brings the total of the Boys bag for the summer to over 130 which is a record for Balmoral for many years. Several heads, including three royals, have been sent from Buckingham Palace to a taxidermist for mounting.

A "royal" is a stag with twelve points on its antlers and at least one will be hung in the entrance hall of Balmoral beside the sporting trophies of King Edward VII and King George V.

Lord Wakefield, former Lord Mayor of London has just presented 1,500 drawings of old London to the city. In addition he gave Isaac Newton's papers to the Royal Mint and was responsible for England having the 16th-century Armada Jewel, the Thomas A. Becket Cup, and Nelson's sword of honor and his personal log book.

In an old palace in Travancore, India an oil lamp, according to tradition, has been burning for the past 1,200 years. It commemorates a ruler of the state who is said to have ascended to heaven while resting on a stone couch. The couch is preserved as an object of veneration.

At a wedding feast at Tavinik, Jugo Slavia recently, the bride was shot dead by the best man. The latter fired his revolver as a sign of joy in accordance with the custom at wedding feasts in that country. By a mischance he shot the bride through the head and killed her. Later he was charged with shooting the girl and was sentenced to four months imprisonment which was suspended on condition that he is of good behaviour for a year.

Collecting Stamps.

THE GREATEST impetus to the British collecting of stamps was given by King George V whose stamps although largely confined to the British Empire were valued at approximately £250,000. Now under the care of curator Sir Edward Bacon at Buckingham Palace the late monarch's collection contains more than 200 volumes crammed with rarities not even listed in official catalogues.

America's keenest amateur philatelist is President Roosevelt who is said to spend at least an hour each day with his magnifying glass and albums and has concentrated particularly on China. He has also acquired a complete set of British Coronation issues. So great was the demand for these that one British firm bought £60,000 and posted out 750,000 to the world's buyers.

Strange factors make stamps valuable. Uganda's first stamps were patiently picked out on a typewriter by a missionary. A Venezuelan stamp is marked five centimos on one side and 25 on the other while on a 1934 Czechoslovakian issue music was printed on the back and fifteen stamps put together made the national anthem. Latvian issues have been printed on the backs of German maps, cigarette paper and unfinished banknotes.

It has never been explained why an issue brought out in Serbia after Alexander I's assassination revealed when held upside down a perfect deathmask of the murdered monarch.

Enthusiasts sometimes confine their collecting to examples of curious postal histories. St. Kilda inhabitants used to put their letters in bottles which were then placed in a hollowed piece of wood called the "mail-boat" and thrown out to sea with the attached message "St. Kilda mail. Finder please post". A blown up sheep's bladder helped the "boat" on its tidal journey and two out of three used to reach their destination.

That Potato Tradition.

THE POPULAR tradition that Sir Walter Raleigh introduced the potato to Ireland from Virginia and that it spread from Ireland to the rest of Europe is dismissed in a survey of the tuber's history by W. D. Davidson and published by the Free State's department of agriculture.

Potatoes were discovered by Pedro de Cieza de Leon, a Spanish soldier, in the Upper Cauca valley in what is now Colombia in 1538 and the evidence, Mr. Davidson says, shows clearly that they were for many years, probably centuries, in cultivation throughout portions of the northwest of South America before being brought to Europe.

After searching hundreds of old manuscripts in the British Museum and in Ireland the writer has decided that the potato reached Europe in 1588 and was grown in England a few years later, although how it reached Ireland he cannot tell. Tradition associates Raleigh with its introduction but Mr. Davidson attributes the origin of that legend to an English writer. The facts, he declares, are that Raleigh was never in Virginia.

Given to St. Thomas's Hospital London as a memorial to the late Lord Riddell the new nurses' home which has been built and equipped at a cost of £100,000 by Lady Riddell was recently opened by Queen Mary. Behind the gift lies a story of devotion to nursing which began when Lady Riddell entered as a probationer nurse the school founded at the hospital by Florence Nightingale. It was her work in the hospital—she became sister in charge of a ward—and her solicitude for the welfare of nurses that suggested that the memorial to her husband should take the form of a nurses' home.

The building which was designed by Sir Edwin Cooper, R. A. contains 169 bedrooms, many spacious sitting-rooms, a well-stocked library, smoking-rooms, a large recreation room, a concert hall and guest rooms where nurses may entertain their friends. There is also a beautiful swimming-pool.

Saved Lives By Rushing Iron Lungs

Could Not Bring in Supply Under Two Weeks; Secured Parts and Started to Make Them.

(From The Horizon, Organ of the Ontario Society of Crippled Children)

WHEN THE FULL dramatic story is told of how the infantile paralysis epidemic of 1937 was fought, the name of Joseph H. W. Bower, superintendent of the Hospital for Sick Children, will stand out like the first evening star.

In the first stages of the epidemic it was quickly seen that a number of "Iron Lungs" would be necessary if the lives of children who had chest paralysis were to be saved. There was only one "Lung" in Toronto.

"Joe" Bower telephoned Boston. How quickly could a supply of "Iron Lungs" be shipped to Toronto, he demanded. None could be supplied within two weeks, they said.

Now the superintendent of the Hospital for Sick Children is an engineer. He had an idea that "Iron Lungs" could be made right in Toronto. He telephoned a manufacturer of stand-ard parts. In four days the first four "Iron Lungs" were turned out and ready to save the lives of little children.

So the distinguished Service honors of the month go deservedly to Mr. Joseph Bower, who, in a matter of hours, had "Iron Lungs" turned out at day-and-night pace, with the help of Mr. Henry Balmforth, his chief engineer; Mr. Hogg and others of the hospital staff.

The provincial department of health asked Mr. Bower to build lungs for them. At five o'clock one recent morning, in answer to a desperate call for an "Iron Lung," Mr. Bower awakened Dr. Bernard McGhie, deputy minister of health, and asked for a truck.

In 12 minutes a truck arrived, the deputy minister aboard. For the entire period of the epidemic Mr. Bower had not been to his own home even to sleep. He slept in the interne quarters in the grand old hospital on College street.

Twenty-eight life-giving machines were built by the hospital with the day-and-night co-operation of many firms. Some thirty lives have been saved by the use of these machines.

Accident Risk Is High in First Year

Large Number of Deaths By Suffocation; Canada Has Better Showing Than States

(Metropolitan Life Statistical Bulletin.)

THE FIRST YEAR of life is full of perils. Not alone do babies, as is well known, succumb in large numbers to disease, but their death rate from accidents is also very high.

Accidents to infants should be a matter of first moment, for every year more than 2,000 babies are killed in accidents of one kind or another—more than die in an average year, from measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria combined.

During the three-year period ending in 1935, every 100,000 babies born alive in the United States 97 met with a fatal accident in the first year of life. That is a higher fatal accident rate than is found at any other age from one year up to age of 21 for males. Among females a rate as high as this is not attained until late in life, or about age 64. It is a curious fact, indicative of the more venturesome nature of the male, that the accident rate of boys even in the first year of life is higher by about 20 per cent. than that of girl babies.

Canadian babies, it is interesting to observe, fared much better in the period 1933-1935 than did babies born in the United States, but they also had a very high accident death rate—76 deaths annually per 100,000 births. The higher mortality in the United States can be accounted for partly by the influence of our large negro population on the total rate. Among colored infants the fatal accident rate is about double that among white infants.

One reason for the high mortality from accidents in early life is the large number of deaths from suffocation—mechanical suffocation, to state it in a technically descriptive term. About two-fifths of the infant accident fatalities are charged to this class of accident.

No Panic In Face of Possible Death

Plane Could Not Land Because Gear Broke; But No Confusion Was Noticed On Board

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

THIRTEEN passengers on an airplane, among whom were at least two Canadians, had the experience of flying for an hour and twenty minutes after they knew that the landing gear had been damaged in one attempt to land and that they might crash when they attempted to come down eventually.

The incident occurred recently at the Newark, N. J. airport. The pilot attempted to land there but one wheel jammed in its sleeve and became useless. For more than an hour the plane cruised over the district performing certain evolutions in the hope that the wheel could be jarred back into place. It was useless and the decision to land and take all the chances had to be accepted. The landing was made on one wheel. The two propellers were smashed and the machine came to a dragging stop but no one was hurt.

The passengers all knew what was confronting them and they were astonishing calm, including a woman of 76 years who said that people at her age were not easily excited.

This episode makes interesting a review of the conduct of people in a position where they know they may lose their lives in a short time. It is said that there was no panic in this case and that those in the plane took occasion to remark the beauty of the scenery that they were enabled to view in the extra time.

People seldom have opportunity to contemplate what they would do if they had only about an hour to live. They do not like to think about it and so they are not prone to self-analysis on an unpleasant subject. However, optimism is the outstanding quality in the human mind in the face of hopeless conditions. There is always the hope and the belief that the seemingly miraculous will happen and often it does.

USE OF THE WHIP

(Brantford Expositor)

IN Chatham the other day Magistrate Arnold sentenced three youths who were found guilty of armed robbery to reformatory sentences, with the lash added. These young men were old enough to know better. They employed a toy pistol, which no doubt looked real enough to their victims. In addressing the Magistrate counsel for one of the youths explained that the boy's father believed a good whipping might do his son some good.

This raises the old question as to whether a judicious use of the whip would really serve as a corrective to those youths who think it smart to engage in crime. It might possibly be more effective than merely a sentence in the reformatory. At heart all those who use weapons to perpetrate crime are cowards, and it is probable that the use of the lash might bring them to their senses more quickly than any other kind of punishment.

It might be a very good idea, indeed, to employ that method more frequently for first offenders, rather than to send them to penal institutions where they may learn more crime. If the treatment were not successful in the first instance, then it would be an easy matter to increase the penalty when they appear in court a second time.

THIS CRAZY WORLD.

(Hamilton Spectator)

WHAT A CRAZY old world it is! The news today tells that Chamberlain is again offering Il Duce the olive branch, while a British warship at Barcelona hears reports from Franco that it was not a Spanish insurgent plane, but one of the insurgent's allies, that sank the Jeana Weems. Then while Chamberlain offers the olive branch to Italy, vitally bound to a Franco victory, the news also tells of attempts by Britain to appeal to Franco's "better nature" and win him away from the German-Italian alliance! And in the meantime Italy blocks settlement of the nine-power conference by siding with Japan, and Japan is at loggerheads with the United States and Great Britain over Shanghai.

FIVE-CENT NEWSPAPERS.

(Kitchener Record)

YEARS AGO daily newspapers were sold to carrier subscribers at one cent per copy. Since then there has been a general advance to two and later to three cents per copy or 15 cents per week. In the west (both Canada and the United States) and also in the southern states five cents per copy is the prevailing price. The tendency now in other parts of North America is to charge 18 to 20 cents for carrier subscriptions.

With newsprint and other publishing costs going up, the day may not be far distant when five cents per copy and 75 cents per week will have to be charged for daily newspapers.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

(From the Authorized Version)

THUS SAITH THE LORD: Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm and whose heart departeth from the Lord. For he shall be like the heath in the desert, and shall not see when good cometh; but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness, in a salt land and not inhabited. Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green, and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit.—Jer. xvii, 5-8.

As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone; and the place thereof shall know it no more. But the mercy of the Lord is from everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children; to such as keep his covenant, and to those that remember his commandments to do them.—Ps. ciii, 15-18.

WAR DREAMS.

The bygone days like a coiling snake
Draw nigh on the heels of night,
To eat their cancerous way unslaked
Blinding my soul with their light!
And I slobber with hate!
How I lust! How I ache!
Till I'm a most ungodly thing!

The very light like a demon's grin
Bursts on the crest of a hill,
Snarled at by yammering Vickers twin
That stammers its message to kill.
While the cries and the groans
And the sighs and the moans
Of the dying give gruesome applause!
And the cannons mutter then rumble and thunder
And the rot-stenched mud is blown asunder
And the devil laughs in the pause!

And I press the trigger till my very soul
Is part of the war torn hate,
While I pray that the bullets will reach their goal
Lest another's be marked with my fate.
Till I wake with a scream from the awful dream
Where a hand floats around in blood,
And my nurse's eyes in the night how they gleam
While her hand stays memories' flood.

Like some groping child her hands I seek
To stay the flare of remembered reek
Of fields strewn with rotting corpses,
And eyes dilate and breath comes late,
In remembering lice
A grey swarming vice,
Frosting on dirt-festered sores.
God! Even the lowest must sate.

And if each of my tears scar the heart of God,
Then who shall pay the final cost
Of the blood-drenched fields that I have trod,
Buried in the sobs of ten million lost?

Oh, burning nights of a thousand frights,
What kin to the anguish I know?
Oh sweet release of the aching peace
That comes with first glimmering glow
Of the red sun's morning light,
Relief to this body broken and fettered in fear.

For Farm Market Branch Trade Boards Call On Ontario

Want Correct Amount Of Available Produce Published Each Day

TORONTO, November 10—(CP)—Establishment of a Department of Farm Markets under the Ontario Department of Agriculture is urged in a resolution to be debated by the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in annual meeting here on Friday.

One of a number of resolutions from a dozen Ontario municipalities, it calls upon the Department to supply the daily press with the correct amount of available products and their prices. Surveys would be made to obtain this information and farmers would be assisted "in orderly marketing of their products."

Preamble of the resolution, from Hamilton Chamber of Commerce, stresses the production of Ontario farm products is far in excess of domestic requirements and declares there are not sufficient marketing agencies among the farmers. Truckers and hucksters have entered the collection and marketing field and prices are frequently reduced below their true market value.

Other resolutions:

From Ottawa—That the Ontario Government impose a single business tax to replace those on capital, profits and place of business, and that it arrange with the Dominion Government for collection.

From Toronto—That the Association "notes with gratification" the appointment of the Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations and pledges its support and co-operation; that it study particularly the problems of duplicate taxation and reciprocal succession duty arrangements between provinces."

From Oshawa: That the Mortgagors' and Purchasers Relief Act of 1933, under which mortgages were scaled down to the ability of the debtors to pay them, be repealed at the next session of the legislature, "industrial conditions throughout the province now showing definite signs of having recovered completely from the effects of the depression."

From Belleville: That Ontario revise the Municipal Act, adopting the methods of election of municipal councils and the restriction of their spending power as are now practised in Great Britain. A number of Ontario municipalities have defaulted financial obligations with more than $100,000,000 principal involved.

From Cornwall: That candidates for mayor, controller, reeve and deputy-reeve put up $100 cash deposit and for alderman and councillor, $50, and that these be forfeited if the candidate fails to obtain half as many votes as the successful candidate.

From Cochrane: That the 56 miles of highway from Norembega to La Reine, Que., be proceeded with immediately to establish "much closer business connection and increase tourist travel" between Northern Quebec and Ontario.

From Cochrane: That, whereas the staking and developing of coal deposits in Northern Ontario is prohibited by the Ontario government, the lignite deposits at Onakwana, 126 miles north of Cochrane, be opened to private or public enterprise.

From Brantford: That a board of directors of say 12 members chosen from Hydro municipalities be placed in charge of Ontario Hyro; the province be released "in so far as possible from any direct or contingent liability in connection with Hydro and transferring such liability to the municipalities as a whole."

Tobacco Queen

VISCOUNT CECIL ASKS MACHINERY TO FORCE PEACE

TORONTO, Nov. 10—(CP)—Machinery by which all countries can be induced, "or if need be, compelled not to resort to war" is needed to bring peace to a troubled world, in the opinion of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, president of the League of Nations Union of Great Britain.

Lord Cecil said here last night the "old diplomacy" was not adequate to meet the present situation. The world now "seems more pleasure loving, more cruel, more pagan" than when he first visited Canada in 1906.

Before the 1,700 persons in Convocation Hall of the University of Toronto, the noted British pacifist appealed for peace in Spain and the Orient. He suggested an economic boycott of Japan to end the war in the far east which "is in some ways a simpler problem." There, he added, "without question Japan has invaded China.

"Let us regard peace as the greatest adventure of man," said Hon. Herbert A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, in introducing Lord Cecil. "In every nation of the earth those who desire peace outnumber those who desire war," he said. Dr. Bruce added: "If it is true that the talk of war breeds war, how much truer it is to talk of peace fosters peace."

Viscount Cecil charged that the main purpose of the London non-intervention committee has been to provide a screen for intervention in the civil war. "The only real remedy is to stop the war," he said, "and for that purpose the sooner the whole controversy is transferred to the atmosphere of Geneva, and away from the atmosphere of the old diplomacy the more chance will there be of success."

UNITED CHURCH AT JANETVILLE IS 76 YEARS OLD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LONDON, Nov. 10—(AP)—British seventy-sixth anniversary of the Janetville United Church was observed on Sunday, with exceptionally large congregations present at both services. The newly ordained and inducted pastor, Rev. M. A. Bury, B.D., was in charge both morning and evening, and delivered two outstanding addresses. In the morning Rev. Mr. Bury was assisted by Rev. Clarence Ferguson of Bethany, who read the Scripture lesson from the first chapter of St. Mark's Gospel. During the service Rev. Mr. Bury extended a sincere welcome to those present from the Presbyterian Church, and from Mount Horeb, Fleetwood, Yelverton, and all other congregations represented. Mr. Bury also expressed the sincere appreciation of the local church for the excellent numbers rendered by the Yelverton choir and for the fact that Rev. Mr. Ferguson cancelled his church service at Yelverton and came along with his choir and many of his congregation to participate in the anniversary occasion.

Mr. Bury told an interesting and timely story to the children entitled "The Jack o' Lantern," and later delivered a vitally arresting sermon on the subject, "Indifference," using as his text, Mark 1, 24: "Let us alone, what have we to do with thee?"

The Yelverton choir sang two anthems, "Like as a Father" and "I Will Not Fear," with Rev. Mr. Ferguson taking the solo parts, and also a quartette, "The Road to Heaven."

For the evening service the church was filled to the doors, the large congregation eagerly anticipating the Rev. Mr. Bury's address on the subject, "The Man Who Made Birch Bark Talk." In which he unfolded the life story of the late Rev. James Evans and his work among the Indians, the account becoming more realistic and interesting due to the fact that James Evans once labored at Rice Lake. Mr. Bury concluded his masterly address in a dramatic manner, portraying the Indian chief on the banks of the St. Clair River praying to the God Whom he had found through the influence of Rev. James Evans.

The choir rendered two anthems. "The Lord Reigneth" and "He Is Mine," and a quartette, "Sometime, Somewhere." Vance Wilson of Yelverton was the capable organist for the day. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and fruit.

Shopping Early

On a visit to New York to do his Christmas shopping early, Oliva Dionne, father of the famed quintuplets took time out from his round of duties to send individual postcards to members of his large family as shown at the RIGHT. Though the quints cannot read as yet, he sent them happy greetings from the metropolis, perhaps figuring the nurses or his wife would read them the messages. And, as many another father has done before him, Oliva could not resist a peek and, perhaps, a try at the toys he had bought for his eleven children as shown at the LEFT. Oliva will likely find all of them waiting for him when he returns to Callander with those toys.

PRANK IN TEMPLE MAIMS 2 PUPILS

A sheet of blue flame engulfed the Temple dome. Windows were shattered in adjacent Four-square Bible College. Broken glass cut several students in a fourth floor room, and three fainted.

Detective Lieut. D. R. Patton placed responsibility for the "bomb scare" on four students working their way through Bible College.

Found hiding in a trapdoor on the roof, Norman McGrew and Robert Blanchfield, each 20, were charged with feloniously setting off an explosion to frighten or intimidate an assembly. Similar charges will be filed against Bond and Atwater, Patton said.

Stranded Hunters Toss Deer Away To Float Boat – Launch Saves Them

Meaford, Ont., Nov. 10 (CP)

EIGHT hunters from this district suffered from cold and exposure today after being rescued from a motor launch that grounded on a Georgian Bay reef during a gale that swept the area last night.

Darkness and the approaching storm caused the hunters to attempt to guide their 24-foot launch across shoal water to Point Au Baril lighthouse. Half way through the shoal, the boat grounded on a flat rock.

Deer and hunting equipment were jettisoned in an attempt to loose the boat from the rock, and the men slid over the side and tried to push her off. Attempts to free her were unsuccessful.

Finally one of the hunters, Archie Taylor, and an Indian guide decided to try and make the lighthouse in a canoe, carried on the launch. The storm was increasing in force and ice formed on their clothes as they made away. They made their goal known and sent a ferry out. It failed to get near enough and it required a launch to make the rescue.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Connolly. The lives and works of great men, who gave their time and talents to the furthering of Christ's Kingdom, was the subject of the speaker's vivid and intensely interesting address, who urged her listeners to "bring your gifts to Him" and to always remember the work of Christ.

A large wooden bowl of fruit, surrounded with leaves placed on the white cloth, decorated the head table, with ferns and candles in silver holders, that were also attractively arranged on the other tables. At each place, the serviettes were delightfully arranged in boat shapes flying miniature union jacks, and at one side tiny red lighted candles were held in candy holders.

Mrs. Cridland Addresses St. John's W.A.

Mrs. J. Cridland, as speaker at the November meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church, gave a most interesting address, "The Way of the Witnesses," taken from the W. A. study book, and woven around the books and chapters of the New Testament.

Three fundamental needs for the present-day religions are power, sympathy and hope, and the conviction that in Christianity alone are the three combined, gives the assurance that one day will be fulfilled what we believe to be the purpose of the Divine Founder, and Christianity will become the religion of the whole world.

A short talk was also given by the Rev. R. T. F. Brain, in which he urged his listeners to take time from the noise and bustle to withdraw and "commune with God." "This is the way, walk in it, the way of the disciples, led by the signposts of the Light of God."

The correspondence read by the secretary included a report from the Board meeting sent by Mrs. Ross of Toronto. A charming letter was read from the little Indian girl whom the society clothes. The branch has every reason to be proud of two splendid bales sent to the Rev. Warren Turner at Lumsden, Sask. Reports were given by the different convenors.

It being nomination night for the election of officers for 1938, Miss A. M. Staunton and Mrs. W. Ashby were appointed as scrutineers. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Lymburner-Munroe.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 9. — A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Rev. Robert Boyle, Lakefield, on Friday, November 5, at 11.30 a.m., when Jean Munroe of Warsaw, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Munroe of Warsaw, became the bride of Bert Lymburner of Lakefield, son of Mrs. Lymburner of Lakefield and the late Elma Lymburner. Rev. Robert Boyle performed the ceremony.

The bride looked very smart in a navy dress cut on princess lines, navy hat, and matching accessories. Margaret Lymburner of Lakefield, sister of the groom, and T. Moore, of Norfolk, attended the couple.

Smart Short-Jacketed Suit Is Now Year-Around Favorite

Grey velveteen suit with leather covered fastenings and lame scarf.

By LISBETH.

When did women begin to wear suits under their winter coats, and thus make them an all-year-'round uniform? It wasn't so long ago, but the vogue has certainly taken a great hold on American women.

I suppose its practicability is one of the suit's strongest appeals. Skirt and blouse make a nice, smart looking combination, which allows many variations. Add the jacket, and much of the season milady is all set for anything. Add one topcoat or a heavy winter wrap and she is ready for the coldest weather. If she is warm indoors she can doff the jacket; if she is cool she can put it on.

This clever little suit is made of grey velveteen. The jacket is short, just hip length, the shoulders nicely squared, and the sleeves long and plain. The small rolled collar is new looking, and the leather covered fastenings quite exciting. A lame scarf is tucked into the neck, adding an attractive note. The season's favorite turban, which is high and peaked, completes this costume which may be worn under a heavy coat all winter.

Nipped-in Waist Continues.

The slightly nipped-in waistline of this suit reminds us that leading dress designers, both in Paris and the United States, are continuing this fitted waistline in their now models, and it probably will be incorporated into spring suits. Moderately squared shoulders, fitted bust, high neckline and short sleeves are sponsored for afternoon, with all these features also featured in less formal models.

Plaids are always a bright subject for discussion and for wear, and plaids are especially liked and worn by the younger element. Plaids are reported so popular at college this year that they are worn in skirts, coats, shirts and even sweaters.

Reversible gabardine and plaid, or gabardine and solid-color tweed coats are also popular with college students, especially those of one of the eastern women's colleges.

Skirts are preferred with all-around pleats instead of merely kick pleats. The brightly colored tailored or fur trimmed tweed suit is also much seen on the campuses. The colors preferred are bright green, rust and other vivid shades.

The younger students like to match caps and socks, for instance, or sweater and skirt.

All the college girls are wearing those little skull caps called calots in suede, velvet and velveteen, antelope and knitted fabrics. Small hats with veils are the rule for the more dressy occasions.

Women Are Taking To Duck Hunting

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10—(CP)—Many women are on the backwaters and streams of Manitoba lakes these days, duck-shooting. The day when a woman was gun shy and backed away from a shotgun has gone and many have their own small gauge shotguns and rifles which they take care of themselves, and have proved they know how to use them.

They are smartly and warmly garbed when they leave in the small hours for a day's sport, breeches, or short skirts, high boots, warm sweaters under jacket or leather windbreaker, tight-fitting caps or small hats, fur-lined gloves and on the coldest days a fur collar to bring added warmth. Warm sane shooting garb is to be seen when one watches a women on the marsh.

Polish Your Speech and Win Popularity

A charming picture at this end of the telephone. But gracious Joan, what a distressing picture you're presenting at Bob's end! There your sloppy speech makes you anything but appealing.

You rattle on about "couple of girls" when only a man and woman should be called "a couple". You say "funny" when "queer" hits the mark; use "an invite" for "an invitation". That smart little word "chic" is properly called "sheek," and not "chick". Slips like this are giving people a bad impression, Joan.

Make your speech gracious, rich and forceful. Our 32-page booklet on improving your vocabulary has valuable lists of right pronunciations, fresh adjectives to use in place of overworked ones. Helps weed out slang, pretentious phrases. Puts zip into your conversation!

MOTHER OF FIVE WHO WAS ALWAYS TIRED

Now Awakes as Fresh as a Daisy

A mother of five has a lot to do. Especially a country mother. And this one was "always tired". But Kruschen ended all that—now she gets up, feeling fresh, at five o'clock in the morning! She writes:

"I find Kruschen Salts the best thing money can buy for my health. I am the mother of five children, and before taking Kruschen, I was always feeling tired and run down. Now, I am glad to say that I get up feeling fresh—and I get up at five o'clock in the morning. I do my housework, look after my children, and leave the house at 6.30 to start my daily work."—(Mrs.) B.

Tiredness and that run-down feeling can be traced to one root cause. That cause is internal sluggishness; failure to keep the inside free from poisonous waste matter.

Kruschen Salts is an excellent recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your inside is thus kept clear of those impurities which, when allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.—advt.

Always Tired, Grouchy, Nervous!

Chronic Constipation Made Life Miserable—Is Happy Now

If severe constipation drags you down, try the fruit juice, herb, tonic remedy. Nothing like it. Mrs. L. L., Montreal, writes, "I felt nervous, irritable and tired all the time. Couldn't eat. Didn't sleep. Worked with difficulty due to chronic constipation. I got no relief until I tried Fruit-a-tives. Soon I became regular, headaches and irritation left me. I have lots of energy now." It's worth while to try this same simple way to regain health. You'll be glad you did. 25c. and 50c.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Meets

The objective of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of 4,000 members has been realized to date by just over one quarter that number, it was revealed by the president, Mrs. S. J. Graham, at the meeting of the Auxiliary in All Saints' Parish Hall on Monday afternoon. The Rev. Canon Peterson opened the meeting with prayer.

"It is astonishing how many people have not yet heard of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary," said the president, in her appeal to the ladies to continue working for an increased number of members—active and non-active. With a membership fee of twenty-five cents, the large enrollment is desired to provide the Auxiliary with sufficient yearly funds, without the necessity of raising money in other ways. A number of Lakefield members were reported, with the hope that other nearby places will be represented soon, who will in time form their own organization with representation on the Peterborough board.

Mrs. Ward Turner, reporting for the Nominating committee, introduced four additional members appointed to the Board, namely Mrs. J. W. Hughes, Mrs. Warrender, Mrs. P. C. Neal and Mrs. Jacob Low. Two members have yet to be appointed.

Six members attended the Women's Hospital Aid Association Convention in Toronto two weeks ago. A summary of the convention was read by Miss Morrow in which it was stated that sixty Hospital Aids were in attendance with the resultant keener interest and broadening of understanding of all that pertains to the Hospital functioning and community interest. The wide variety of ways and means in which the hospitals have been assisted in the providing of equipment, and material help to nurses and patients, was listed.

20 Life Members.

The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. J. J. Turner in the absence of Mrs. W. Tinker. Twenty life members out of an objective of one hundred, was reported by Mrs. Dela Fosse. Mrs. J. G. Wharry reported for the "Good Samaritan" cupboard, a group that has undertaken to supply clothing to needy patients when leaving the hospital. It was reported by Mrs. Wharry that the Thursday Club has agreed to keep two layettes in the cupboard, and assistance has been given by the Junior League. Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Donaldson and Mrs. Upper reported on visits made by their groups to the hospital with gifts. Mrs. Robert Ross reported on sewing finished and sent to the hospital.

The Major Bennett Chapter I.O.D.E. has voted $10 to the use of the Auxiliary, and have arranged that two or more members will visit the children's ward with gifts each week. A letter from Mrs. Leason, unable to be present, thanked the Auxiliary for the splendid support already being felt. It was mentioned that a number of patients have been refused admittance during the past month for lack of space.

It had been hoped that Mrs. O. W. Rhynas of Burlington, Ontario, president of the Ontario Hospital Aids Association, would have been present at yesterday's meeting, but the recent sudden death of her husband made that impossible.

A number of jars of jelly and preserves were donated at the meeting for the use of patients at the hospital.

COATS ARE SLENDER OR BOXY

Flattering Lines, Fur Collars or Separate Scarfs

(By Lisbeth)

Flatteringly slim or loose and boxy are the new winter coats, fur trimmed, furless or worn with separate fur scarf.

The coats with fitted lines, belted or unbelted, may have big fur collars, small fur collars or fabric collars. Fur bandings around the neck, down the front, sometimes at the hems, are popular and may be further banded at wrist and pockets. Not all these trimmings are on one coat, however. As a general thing, if a model has fur sleeves, say, the collar also is of pelt, and that is all the fur that is used on that coat.

A small collar of fur or fabric may have fur pockets and that is all; or a small fur collar may be complemented with wide fur cuffs. And where there is a large fur collar that will be all the fur used.

The two coats we have chosen to illustrate our article have fur at the neckline and no more. The one at the left is a brown wool broadcloth, molded in slim princess lines, and has a wide blue fox collar.

The other one shows a decided Russian influence. It is slender and fitted, of fine taupe wool draped at the sides in softly flaring unpressed pleats. The separate scarf is Russian stone marten.

The combination of brown and black is new looking this season, brown furs used on black and black Persian on brown.

The tall woman may choose her coat with fur sleeves, but beware of this type if you are short or medium. It may make you look too chubby.

When you have settled on the choice of a coat, choose your hat carefully. Many a fine coat has been made to look dowdy because of an unsuitable hat. Hats should be untrimmed and sweeping in line, away from the ears, if the coat collar is pretentious. Only the small collars allow hat decorations. Even then if the military collar is used, it calls for a tailored hat.

Have $1 Tickets To Rummage Sale

BOSTON, Nov. 10.—(CP)—This city had a cash-and-carry rummage preview the other day and it created almost as much furore as a Hollywood premiere.

The price of admission was $1 and the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary benefitted. The next day the price came down to 10 cents.

In less than an hour more than 300 persons had paid their admission charge. The affair was actually a double rummage. So many articles had been contributed that another store had to be taken over to display the apparel.

The reason for the admission charge, according to one of the Greater Boston women volunteers who arranged the sale, was that hitherto, dealers have come early and skimmed the cream of the rummage.

One of the first sales was a bronze statue of Saint Joan of Arc, for which a dealer paid $40. He staggered out under the weight of it.

A good friend of the Eye and Ear Infirmary sent along two dozen brand new hats. It was possible for rummage seekers to try on the headgear before a Sheraton pier glass, contributed to a similar sale two years ago, and retained for the purpose.

MAKE IT EASIER

MAKE IT EASY for your partner. Tell him what to do, if you can. Better still, do it yourself if you can, so that there will be no difficulty about his decision. By adopting such a course, you can sometimes make the defeat of a contract certain, whereas any other move would be highly speculative.

After South's opening bid of 1-Spade, West overcalled with 2-Hearts, North jumped to 3-Spades and South went to 4-Spades.

When the diamond K was led, East signaled for a continuance of the suit, so the diamond Q followed and then the J, South ruffing the third round of the suit. The spade A was now forced out and it was too late then for the opponents to make any effort to defeat the contract.

On the very first lead East had his opportunity to set 4-Spades, but he did not take advantage of it. His correct procedure was to overtake his partner's diamond K with the A and lead his singleton heart. Holding the trump A, it should have been evident to him that he was bound to get into the lead early and should have looked ahead sufficiently to provide for a ruff of at least one heart. This play would have resulted in setting the contract, for after winning the trump, East knew he could put his partner in with a diamond so as to get a heart ruff.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

REMEMBER that the moment you resolve to make your life dream come true, you have already taken the first step towards its realization, but you will stop if your efforts cease. If, however strongly, you desire to turn a certain way at the cross-roads and a stronger desire arises in you to take the other turn, you will go behind. You cannot go two ways at one time.

O. S. Marden.

Dear Friends:

This is an answer to "B. F." Now my dear, figure it out yourself, "you cannot go two ways at one time." If you love the young man, if he is all you say he is, and I do not doubt you, go ahead, have your life's happiness, and the other things will be taken care of, never fear.

Think of all who have given up their happiness. What thanks did they get? First someone started calling them an old maid, then the years crept up on them as it does on all of us, and all they get is "why did you not use your own judgement anyway? You did not need to follow my advice." So they got it coming and going.

Everyone is entitled to their own share of happiness, and if time and thought is given there will generally be found a way out. And I have no hesitation in saying that anyone who tries to keep some other from what is theirs, is selfish, greedy, and inconsiderate, to say the least.

You generally find those who expect much from others, gave very little in their own youth. They usually married early, maybe eloped to do so. They have had their love and their fun. They have had their children and the pleasure of them through the years.

Now they even want to take their childrens' pleasure from them. They demand the devotion they never gave, or they act like a martyr and their whole theme song is, "what shall become of ME?" They want everything their way, every thought for themselves.

I do not advocate selfishness in children, but neither do I condone selfishness in parents. Candidly I do not know how anyone could take their comfort at the expense of a son's or daughter's happiness. Surely they could realize that they had their own happiness, and make every effort to see their child get his or hers.

The mere fact that a mother brought a child into the world, does not give them a lien on them for life. What would they have done had they not been blest with a child? They could not demand this sacrifice from anyone else. What will they do if the girl or boy dies?

Which reminds me of a woman in a far place who was a confirmed invalid for years. Her husband waited on her hand and foot, all he earned went to her comforts, yet she never seemed really satisfied. We used to wonder what she would do if he died.

And suddenly he did die and was buried. The lady got a lot of sympathy, and the neighbors did what they could for a week or two, but could not keep it up for ever. Well we got the shock of our lives for this woman got up and looked after herself.

Self-preservation was stronger than invalidism, and when she found no one else was going to look after her, she looked after herself. And now "B. F." when she uses the weapon of suggested suicide, tell her you will put her in a place where that will be taken care of.

Consider also, that if you were not there, she would find some way of earning a living. I am sorry for her to be left in such a position but she is not the first, and will not be the last, and any newspaper will give you many instances of women who have risen above such things and earned their own living some way. Hoping this will help, and thank you for such lovely remarks.

Quaint Pieces of Furniture in Teakwood of Unasual Origin

The firm of D. Belleghem & Sons, 190 Hunter street west, are showing in their east furniture window several pieces of furniture which will soon become "heirlooms." These pieces of livingroom and den furniture introduce a line of singular beauty and historic charm.

Teakwood, long recognized as the most durable of all cabinet woods, has for years played a conspicuous part in the building of Britain's war ships, but because of the fact that its use has been largely controlled by the Admiralty, little of it has been available for other purposes.

Now, through arrangements recently concluded with English suppliers, these deck timbers were forwarded to Canada and fashioned into interesting pieces of furniture. All these pieces of furniture were made of timbers of H.M.S. "Brisbane," a light cruiser of 5,120 tons displacement and a sister ship of H.M.S. Sydney which destroyed the famous German raider "Emden" in the early days of the World War.

Ramsay MacDonald Dies On Liner To South America

a handful of his supporters joined him.

Stuck To His Course.

Others derided him as a traitor to his lifelong convictions. Despite criticism that saddened him, he stuck to his course and headed the National Government until 1935.

He then became Lord President of the Council in Stanley Baldwin's Cabinet. In that capacity it fell to his lot to read to the Council in January, 1936, announcement of the death of King George V. and the accession of Edward VIII.

His last important public function was to preside over the London Sugar Conference of last January. When he retired from the Cabinet he declined an earldom chiefly, it was understood, so that his death would not cut short the promising House of Commons career of his son Malcolm.

"Ramsay Mac" met sorrow and difficulties.

In 1911, within a few months he lost his wife, his son David, and his mother. Care of five children devolved upon him. Mrs. MacDonald, whom he met when she made a campaign contribution in his first, unsuccessful, attempt to enter Parliament in 1895, was Margaret Ethel Gladstone, niece of the scientist Lord Kelvin, and daughter of Professor J. Hall Gladstone, a chemist.

Then came the Great War. He bitterly attacked the Government of the day for entering the war, and was equally bitterly attacked himself.

In his native Lossiemouth members of the Moray Golf Club voted to banish him from its rolls. His neighbors splashed the word "Traitor" in paint across the walls of his home, though at the time his son Alastair was at the Front with the Ambulance Corps.

Lost His Seat In House

The Seamen's Union refused to let him sail to Stockholm to attend a meeting of Socialist representatives of enemy countries with a view to outlining terms of a truce. Some of his meetings were broken up in near riots.

He lost his seat in the House. In 1922 he came back to head the Labor party.

Throughout his Labor career at his side was vitriolic but brilliant little Philip Snowden. Together they fought Labor's battles and when Mr. MacDonald became prime minister the late Mr. Snowden was his Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Finally even that life-long friendship was broken. Mr. Snowden, after serving as Chancellor of the Exchequer in the National government for a time, went to the House of Lords as Viscount Snowden. He broke with the government over protection and the Ottawa agreements. His attacks on Mr. MacDonald in the House of Lords were among the most severe the prime minister experienced.

Mr. MacDonald's last disappointment in public life was in the 1935 general election when his constituency of Seaham in the Durham coal fields rejected him.

"All I want is sleep and still more sleep," he said as he read despatches showing his overwhelming defeat by his Labor opponent. "My energies are completely spent. I am a completely done-in old man."

But he came back to the House winning a by-election for a Scottish universities seat and remained a member until his death.

Will Long be Remembered

Of the many men who rose to world-wide prominence in the first part of the 20th century, the name of James Ramsay MacDonald is not unlikely to be one of the select few that will be remembered when the ages have separated the significant from the insignificant of that time. He stood apart from most of the big figures of his age. Most of the others rose to significance through the World War. That conflict made an outcast of MacDonald because he opposed it consistently and violently all through the four and one-half years that his country waged it. But the winters of discontent inherited from the struggle enabled him, a Socialist from boyhood, to rise five years after the armistice to the post of prime minister at the head of the first Labor government in Great Britain. His elevation with that of his party was a definite step in the country's political development.

Ramsay MacDonald, as he was known, unlike most of his predecessors in the office of prime minister, was not bred for public life. His career had no precedent in British political history. No prime minister, not even Lloyd George, the son of a cobbler, was born into such poverty as was MacDonald. A two-room house with a thatched roof in the little Scotch fishing village of Lossiemouth, looking out on the North Sea, was his birthplace, October 12, 1866. He was reared by his mother and his maternal grandmother. Of comforts and cash the family had very little and MacDonald had to quit school at the age of 12 to earn his living in the fields. His brightness of mind, however, had impressed the old dominie wo had heard his lessons and this man continued to guide the young, energetic MacDonald's reading after he left school.

One of the books that came into his hands was Henry George's "Progress and Poverty." Its pages planted within him the seeds of dissatisfaction with the economic and social system that surrounded him, seeds that were soon to bloom within his brain as Socialism. He had heard the call of reform long before he reached maturity. At 19 his mind filled with Dickens and the lure of London engendered by that master's stories, he went south without friends or funds to live in the great seat of the empire.

His first job was addressing envelopes. Then he went into a warehouse at 12 shillings a week for wages, just enough for mean lodgings and slim meals. At lunch-time he read in free libraries and by night he delved deep into borrowed books. He took correspondence courses and sometimes attended lectures in Birkbeck College. Science attracted him most, but economics and politics also held his strong interest. In 1888 he was hired as private secretary by Thomas Lough, a Radical candidate for Parliament. His health broke under the strain of working hard all day and reading hard half the night, and he had to abandon his scientific studies. For four years MacDonald stayed with Lough, meanwhile turning his hand to journalism. He contributed articles to several publications, daily and weekly, and joined the "New Fellowship Society," which emphasized in its discussion, "The ethical factor in social life." He joined the new Independent Labor Party, helped conduct its mouthpiece, THE SOCIALIST, and by 1895, had taken the plunge into politics as a candidate to represent Southampton. But only 897 voters encouraged him, and his name came out at the bottom of the poll. In the campaign he had received a contribution to his "fighting fund" from a stranger who signed an accompanying letter, "M. E. Gladstone."

It was not long before MacDonald learned that "M. E." stood for Margaret Ethel, the daughter of a well-known scientist. She and MacDonald were married in November, 1896. He had more money then, and they travelled—sometimes to Socialist conventions, more often merely to see and study other lands and other people. They visited India and the various dominions, and, of course, the continent. MacDonald was often said to be the most widely travelled man ever to become prime minister.

Opposed South African War

He was opposed to the South African wars, and in the 1900 khaki election his second stand for Parliament met as bad a rebuff as the first. So he renewed his travels, going to the Boer Republics to acquaint himself with the inhabitants and their ways of thinking. The Fabian Socety, the famous group of academic Socialists, had refused during the war, publicly to state its opposition to the conflict in South Africa, so Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, the latter as ardent a worker in the new reform cause as her husband, quit the organization.

It took MacDonald eleven years to get into Parliament. The constituents of Leicester elected him in 1906. In 1911 he was made leader of the two score men who made up the Parliamentary Labor Party inside the House of Commons. At the same time he was chairman of the Independent Labor Party, the more advanced Socialists working among the electorate outside of Parliament. The previous year had been one of deep tragedy for him. Within a few months death deprived him of his son David, his mother, and, finally, his wife, and he was left with the care of five children, two boys and three girls.

Mrs. MacDonald had been an intellectual and political companion, as well as a domestic help-mate. Their home in Lincoln's Inn Fields was for years a gathering place of social reformers, and welfare workers.

Opposed Great War

Politically, MacDonald realized the ruin that would come to him when the war clouds darkened Europe in the summer of 1914. The Sunday before Britain sent its ultimatum to Germany he met his friends, Lord Morley, as the former was coming from 10 Downing Street and MacDonald was on his way there. In a short conversation they held amid the great, war-fevered crowds standing in Parliament Square, MacDonald told Lord Morley he would "have nothing to do with the war," which they both knew was coming, and both hated to see come. He kept his word and stuck steadfast to his principles. A few days after the war had been declared the Labor Party decided to support it, so MacDonald resigned the leadership in the House to Arthur Henderson.

All during the war he voiced his opposition. He was hated and despised with the bitterness of feeling that only war can breed. Two months after the fighting began The Times told its readers he represented practically no one but himself. In a word he has become a nobody."

Often his life was in danger, but he went about the country making anti-war speeches. When the Russian revolution came he attended conferences that proposed the establishment of Workers' and Soldiers' Council on the Russian model. He tried to go to Russia to discuss with delegates from other countries, a basis of peace agreeable to workers, but the crew of the steamer refused to man the ship if he came aboard. The rising tide of resentment against him fell not a bit in the emotional days after the armistice and in the "khaki election" that quickly followed the fighting the electors of Leicester ousted him by 14,000 votes. He tried to get back into Parliament in a bye-election, but was badly beaten again. He stayed out until 1922, the electors of Aberavon sending him to Parliament then in the election that followed the crash of the Lloyd George coalition, and the resumption of Tory government.

In that election the Labor Party returned 142 members of Parliament, and they became the second party in the House—His Majesty's official opposition. MacDonald was elected their leader and spokesman. A year later the Tories, despairing of helping unemployment, which had been critical for three years, by other means advocated protection—a setting up of tariffs around traditionally free-trade Britain, and went to the country on the issue. They were badly beaten. Their majority was wiped away and they returned to Parliament in the minority but still the strongest party, Labor, though , had increased its strength and, with the Conservatives repudiated at the polls, the king had no alternative but to send for MacDonald and ask him to form a government. It, too, was to be a minority government, opposed in its major aims by the Liberals and Conservatives alike. So there was no fear of capital levies being imposed or other radical Socialistic schemes being put into operation.

In the subsequent election, Labor was defeated and Conservatives returned with a great majority in the House.

The next election was in May, 1929, with Labor emerging the largest party, lacking but 16 seats of a full majority. The second Labor Cabinet was formed.

Then came a period of tremendous activity and responsibility for the Prime Minister.

His first big concern was with naval armaments. He went to Washington where he and President Hoover laid the foundations for the 1930 London Naval Conference.

He restored diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia and withdrew British troops from the Rhineland. He presided at the London Naval Conference and the first Round Table Conference on India.

Conditions at home became serious, with unemployment and the cost of relief increasing at an enormous rate. The Government was under constant attack. The National Government was formed of Conservatives, some Liberals and a few of Mr. McDonald's labor associates.

Philip Snowden, his Finance Minister, and J. H. Thomas accompanied Mr. MacDonald into the National Government, but Arthur Henderson and many others refused.

Subsequently Mr. Snowden, who died this year as Viscount Snowden, withdrew from the Government and became one of Mr. MacDonald's severest critics.

Gives Way to Baldwin

Mr. MacDonald carried on as Head of the National Government until 1935, when he gave way to Mr. Baldwin, taking the office himself of Lord President of the Council.

After the Coronation this year, when Mr. Baldwin received an Earldom and went to the House of Lords, Mr. MacDonald declined a similar honor.

In 1895, during his first campaign, Mr. MacDonald received a campaign contribution from "M. E. Gladstone." He discovered this was Margaret Ethel Gladstone, daughter of the late scientist, Dr. J. H. Gladstone. They were married the same year. She died in 1911.

On their honeymoon they toured Canada, Australia, India and South Africa. She brought her husband financial independence at a time when he was a struggling journalist and already known as a powerful speaker and keen commentator on events.

Mr. MacDonald visited Canada on several occasions. Last year he gave a host of pleasant impressions of that Dominion in his book of essays, "At Home Abroad."

"This is indeed an annex of Scotland," he wrote of Nova Scotia. "The people I met there were ready to discuss theology by the hour, as the church spires attest. The 'old religion' was taken there by Highland families of Jacobite clans. Its hold is still firm. Its authority is like a post-war dictatorship."

Son Of Famous Lost Eagle

One can only guess at the thoughts in the brain of this youngster as he gazes intently from the cockpit over the cowling of the aeroplane in which his father made aviation history. He is Charles Kingsford Smith, Jr., whose father was lost in a daring attempt to set a new flight record from England to Australia in 1935. The aeroplane in which the boy is seated at Sydney, Australia, was used by Kingsford Smith in his flight around the world. It was purchased by the Australian government for its national war museum at Canberra, the capital.

In the meantime, it was stated that Maxwell Wilson, who resides on No. 7 Highway adjacent to the Hillcrest Cemetery at Woodbridge, had reported seeing a tall, well-built, muscular man near the cemetery last Friday. Body Eludes Searchers.

Hourly it has been expected that the body of Mr. Thomson would be found. Yet search by volunteer workers, and watches kept of the roadside by milk-truck drivers, farmers and others, have revealed nothing. Nor have any notes been received by any one, as in the case of the theft of Hayden Pope's body from Streetsville Cemetery. Police, it is believed, still suspect that some of the notes in the Pope case were the work of mischievous pranksters.

Rumors continue to fly over the countryside, gaining in substance and detail as they travel. Acton police were bombarded with calls when one report stated that a body had been stolen from a cemetery there. Other rumors have been that police are holding a suspect, that they are shadowing individuals variously located in Streetsville, Woodbridge, Brampton and Toronto and that part of the clothing from Thomson's body has been found. The latter rumor is denied by police and by Mr. Thomson's family.

mining strikes of which there have been few this year.

April Worst Month.

The worst month for industrial troubles was April when 148,600 man-days' work were lost. This came close to the high mark of 173,000 set in May, 1920. The period of the Winnipeg general strike is regarded as abnormal and the May, 1920, figure is taken as the highest for normal times. While the Winnipeg strike was in progress in June, 1919, more than 1,000,000 man-days work were lost.

The chief strikes this year were the Oshawa automobile workers and Montreal dressmakers in April and Quebec and Cornwall cotton textile workers, Peterborough wool textile workers, and Brockville hatters in August.

There were 30 strikes and lockouts in Octoober, involving 7,210 workers with a time loss of 56,692 man-days, compared with 34 disputes in September, involving 7,097 workers with a time loss of 44,378 days.

Important disputes in October were those involving coal mines at Minto, N.B., and rubber factory workers at Kitchener, Ont., while there were a number of brief strikes of coal miners in Nova Scotia.

In September the important strikes were those of foundry and shipyard workers at Sorel, Que., rubber factory workers at Kitchener, Ont., and textile workers at Louisville, Que.

Shot From Rifle Enters Oshawa Home

OSHAWA, Nov. 10.—William Ernest, Albert Street, reported to police Tuesday night that young boys in the vicinity were playing with .22 rifles and that one shot fired entered the door of his house, but missed the occupants.

Since the death of a young Oshawa lad by a .22 bullet several months ago, local and Provincial police have placed a ban on the use of these rifles by juveniles. The police are investigating the complaint of Ernest.

WM. HANRAHAN PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO ARSON CHARGE

Appearing on remand before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning, William Hanranhan, 50, R.R. 4, Lakefield elected trial before a higher court and entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of arson. The charge accuses Hanrahan of setting fire to his dwelling house and barn in Douro Township on the night of October 25 last. T. J. Carley, K.C., is defence counsel.

Closing his case after calling Inspector David Craig of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department to the witness box, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., obtained permission to reopen it in the face of an objection from defence counsel, for the purpose of producing evidence relative to the alleged fire insurance carried on the premises.

Stanley Darling, insurance agent, who said he accepted an application from Hanrahan for insurance on his property was not able to produce the policy, which he stated was in the hands of the Ontario Farm Loan Board. On this ground the Crown sought an adjournment of the preliminary hearing.

Accordingly His Worship adjourned the hearing until Wednesday of next week, remanding the accused in custody, but renewing bail in the sum of $2,000. In his evidence at the preliminary hearing, Inspector Craig related the circumstances under which the accused made a statement, which was taken down in writing by witness and signed by Hanrahan.

Admitted As Evidence

The purported confession was admitted in evidence subject to an objection raised by defence counsel, and was read to the court by the Crown Attorney.

Following the cross-examination of the witness by Mr. Carley, the Crown closed its case. After the magistrate had ruled the Crown had failed to establish a prima facie case, Mr. McElderry obtained leave to reopen the case for the purpose of introducing evidence as to insurance allegedly carried on the premises by the accused.

His Worship said there was no law which said a person could not burn his own property, providing he had a clear title to that property and he did not endanger the life of property of other people, and he added, "Don't you think Mr. McElderry you have misconceived this matter".

TAXI BILLS CAUSE MUCH DISCUSSION AT CHILDREN'S AID

The large taxi bills appearing in the accounts of the Children's Aid Society were the subject of discussion at the regular meeting of the society in the Council Chamber on Tuesday afternoon.

Drawing attention to the fact that last month's account showed a taxi bill of $73 and this month of $35, Alderman Socker demanded an explanation, saying the board should have a detailed account. Superintendent Edgar replied that the size of the bill was caused by distances travelled in the county investigating cases. Alderman Dutton remarked that it would be better business to buy a motor car for the superintendent's use. "As for asking for a detailed account" he continued, "it is not done. We should have sufficient confidence, but if something gives cause for concern then ask for an explanation."

To Be Given Statement

Of the $35 taxi bill for the past month, it was revealed by Superintendent Edgar that all but $2 had been spent in the county, after inquiry from Reeve Anderson of Otonabee. It was arranged that the Reeve should have a statement of calls for the past three months.

The adoption of several children of a Jewish family as wards of the society had been discussed at a previous meeting when it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the relief committee for the time being. A report was given by Alderman Dutton, in which he stated that the baby had been placed in a foster home, a daily housekeeper provided to care for the home, and employment found for the father of the family, which it is hoped will make him self-supporting in time.

In regard to a previous motion of Dr. R. F. Nott, that places of board members absent for three consecutive meetings should be declared vacant, he suggested as a more diplomatic method, that a letter be sent requesting if members wished to remain on the board or not. "If we adopt this," said Alderman Stocker, "we will clean the place up. Most of the members are absent on account of circumstances." Dr. Nott explained that his motion had arisen in the first place because he knew of people anxious to take an active part on the board, and there was no room for them. "What authority," asked Reeve Anderson, "have we to do anything after the board has been elected for a year?" It was decided to leave the matter till the annual meeting in March.

The dilapidated condition of the kitchen floor and walls at the shelter, and the need for improved sanitary arrangements, was brought to the attention of the meeting by Dr. Barr. It was decided that the Propery committee should look into the situation, obtain prices, and report to the board.

A special meeting was called for Tuesday, November 23, at four o'clock, when the board hopes to have a representative of the Department of Public Welfare present.

The results of tag day were announced by Superintendent Edgar to total $901.13. The society's accounts for the month of October amounted to $273.08.

ASK PLANES SEEK LOST FREIGHTER

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—(CP)—A request aeroplanes be sent in search of the coal carrier Calgadoc, 12 days out of Sydney, N.S. on the 60 hour run to Wabana, Nfld., was received today by Transport Minister Howe from officials of the Seamen's Association at Port McNicholl, Ont., where several of the crew have homes.

The transport department could not comply since it has no aeroplanes in Eastern Canada, but the request was being considered by officials of National Defence and the Mounted Police with the possibility some further assistance might be given in the search.

Hope the 1,664-ton coal-laden freighter Calgadoc would complete her voyage was both dimmed and strengthened today at St. John's.

The former Great Lakes boat carries a crew of 18, including one woman. No wireless is aboard. The day after she sailed from Sydney a fierce gale swept the Cabot Strait.

Norman M. Paterson, president of the Paterson Steamships, Fort William, said he had notified the company's underwriters in London that he feared the vessel was lost.

NEW POST OFFICE FOR BOBCAYGEON

BOBCAYGEON, Nov. 10.— Bobcaygeon, incorporated as a village municipality in 1877 but which has had an existence of more than 100 years, is to have a brand new post office. Last week J. W. McMillan of Lindsay, was awarded the contract of the building to cost $12,000. The new post office will be erected on the north side of the canal.

Children's Hour

One of the most important phases of Great Britain's war preparedness program is the instruction of children in the use of gas masks which will be issued by the government to each and every Briton. Some children are too small for the regulation mask and experiments now are underway to devise a special respirator for babies. However, the youngsters shown here, going through a drill at Hawkhurst, are wearing the regular mask.

EXAMINER AD RENTS HOUSE

An apartment rented in less than half an hour after the arrival of The Examiner with the advertisement referring to it brought a word of gratitude from the owner to-day. "I rented it to the first man who called. He said he jumped into his car as soon as he read the paper and came straight to the house. A dozen or more others called during the evening." This is only another little indication of the growing need of housing accommodation in Peterborough.

GET THEIR DEER

On Thursday night a party of three hunters from Niles, Ohio, J. Eggleston, Fred Gilmour and Wm. Eggleston were in town enroute on a hunting trip north of Peterborough and stopped long enough to secure their licenses at LeBarr's. One of the party said they had been coming over for eight or nine years and always got their deer and they did not expect to be disappointed on this occasion. Evidently they were not for they were in town Tuesday night on their way home and there was a splendid buck tied on each side of their car.

P.C.I. REMEMBERS

Students of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School held a very impressive Remembrance Day service in the Assembly Hall this morning with Lieut.-Col. M. H. Park of the Normal School staff as guest speaker. Before his eloquent address the hymn "Oh God, Our Help In Ages Past" was sung while after the service concluded with "Abide With Me," the sounding of the Last Post, a period of two minutes' silence and then God Save The King. Slides of pupils who had given their lives in the World War were shown on the screen.

SESSIONS POSTPONED.

Anxious that the hunting season, the Royal Winter Fair, and other attractions will not interfere with execution of County Council business, Warden Roy Brown has retarded the date of the fall session one week. The session will open on November 23 and continue to November 27.

CIVIC LUNCHEON TO MINISTER.

Mayor Macdonald will preside at the civic luncheon at noon on Remembrance Day at which the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Defence, will be the city's guest. The minister will be introduced by J. J. Duffus, M.P. The luncheon is being held at the Empress Hotel.

AWAITING HEARING.

The Wood vs. Wood case is still awaiting a hearing from the Privy Council in England. Although it was originally expected the appeal would be heard by the high judicial body during August, it is possible some time may yet elapse before the case receives attention. Elaborate legal preparations are necessary before such a move.

MAY ENTER PROTEST.

Gravely concerned at mounting charges against the county for Children's Aid Society work, County Councillors are planning to attend in a Council body the meeting at which the Deputy Minister of the Department of Welfare is to explain to the Society why the Society is kept in a "D" rating. It was reported today. It is expected the meeting will be held on November 23, the day on which the Fall County Council session opens.

REFINISHING FLOOR.

In accordance with the ambitions of County Councillors to tone up the atmosphere in which their august body sits, the Council Chamber floor is being given its first refinishing in many years. It will present a shiny, new appearance when the Council convenes on November 23. The walls of the Chamber were redecorated during recent months, but a move by a number of councillors to replace the old-fashioned desks with trim, modern equipment failed.

WITNESS NOT AVAILABLE.

When Brock Wright, 50, Howden Avenue, North Monaghan, appeared on remand this morning on charges of drunk-driving and criminal negligence, arising out of a motor accident at Lakefield on the evening of October 20 last, the Crown was not prepared to go on with the hearing. It was stated that William Brown, Young's Point, who was injured in the accident, was still in hospital and was not yet in fit condition to appear to testify in court. The accused was remanded until Wednesday next, bail being set in the reduced amount of $2,000.

TWO MINUTES OF SLIENCE

Manager C. B. Shaw of the Bell Telephone Company announces that, conforming with the general Remembrance Day custom of observing two minutes' silence, the telephone operators will suspend the answering of calls at 11 a.m. on Thursday until the two minutes have elapsed.

MAY BUY "IRON LUNG"

Peterborough medical men are watching with interest a move under way in Lindsay to purchase for the Ross Memorial Hospital there an iron lung. A Lindsay chapter of the I.O.D.E. is investigating costs with the idea in mind. If the project is executed, Lindsay will have the first iron lung in Central Ontario, a device valuable in certain infantile paralysis cases and other cases where artificial operation of respiration is necessary.

JUDGED LIVESTOCK

Peterborough County's junior farmer judging team judged livestock at the opening of the Ottawa Fair in Ottawa Tuesday, but results were not made public pending the completion of grain judging this afternoon. In a field of stiff competition, the team is endeavoring to win for a third time the judging championship of the Fair and bring back permanently to Peterborough the Ottawa shield.

RAINFALL LESS HERE.

Commenting on the fact that again Tuesday Peterborough missed the heavy part of the rain storm which swept through this section of the province, A. O. Phillips, weather recorded, said to-day, a day by day comparison of Peterborough City rainfall totals with those of other centres to the east, north and west seems to reveal consistently smaller rainfalls here. Topographical factors may be responsible, he suggested.

Y.W. CAMPAIGN TOTALS $42,670

With contributions still coming in to swell the total by small amounts, the net result of the big Y.W.C.A. Extension Fund campaign stood at $42,670 to-day.

The major part of the campaign organization was disbanded a week ago when the final regular campaign date was reached. At that time the total stood in the vicinity of $41,000. A small committee of women and men workers was named under the leadership of Mrs. Paige Rowell to clean up final collections.

Contributions still coming in are those promised during the campaign for future dates. Mrs. Rowell's committee is to continue work until all details are cleaned up.

M.O.H. Salary Quickly Raised As Court Appeal Threatens

North Monaghan Will Pay Dr. J. A. Morgan $300 Per Year Now

The salary of Dr. J. A. Morgan, medical officer of health of the Township of North Monaghan, was raised to $300 a year at the regular meeting of the council on Monday, the increase to be retroactive to the first of last year.

This action on the part of the council was the result of a notice from Dr. Morgan that he proposed to apply to the county judge for an order fixing his salary.

The remuneration of the M.O.H. for North Monaghan was $225 a year until the wave of depression economies brought a cut of 10 per cent. With the return of better times the salary cuts of other township officials were restored but no action had been taken in the case of Dr. Morgan, who finally decided to make use of the machinery provided by the law.

The result is seen in the decision of the council not only to restore the salary cut but to make the M.O.H.'s remuneration $300 a year instead of the original $225.

The meeting was held at the Court House. All the members were present with Reeve James Milby presiding.

A deputation was present from South Monaghan Township, composed of Reeve Waterman and Councillor Robert Thompson, re agreement for the boundary road.

The following accounts were passed for payment: Voucher No. 50, Barnhart of Brantford, $5.65; No. 51, direct relief, $59.30; No. 52, printing, $5.46; No. 53, street lighting for Claraday district, April to October, $315; No. 54, treasurer, School Section No. 2, $2,124.12; No. 55, County of Peterborough, lots purchased at tax sale, deeds, searches, etc., $136.78; No. 56, election board, County of Peterborough, $209.02; No. 57, H. F. Doig, trucking wood, $34.50; No. 58, sheep killed by dogs, $41; No. 59, for road account, $556.49—total, $3,487.35.

A resolution was passed that the county clerk be notified to remove from the books of the County of Peterborough the taxes on lots now owned by the township and the taxes on the lots owned by the township be included in the 1937 tax roll.

Permission Granted.

An application was received from the Bell Telephone Company asking that permission be granted to erect poles, wires and cables on certain properties owned by the township and on certain streets under the control of the township. The permission was granted.

The company contemplates running a line in at the rear of the lots along King George Street, where there is no lane, hence the consent of the property owners and the township was necessary.

A resolution was passed that the Township of North Monaghan join the Association of rural municipalities of Ontario and that the fee of $5 be forwarded for the same.

Dr. J. A. Morgan served notice through his solicitors, Hall and Carley, that he is making application to His Honor Judge Smoke for an order allowing his claim and fixing the amount of his salary, under Section 38, and as remuneration under Section 51 of the Act.

A resolution was passed that Dr. J. A. Morgan's salary be $300 a year, retroactive to January 1st, 1937. Carried.

A letter was read from F. C. McNeeley, relief inspector, notifying the township that he is providing provisions, clothing and fuel to a family living at Springville.

An application was received from Thomas Tooms for the position of building inspector of the township. This appointment was left over until the next meeting.

A resolution was passed that the clerk be instructed not to sign applications for electric light service when the buildings do not meet the requirements of the building bylaw.

Snow-Plowing Contracts.

Tenders were received and accepted for snow-plowing sidewalks, as follows: Frank Grady, Brownton district, $75; J. H. Keating, Claraday district, $65.

By-law No. 1095 was read and passed, authorizing of a levy of a further $2,000 for roads.

This was a supplementary by-law adding a further $2,000 to the amount which by by-law in January, 1937, was fixed at $3,500.

The meeting then adjourned.

The next regular meeting will be held at the Court House, Peterborough, on Wednesday, December 15, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

TEXTILE HEARING HELD IN HAMILTON

HAMILTON, Nov. 10.—Convened for the purpose of inquiring into conditions of the textile industry preparatory to settling a minimum wage scale for workers, the Ontario Industrial Relations Board was in session at the Royal Connaught Hotel on Tuesday. Several plants were visited.

When the meeting opened under the chairmanship of E. J. Young, the question of whether Arthur Laverty and Alex Welsh, executives of the union, should be permitted to accompany board members on their tour was raised. The session was closed when the board conferred with representatives of local mills and J. L. Cohen, representing the Textile Workers' Union regarding the point in dispute.

W. D. Boyd, Cornwall, representing Canadian Cottons, declared the experience of the men in the operation of textile mills was limited and he held they should not be allowed to attend.

Mr. Cohen, who was invited to be present protested against the exclusion of the union executives.

The union had no standing in the history of the inquiry into the textile industry, Major Douglas Hallam Executive Secretary of the Primary Textile Institute, informed the board.

YOUR SPINE

is the line-shaft of your body.

It has a direct controlling influence on your health and movements.

There are nerves emitting through openings between each pair of vertebrae all along the spinal column and these nerves send branches to nearly every part of your body.

If any of these nerves are constricted because of misalignment of a joint of the spine or hips, weakness and lack of proper function will exist in the tissues supplied by those constricted nerves.

A severe nerve irritation at the upper part of the neck can be responsible for upsetting the whole nervous system.

Our method of spinal manipulation has proven effective in overcoming a great many nervous disorders and physical handicaps.

Shot From Rifle Enters Oshawa Home

OSHAWA, Nov. 10.—William Ernest, Albert Street, reported to police Tuesday night that young boys in the vicinity were playing with .22 rifles and that one shot fired entered the door of his house, but missed the occupants.

WM. HANRAHAN PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO ARSON CHARGE

Appearing on remand before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning, William Hanrahan, 50, R.R. 4, Lakefield elected trial before a higher court and entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of arson. The charge accuses Hanrahan of setting fire to his dwelling house and barn in Douro Township on the night of October 25 last. T. J. Carley, K.C., is defence counsel.

Closing his case after calling Inspector David Craig of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department to the witness box, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., obtained permission to reopen it in the face of an objection from defence counsel, for the purpose of producing evidence relative to the alleged fire insurance carried on the premises.

Stanley Darling, insurance agent, who said he accepted an application from Hanrahan for insurance on his property was not able to produce the policy, which he stated was in the hands of the Ontario Farm Loan Board. On this ground the Crown sought an adjournment of the preliminary hearing.

Accordingly His Worship adjourned the hearing until Wednesday of next week, remanding the accused in custody, but renewing bail in the sum of $2,000. In his evidence at the preliminary hearing, Inspector Craig related the circumstances under which the accused made a statement, which was taken down in writing by witness and signed by Hanrahan.

Admitted As Evidence

The purported confession was admitted in evidence subject to an objection raised by defence counsel, and was read to the court by the Crown Attorney.

Following the cross-examination of the witness by Mr. Carley, the Crown closed its case. After the magistrate had ruled the Crown had failed to establish a prima facie case, Mr. McElderry obtained leave to reopen the case for the purpose of introducing evidence as to insurance allegedly carried on the premises by the accused.

His Worship said there was no law which said a person could not burn his own property, providing he had a clear title to that property and he did not endanger the life of property of other people, and he added, "Don't you think Mr. McElderry you have misconceived this matter".

TAXI BILLS CAUSE MUCH DISCUSSION AT CHILDREN'S AID

The large taxi bills appearing in the accounts of the Children's Aid Society were the subject of discussion at the regular meeting of the society in the Council Chamber on Tuesday afternoon.

Drawing attention to the fact that last month's account showed a taxi bill of $73 and this month of $35, Alderman Socker demanded an explanation, saying the board should have a detailed account. Superintendent Edgar replied that the size of the bill was caused by distances travelled in the county investigating cases. Alderman Dutton remarked that it would be better business to buy a motor car for the superintendent's use. "As for asking for a detailed account," he continued, "it is not done. We should have sufficient confidence, but if something gives cause for concern then ask for an explanation."

To Be Given Statement

Of the $35 taxi bill for the past month, it was revealed by Superintendent Edgar that all but $2 had been spent in the county, after inquiry from Reeve Anderson of Otonabee. It was arranged that the Reeve should have a statement of calls for the past three months.

The adoption of several children of a Jewish family as wards of the society had been discussed at a previous meeting, when it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the relief committee for the time being. A report was given by Alderman Dutton, in which he stated that the baby had been placed in a foster home, a daily housekeeper provided to care for the home, and employment found for the father of the family, which it is hoped will make him self-supporting in time.

In regard to a previous motion of Dr. R. F. Nott, that places of board members absent for three consecutive meetings should be declared vacant, he suggested as a more diplomatic method, that a letter be sent requesting if members wished to remain on the board or not. "If we adopt this," said Alderman Stocker, "we will clean the place up. Most of the members are absent on account of circumstances." Dr. Nott explained that his motion had arisen in the first place because he knew of people anxious to take an active part on the board, and there was no room for them. "What authority," asked Reeve Anderson, "have we to do anything after the board has been elected for a year?" It was decided to leave the matter till the annual meeting in March.

The dilapidated condition of the kitchen floor and walls at the shelter, and the need for improved sanitary arrangements, was brought to the attention of the meeting by Dr. Barr. It was decided that the Propery committee should look into the situation, obtain prices, and report to the board.

A special meeting was called for Tuesday, November 23, at four o'clock, when the board hopes to have a representative of the Department of Public Welfare present.

The results of tag day were announced by Superintendent Edgar to total $901.13. The society's accounts for the month of October amounted to $273.08.

ASK PLANES SEEK LOST FREIGHTER

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—(CP)—A request aeroplanes be sent in search of the coal carrier Calgadoc, 12 days out of Sydney, N.S. on the 60 hour run to Wabana, Nfld., was received today by Transport Minister Howe from officials of the Seamen's Association at Port McNicholl, Ont., where several of the crew have homes.

The transport department could not comply since it has no aeroplanes in Eastern Canada, but the request was being considered by officials of National Defence and the Mounted Police with the possibility some further assistance might be given in the search.

Hope the 1,664-ton coal-laden freighter Calgadoc would complete her voyage was both dimmed and strengthened today at St. John's.

The former Great Lakes boat carries a crew of 18, including one woman. No wireless is aboard. The day after she sailed from Sydney a fierce gale swept the Cabot Strait.

Norman M. Paterson, president of the Paterson Steamships, Fort William, said he had notified the company's underwriters in London that he feared the vessel was lost.

NEW POST OFFICE FOR BOBCAYGEON

BOBCAYGEON, Nov. 10.— Bobcaygeon, incorporated as a village municipality in 1877 but which has had an existence of more than 100 years, is to have a brand new post office. Last week J. W. McMillan of Lindsay, was awarded the contract of the building to cost $12,000. The new post office will be erected on the north side of the canal.

Children's Hour

One of the most important phases of Great Britain's war preparedness program is the instruction of children in the use of gas masks which will be issued by the government to each and every Briton. Some children are too small for the regulation mask and experiments now are underway to devise a special respirator for babies. However, the youngsters shown here, going through a drill at Hawkhurst, are wearing the regular mask.

EXAMINER AD RENTS HOUSE

An apartment rented in less than half an hour after the arrival of The Examiner with the advertisement referring to it brought a word of gratitude from the owner to-day. "I rented it to the first man who called. He said he jumped into his car as soon as he read the paper and came straight to the house. A dozen or more others called during the evening." This is only another little indication of the growing need of housing accommodation in Peterborough.

GET THEIR DEER

On Thursday night a party of three hunters from Niles, Ohio, J. Eggleston, Fred Gilmour and Wm. Eggleston were in town enroute on a hunting trip north of Peterborough and stopped long enough to secure their licenses at LeBarr's. One of the party said they had been coming over for eight or nine years and always got their deer and they did not expect to be disappointed on this occasion. Evidently they were not for they were in town Tuesday night on their way home and there was a splendid buck tied on each side of their car.

P.C.I. REMEMBERS

Students of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School held a very impressive Remembrance Day service in the Assembly Hall this morning with Lieut.-Col. M. H. Park of the Normal School staff as guest speaker. Before his eloquent address the hymn "Oh God, Our Help In Ages Past" was sung while after the service concluded with "Abide With Me," the sounding of the Last Post, a period of two minutes' silence and then God Save The King. Slides of pupils who had given their lives in the World War were shown on the screen.

SESSIONS POSTPONED.

AWAITING HEARING.

The Wood vs. Wood case is still awaiting a hearing from the Privy Council in England. Although it was originally expected the appeal would be heard by the high judicial body during August, it is possible some time may yet elapse before the case receives attention. Elaborate legal preparations are necessary before such a move.

MAY ENTER PROTEST.

Gravely concerned at mounting charges against the county for Children's Aid Society work, County Councillors are planning to attend in a Council body the meeting at which the Deputy Minister of the Department of Welfare is to explain to the Society why the Society is kept in a "D" rating, it was reported today. It is expected the meeting will be held on November 23, the day on which the Fall County Council session opens.

REFINISHING FLOOR.

In accordance with the ambitions of County Councillors to tone up the atmosphere in which their august body sits, the Council Chamber floor is being given its first refinishing in many years. It will present a shiny, new appearance when the Council convenes on November 23. The walls of the Chamber were redecorated during recent months, but a move by a number of councillors to replace the old-fashioned desks with trim, modern equipment failed.

WITNESS NOT AVAILABLE.

When Brock Wright, 50, Howden Avenue, North Monaghan, appeared on remand this morning on charges of drunk-driving and criminal negligence, arising out of a motor accident at Lakefield on the evening of October 20 last, the Crown was not prepared to go on with the hearing. It was stated that William Brown, Young's Point, who was injured in the accident, was still in hospital and was not yet in fit condition to appear to testify in court. The accused was remanded until Wednesday next, bail being set in the reduced amount of $2,000.

M.O.H. Salary Quickly Raised As Court Appeal Threatens

North Monaghan Will Pay Dr. J. A. Morgan $300 Per Year Now

The salary of Dr. J. A. Morgan, medical officer of health of the Township of North Monaghan, was raised to $300 a year at the regular meeting of the council on Monday, the increase to be retroactive to the first of last year.

This action on the part of the council was the result of a notice from Dr. Morgan that he proposed to apply to the county judge for an order fixing his salary.

The remuneration of the M.O.H. for North Monaghan was $225 a year until the wave of depression economies brought a cut of 10 per cent. With the return of better times the salary cuts of other township officials were restored but no action had been taken in the case of Dr. Morgan, who finally decided to make use of the machinery provided by the law.

The result is seen in the decision of the council not only to restore the salary cut but to make the M.O.H.'s remuneration $300 a year instead of the original $225.

The meeting was held at the Court House. All the members were present with Reeve James Milby presiding.

A deputation was present from South Monaghan Township, composed of Reeve Waterman and Councillor Robert Thompson, re agreement for the boundary road.

The following accounts were passed for payment: Voucher No. 50½, Barnhart of Brantford, $5.65; No. 51, direct relief, $59.30; No. 52, printing, $5.46; No. 53, street lighting for Claraday district, April to October, $315; No. 54, treasurer, School Section No. 2, $2,124.12; No. 55, County of Peterborough, lots purchased at tax sale, deeds, searches, etc., $136.78; No. 56, election board, County of Peterborough, $209.02; No. 57, H. F. Doig, trucking wood, $34.50; No. 58 sheep killed by dogs, $41; No. 59, for road account, $556.49—total, $3,487.35.

A resolution was passed that the county clerk be notified to remove from the books of the County of Peterborough the taxes on lots now owned by the township and the taxes on the lots owned by the township be included in the 1937 tax roll.

Permission Granted.

An application was received from the Bell Telephone Company asking that permission be granted to erect poles, wires and cables on certain properties owned by the township and on certain streets under the control of the township. The permission was granted.

The company contemplates running a line in at the rear of the lots along King George Street, where there is no lane, hence the consent of the property owners and the township was necessary.

A resolution was passed that the Township of North Monaghan join the Association of rural municipalities of Ontario and that the fee of $5 be forwarded for the same.

Dr. J. A. Morgan served notice through his solicitors, Hall and Carley, that he is making application to His Honor Judge Smoke for an order allowing his claim and fixing the amount of his salary, under Section 38, and as remuneration under Section 51 of the Act.

A resolution was passed that Dr J. A. Morgan's salary be $300 a year, retroactive to January 1st, 1937. Carried.

A letter was read from F. G McNeeley, relief inspector, notifying the township that he is providing provisions, clothing and fuel to a family living at Springville.

An application was received from Thomas Tooms for the position of building inspector of the township.

This appointment was left over until the next meeting.

A resolution was passed that the clerk be instructed not to sign applications for electric light service when the buildings do not meet the requirements of the building bylaw.

Snow-Plowing Contracts.

Tenders were received and accepted for snow-plowing sidewalks, as follows: Frank Grady, Brownton district, $75; J. H. Keating, Claraday district, $65.

By-law No. 1095 was read and passed, authorizing of a levy of a further $2,000 for roads.

This was a supplementary by-law adding a further $2,000 to the amount which by by-law in January, 1937, was fixed at $3,500.

The meeting then adjourned.

The next regular meeting will be held at the Court House, Peterborough, on Wednesday, December 15, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Ireland, Scotland Battle To Draw

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Nov. 10 (CP Cable)—Ireland and Scotland each netted a point in the International soccer tournament today, the two countries playing to a 1-1 draw. Twenty-five thousand spectators saw the Scots score a second-half goal after the Irish had tallied 15 minutes after the start of the game.

TEXTILE HEARING HELD IN HAMILTON

HAMILTON, Nov. 10.—Convened for the purpose of inquiring into conditions of the textile industry preparatory to settling a minimum wage scale for workers, the Ontario Industrial Relations Board was in session at the Royal Connaught Hotel on Tuesday. Several plants were visited.

When the meeting opened under the chairmanship of E. J. Young, the question of whether Arthur Laverty and Alex Welsh, executives of the union, should be permitted to accompany board members on their tour was raised. The session was closed when the board conferred with representatives of local mills and J. L. Cohen, representing the Textile Workers' Union regarding the point in dispute.

W. D. Boyd, Cornwall, representing Canadian Cottons, declared the experience of the men in the operation of textile mills was limited and he held they should not be allowed to attend.

Mr. Cohen, who was invited to be present protested against the exclusion of the union executives.

The union had no standing in the history of the inquiry into the textile industry, Major Douglas Hallam Executive Secretary of the Primary Textile Institute, informed the board.

CANVAS FOR MUSEUM

QUEBEC, Nov. 10 (CP).—A 50-year-old canvas by Charles Alexander Smith of Galt, Ont., portraying a historic meeting at St. Charles in 1837 of representatives of the old Counties of Richelieu, St. Hyacinthe, Rouville, Chambly, Vercheres and Acadia, will be presented to Quebec Museum.

The painting, which hangs in the Cabinet members' assembly room in the Legislature was ordered turned over to the museum by Premier Maurice Duplessis.

is the line-shaft of your body.

It has a direct controlling influence on your health and movements.

There are nerves emitting through openings between each pair of vertebrae all along the spinal column and these nerves send branches to nearly every part of your body.

If any of these nerves are constricted because of misalignment of a joint of the spine or hips, weakness and lack of proper function will exist in the tissues supplied by those constricted nerves.

A severe nerve irritation at the upper part of the neck can be responsible for upsetting the whole nervous system.

Our method of spinal manipulation has proven effective in overcoming a great many nervous disorders and physical handicaps.

WE CAN HELP IN SOLVING YOUR HEALTH PROBLEMS.

Big Trading Session Is Seen When Minors Hold Gathering

Dizzy And Van Mungo On Auction Block—Yankees Remain Intact

By Central Press Canadian

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—One of the greatest trading sessions in recent major league history is foreseen as a possibility when the annual minor league meeting is held at Milwaukee in December.

The main reason for this outlook seems to be that things have reached the point where several clubs have one or two outstanding performers for whom they would like to have several players to attain a better balance, and the minor league gathering, as usual, offers the first opportunity for barlering, with the major league meetings coming along later.

Most of the owners, their managers and other people from the big time will be at the get-together of minor circuits as they always are, jostling each other about behind the potted palms of the hotel lobby, going into long conferences in hotel rooms, and, in fact, doing everything, except paying any attention to the minors.

Dizzy On The Block

Once more it is reliably stated that Dizzy Dean is to be put on the auction block by the St. Louis Cardinals. The Cincinnati Reds offered everything except the ball park for him at the meeting of the bushers in Montreal last year, and the Cardinals offered him to the Pirates for virtually all their holdings, including the park, with the result that the Dizzy one stayed in St. Louis and wound up with a sore arm.

As the thing stands now the Cardinals don't know whether they have a pitcher or a hospital case, and the rest of the clubs which might want him are equally undecided, but that won't prevent some passes being made at him—and it's barely possible one will land. The Giants, just to mention one club, could use him and, reportedly, want him.

The Brooklyn Dodgers recently gave away half of their ball club for shortstop Leo Durocher of the Cardinals, and now would give pitcher Van Mungo for half of somebody else's club.

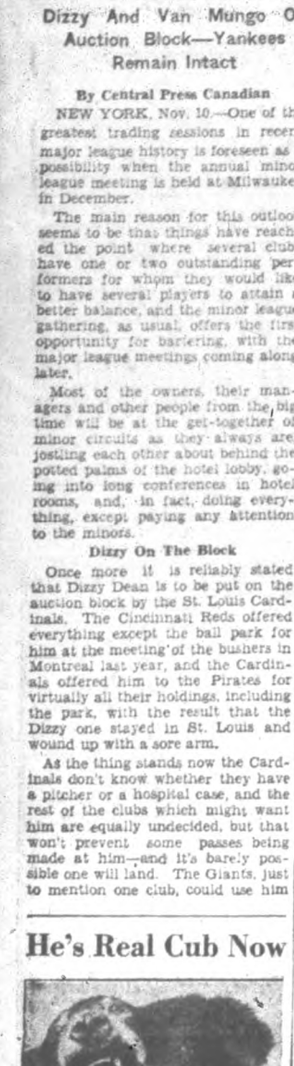
Yankees Remain Intact

Of the two pennant winners, Yankees and Giants, only the former seem to be all set. They have Joe Gordon from their Newark farm and Don Heffner, a holdover, to fill the void at second base left by release of Tony Lazzeri, and remain intact elsewhere.

The Giants, besides being in the market for Dean—if it is so,— could use a first sacker, and a couple of outfielders.

You could go down the list with rumors, possibilities and actual anglings and fill a volume. Anyhow, the baseball people look for action, and whatever fails to develop at Milwaukee will come along later when the majors meet at Chicago.

He's Real Cub Now



Tony Lazzeri, until recently the steller second baseman of the New York Yankees, indulges in some good-natured antics as he prepares for the "world series" golf tournament to be held in San Francisco by putting on this bear skin to prove that he is really a member of the Chicago Cubs," who signed him as a player and coach.

ODD ITEMS FROM A SPORT SCRAP BOOK

By Bradley

LORNE CHABOT

When an athlete embarks on a career of professional sport he might just as well kiss good-by to the city of his choice, for in all probability he will spend little of his life at home.

Naturally, as this is the case, there will be many much travelled men in sport's realm. However, we do not think there are many who can advance a record of travel that will surpass that of Lorne Chabot, once one of the greatest goal-keepers in hockey history.

During his long career as a major league net guardian, Chabot has played for no less than six of the teams. He began his time between the posts with the N.Y. Rangers — was then bought by Con Smythe to play for the Toronto Maple Leafs. From here he went to Montreal Canadiens in a trade for George Hainsworth; later, to the Chicago Black Hawks, then back to the Canadian side with Montreal Maroons, to finally end up with the "Amazing Amerks" of New York.

Manager Stewart Drills Hawks Hard In Quest Of Stanley Cup

Under the management of Bill Stewart, former N.H.L. referee and baseball umpire, the Chicago Black Hawks are making a desperate attempt to get back in the running for the Stanley Cup again this season. They lost their opening encounter to the rebuilt New York Americans, and have been practising hard since then. The action photo shows a concerted rush on Goalie Mike Karakas during a practice session between games. The players in this picture are from LEFT to RIGHT: Goalie Mike Karakas, Alex Levinsky, Gordon Brydson, Art Welbe and Louis Trudell. Incidentally, Bill Stewart is making his debut this year as a manager, and the Black Hawks also have about seven players on the team who are American-born, including Manager Bill.

FAMOUS GAELS SLOWING DOWN

MORAGA, Cal., Nov. 10. — The galloping Gaels of St. Mary's, who grew famous knocking over giants of the Pacific Coast conference and making spectacularly successful football forays to the East, have slowed down to a walk this season.

Unimpressive except in one tilt with little University of Nevada, the Gaels have been harassed by teams that ordinarily would have been sure prey for the men from the Moraga Hills.

There probably is no connection, but the beginning of the 1937 Gael decline coincides approximately with the foreclosure of a bank mortgage on the college's holdings and the placing of the campus on the auction block.

Some indication that St. Mary's season might not be brilliant was seen in the first game, when the Gaels were steamrolled by University of California, 30-7. The Gaels fought a pointless tie with Bing Crosby's alma mater, Gonzaga University; they trounded Nevada, 42-0, with a burst of power that seemed to indicate the Gaels were on their way. But then they had trouble eking out a 13-7 win over Loyal of Los Angeles, and barely beat Idaho, 6-0. Next came a pointless deadlock with College of Pacific and a narrow 3-0 victory over San Francisco U.

This Sunday the Gaels play Santa Clara in the Coast's "little big game," and then entrain for the annual intersectional tilt with Fordham at New York, on Nov. 20. Ordinarily, St. Mary's and Santa Clara would be rated even because of the intense rivalry that has tended to level the teams to a common tensile strength. But this year Santa Clara, with its spotless record, will go into the game favored by a wide margin.

The Fordham excursion, usually a happy affair for scores of St. Mary's fans who follow the team to New York, promises to be a less cheerful jaunt this year, from a football standpoint. No one expects the Moragans to endanger the record of the Rams this trip.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THERE IS a fair possibility of the Peterborough Hockey Club sponsoring three teams in O.H.A. competition this year, an intermediate "B" outfit as well as the intermediate "A" and junior "B" teams. Though the intermediate "B" crew might have to take a bye into the Senior City Loop through most of the winter. The idea is to take care of good puckists here who have graduated from junior or will not be carried with the intermediate "A" outfit. It is not definite yet, by any means, but we hear officers are seriously thinking it over. There are a few problems to overcome first, such as necessary finances for three teams in Ontario competition, and needed time at the rink for practises and games.

• • • • • • •

NO DOUBT, we could ice two good intermediate squads here, in "A" and "B" competition. Five of last year's Colts are too old this year, there are several good newcomers in town, and all of the 1936-37 intermediate Petes are available again. To say nothing of about a dozen fine O.H.A. prospects who played last winter in the Senior City Puck Loop. If we did ice a "B" team, it might possibly be grouped with the Lakeshore teams or Belleville Redmen and maybe an Oshawa "B" entry. We understand the latter club has been approached by the locals as to chances of a Motor City team, "A" or "B", in a group with us. Three O.H.A. teams have been operated at the same time in Peterborough before this, once when we had senior, intermediate and junior crews playing, and again when we had an intermediate and two junior squads in action. It's a thought, anyway.

• • • • • • •

THE GOOD local junior "B" gang of last year, which lost out in that bitter playdown series to Barrie—surely you were in Oshawa for the funeral and fireworks!—is pretty well shot. Only the defence left, you might say. The two Clark boys, Brady, Crowe and Jopling. Among the grads, via the over-age trail, are: Eddie Starr, Ward Wright, Art Heal, Bun Kingdon, Ray Harding and Farmer Connelly —the latter now in Kirkland Lake. However, Frank Buckland and Shorty Burgess aren't worrying over this year's edition of the Colts. They figure the juniors will be every bit as strong, maybe more so. Plenty of smart kids coming up from the Junior City League and also a few strangers in our midst. The Colts of 1938 will be heavier than the good junior teams turned out here the past several seasons. More again on their prospects.

• • • • • • •

SENIOR CITY Hockey League re-organized nice and early for the season, getting going last eve at a well-attended meeting. They planned an early start to see about maybe getting an O.H.A. franchise to enter a team in intermediate "B" playdowns—if the loop clubs want it. Also to line up finances, and what not. Clubs coming in so far are Westclox, Bewdley, Millbrook, and a bunch called Pla-Mors put in by the Marinos. Probably Lakefield will be in yet—having won the title last winter—and maybe Johnson Motors will return. Hiawatha is interested, too. Dunno about Omemee since they'll have their own rink this season. Hugh Davis was on hand last e'en and said he might back an entry. Yeah, they'll get six in easily enough and should have another fine blood and thunder season. The officers are: Prexy, Leo Allen, re-elected; vice-president, Bob Cathcart of Millbrook; sec.-treas., Walter Dinesen, re-elected; plus a representative of each team on the executive. Closing date for entries is next Tuesday night at a meeting at eight in Duffus.

• • • • • • •

'TIS SAID Oshawa is threatening to withdraw both junior and senior clubs from the O.H.A. this winter if Tony Meader is permitted to play for St. Mike's puck outfit. A strong protest has been sent to the O.H.A. concerning the matter. Seems Meader was brought to Oshawa to play hockey and has been working at General Motors two months. He is said to have made a proposal lately to the Oshawa club whereby he'd quit his job and attend Oshawa Collegiate and play hockey. His offer was rejected and he left two days ago for Toronto to enroll at St. Mike's and play hockey there. Evidently Tony is shopping around for his higher education!

• • • • • • •

A FULL squad of the Orfuns went through a heavy practise session last e'en in Riverside Park and the players showed a lot of class. They seem grimly confident they can take the Trenton Fliers here on Saturday and advance into further O.R.F.U. playdowns. Though they admit the Airmen are dangerous on scoring single points with a good kicker. The Orfuns will adopt a somewhat different style of play next tilt and their forward-passing attack ought to be improved 50 percent over that of the futile flinging they showed at Trenton. Practises will continue nightly this week, with a light signal session set for Friday. Barring Mick Magee, the Turnbull team will be at full strength Saturday, the Spencely brothers being back again.

• • • • • • •

THESE ARE the high-flying Fliers, with numbers, who will be seen in their reddish uniforms here this weekend—and fans might clip this item for reference: Flying wing, Wightman (24); halves, Spruston (17), Lecompte (3), Gibson (7); quarter, Drake (19); snap, Bothwell (12); insides, Higgerty (4), Beatty (14); middles, Davis (25), Jamieson (9); outsides, Fee (2), Bradley (22); alternates, Burns (31), Barber (15), Tittley (8), Smith (11), Haddon 10), Ceasford (6), Pinchman (13), Birchall (20), Shaw (18), Cox (16), Hawkins and Spencer.

• • • • • • •

SAYS THE Quinte columnist: "Remember Bud Murray, second baseman, and Art Upper, pitcher,"—come, come, Ken, it's Art Lepper—"both of whom were with the Peterborough C.O.B.L. team two or three seasons ago? Well, both have forsaken baseball and are now policemen on the Toronto Police Department. At least they possess one of the recognized qualities of a copper, they both had over-sized feet!" Yeah, they'll do in a pinch—oh, oh.

• • • • • • •

DESE, DEM and dose: We understand the P.C.I. senior gridders won't start playdowns till a week from Sat'day . . . . S.P.A. junior series will start in Toronto next week; entries close on Monday and teams must be ready by Tuesday . . . . Junior City Puck Loop won't re-organize for about three weeks; anyone interested in the meantime might contact Bill Prindible . . . . Will Mike O'Leary play hockey for Omemee this winter? . . . . J.C.: Pittsburg beat Washington, 21-0, in the 1937 Rose Bowl game . . . . Plans are going ahead for the Hockey Club draw, but the executive changed their minds about a dance on Armistice Night . . . . Gus Ryder, who referees O.R.F.U. tilts here sometimes, will line up with the International puck referees shortly . . . . Annual meeting of the Church Hockey League will be held November 29th in the "Y" . . . . "The Great" Balbo, who rassled here last Friday p.m., is in a main bout in Detroit this week—the Detroit Times calls him "a human battering ram"! . . . According to the papers there seems to be quite a bit of Confuscian in this Jap war—take him away, Constables Murray and Lepper, put him in the end cell!

Seabiscuit Sets Record In Winning Riggs Handicap

Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit is pictured here on the rail as he came up to win the Riggs Handicap at Pimlico, Md., in the track record-breaking time of 1.57 2-5 for the mile and three-sixteenths, three-fifths of a second better, than the mark held jointly by Gallant Knight and Dark Hope. The winner also surpassed War Admiral as the leading money winner of the season. Burning Star finished second to Seabiscuit in this race with Caballera 2nd third.

N.H.L. All-Stars

George Mantha, Canadiens, scored 38 seconds before close of regulation time to give Flying Frenchmen 2-2 tie with Chicago.

Earl Seibert, Chicago, tallied Hawk' second goal and led team offensively and defensively against Canadiens.

LAKEFIELD BLANKS ST. PETER'S 29 TO 0

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 10.—The Lakefield High School rugby team defeated St. Peter's High School squad in a decidedly one-sided battle played in Lakefield on Tuesday Nov. 9 at 4.00 p.m. The final score was 29-0. The local team which was considerably heavier than the visiting squad showed superiority over their opponents all through the fracas.

S. Loyst scored three of the local team's five touchdowns, with P. Loyst and D. Smith carrying the ball over for the other major scores. S. Loyst chalked up the remainder of the points when he scored 2 converts and 2 singles for his team.

The line-ups:

Lakefield High School—Snap, Bob Brown; insides, Windsor, Kendall; middles, Morris, McCracken; ends, Morin, Birch; quarter, P. Loyst; halves, Quigley, Loyst, Morrison.

St. Peter's High School — Snap, Charlie Gordon; insides, Art Geraghty, John Herr; middles, Jack Hickey, Noe LePlante; outsides, Fred Condon, Jerry McCauliffe; flying wing, F. Sullivan; quarter, Bob Cauley; halves, Bernard Armstrong, Joe Rochetti, John Corkery; alternate, Ray Garvey.

T. J. Wood acted as referee.

From Flys To Fish

COLORADO HERD BOAST PERFECT RECORD FOR '37

BOULDER, Col., Nov. 10. — This is the story of Colorado University, one of the nation's few undefeated and untied football teams and probably the least publicized of the lot.

Week after week the Buffaloes have bowled over rugged opposition, but the outside world hasn't paid much attention because the Rocky Mountain Conference just isn't considered a tough football league by other sections of the country.

Given the opportunity, Colorado probably could hold its own with most of the nation's so-called gridiron giants. But unfortunately the Buffaloes play only Rocky Mountain opposition for the rest of the season, and their ability probably will go unheralded.

Wealth of Reserve Strength.

The only comparison between Colorado U. and the rest of the country was furnished in the opening game of the season, in which they defeated Missouri, one of the giants of the Big Six, to the tune of 14 to 6. In that game Colorado scored two touchdowns in the first half, and then went on to the defensive so they would not have to reveal their offense to conference scouts.

Since that game Colorado's goal line has never been crossed, and the betting is that it won't be for the rest of the season. Against five opponents the Buffs have scored 163 points.

Colorado owes its position to a wealth of reserve strength, which makes it three-deep at every position, the defensive play of Centre Gene Moore and the guiding genius of Byron White.

White is the greatest back in the school's history and is being compared with Earl (Dutch) Clark. Clark, as everyone knows, is the greatest player in the National Pro-League, and, oddly, he, too, was virtually unknown while a star in this same conference.

Remember When—

The light-heavyweight boxing bout between Champion Maxie Rosenbloom and Jimmy Braddock was stopped in the second round at New York six years ago tonight when both fighters "laid down." Later, Braddock entered the heavyweight ranks, won the world's championship in 1935 and lost it in his first defence in June, 1937, to Joe Louis.

MARK MAYER DIES

PORTLAND, Ont., Nov. 10 (CP)—Mark A. Mayer, 79, one-time Broadway betting commissioner who lumped all horse-racing followers under the classification of "sucker," died here yesterday on the apple ranch to which he retired in 1912. He had a comfortable fortune when he closed his betting book.

Always chary of gambling himself, Mayer once explained:

"I agree with Procian Howard, the form-sheet publisher. He said, 'Show me a man who plays the horses and I'll show you a man who is going to die broke'."

TOBACCO HEAD DIES

SYDNEY — (CP). — Arthur J. Warry, chairman of the board of directors of British Tobacco Company (Australia), and W. D. and H. O. Wills (Australia) Ltd., died here recently. He was 66 years old.

Medwick Noses Out Hartnett For N.L. Best Player Award

St. Louis Cardinal Led The League In Almost Every Division

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—As everybody knew all along, except apparently the Baseball Writers Association of America, Joe Medwick, left fielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the most valuable player in the National league last season. Confirmation of this highly exclusive piece of news, however, is forthcoming today, from the association, with an addendum to the effect that Medwick thus qualifies for and is to receive a plaque, commemorating the award, from a St. Louis sporting journal.

And buried deep down in the typographical debris of the official "hand out" is the real story, namely:

Only TWO members of the committee of EIGHT considered Medwick worthy of a vote for first place; ONE HALF of the eight members thought him good enough for second. Medwick, in fact, gained his award over Gabby Hartnett, of the Chicago Cubs, only because the remaining four committee members thought he rated as high as third—and because one member, equally without logic, thought Hartnett figured as low as sixth. This allowed Medwick to come from BEHIND and win out by 70 points to 68.

Lead the League

Briefly, the vote on this pair was: Hartnett three first, Medwick two; Hartnett two seconds, Medwick two; Hartnett one third, Medwick four; Hartnett one fourth and one sixth—and, briefly again, here is all Joe Medwick was able to do for himself and his ball team during the 1937 season:

1. lead the league in hitting 374
2. Lead the league in total hits 237
3. Lead the league in total runs 111
4. Lead the league in total bases 405
5. Lead the league in runs batted in 154
6. Lead the league in two base hits 57
7. Tie Mel Ott for the home run leadership 31

Hartnett had a very big year for himself and a very good year for the Cubs but nothing in his record quite overcomes the grim humor of those three first place votes to Medwick's two, nor the first place votes of one each for Carl Hubbell, Dick Bartell and Harry Danning, of the New York Giants. Frankly I'm trying to make this an out and out tantrum and tirade, but do you realize what the latter means?

It means that three members of the eight believed Hubbell, Bartell and danning were superior in value to a man who just about led the league in every department of attack.

Other Standings

Hubbell, with one first, two seconds, one third, two fifths, and one seventh place, finished third in the balloting with 52 points. Jim Turner, the elderly young man of the Boston Bees, was fourth with 30 his highest rating being one fourth place vote. Bartell, with 26 points; Mel Ott with 24; Paul Waner, Pittsburg Pirates, with 21; Billy Herman, Chicago Cubs, with 19 and Johnny Mize, St. Louis Cardinals, with 18, completed the top ten of the honor list.

Napanee Team Enters Kingston Grouping

NAPANEE, Ont., Nov. 10 (C.P.)—Napanee Juniors' speedy hockey team who won the Kingston City League junior championship last year, will again enter a team in that group, their coach and manager Chief Eddie Watts, said yesterday. The games last year were featured by the tricky forward line display of Jackson brothers and Tompkins and some fine rearguard work by Captain Ken Murphy. This quartette later lined up with Belleville Intermediate B Ontario Hockey Association entry and led that team to the provincial championship.

LOUIS SEEKING WINTER BOUTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Inactivity is becoming tiresome for Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion, and he has asked Promoter Mike Jacobs to arrange two fights for him this winter, Jacobs said Tuesday.

Jacobs said he would like to match Joe for one bout in the Garden and another in Chicago, Detroit or Cleveland.

FOUR TEAMS ENTER SENIOR CITY LOOP

Four clubs signified intention of entry into the Senior City Hockey League last night at the annual reorganization meeting of this circuit in the Duffus' Board Room. Bewdley, Millbrook, and Westclox of last winter's squads, and the Marino Pla-Mors, were the teams represented. Hugh Davis was on hand, also, and stated he was considering putting in a team. There were 15 men present at this session.

Officers elected for the 1937-38 season were: President, Leo Allen; vice-president, Robert Cathcart of Millbrook; secretary-treasurer, Walter Dinesen; with a representative of each club on the executive. The protest committee will be named later. The league has a surplus of $3.09 on hand from last season.

It was stated that information would be sought from the O.H.A. upon affiliating the league with the Ontario body to send a team into the "B" playdowns, provided the teams were interested. Closing date for entries was set at next Tuesday night, Nov. 16th, at eight p.m. when another meeting will be held in Duffus' Eentry fee will likely be the same as last year, $2.00 a team, to be returned if the league finances warrant it. Other clubs mentioned as prospects were: Lakefield, Omemee, Hiawatha, Johnson Motors and Quaker Oats. League rulings will be agreed upon and other matters dealt with at the next meeting.

In three months recently French West Africa shipped 520 tons of palm nuts to America.

Players Who Receive Highest Award

JOE MEDWICK

CHARLIE GEHRINGER

The Baseball Writers association of the United States have released their selection for the players in both the National and American leagues whom they have chosen for the most valuable player award. Charlie Gehringer, second baseman of the Detroit Tigers, climaxed his baseball career by winning the award in the American league, beating out Joe DiMaggio, of the New York Yankees. The player in the National loop to receive the highest honor that can be paid a ball player was Joe "Ducky" Medwick, outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Inane Remarks Worry Tourney Golfers Cotton Finds Bystanders Annoying

LONDON, Nov. 10 (CP)—Take it from Henry Cotton, Britain's ranking golfer, a player who reaches the first flight of the game against world-wide competition, can be excused if he becomes temperamental. Early in his career Cotton set himself an ambitious task — to become open champion of Great Britain. In the process he worked hard and play to him was serious business.

"We do not mind having a crowd watching when we are playing," he said. "We know it is a compliment to our play, but it is not generally realized that interruptions when we are engaged in serious competition, the winning of which might mean a great deal of money, can be very trying."

Cotton remarked it was common experience for him to be stopped during the progress of an important match and bluntly told: "Oh, you remember me!"

Invariably, he said, it turned out to be a person who had picked up his hat when it blew off miles from a golf course, a party who had asked for an autograph six years before, or had some similar excuse for claiming acquaintanceship."

"On such occasions when I'm concentrating to the limit on the play, my reply depends entirely on the mood I happen to be in at the moment," he confessed.

Cotton referred with undisguised amusement to the early days of his rise to fame. "When I started to play seriously all the best players were Americans," he said. "I thought the best thing was to imitate them. He began by buying black and white shoes and a bright-hued sweater.

"That did not seem to help a lot but I persevered and decided I could still become a naturalized American citizen if everything else failed. Finally I managed to win and since then I think everything British looks better."

CHIHAWKS SECURE 2-ALL DEADLOCK WITH CANADIENS

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP)—If Chicago Black Hawks are to become contenders for National Hockey League honors this season their power will have to come from veterans or from players picked up between now and the crucial stages. Their owner, Major Frederic McLaughlin, has given up his idea of an all-United States team and Hawks' first two games have shown that they'll rely mainly on experienced men like Mush March, Johnny Gottselig and Earl Seibert.

Oscar Hanseen and Cully Dahlstrom were the only newcomers in the lineup last night when Chicago began its road season by tying Canadiens 2-2 at Montreal. Coach Bill Stewart did not dress young Vic Heyliger, last winter's University of Michigan captain, and when goals were needed the oldsters stayed on the ice till goals came.

Stewart, who left the referee's ranks to head the Hawks, says he has been given a free hand to run the club. He intends to start a farm team when he gets time and he'll trade any player "no matter who he is" if it will better prospects. But right now he's banking on his veterans to pull Chicago out of the cellar, where it finished last season.

It was Seibert who kept his mates level against the Habitants, even though he was serving a penalty for charging when Canadiens tied the score in the last 40 seconds of regulation time. Seibert sparked a rally that brought a goal from Louis Trudel's stick after seven minutes of the third period, then scored himself two minutes later to put Hawks ahead 2-1.

George Mantha sank Johnny Gagnon's pass 38 seconds from the 60-minute mark to gain the deadlock and the contest went into overtime. Toe Blake scored Canadiens first goal.

Hockey's Big 7

(By the Canadian Press.)

Goals and assists were widely distributed when Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks played a 2-2 tie in the only game last night and no player qualified for the Big Seven. Gordon Drillon of Toronto, tops the list, in which six are tied with two points. Marty Barry of Detroit has two goals, Nick Metz of Toronto, Joe Jerwa of Americans and Jimmy Ward of Maroons one goal and one assist each, and Dit Clapper of Boston and Tommy Anderson of Americans two assists.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP).—That fine-looking youngster playing centre for Dartmouth's undefeated Indians is the son of Billy Gibson, the old fight manager, who piloted both Benny Leonard and Gene Tunney to world championships....Like Max Schmeling, Tunney was a good business man and often preferred to sign his own contracts....More than once he left a boiling Gibson sitting in the anteroom while Gene closed for important fights....But when he came into the big dough, Tunney didn't forget.

Dan Caplin, another New York fight manager, has a son who is taking about all the scholastic honors in sight down at the Univerity of Virginia....Jimmy Kelly, the Greenwich Village night club king, planned to bid as high as $20,000 for the Chief when the C. V. Whitney string was placed on sale Monday....Jimmy forgot the date of the sale and was he burned up yesterday when he read Earl Sande, the former jock, had bought the Chief for $14,000....Old Jack Johnson is making daily appearances at Prof. Hubert's dime museum on 42nd street.

A good yarn is going the rounds about the source of Minnesota's football players....Each spring, just about ploughing time, Bernie Bierman hits for the Hinterland....Every field that has a young man working in it is a Bierman stop....He asks the youth the way to the next town....If the kid points with a finger, Bierman drives on....But if the youngter just picks up his plough and points to the town, he shows up at Minneapolis the next fall....And don't think that ploughpointing thing can't be done....Johnny Marcum, Red Sox pitcher, does it all winter down at Eminence, Ky.

NAME LATEST SPORT

SHOREHAM, England, Nov. 10.—A new game called "Larcone" has been introduced here. A mixture of rugby and handball, it is played by nine-man teams. A 22-ounce pneumatic cone is used, the cone designed for accurate throwing.

Goalposts are 30 feet wide, 24 feet high with a four-foot aperture running the length of the top through which the cone must be thrown for the goal. J. J. H. Wilkinson, inventor of the game, claims it can be played without danger of overstrain.

ONTARIO BONSPIEL DUE IN FEBRUARY

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Preliminary plans for the eleventh annual Ontario bonspiel were made at the annual meeting of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the big curling week of the winter, when the reports of the various officers and committees of last February's 'spiel were received and adopted and officers eelcted for next year's gathering of the curling clan.

The reports showed the tenth annual bonspiel had been as big a success as any of the previous ones, and that financially it had just carried itself.

To Continue Through Week.

In preparing for the eleventh annual it was decided that the 'spiel would open on Monday, Feb. 14, and continue throughout the week with the annual banquet and entertainment on the evening of Tuesday, Feb. 15, in the Royal York Hotel. It was also decided to limit the number of entries to 120 rinks, instead of 124, as was the case a year ago, and this means that five sheets of ice will be laid out at Varsity Arena instead of six.

AFTER THE BEST

BERLIN—(CP).—By an elimination process the best players on Germany's 35,000 soccer teams are to be tried out here by Dr. Nerz, national trainer, in an effort to get the best possible eleven for international play.

Fate Spins Cylinder And Lad Dies

Hollywood, Nov. 10 (AP)

CARROLL S. Anderson, 15, offered to show 11-year-old Robert Bellon how a dishonored imperial Czarist Guardsman would kill himself.

"Carroll put one bullet in the gun and whirled the cylinder," Robert related to police.

"'You see,' he said, 'the Russian always had five chances out of six not to be killed.'

"He just stood straight, like a Czar's bodyguard, lifted the gun to his head and pulled the trigger."

The sixth chance sent a bullet through Carroll's brain. He fell dead.

COTTAGES BURN

More than 100 persons formed a bucket brigade to pass water up the 50 feet between the cottages and the lake.

THE LORD MAYOR'S SHOW

LONDON, Nov. 10—(CP-Havas)—The elaborate, traditional Lord Mayor's show thrilled London Tuesday as Sir Harry Twyford drove through the City and Fleet street to the Royal Courts of Justice to take his oath of office. To-night the Lord Mayor's banquet will be held at the Guildhall.

The mile-long procession of this Coronation year included an especial Empire touch :: A pageant of Empire produce and trade."

BRUCE HAMILTON

Being honest enough to recognize the justice of the misfortune that had overtaken him by the evidence Adams had discovered, Tim never attempted to palliate his deficiencies by ascribing them to bad luck. For almost the only ethical principle he acknowledge was a belief that anyone who behaved in a foolish or injudicious manner fully deserved to suffer the consequences entailed by his own action.

He was not beyond applying the rule to himself, and even succeeded in extracting consolation from his own freedom from self-deception, arguing that experience would immunize him from blunders in the future. He admitted that he had been singularly fortunate to escape complete disaster at the price of a money tax which, however severe, he was not incapable of paying.

His external life, indeed, suffered no considerable change. Adams, now the mischief was out, relapsed into the model servant he always had been, treating Tim with scrupulous respect in public, and in private obtruding himself as little as possible, only using a very moderate degree of familiarity when contact was unavoidable.

He even showed positive consideration. It was at his suggestion that the story was given out at The Wilderness that his London doctor had advised him to take things easier owing to a weak heart. In this way his sudden emancipation from all household duties escaped dangerous speculation and comment, and Tim got credit for his thoughtfulness and solicitude.

It became necessary to take on a boy to relieve the extra pressure on the domestic staff, and this cost a little more money. But Adams fulfilled his promise to carry on with his work at the surgery. He showed his power only by more frequent demands for leave of absence, which he customarily overstayed.

Tim did not find his feelings toward Alma in any way diminished by worry over self-preservation. Indeed, he thought of her more often and with intenser passion, as a refuge from other preoccupations. But after a good deal of self-communion he decided not to advance the day for bringing his affairs with her to a clear understanding. He wanted to go to her with a clear, untroubled mind, and he felt this to be impossible under present conditions.

Though reconciled to the necessity of paying hush money for a while, he had no intention of continuing to do so indefinitely. But he needed time to elaborate a policy. He had a strong belief that, provided the inducement was sufficiently tempting, Adams would not be able to resist indefinitely the offer of a big cash payment in return for the letter. Freedom would bring restlessness, and by waiting patiently and choosing his time Tim hoped to arrange a deal which would make him his own master again.

The problem was how to raise the money. When he had told Adams that £600 was all he could manage, he was almost speaking the truth. Actually, he had rather over £600 at the bank—£500 on deposit, a sum he had for several years been intending to invest in industrial securities, the remainder the balance of his current account.

His standard of living had always marched pretty close to his income, and he had never succeeded in saving very much. During the last year, owing to Esther's accident, he had spent considerably more than was coming in. He had planned to put £200 or £300 a year when he reached the age of 50. Presuming he retired at 65 this amount, together with what he had saved already, and the proceeds of the sale of his practice, would have sufficed to buy him a comfortable annuity and make provision for Esther, if still alive.

It was evident that this scheme would have to be modified. He was agraid he might have to go up to £1,000 to attract Adams. At the same time, he was not prepared to curtail his rate of expenditure. He was fixed in his personal habits, used to certain comforts and conveniences which cost money; besides, his pride made it impossible to inaugurate his marriage to Alma with a regime of economy.

After long thought he devised what seemed to be a likely solution. If he let The Wilderness, which he could probably do at a rental of between £300 and £400 a year, he believed he would be able to borrow from his bank enough to make up £1,000 to buy off Adams. The rent would serve as security, and afford him something over for current expenses.

In the meantime he and Alma could live at Maybank. It would be a wrench parting with The Wilderness, it would be hard to ask Alma to share the sacrifice, for she had obviously fallen in love with the place. But he could provide a very plausible reason which would do him credit—say that for the time being memories of Esther had made the place unbearable to him. And they would be able to return there directly his finances were straight again, probably i na couple of years.

Under such circumstances, however, it would be advisable for him to make the gesture of offering to pay the rent of Maybank, or at least part of it. He was pretty certain that this did not amount to more than £80 or £90 a year, at an outside figure, but it became important to find out something about Alma's financial situation.

It is curious but quite characteristic that Tim had never shown the slightest interest in this. Never an avaricious man, he had rested serene in the assurance that he could earn enough to ensure the happiness of their lives together. There was no mercenary motive behind his pursuit of Alma. But he had assumed that she was quite comfortably off. Her dress, her whole style of living, were not that of a woman who found making ends meet and keeping up appearances anything of a struggle.

Tim could not of course sound her personally, however delicate his approach, with a proposal of marriage looming in the near foreground. But by discreet handling, so that they had no suspicion that they were being pumped, he managed to get the information he wanted out of the Granlleys, who had known Alma for a good many years.

It appeared that her personal fortune amounted to between £600 and £700 a year, leaving aside alimony (which would probably cease on remarriage) of about £200. This was eminently satisfactory, and Tim

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PRESENT.

"What kind of a noise did you hear, Bunty?" asked Buster.

"Oh, it was just a noise," said the little orphan rabbit.

She and Buster were in a field with Uncle Wiggily roasting pumpkin seeds as a treat on a hot stone at a bonfire. The orphan rabbit was getting ready to eat the browned, roasted pumpkin seeds Mr. Longears had given her on a dried oak leaf so the bunny girl wouldn't burn her paws.

"Just a noise, Buster," she said.

"Yes, I know, Bunty," said Buster, getting ready to take his share of the seeds. "But different things make different noises. Now was this a noise like a door slamming?"

"Don't be silly!" laughed the orphan rabbit watching Uncle Wiggily eat a roasted pumpkin seed so she would know how. "There isn't any door here."

Have a Treat.

"I know," said Buster. "I just said that to make you think. But can't you tell what kind of a noise it was—like—maybe—"and here he whispered — "like — maybe—a Bad Chap."

"No, said Bunty, who was beginning to crack a pumpkin seed between her cute little teeth to get at the roasted meat inside, "it was just a noise, Buster."

"Well, all right," said the boy rabbit. Then he began to eat some of the roasted pumpkin seeds as Uncle Wiggily was doing and soon all three bunnies were enjoying the treat.

"Do you like them?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he put some more pumpkin seeds on the hot stone to roast.

"Oh, yes, they're x-licious," said Bunty.

"You mean delicious," corrected Buster.

"Oh, well, what's the difference?" asked the orphan rabbit. "X is one letter and D is another. But pumpkin seeds, the way Unkie Wig roasts them, are good, anyhow."

"Yes, they are," agreed the rabbit boy. Every now and again he would stop chewing the roast pumpkin seed meats to listen. He wanted to find out what had made the noise Bunty heard.

"You didn't think I could roast pumpkin seeds, did you?" asked Uncle Wiggily with a laugh.

"No," said Bunty and Buster asked. "How did you learn?"

"Oh, my rabbit mother showed me when I was a little chap," said Mr. Longears. "She told me that in some other lands, like China, I think she said, people there roast and eat many pumpkin seeds. Just as people in Russia eat sun flower seeds and perhaps pumpkin seeds also, though whether they are roasted I don't know."

A Visitor.

Uncle Wiggily scooped more pumpkin seeds out from the wet, "icky" and "gooey" insides and was putting them down to roast when, all of a sudden, out popped the Bob Cat.

"Oh—oo—oo-oo! Oh—ee—ee-ee!" squealed Baby Bunty. "You must have been the noise I heard."

"I was!" mewed the Bob Cat. "I've been sneaking up on you. What are you doing here, Uncle Wiggily? Gurr! Burr! Purr!"

"I am roasting pumpkin seeds, if you please," said Mr. Longears.

"Well, I don't please!" snarled the Bob Cat. (Wasn't he mean?)

"Maybe," whispered Baby Bunty, "you would like some seeds, Mr. Bob Cat. They're x-lish—I mean delicius."

"Yes! I'd have some!" mewed the Bad Chap.

"I'll make you a present of these!" said Uncle Wiggily. With that he flung two paws full of the sticky, icky, gooey seeds in the Bob Cat's face, cluttering him up dreadfully. Then the Bad Chap ran away.

And if Jack Frost will paint red stripes on the icicles to make them look like candy sticks I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's home work.

ROTARY MEETINGS HELP EXCHANGING DIFFERENT IDEAS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, November 10—"Rotary serves not just as a meeting place to meet your fellow-men, but it serves also as a place for hearing the ideas of others," affirmed A. J. Armour in the second of a series of addresses delivered by members of the club at the noon-day luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday.

"Through these ideas you get to understand your fellow-men and sometimes your competitor in business in a much more intimate way than you had known him before. The first Rotary Club was formed by Paul Harris, to discuss ideas. We all have our prejudices and opinions. We tend to see only one side of things, and if there are any other sides they are wrong. Within a club, in contact with others, in exchange of ideas and opinions, all in a happy and good faith manner, we gradually lose this attitude."

Referring to the actions of Rotary in the 52 other countries in which there were clubs, and speaker explained that it had always maintained a sincere respect and regard for the political and religious institutions of that nation always co-operating toward a better international understanding.

"The work of Rotary cannot be accomplished fully by its own members. It takes the co-operation of non-members in the community." While it sponsors a worth-while service for the benefit of crippled children and other services for the good of mankind its work is limited to the means at its disposed to carry out its work. "It is sometimes surprising what can be done when started through the co-operation of the Rotary Club and the citizens of the community."

"I believe that in investing money, it is best to remember that the amount of interest you want should depend on whether you want to eat well or sleep well. Life is very much like a game of bridge; you mustp lay the game with the hand that is dealt you; after all, the greatest glory is winning with a poor hand and the greatest disgrace is losing with a good one. "If a man's trousers wear out quicker than his shoes, he is making contact at the wrong end," philosophized the speaker. "It is said that those who sit around and wait for prosperity will always work for those who don't. A man or business can become so conservative, as to just naturally sleep to death." The club decided to co-operate with the Boy Scouts who are holding an apple day on November 13th by supplying them with the necessary apples.

feit he could go ahead without fear of embarrassment.

Accordingly, one morning before going to work he looked in at Blacklidge and Son, the chief real estate agents in West Shilston, and had a very satisfactory conversation with the son.

"I can let The Wilderness easily, Mr. Kennedy," said young Blacklidge. "Just the right size for a country house just now. What length of lease have you in mind?"

"I thought about two years."

"It would be better for a longer or a shorter period, but I've no doubt we can manage it."

"What sort of rent can I ask for?"

You'd let furnished, I suppose?"

"Oh, certainly."

"Well, I'd like to talk it over with my father before making a definite suggestion. And it would be better for one of us to look over the place. But I should say provisionally you ought to ask for at lest £350, and be prepared to come down to £325. I certainly shouldn't let it go for less than £300."

Tim nodded. This was very much what he had expected.

"I wish you'd go ahead then. And if you or your father want to look over the house, I'll show you round. What about the lunch hour tomorrow?"

"That'll do, Mr. Kennedy. I think my father knows the accommodation pretty well. It's a question of condition, you see, sir. If the house is in good order, it makes quite a difference to the rent."

"Oh, it's in excellent order."

Tim went on to his surgery well satisfied. He finished work at about half past 1. He was about to cross the road to the William and Mary, where he usually lunched these days, when Dr. Harold Arkwright's car pulled up at the curb in front of him.

"Hullo, Tim," said Doctor Arkwright. "I haven't seen you for quite a while. Had your lunch?"

"I was just going over the road to get it."

"Well, jump in and come and have a bite with me instead."

"Thanks. I don't mind if I do."

Tim got in, and Doctor Arkwright restarted the car. "How are you feeling these days, old man?" he asked.

"Pretty low. But I keep going."

"Same here. But I don't know if I'll be able to much longer. I'm getting to be an old man, Tim. I'm seriously thinking of retiring next year."

"Nonsense, Harold. You've half a dozen years of good work in front of you yet."

Doctor Arkwright shook his head gloomily. "One's as old as one's arteries," he said. "I get tired very easily nowadays. And I find it harder and harder keeping my temper with stupid patients. That's fatal, you know."

"Oh, all you want is a good holiday."

HOARDED U.S. GOLD BEGINS TO MOVE OUT INTO WORLD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—United States officials packed up $10,500,000 in gold for shipment to France today, and stuck a "For Sale" sign on millions more.

The gold was purchased by the French Stabilization Fund, created a year ago when the franc left the gold standard. The transaction took place under the Anglo-Franco-American pact which seeks to prevent severe fluctuations in currency relationships.

It was the first time since March, 1936, the United States had exported any of the metal.

Simultaneously, however, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce reported $10,000,000 worth of gold bars has been landed there from Japan in the last two days. The Japanese Consul General in San Francisco said the shipments were not unusual.

For four years gold has poured into this country from other nations, building a store of $12,800,000,000—more than half the gold in the world.

During those four years, the fixed price was $35 an ounce which the Treasury paid for gold was the highest anyone in the world would offer. Yesterday, however, Europe was offering as high as $35.22 an ounce—a price exactly enough to cover the cost of the gold and of its shipment across the Atlantic.

Secret Sales Over

For two or three weeks, the United State Stabilization Fund has been selling a secret amount of gold which it owned in Europe. It could sell that metal at lower prices because it didn't have to be carried across the ocean. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau announced these foreign supplies now are exhausted.

To the public, he added, these transactions mean little. He explained that although the export of gold means the withdrawal of foreign money from United States banks, credit will not be tightened. The outflow will be counteracted, he said, by the Teasury's inactive gold (or sterilization) fund. This fund of $1,270,000,000 worth of gold was created on borrowed money last December. Then it looked as if the inflow of foreign money would create too much credit—that the excess money would be inflationary and cause prices of goods to rise faster.

Hence every time a person shipped $1,000,000 worth of gold here and got a $1,000,000 deposit in American bank, the Treasury borrowed another $1,000,000 from the public and thus prevented the foreign money from increasing the supply of money in circulation.

Now the reverse is going to happen, Morgenthau asserted. Every time a person buys $1,000,000 worth of gold here and thus reduced his deposits in American banks, the Treasury will take the $1,000,000 he paid for the gold and retire some of its debts.

SACRIFICES OF WAR MUST NOT BE FORGOTTEN

DUELLING GAINS IN POPULARITY AMONG NAZIS

Allow Boxing Gloves For Younger Members

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Duelling is regaining popularity in Nazi Germany, with rapiers and pistols for the men and boxing gloves for youth who would settle affairs of honor.

Oldest tradition of German universities, the duelling of today has been given some modern touches—lighter rapier usually replaces the once customary heavy sabre; an apology clause under a revised student honor code makes mediation possible; and an honor court replaces the older duel committee, comprised of the four deputies of the combatants.

"Sanctity of man's honor" has become a Nazi battle cry, and a Nazi student or party member from the youngest Hitler youth up may use the duel to maintain it.

Honor courts for ruling on duels are maintained throughout the nation, their rules patterned after the student honor code which was issued last June.

The Nazi party itself operates five honor courts, there are the students' honor courts, and similar institution are operated by branches of the industries, craftsmen's guilds, and Nazi journalists.

One Exception

Duels with pistols are the exception—the recent fatal wounding of Roland E. Strunk, a newspaper reporter, in contest with Horst Krutschinna, Hitler youth worker, is the only one known to have occurred in Germany since the ban on duelling was lifted in 1933. Krutschinna, party sources said, committed suicide.

The combat ring is a rectangle seven by 33 feet, within which the opponents can move about freely — a style which is called the "sprungmensur." This form requires skill and considerable courage.

The commonly used light sabre weighs 26.2 ounces, and has a blade length of 35 inches. Fifteen inches of the edge and six inches of the back of the blade are ground sharp. The point is filed off.

In serious cases, the opponents face each other with exposed chests, only the main arteries and the abdomen being protected by leather bandages. Duels of a lighter character call for bandages to protect head, eyes, neck, arms, heart and abdomen, and for gloves of mail.

The "simple" Sabre duel is fixed at 30 minutes, with two-minutes intermissions every 10 minutes. The "heavy" duel ends when one of the combatants is disabled.

It still is unwritten law among the students that wincing is "dis-

BOMB EXPLODES DUBLIN BUILDING

DUBLIN, Nov. 11.—(AP)— A terrific blast from a mine planted under the Royal Coat of Arms surmounting the post office engineering headquarters wrecked the front of the structure to-day and gave Dublin a violent Armistice Day awakening.

The Royal Arms were blown to pieces and windows of all nearby buildings, including the adjoining city hall, were shattered. No casualties were reported.

The post office building, in Exchange Court, is in the immediate vicinity of Dublin Castle, headquarters of a special branch of the detective division.

A similar explosion wrecked the Royal Naval Volunteer Rercruiting office in Belfast, Northern Island, last night. Belfast police believed that the blast might have been in reprisal for the jailing of four members of the Irish Republican Army.

Albino Buck Shot In Dorset Area

'All Hypocrisy', Man Shouts As King Prays

Breaks Guard Lines Dashes Within 7 Yards of Monarch

Women Scream as Police Grab Mumbling Hysteric As He Shatters Solemnity of Armistice Silence

LONDON, Nov. 11—(CP Cable)—An apparently hysterical man burst upon the fraught silence of Armistice Day in Whitehall today. He broke through two lines of sailors, stumbling into the cleared area towards the King who, bareheaded, was facing the cenotaph.

The man was identified as Stanley Storey who escaped Sept. 21 from the Cane Hill asylum in Surrey, was yelling incoherently and appealing to the King to end hypocrisy and end war. He was dressed in a raincoat and carried nothing. Five police broke through the amazed, youthful sailors and overtook the man who stumbled in passing the last rank.

They piled on him three yards in front of the sailors, muffling his anguished yells but not altogether preventing his muttering which rent the pregnant two minutes' silence about 20 seconds after great guns had signalled the 19th observation of Armistice Day.

A struggle ensued on the pavement about seven yards to the right side of the King and about three yards to the left rear of Prime Minister Chamberlain, Opposition Leader Clement Attlee, Lord Chancellor Viscount Hailsham, and other parliamentary figures.

The police in 15 seconds picked up the fair-haired middle-aged disturber and carried him into the densely packed crowds where his silence was enforced until the end of the two minutes.

King Shows No Fear.

The King did not reveal any emotion at the outbreak, although it was rendered especially alarming by women who screamed as the man made his first move.

The white cockaded police chief and high army officers rode their mounts across the cearing, quietly supervising any possible prolongation of the disturbance.

Mr. Chamberlain and his fellow-Cabinet Ministers did not move a head, nor did the Duke of Gloucester, slightly behind the King and about five yards from the skirmish But he nevertheless was quite aware of the proceeding and likely would have had to make a telling tackle of the man if he had moved another yard closer.

Efforts to quieten the man in the crowd after he had been taken off the clearance either knocked him unconscious or he fainted. He certainly was unconscious as he was carried off right under the nose of the Canadian Press orrespondent who was standing in a first-floor window immediately above the disturbance.

The crowd booed but the police quieted it down in a few seconds. The writer did not hear anyone cry "Kill him!"—as was reported by some observers—although it might have been the impulsive thought of many gathered there.

Question of how the man was able to break into the clearing momentarily mystified onlookers. But he chose his time about 15 seconds after the silence began—a time when all present, including the supposed

TELEVISION GETS STIRRING INCIDENT AT ROYAL HOMAGE

LONDON, Nov. 11—(AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation caught the incident in Whitehall during the Armistice Day observance in a television broadcast today. It was the first time in history that such an event had been reported by television.

A Press Association reporter, in an office a mile from Whitehall clearly saw and heard the incident.

"Big Ben had just chimed the hour," he said, "and no sooner had the television camera been focused on the memorial than the incident occurred.

"A man who had been standing near the cabinet ministers was heard to shout 'All this is hypocrisy —you're deliberately preparing for war!'

"His other cries were drowned out by the clatter of hooves of the mounted policemen's horses and the shuffle of feet as the man was removed. The King, mourners and troops around the Cenotaph stood motionless."

Hundreds of television set owners B.B.C. has estimated there are 3,000 sets in England—saw and heard the same thing.

Another untoward incident was reported outside the Spitalfields Market Church where a man who shouted during the service was manhandled by the crowd.

Canada Pauses To Honor Her 60,661 War Dead

Governor, Premiers, Prominent Men Of Church, State Lead Nation In Homage

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—(CP).— Canada paused in reverence to honor the memory of her 60,661 Great War dead to-day, 19th anniversary of the day the guns ceased to roll on the western front. In city and town, village and hamlet, the Dominion's hustle and bustle was muted. From the Atlantic to the Pacific, Canadians remembered.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, members of the Cabinet, the Commons and the Senate and others prominent in church and state led the nation in homage to the fallen. The national service in Ottawa on Parliament Hill at 11 a.m. was heard by reverent thousands through a coast-to-coast broadcast.

Through five time zones the bugle's Last Post was sounded. In provincial capitals Lieutenant-Governors and Premiers, Members of Legislature and leaders in business paid tribute with the people to the sacrifice made in four years of war, from Aug. 4, 1914, to Nov. 11, 1918.

Starts In Halifax.

The poignant bugle farewell to the dead first was heard in Halifax, Charlottetown, Fredericton and Saint John as citizens of the Maritime Provinces gathered around cenotaphs at 11 o'clock. Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and other centres in the eastern time zone then joined in memorial services, to be followed by Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and British Columbia.

Tonight, Hon. C. G. Power, Federal Minister of Pensions, will address an ex-servicemen's dinner in Ottawa. Prime Minister King, Brig.-Gen. Alex. Ross, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion; Sir Frederick Maurice, British Legion president, and Jean Desbons, president of the French organization, then will participate in a national broadcast at 10 p.m.

Though the day was not declared a statutory holiday, many schools throughout the Dominion were closed. Courts and civil offices in most cities did not open, while in the majority of Canadian centres the larger stores and places of business

Police, Bandits Raid Club Same Time

New York, Nov. 11 (UP)

THREE bandits selected a poor time to hold up a gambling club on Fifty-second Street early today. Police also had chosen that moment to raid the club. The result: Police loaded eleven alleged gamblers into the patrol wagon and two holdup men, one wounded. The third bandit escaped.

JUVENILE GANG TACTICS AMAZE TORONTO COURT

TORONTO, Nov. 11 (C.P.). — Toronto was stirred to-day by reports indicating two "dead end" gangs of juveniles were operating in the city. The arrest of three youths revealed one such alleged organization, while a coroner's jury was amazed by testimony concerning the other.

A few days ago Adam Czepok, elderly hay dealer, was thrown through the closed door of a garage and injured fatally when his wagon was struck by a stolen automobile. A 14-year-old boy who admitted a man taught him how to steal cars by "hooking up" ignition wires named five other boys as his companions on the fatal joy-ride.

He had started the stolen machine and with him were youngsters known as "Tony the Barber, Muchy, Greeko and Augie," in gangster style. After hearing his story and the declaration of Crown Attorney Norman Bolin that at least two of the boys were identifying "gang bracelets," the jury found that four of the six lads were criminally negligent in the hay dealer's death.

Two Cleared.

Two of the boys—all under 16—are under arrest, while the two exonerated by the jury had, according to evidence, no part in the theft of the automobile. The young witness

BRITISH WRITER KILLED WATCHING SHANGHAI BATTLE

SHANGHAI, Nov. 11.—(AP). — Chinese Nantao defences along the east bank of Zahwei Creek collapsed to-day under hours of battering by Japanese tanks, infantry, machine guns and artillery.

Three hundred of the estimated 6,000 Chinese troops defending the Nantao quarter of Shanghai fled to the French concession, where they were disarmed and interned. The flight was thought to be a prelude to collapse of the last Chinese resistance in this International city.

Pembroke Stephens, correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, was killed while watching the battle. A. L. Turvansky and P. Anciter, employees of French concession street car lines, were wounded.

Stephens and five other foreigners were watching the battle from the French water tower in the French concession. Captain Evans Carlson, United States' marine observer, was standing beneath the tower. He saw blood dripping, climbed the 300-foot structure and found Stephens dead and the other foreigners trying to stay out of range of bullets.

Ideals Fought For Must Ever Remain Challenge To Peace

Hon. Ian Mackenzie Urges Canadians To Not Be Discouraged By War Rumors

Memories of the Great War and its prolonged sacrifice challenge the people of Canada today to a new and greater desire and striving for national unity, comradeship and peace, Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Defence, declared in his address at Peterborough's celebration of Remembrance Day this morning at the Capitol Theatre.

The shadow of disillusion across the ideals for which the unforgotten hosts of men gave their lives, the surrender of liberty by some of the nations that fought to "make the world safe for democracy," and the renewal of war in China and Spain, must not be permitted to deepen present discouragement into despair, the Minister declared to the audience of ex-service men and other citizens that completely filled the theatre.

New problems confront the new generation that has grown up since the war, Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said. "While we treasure the ideals for which our men died, we must be realists, we must not leave Canada defenceless before swash-buckling international gangsters. We have a country worth keeping, deserving from us that great measure of loyalty and devotion which was given by them whose memory we honor today."

Lieut. Colonel Max R. Sloan was chairman of the meeting which terminated the morning program sponsored by the Legion, and was the occasion of a splendid welcome to Hon. Mr. Mackenzie to Peterborough since he assumed the administration of the Department of Defense.

From the preliminary incidents of Remembrance at the Legion's cenotaph and the city's war memorial, the parade of members of the Legion and other men who fought in the war proceeded to the theatre accompanied by many hundreds of citizens.

Minister's Address

"Nineteen years ago today the Armistice was signed in the forest of Compeigne by Marshall Foch and Admiral Wemyss for the allied forces, and today we again pay tribute to those whose memory we cherish, our million dead of the great British Empire, including our own 60,000 Canadians," Hon. Ian Mackenzie began. "How well do we remember you,—Old Comrades of the Line! The Greeks used to say—

JACK STRICKLAND IS FATALLY SHOT NEAR HAULTAIN

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 11. — John Crickmore Strickland, 58, scion of a family whose illustrious name is inseparably linked with the founding and progress of Lakefield Village, was the victim of a hunting fatality on Wednesday afternoon.

He was reportedly shot and killed by his own rifle while attempting to separate two dogs who engaged in a fight in the woods within a hundred yards of Highway 28, about 4-miles north of Haultain, in Burleigh Township. Coursing through his body the heavy calibre bullet pierced the pancreas and liver and shattered the second lumbar vertebra, a post mortem examination conducted by Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith and Dr. T. W. H. Young revealed. Death was almost instantaneous. An inquest is to be held.

Source of Deep Sorrow

Mr. Strickland's tragic death in the woods he loved so well was a source of deepest sorrow to his countless friends throughout the county and district. It brought to a sad conclusion a full life that had tasted adventure in the far places of the earth, and one that had made a worthy contribution in many years of civic service first as councillor, then as Reeve of Lakefield, as his father and his grandfather had done before him, and finally attained to the Wardenship of the County of Peterborough in 1922.

Mr. Strickland was described by one who knew him intimately as "a good sport, a most generous and hospitable host, and a wonderful friend." His record bears that tribute out to the full.

He was one of the promotors of the curling and skating rink here, and had always taken an active interest in outdoor sports. Besides being a member of the Curling Club he was a keen huntsman, a proficient lawn bowler, and an ardent fisherman.

Characteristic Act

The act that is reported to have cost Mr. Strickland his life was perhaps characteristic of his big-hearted nature and his willingness always to champion the cause of the "under dog."

His hunting companion and sole eye-witness John Blewett, Lakefield guide told authorities who investigated that he and Mr. Strickland had just met again in the woods after having been on separate trails since earlier in the day, when around half past two o'clock they heard a yelping in the bush. Thinking it might be a bear cub, Mr. Strickland followed the sound and came Brown was arrested on a manslaughter charge. T. C. Smith, Toronto, with him in the car, was charged with having liquor in an illegal place. Bertoli and Vingiono were employed by a company that has a contract for resurfacing the road.

FULL STRENGTH ARMIES

PARIS, Nov. 11 (C.P.-Havas). — Genevieve Tabouis said in the Radical Socialist newspaper L'Ouevre to-day that European governments are considering persistent rumors that Italy and Germany will retain in service hundreds of thousands of soldiers due to be dismissed from military classes this month.

This will involve 840,000 men in C many alone, she said.

The writer declared Italian volunteers recently reported withdrawn from Spain and sent to Libya were merely relieved for a rest.

Police arrested James Saunders, 36-year-old automobile dealer, in a downtown office building yesterday. They said fingerprints identified him as Sweeney, last of 11 men indicted in 1933 for the O'Connell abduction.

British Steamer Goes Ashore Off Manila, Sends S.O.S.

Craft Believed Victim Of Pacific Typhoon—Aid On Way

MANILA, Nov. 11.— (AP).— The British steamship Kenilworth sent out distress calls to-day saying she was ashore near Point Pinanjugan on Luzon Island, south-east of Manila, and in need of immediate assistance.

The surveyor for the port of Manila said meagre advices indicated the freighter had had "a serious accident."

Weather bureau officials reported a typhoon sweeping in from the Pacific undoubtedly had caused bad weather where the Kenilworth went ashore.

The steamship Shousing answered the SOS but reported she was unable to help because of heavy seas. The steamer Atlantic Gulf was ordered to the scene.

Reports here did not indicate whether the Kenilworth carried passengers and did not state number of the crew.

Shipping registers list a Kenilworth of 5,467 tons, owned by the Worth Steamship Company and R. S. Dalgleish of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. Another steamer of the same name but much smaller was listed as operating out of Glasgow.

"Insult" Keeps Windsor From Paris Armistice Day Ceremony

PARIS, Nov. 11—(AP).—An Anglican vicar apologized to-day to the Duke of Windsor for an "insult" to a "man who couldn't defend himself," after the Duke had stayed away from an Armistice Day service within St. George's Church here because his presence previously had been declared unwelcome.

The clergyman, Rev. J. L. C. Dart explaining his expressed wish that the Duke not attend the service, told the British Legion:

"The very last thing I wished to do was publicly to insult a man who couldn't defend himself. Reporters made me do that. Nothing was further from my intentions. I swear that is true. I wish to take this opportunity to apologize."

The vicar revealed he had telephoned the Duke's equerry, Lieut. Dudley Forwood, an hour before the service and said he wanted to apologize to the Duke for "what amounted to a public insult."

The Duke Refuses.

He said he told Lieut. Forwood that the Duke would be received by him and the church congregation with "all the respect due the King's brother" if he would consent to attend.

The Duke, however, refused.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, remaining within their hotel, bought poppies from an Englishwo-

Alibi Brings Fine For Speaker

St. Paul, Minn, Nov. 11 (AP)

JOSEPH Wisby's alibi backfired today when he was brought into Municipal Court on a speeding charge.

He testified he couldn't have been going 35 miles an hour, as charged, because he had read in the papers that new traffic signals along University avenue were synchronized for 26 miles an hour and he met green lights all the way.

The court fined him $4 and informed him the new traffic lights wouldn't be turned on until next Monday. The speed limit is 30 miles an hour.

Peterboro' County Boys Are Second At Ottawa Fair

Carleton County Team Wins by 43 Points In Junior Farmer Judging Contests

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Carleton county beat Peterborough county, winners the past two years, by 43 points in the inter-county livestock judging at the Ottawa Winter Fair yesterday. Ten counties, represented by 30 junior farmers, competed for the fair's trophy in judging heavy horses, beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and swine.

The Carleton county team composed of Ferguson Pratt, North Gower, Karl Craig, Osgoode, and Sinclair Campbell, Winchester, compiled a total of 2,696 points out of a possible 3,000. Eddie Downie, Carp, Clifton Pratt, and Harold Marshall, Carp, making up the Carleton county team, were second with 1,296.

Other counties and their points: Glengarry, 1,254; Peterborough, 1,248; Grenville, 1,213; Hastings, 1,200; Northumberland, 1,122; Prince Edward, 1,121; Leeds, 1,076; Frontenac 1,020 and Lennox and Addington 990. Thirty-three junior farmers from the 11 counties competed.

MONTREAL "RED" CLEANUP WIDENS

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—(CP). — Officers of the Quebec Attorney-General's Department to-day began study of a stack of books, pamphlets and circulars to determine nature of the literature, seized in five raids conducted by provincial police under the province's "padlock law" against Communism.

The law, designed to halt spread in Quebec of Communist propaganda and adopted at the last session of the Legislature, was invoked for the first time Tuesday, when officers of the French Weekly Clarte were padlocked as well as the printing plant where formerly it was published.

Three raids yesterday yielded heaps of literature and one of them closed the boarding house of Jean Peron, Clarte editorial writer. The old Rose Printing Company was locked and nearly all the library of the Modern Bookshop was seized, but the store was allowed to stay open. There have been no arrests.

Director P. A. Pluze of the Quebec Provincial Police and Crown Prosecutor Oscar Gagnon declined to disclose whether further raids would be made. At Quebec Tuesday Premier Duplessis, bitter foe of Communism, announced it was "just the beginning."

HOPES WINDSOR MISSES SERVICES

man and gave them to British Legionnaires. The Windsors gave "quite a bit" to the veterans' fund in return for the poppies, the Englishwoman said.

Immediately after the church service, the Paris Branch of the British Legion met at the home of one of its members and instructed its secretary to telephone the Legion's London headquarters for advice on whether it should pass a resolution of regret for presentation to the Duke.

Legionnaires said they already had invited the Duke of Windsor to attend their annual ceremonies this afternoon at Notre Dame Cathedral, at the foot of a brass plaque in memory of the British Empire's war dead.

Only Personal Views.

The vicar explained to a group of 60 Legionnaires gathered at a small "protest meeting" outside the church that he was only expressing personal views when he said yesterday:

"I would rather the Duke did not attend the services."

The Vicar told the group: "I will be very sorry if the Duke does not come. I will be very sorry if my statement is taken as a suggestion that the Duke stay away."

The Vicar then was told by Colonel Theodore Crowther, commander of the Paris post of the British Legion, that the Duke already had decided he would be "unable to come."

Colonel Crowther persuaded most of the 60 protesters to enter the church, but a half dozen refused.

The Vicar had said: "I am told that the Duke is coming alone. I am not welcoming him because after all he is injecting a controversial element into a service which means much to all of us.

"Will Not Speak to Him."

"Although I do not welcome the Duke's coming, I cannot prevent it. The Duke comes to my church because he is the Duke of Windsor, because he was once on the throne. I have given him the best seat I can, but I will not speak to him."

The Vicar had said he had "a certain respect" for the Duke and that he was "thankful for the good things he had done in the past."

"But the attitude of the church in the matter of divorce and remarriage is very definite. Marriage only ends before God when it is ended by death," he added.

They went with songs to the battle, they were young,
Straight of limb, true of eye,

They were staunch to the end

They fell with their faces to

They shall not grow old, as we

Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun

"FOR THE FALLEN" by LAWRENCE BINYON

Ideals Fought For Must Remain Challenge For Peace Of World

'Whom the Gods love die young.' Their youth, their courage, their patience, their boundless humor, we can never forget them.

"From year to year Remembrance Day is honored at the eleventh hour, of the eleventh day of the eleventh month of the year, when all the world (where there is peace) is hushed, and the activities of men are stilled by the Holy Calm. Out there before your Cenotaph our greatest tribute was our silence and our song of praise.

Died for Great Ideals

"The men who are remembered were men who died for great ideals," Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said, "and the world suffers because the ideals for which they died have not yet been realized. Many of us here today had the high honor of fighting for the same ideals. We recognize the same duty, though many of us suffer from disillusionment and sometimes from despair in the recollection of the great sacrifice that was paid for those ideals. If our sixty thousand dead were to come back to us they would be broken hearted over the apparent wreckage of our civilization. They fought and died to make the world safe for democracy, but they would witness a world where democracy was never in greater peril, in which men worship strange gods, force seems to triumph over reason, and hatred over goodwill. They would find a world sectioned into dictatorships of the Right and Left, based on brute force and stark denial of liberty.

"Did they come back today they would see wars and hear rumors of wars; ships of war prowling the seas, aeroplanes darkening the skies of two continents; the sacking of cities, the bombing of helpless, innocent non-combatants; the destruction of universities, hospitals and academies of art. They would see civil war in Spain, carnage in China, and all other nations with foundries and forges red hot with preparation of armaments for destruction.

See Collapse of Ideals

"If our young Canadians died to make the world 'safe for democracy' we of the aftermath have witnessed the terrible collapse. The world is not only unsafe for democracy, but is a deadly peril to all the forces of freedom. Civilization itself is imperilled unless the world is restored to safety.

"In the spirit of Remembrance Day we must not desert the cause that was theirs," Hon. Mr. Mackenzie declared. "As by their sacrifice they overcame the menace of their time, so too we must strive together in our day to combat the forces of hatred and of evil and the lurking spectre of war, and to promote peace and goodwill. Remembrance Day should be a renewal of our earlier pledge that the sacrifice of our war dead was not in vain.

Should Promote Unity

"The watchwords of the Canadian Legion should be the watchwords of the world—unity, comradeship and peace. Let us treasure those things which unite us, and overlook the things that tend to divide. We cannot have, for it is now impossible, the comradeship of the poplar fringed roads, the slippery duck-boards, the trench bays of the front lines, but we can have a comradeship of man to man in our own time. For us, too, is possible peace, in industry, within our nation, and also between nations.

"And yet, while we treasure the ideals for which our men died, we are constrained to be realists. We must face the duty that remains for us. We must not leave Canada defenceless before land hungry, free-booting nations, or swash-buckling international gangsters. We Canadians have a country worth keeping, dowered by nature with great lavishness, and deserving from us that same measure of loyalty and devotion which was given by them whose memory we honor today.

"Here today, then, as we remember the magnitude of the sacrifice made by our own land in the Great War; as we remember the widow and the orphan 'of him who shall have borne the brunt of battle,' let us at the same time dedicate ourselves anew with fervor and loyalty and devotion to the cause of this great land.

Signs of Remembrance

"The memorials and cenotaphs were reminders of the great sacrifice made by men of our own country and our own towns," the Minister continued. "Their known graves have been suitably marked, the unknown graves are reverently commemorated by name on great and beautiful structures that have been specially erected. The cemeteries are under the sympathetic control of the Imperial War Graves Commission. In France and Flanders there are one thousand new British war cemeteries. Similar cemeteries are to be found all the way from Antwerp to Jerusalem and from the Baltic to the Bosphorus. They stretch across Switzerland and Italy, across the Greek Islands down the Gallipoli peninsula, through Syria and Palestine, then southward to Egypt and East Africa.

"It is as if a giant had strode about from the English Channel to the Sea of Galilee, leaving great white footmarks as he passed. The line extends across the north of India to China, to Australia and New Zealand, across Canada where there are 7,000 war graves in 1500 places.

Tasks of the Living

"Inscribed on the altar of our beautiful Peace Tower in the Parliament buildings in Ottawa are these words: 'My marks and scars I carry with me to be a witness for me that I have fought His battles who now will be my Rewarder. So he passed over, and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side.'

"Let us then turn aside from the memories of the dead to the tasks of the living. Our task is not finished until final justice has been rendered in Canada to everyone who has endured suffering or impairment from the last great conflict. With the memories of twenty years ago we must combine the work of today and tomorrow.

"We must strive in the immortal words of Lincoln not only 'to bind up the nation's wounds,' to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and orphan, but also 'to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.'

"This is the message of Remembrance Day, the tasks before us today and tomorrow,—unity, comradeship, peace."

Legion President's Address

The ideals and purposes of the Canadian Legion were recalled by Lieutenant-Colonel M. R. Sloan, president of the Legion, as chairman of the concluding Remembrance Day assembly of the morning in the Capitol Theatre.

"When the late Sir Arthur Currie, war time commander of the Canadian Corps was president of the Canadian Legion when it was organized in 1925 he penned the notable words: 'They served till death, why not we?' that are inscribed on official Legion stationery, and he left for us a heritage to carry on the work of aiding returned soldiers and their dependents. So our first duty is to carry on our pension and relief work," Lieut. Col. Sloan said.

"The late Earl Haig spent the later years of his life after the war travelling from country to country comprising the British Empire forming a united body of returned men's organizations to be known as the British Empire Service League, of which the Canadian Legion is an important unit, so that they could present their requests in a collective manner to the governing authorities. This need of unity is even greater today. Still, we have various individuals and minor organizations presenting to our governing bodies claims for changes in pension legislation.

"Our governments, I believe, desire to create the best possible pension legislation, but it is no wonder they are bewildered when there is no unity of thought or wish among these various exponents of change.

Mayor George A. Macdonald

"After nineteen years we are wondering today, whether the last great war, served to convince the world that the ways of peace are the only safe and sane ways for the world to follow. We are also wondering if that first Armistice Day, merely signified an interlude in the great world conflict, rather than a cessation of hostilities for all time. At that time we said with confidence, never again shall these cruelties, these sorrows, these great sacrifices be necessary, for the nations of the world have learned war's great and final lesson," said mayor Macdonald.

"The thought that was uppermost in the minds of men and women across the world, was that Armistic Day was a day of Remembrance, a loving, grateful, sorrowing remembrance of them who came not back again from the fields of battle. We pledged ourselves that we would not let their memory die, nor their names perish from the earth. We knew in our hearts, that the remembrance of them would be the greatest bulwark for the world's peace."

Significance of Dead

ing if the deep significance of their sacrifice has become confused in the welter of the new race-hatreds and new war-lusts. On this nineteenth Armistice Day, remembrance to many will seem a futile thing in face of the wars that are already being waged and the preparations of the nations for other possible wars. Apparently the memory of the "Crosses, row on row" have little significance.

"And yet let us repeat—the Greatest bulwark of the world's peace is the remembrance of our great and glorious dead. From their far scattered resting places, shall come forth our highest ideals for the world's peace. Ideals which if not today, then tomorrow, or tomorrow's morrow, will change the course of the world's history into the paths of peace. Let this Armistice Day be also a day of solemn, grateful, tender, and proud remembrance of the men, who gave their all, that the world might win through, to a place of freedom, safety and peace.

"Also at this time we are not unmindful of the splendid efforts of our own Peterborough boys, who are today banded together, in one common effort to alleviate suffering and hardship among their less fortunate comrades, and are demonstrating that they stand for law and order, and the high principles of Christianity and civilization, and I assure you comrades, that in the pursuit of these high ideals you will have the continued support of the citizens of Peterborough. I also wish to pay tribute to the nursing sisters of this city for their splendid work during the war."

guards, were virtually immobilized into inertia thoughtfully observing the two minutes which this year was done perhaps not so much looking backward to the glorious dead as prayerfully looking forward lest the glorious dead died for naught.

The man moved through the two-yards-thick crowd, then began to yell. As he passed through the ranks two Saint John Ambulance men jumped into the navy ranks, which, though seemingly much ado, took perhaps three seconds. The fact is the police were remarkably quick to overtake him where they did.

Momentarily disturbing frightening though the outbreak was, it failed in any way to disorganize the impressive and magnificently arranged Armistice observance.

After the National Anthem the service went on with the unerring dignity with which it began. The King, dressed smartly in a fawn coat over his arm uniform, impressed all by his even bearing and simple gestures. The Duke of Kent was dressed in naval uniform, the Duke of Gloucester in military garb, and the Cabinet Ministers in sombre black morning coats and top hats.

A cold, fresh breeze blew the white gowns of the Westminster Choir boys and the robes of the Bishop of London. Rt. Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, who conducted the brief service.

Crowd Gathers at 9 a.m.

The great crowd thronged Whitehall as early as 9 a.m. and by 9.30 troops began taking up their places in the wide street marked by white lines. Four brigades of the Palace Guards, the regular Army, Navy, Air Force Marines, and Mercantile Marine detachments, and a great body of ex-Service men and women were there.

Planes flew overhead hauling a streamer: "Please Buy A Poppy," and from the appearance of the streets everyone in London did buy poppies to-day.

The ex-Service men were in mufti but lined up nevertheless in military fashion. One section was made up of blind ex-soldiers while many were on self- or machine-propelled chairs. Two buses were filled with disabled veterans who were able to view the ceremony but not take part physically.

Cabinet ministers and the High Commissioners of the Dominions lined up at the base of the cenotaph. Malcoln MacDonald, so recently bereaved, was among the cabinet ministers. Vincent Massey, representing Canada, was in the leading position among the High Commissioners.

The Abbey choir and the Bishop of London took their posts early and the King led a party of about ten from the Palace, including the Dukes of Gloucester and Kent and representative officers of all the services.

The King Salutes.

The King saluted the Cenotaph, paused, and then strode forward to the base, placing thereon dark laurels and crimson poppies. After setting them down he saluted. Then the representative service officers repeated the tribute, followed by Prime Minister Chamberlain, Dominions Secretary MacDonald, and High Commissioner Massey, in that order.

Then came bellowed orders from various sides of the Cenotaph in all-inclusive terms to their men as follows: "The regular army — 'shunn"; "The Royal Navy—'shunn," and so on right through the air force, marines and ex-service men.

Then Big Ben boomed 11 o'clock and there and all over London the great silence fell. Suburban, business, financial, and market districts noted the time with the resounding cannon or bugle units sounding the Last Post.

The silence of Whitehall was fated to suffer the unprecedented disturbance. On its reception even the disturbance added significance to the great national obeisance.

The Last Post sounded on the man being carried off. Then the National Anthem. Whereupon the King, who had shown no sign of recognition there had been any incident, walked through a narrow path between the service contingents up Whitehall to the Haig memorial, unveiled yesterday. There he laid a wreath and returned to Downing street.

He stepped on to the Horse Guards' parade ground and got into a limousine wit the Queen, Queen Mary, and the two Dukes, returning to Buckingham Palace. The Queen, Queen Mary and others of the Buckingham Palace party saw the disturbance from a window of the home office.

Meanwhile, back at the Cenotaph, began a many-hour file which by late afternoon had covered the great area at the base of the plain grey memorial with wreaths and flowers of all kinds and sizes, representing every type, individual or organization within the United Kingdom and the Empire.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 11. — Wheat futures closed 2 cents higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange despite profit-taking and adverse intermarket spreading.

Frost in the Argentine and prospects for more overnight, higher outside grain and stock markets induced early buying to send prices up 3 cents. Pre-holiday selling left the closing prices 1⅞c to 2¼c higher.

A moderate demand for Canadian wheat from both Atlantic and Pacific ports was reported. Sales yesterday were estimated at 300,000 bushels on top of the 1,000,000-bushel business the day before to Europe and the United Kingdom.

Revival of buying by Germany and sale of 328,176 bushels of Australian wheat to the United Kingdom were factors at Liverpool where prices closed 1¾d higher. Shippers' offers were firm.

Three cargoes of durum wheat were sold to Greece while Germany took an unnamed quantity of durums. Russian offers were reported nowhere so free as a few weeks ago and Danubian shipments this week were termed insignificant.

Speculative trading in rye featured a quiet coarse grain session. All futures were firm. Rye closed 1⅞c to 2¼c higher.

honoring conduct." Seconds and witnesses of either party are on the constant lookout to detect the slightest flicker in the eyes of the opponent, or an expression of pain after a cut. In such case, the duel would be stopped immediately and the "weakling" be dismissed from the fraternity.

In case of the death of one opponent, the old Imperial Army Corps tradition of six months to one year's confinement for the other in a fortress is said still to be in force.

FIGHTING JOE IS BEATEN FOR MAYOR

EDMONTON, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Joseph A. Clarke, "Fighting Joe" of Edmonton public life and chief magistrate the last three years failed to win a fourth term in yesterday's civic election and will be succeeded as mayor by John W. Fry an alderman for five years.

Returns from all but seven of 148 polls gave Fry 10,164 votes to 6,956 for Clarke.

Three other candidates were far in the ruck, Guy Patterson, 3,126; J. S. Cowper, 2658; and F. J. Speed, 51.

Of the 19 contestants for the half dozen aldermanic vacancies Miss Margaret Cran was running ninth with only half the 148 polls reported. She was leading the four retiring councillors seeking re-election for a two-year term to the 10 member council.

Mr. Clarke, veteran of 30 election campaigns, sought re-election on a platform proposing restorations of civic wage scales of 1929, establishment of a 40-hour, five-day week in civil service and readjustment of Edmonton's $32,000,000 bonded debt.

Mr. Fry referred to this record as chairman of the committee which launched a moderate, low-cost housing program in Edmonton last year. The Mayor-elect came West from Ontario to Kitscoty, Alta., in 1905, and five years later moved to Edmonton.

Religious Tolerance Assured Ethiopians By Mussolini

Italian Engineers However Are Building Catholic Churches Under Duce's Orders

ROME, Nov. 11—(AP)—Premier Mussolini has adopted a policy of religious tolerance toward Ethiopia's "0,000,000 natives although Catholic churches are going up in the newly acquired domain under his direct orders.

Thus Mussolini has offered the natives an open door in Ethiopia, and at the same time left the way clear for enlightenment of a non-sectarian nature and for the native pursuit of native faith.

Mussolini's engineers have built, or are completing eight Catholic churches with dozens of auxiliary schools, dispensaries and clinics in Ethiopia. Further, Il Duce has stimulated the idea of Catholic mission education.

He estimates 800 priest missionaries and 1,200 nuns are needed to aid Fascism in the work of "Italianizing" the conquered territory. The Salesian Brotherhood—famous for its work in South Africa—has been authorized to lead the mission work.

On the other hand, he has renovated dozens of crumbling churches of the Coptic Congregation, by far the greatest numerically in the Central Ethiopian Uplands. Italian colonial officers have shown respect for the authority of its "abundas" or bishops.

Moslems in the east and south of the domain also have received the Premier's guarantees. He holds the "sword of Islam," bejewelled fighting emblem of Islamic authority, presented by Arab Mohammedians during his visit to Libya last March.

Mussolini has given orders for the establishment of a model Moslem capital in Harrar, second largest in Ethiopia.

Tolerance of other sects has been decreed. To make the decree effective a religious census has been ordered.

At present, loose figures indicate there are about 1,740 Protestant natives in Ethiopia.

With the field open to Catholic teaching, Pope Pius has responded vigorously. Monsignor Giovanni Castellani already is installed in Adis Ababa as apostolic delegates, the first to be sent to Ethiopia.

MONTREAL PAPER STAYS PADLOCKED

MONTREAL, Nov. 11—(CP)—Padlocks remained on the doors of the East-end publishing house of the weekly newspaper La Clarte to-day as the Civil Liberties Union prepared to challenge constitutionality of the law invoked in the closure.

Premier Maurice Duplessis, as Quebec's Attorney-General, yesterday invoked the law he gave to the Provincial Legislature last session—a "padlock law" designed to "protect this province against Communist propaganda"—when he ordered police to raid the premises. Montreal Communists declared the paper was not an official organ of their party.

The Premier told members of labor unions at Quebec the closure was "only the beginning of our activities." But R. L. Calder, K.C., and J. K. Mergler of the Civil Liberties Union said in Montreal they would seek an injunction restraining the Premier from maintaining the padlock order and would make application for return of all goods seized in the raid. Then, they said, they would institute action to have the anti-Communist legislation declared ultra vires the Legislature.

ALBINO FROG DIES

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 11—(AP)—Lilith, the United States most publicized bullfrog, died yesterday at her acquarium home at the St. Louis Zoo.

A rare Albino specimen, Lilith's photograph made the front pages of many newspapers when she was obtained by the zoo here.

Six months after arrival, her snow white skin became dark spotted and later turned yellow. Zoo officials said Albinos like Lilith occur one among 1,000,000 frogs.

MUCH TO DO YET OCEAN AIR SERVICE

LONDON, Nov. 11 (CP Cable)—Despite the "great promise" of transatlantic flight experiments, much remains to be done before service on a commercial basis can be inaugurated, Sir George Beharrell, chairman of Imperial Airways, said today.

Sir George told stockholders at the company's annual meeting the company was not pledging itself to one particular class of aircraft for ultimate use on the Atlantic service. Considerable progress, he said, had been made along various alternative lines of development.

The information obtained during the experimental flight, the chairman continued, was being applied in conjunction, with further research with a view to the establishment of regular service at the earliest practicable date.

Sir George said none of the new and faster land planes the company had ordered three years ago for European service had been delivered owing to reasons outside the company's control.

They Were Our Own People

People living today who were of the age of remembering things on November 11 in the year 1918 have not the least difficulty in recalling that day. As a people we were celebrating; we were doing it wildly; it was as though a tremendous weight had been lifted and we were free to come and go. We had come to the end of a war where almost nine million men had been killed. Mostly young men. We never heard of a city or hamlet in our country which did not have a celebration of some sort that day because it meant that our own folk who had survived the war would be coming home.

It is as easy as it is painful to look over the world today and come to the conclusion that our celebration of 19 years ago did not mean so very much. Armaments are greater than they were in 1914; there are two wars going on; there are men who plot and pray for another outbreak. There is much that is dangerous and threatening

But for the moment it is well that we should as far as possible leave the outside picture alone. This is a day of Remembrance; it is very much our own affair, and into it we will inject the utmost of that feeling of quiet respect and devotion of thought for those who went away in the fullness of strength and young manhood and who returned not again.

We will think for the moment of the day when the country sent out its call because war was upon us. Our young men were told their country needed them and they came forward in their thousands to don the uniform. They were not warriors nor did they seek war. Many of them knew not even the rudiments of primary drill; it is correct to say thousands of them had never had a gun in their hands before. They had not sprung from a war-like people. They heard a call and answered it.

So on this day we think once more of all those who went, but more particularly of those who did not return. They were young and life lay before them; many of them would have had plans in the process of early formation of what they intended to do or wanted to do; likely they desired a home, a wife and children and a place in some decent community. Perhaps we have never stopped to think just how much those men placed on what we call the altar of national sacrifice Their gift can all be stated in one word. They gave—everything. So today we think of them in that way and we may well be pardoned if we for the moment exclude the world outside. They were our own people and the broken family ties were our own wounds.

Where Would It End

Magistrate F. W. Walker of Walkerton made the ruling that a man admittedly drunk should not be charged with striking an officer or with resisting arrest. And as though to temper that ruling the magistrate concluded by saying he did not wish the impression to go forth "that officers are not given the protection of this court."

We fear the Walkerton magistrate is going to get himself tied in a knot with such logic. If a man who was perfectly sober attacked an officer or struck one or resisted arrest he would have to face that charge in court, and it would be a poor court which would not uphold such a charge.

The fact that a man is drunk does not lessen his responsibility for what he does. Intoxication is a condition which a man inflicts upon himself, and we would be in a strange position if we were to have our courts openly admit that because a man was drunk his responsibility for his actions had therefore been cancelled.

The Unanswered Question

The jury at Napanee hearing evidence in the charge of murder preferred against Robert Woodman on account of the death of Aubrey Sedore, a neighbor, brought in a verdict of "not guilty," and Mr. Justice G. M. McFarland informed the jurors they were entirely justified in returning such a verdict.

It did appear as the evidence was reported from day to day that the police and Crown had built a strong case. Three months after the disappearance of Sedore charred remains were found in a hemlock grove near the homes of the two men. Evidence was offered to show that Woodman had sold or attempted to sell goods belonging to Sedore after his death. Admittedly it was all circumstantial evidence, but so is most of the evidence submitted in any such trial.

Mr. Justice McFarland in referring to the nature of the evidence remarked that "Circumstances cannot lie, but witnesses can lie about circumstances," and the interpretation of that remark might well be that the jurist did not place much confidence in some of the evidence which was being placed before the court.

The result of the trial leaves the question unanswered: "Who killed Aubrey Sedore?"

Mother's Gone To Jail

The mother of two children was sentenced to nine months in jail at Toronto, and perhaps as the news of the average day contains so many references to both men and women getting into trouble and into jail that item will arouse no special interest.

And yet we look upon it as strange, odd, and representing things as they ought not to be. If you don't think it is strange, than apply it to your own experience, and answer the question: Would it not have been strange had your own mother been sent to jail.

About this mother in Toronto we know very little. Never heard of her before. But we do know it would be odd for the average mother to be away from home for nine months. When children come home from school about the first thing they do is ask for their mother; if she's not immediately in sight they look for her. When they leave for school in the morning it is probably a fact she's the last person they see. When they want anything done they search for her, and if there's a bit of trouble to be settled she's in demand.

Perhaps the mother in Toronto is a different sort who will not be so much missed. But it's a good thing that mothers in general do not fall into the habit of being sent off to jail.

A Man And His Money

Arthur W. Cutten, native of Guelph, and admittedly the leading operator for years in the Chicago Grain Exchange, died some time ago. It was known he had made millions and probably lost some of them as well, but at the time of his death an accounting of his affairs showed $159,470 in cash Total claims against the estate, including federal and state taxes, amounted to $2,300,000.

There has been a search carried on industriously ever since the death of Arthur Cutten to find out what became of the wealth he was supposed to possess. There have been all sorts of rumors that he had concealed it in Europe and in Canada. There have been agents from United States in Ontario and their right of search was never fully recognized. We learn the search has not been completed. If the man left wealth in a concealed state then some person must know about it.

Perhaps it is too much to suggest that Arthur Cutten lost his millions as he had made them. But things just as strange as that have happened, and are still happening.

Told Her To Go Home

U. S. Immigration Commissioners made the decision that Magda de Fontanges could not enter their country. She came over from Paris on a boat and will go right straight back on the next one which can take her. Magda had been engaged to appear at a night club in New York and for that was to have been paid $50 per week. But now that's off.

Magda de Fontanges has been figuring in the European press for quite a while. She took a shot at the former French Ambassador to Italy, Count Charles de Chambrun, and at the hearing which followed she gave as the reason that the Count had spoiled a love affair she had been carrying on with Benito Mussolini of Italy. The Count was not killed but limped for a while after leaving hospital.

United States officials fell back on the old term "Moral turpitude" when they excluded the lady from France. And that of course is just another way of designating her as a depraved person. There are those who may be inclined to snicker a bit at the decision, and they will say there are plenty of people in United States who are no better or no worse than Magda. But the Immigration officials were not sitting in judgment on the people of United States. They were dealing with the case of one person who sought to enter that country, and they told her to go home. And in doing so they administered a rebuke which evidently had been too long delayed.

Judged By Our Standards

Already there have been many columns written and printed about Right Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, who died when starting on about the first vacation he had ever known when he was not weighted with the responsibility of office. The man's accomplishments were indeed great, but we have always regarded as most unusual the fact that Ramsay MacDonald ever made his way to the point where he headed three British governments. If ever there was an object lesson of what a person from humble origin can do in democratic Britain MacDonald furnished that lesson.

Today if we were considering his case as a lad we would probably refer to him as underprivileged; we might have been moved to see that he had some better clothing and more food because he sprang from what we call poverty. The house where he was born would probably have been condemned by our standards, for it was but a two-room shack in the Scottish fishing village of Lossiemouth, and probably our school laws might have stepped in to protest when he quit school at the age of 12 and went to work in the fields. When he was working in the fields it is also likely our wage laws would have dealt with his earnings because they were so small. Even on his third job he would not have measured up to requirements because as a laborer in a warehouse he earned but 12 shillings per week, and in our currency that would be but $3.

When he was 29 he had learned much and the public library had been his university. He ran for parliament in Southampton, but he received only 897 votes. He was bitterly opposed to the South African war and said so, after which he tried again for a seat in the Commons, but was so thoroughly beaten that we might well say he should have read in the election results the plain message that he was not wanted. It took him 11 years to find a seat for the constituency of Leicester. Then he became leader of some two score men who made up the Labor party of that day, but with that small success came major tragedy at home Within a few months he lost his wife, his son David, and his mother.

Ramsay MacDonald was opposed to the World War and that opposition brought about his defeat in the election following the Armistice; he tried again in a by-election but was turned back. It was not until 1922 that he was once more in parliament. What he did since then is a matter of almost present-day history. But judged by our often enough mistaken ideas about privilege, opportunity and prospects, Ramsay MacDonald should never have succeeded at all.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A Michigan man has killed a deer with a bow and arrow. It is a primitive method but it at least gives the quarry a sporting chance.

A British Columbia man wears 16 size shoes. He would probably have difficulty in getting through some of the mountain passes.

Ottawa policeman shot a thread off the leg of a sparrow caught in a tree and we have an idea it would pay crooks not to start a shooting duel with that particular officer.

Lord Beaverbrook says there is not going to be any war in Europe among first class powers but we will still remain a trifle uneasy until we check on what he means by a first-class power.

Culverts are being built along the new Brockville-Gananoque highway to let cattle cross the road safely. Pedestrians will continue to have to look after themselves.

It is all a bit puzzling. United States farmers are to be paid a bonus to feed their potatoes to livestock so that the price that the consumer of the tubers will have to pay will be kept up.

A woman alderman will run for the mayoralty in St. Thomas and now we suppose her opponents will proceed to brush off that old saying about a woman's place being in the home.

Port Severn man has grown a pumpkin that weighs 95 pounds. That would probably supply enough pie for a whole church supper and leave some over for a second night.

Story from Burwash tells about Hon. Harry Nixon and his deputy shooting a dangerous northern rapids. After all of course you would expect the Minister of Game and Fisheries to be shooting something.

British scientist says the idea of destrying London by air-raids is ridiculous. An enemy might succeed in killing 50,000 Londoners he admits, but the inference is that would be of little consequence—unless of course to the victims and their relatives.

Already 1658 unemployed single men in British Columbia have registered for work at the forestry camps established by the provincial government. Evidently there is need for such places despite the fact that the King Government abolished them shortly after coming into power.

READY FOR WINTER

¶ My Uncle Jed was in today, he had a little time to stay, may even spend the night; he's not too busy on the farm, and things are tidy in the barn, but winter's now in sight.

¶ It's always been the same with Jed, he likes to buy his stuff ahead, for he's afraid of chills; so when the winter comes along, Jed likes to know his stock is strong, in ointment and in pills.

¶ He has a list he writes in ink, and marks down pills both black and pink, and others green and brown; then Jed goes shopping at the store, knows just what he is hunting for, and checks each pill box down.

¶ Of salve and liniment and stuff, my uncle never has enough, he knows them all by name; and when he gets stocked up again, he's ready for the winter then, he's always been the same.

¶ Before Jed puts his victuals down, he takes a pill that's round and brown, and sinks it in some bread; and when he's done the chores at night, before he turns to douse the light, he takes a pill that's red,

¶ I think Jed has six kinds of pills, and salves and ointment for his ills, perhaps the number's ten; he likes to have his stock well filled, before the winter air gets chilled—for he feels safer then.

THE DUKE OF WINCHESTER'S fortune is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, although he himself says he is not sure of the exact sum. Incidentally he owes his millions to an Elizabethan ancestor who married the heiress to the Belgrave estate, at that time worth four shillings a year. The Duke owns about 30,000 acres in Cheshire and Flintshire and 300 acres in London.

In an address before the Royal United Services Institution at London recently Professor J. B. S. Haldane said that he did not think it possible to get explosives much more efficient than they are now and he did not believe there was any prospect of blowing up the world with bombs releasing artificial radio-activity. Professor Haldane further declared that an air raid on London in which an enemy staked a big portion of his air force might result in the killing of about 50,000 persons, as many as died in London during the influenza epidemic of 1918-19, but there was no likelihood that millions would be killed, as some persons have predicted.

The Drunk O'Meter.

A SULPHURIC-ACID-potassium-permanganate mixture is purple and when enough alcohol is added the color dims. This is the principle of the Drunk-o-meter, a gadget meant to show who is intoxicated and who isn't. It was tried out recently when John Bogardi was arrested for drunken driving in Chicago. He blew into a ballon and this sample of his breath was let out into the mixture. The purple solution and Bogardi's chances of being released faded simultaneously. He got six months.

At least a dozen competent inventors and engineers are working quietly on designs for auto sleepers to be used where trailers are too expensive and too bulky. The best of the plans so far produced calls for a sedan equipped with multiple knicknacks. Front and back seats will fold together in Pullman fashion to make a roomy double bed. The back seat will pull forward revealing a miniature dressing table and a wash-basin fed by a 10-gallon tank. Other novelties include roller-type window screens and shades, reading lights, a folding writing shelf and a compartment for pillows and blankets.

He Writes On Trains.

A WRITER IN THE London Observer under the name "Pendennis" has been commenting upon Lord Tweedsmuir's habit of writing on trains. Pendennis says Canada's governor-general has never been strong and his passion for hard work — it almost amounts to a disease—has undoubtedly put a heavy strain upon him. Throughout his life, the writer says, Lord Tweedsmuir has resembled Gladstone in that he has never left a moment unprofitably occupied and when he lived at Elsefield he utilized every minute of the journey between Oxford and London in writing. He even avoided trains which stopped at Reading as that would interrupt his thoughts. Since he has been governor-general of Canada the former John Buchan has completed his biography of Augustus.

It is understood the government of British Malaya is seriously considering the introduction of legislation to make "lightning strikes" among workers illegal. This is the sequel to last year's troubles among Indian and Chinese laborers. It is intended to pass legislation requiring at least seven days' notice of intention to stop work and to make it impossible for laborers employed in the public utility undertakings to strike at all before alternative labor has been engaged.

Breeding Gold Fish.

PURCHASING a pair of gold fish some time ago a resident of Prince Edward Island, Cecil Jenkins placed them in an outdoor pool as an experiment and today has about 100 fish of large size and believes, if his breeding success continues he will have launched a new industry in the province.

Jenkins has an artificial fresh water pool on his premises five feet in length, three feet wide and 18 inches deep. One of the pair of gold fish he placed there in died after a short time but was replaced by another, and the fish thrived and there are over a hundred of them now. The pool contains a number of water lilies and a large quantity of the food the gold fish consume are the flies and insects on the lilies. Occasionally a few worms are tossed into the pool and they are quickly consumed.

ABOUT GUNS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: An article appeared in your paper on Nov. 9th, stating that Mr. Frank Barrett shot a deer with an "ancient 44-40 calibre rifle."

Now I wonder when this model became obsolete, because the Winchester company is manufacturing it. The model 1892 and 1894 Winchester are still their best sellers, and they claim to have sold well over 1,500,000 of these rifles. These rifles are out of date compared to their new .220 Winchester Swift. This rifle fires a bullet weighing 46 grains at a velocity of 4,140 feet per second, compared to the 200 grain bullet at 1,300 feet per second, of the old 44-40.

But the .220 swift is practically out of the question in our eastern jungles, where the light 46 grain bullet breaks up immediately upon impact of small twigs and bushes. On the other hand rifles with heavier bullets such as the 44-40, 38-55, 32 special, 405 Winchester, 30-30 and others plows through a lot of brush, carries on still accurately and kills a lot more game. That is the reason why Winchester still make these old model rifles as well as their newer higher velocity, flatter trajectory weapons that are ideal for long open ranges, such as out on the Western plains and in the mountains where your shots are mostly at long range.

GUN LOVER.

THE COMING CHURCH

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A reader of the world press will find that a revolution in religious thought is occupying public attention to a surprising extent. The press is full of it. It's a struggle between those who base their religion upon their own opinions and those who recognize the fact that not only in us but all about us there is that which we do not understand and cannot understand. We must take it as the mathematicians do their mathematics as founded upon something that cannot be proved, but we know is true. All science is founded on experience. Hence the efforts of the "doubters" as the higher critics are now called and founded upon a misconception and it is sad great a misconception that it occasions surprise when we consider the source it nowadays proceeds from. The so-called application of reason to these mysteries is futile. It cannot be done and the sooner these exalted personages get back to the simple facts of the spirit as well as of the flesh the better it will be for everybody. The alarm expressed by the professor of philosophy at Toronto for the future of the young if these errors are not corrected is not too soon.

No Cow-Catchers On the New Engines

Writer Thinks Something Should Be Done; Gone the Way of the Old Family Boot-Jack

(Regina Leader-Post)

INFORMATION from Canadian railways shows that the new engines talking to the rails, the big powerful streamlined fellows, have no cow-catchers. The lower part of the front of the engine is swung out in a mild streamlined bulge that is to be used to shove off any cows that might be doing a little tie walking. But a railway statement makes the definite assertion that the new engines have no cow-catchers.

We think something ought to be done about this. We doubt if an engine without a cow-catcher is really a legal engine within the meaning of the British North America Act. For there is tradition about a cow-catcher. The regulation engine had one out there in front, a steel-slatted affair coming to a point four feet in front of the engine. When a cow got on the track in front of an engine travelling 40 miles an hour the cow-catcher would catch her in the northeast quarter and sling her out of the province even faster than the Government's cattle policy in southern Saskatchewan. It could heave her right off the track and drop her across the fence into Joe Buckleys field of buckwheat. And she might never get home for the evening milking. Those were cow-catchers and for the life of us we cannot see why the railways should want to get rid of them.

But there was also a social aspect to the cow-catcher. Only the other day we read that when Lady Macdonald, wife of the great "John A.," first crossed Western Canada on a C. P. R. train the railway men bolted a chair to the cow-catcher of the engine and Lady Macdonald sat in the chair and rode that way through a portion of the Rocky Mountains. What would Lady Macdonald have done without a cow-catcher?

We would like to make an appeal to the Railway Commission to compel all engines to retain their cow-catchers, but it might be that members of the commission would not know what a cow-catcher was. Alas we fear that it has gone the way of the passenger pigeon, the Ontario whisker crop, the bootjack, and the apple on the spout of the coal oil can.

Who Can Be Numbered With Workers?

Truth Is Few People Ought To Be Left Out; Too Often Some One Draws Line in Wrong Place.

(Canadian Mining Journal)

THE TERM "worker" is one which those who work with their hands have arrogated entirely unto themselves. It has become a kind of creed with them, and they have evolved a great class which embraces them all and completely excludes every one else. Thus we find that the social structure of democratic countries is cut into two sections—the workers, and those who are not; or, as Channing Pollock puts it, with subtle sarcasm, "The Workers" and the workers.

The futility of this mass classification of humanity on the part of labor is so apparent that one wonders how it could ever be entertained by even a half-wit; but nevertheless, it remains the settled conviction of a great mass of intelligent men, and it is still one of the great fences which prevent employer and employee from finding common ground to meet upon. The stark fact that it is as devoid of common sense as a skeleton is of meat does not matter one jot or tittle—the idea remains, the employer, and those who direct his operations, are not "workers."

It goes without saying that this classification is a mental product of labor, and of labor only.

Men who are burning midnight oil, and wearing their brains and bodies to a thin edge in wrestling with the problems of executive direction refuse to admit that they are not workers—and quite properly, too.

The writer has vivid recollections of days spent in mahaging small mining properties, when he spent all day around the operations, and half the night doing office work. Many a working day was eighteen hours long, and if trouble developed in the mill, there was many a night when he did not go to bed at all. But in spite of all that, according to the fixed idea of modern labor the writer was not a "worker."

This small example can be duplicated in the cases of the great bulk of major and minor executives whose great care is that the wheels of industry may continue to run in order that "the workers" my work.

LET'S GET STARTED.

(Chatham News)

IT TAKES A WHITE pine tree fifty years to develop sufficiently to produce a standard saw log; it takes a spruce tree more than half that time to be worth cutting for wood pulp or paper. To make the situation still more serious, nothing worth while has been done to replace the original crop with a new one. The land which might have had a second growth by this time, ready for cutting into lumber or grinding into pulp, has been left uncared for, until it has become a waste, howling wilderness, producing nothing that has the slightest economic value.

At a recent meeting of lumbermen, the diminishing supply and increasing cost of lumber-producing timber received some attention, but nothing seems to have been said or done to counteract the destructive process. Generations ago this country should have adopted a policy of cutting out the mature trees and leaving those still growing to increase their cubic content. Wherever and whenever a region was fire-swept a new forest should have been planted. But nothing has yet been done, or even expertly suggested, to remedy the defect and check the loss. Here is a promising field of operations for the Hepburn government.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

BUT NOW THUS saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou are mine . . . Fear not; for I am with thee: I will bring thy seed from the east, and gather thee from the west: I will say to the north, Give up; and to the south, Keep not back: bring my son from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; even every one that is called by my name, for I have created him for my glory, I have formed him, yea, I have made him.—Isa.xliii, 1, 5-7.

And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose. For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren. Moreover whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified. . . . For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.— Rom. viii, 28-30, 38, 39.

NO DIVIDENDS.

YOUTHFUL Mr. Manning who, among his other sudden distinctions, conducts religio-political services on Sundays declared in his latest religious oration that the Aberhart government has been given a mandate to carry out its present program—of licensing, regimentation, and defiance of Federal authority.

The youthful provincial secretary must think he public has a short memory. The sole mandate conferred on Messrs. Aberhart, Manning and Company was to pay every adult citizen of Alberta a monthly dividend of twenty-five dollars.

In recent months Mr. Manning and his leader have been trying to induce the public to forget all about this promise on which they were elected to power.

MISTAKEN FOR DEER.

(Calgary Herald)

The body of John Cardinal, an Indian of the Cold Lake district, was found in the woods last week. Clad in a suit of brown tweed—which according to the police report was "an almost perfect imitation of deerskin"—he had been mistaken for a deer. His death, listed as accidental, is but one of the many such fatalities which every year mar the hunting season.

"Same here. Do you like work?"

"No!"

"Same here. What's your boss like?"

TORONTO - 240 JARVIS STREET

Why Women Marry Some Men Is Asked By City Fathers

Gave Up Pension Of $60 a Month To Marry Man Without Job

"And she gave up a pension of $60 a month to marry him," an Alderman remarked recently in referring to a woman's sacrifice. They didn't "all live happy ever after"; in fact the woman was so neglected and abused that if the aldermen could send this husband to jail they would gladly do so.

Relief Officer Metheral recently obtained lodging for the wife and several children by a previous marriage, and the landlord stipulated that if the husband appeared on the scene the family would have to get out. The relief committee of the council endorses that demand. Official opinion wouldn't give the husband a nickel. Their unanimous regret is that they can't lock him up.

He had gravitated to the relief rolls long ago, but when work was found for him he refused to accept it, or he loafed so deliberately that he was promptly fired. A wage of 35 and 40 cents an hour didn't attract him. He boasted to some people that he was better off on relief than working for that wage. Last spring he wound up with his family in a tent; not in the emergency colony south of the city and the Otonabee river.

One evening he and a few worthless pals staged a beer party, and when the wife and children arrived at their canvas home they were driven away with threats. Relief Officer Metheral has a long chapter against the fellow and the members of the council are also well acquainted with him, some of them by actual experience. His name has been struck off the relief list for a considerable time, and it is unlikely that it will ever be put on again. The man's refusal to work, and he is under forty, barred him from all right to share in the earnings of the other workers of the city who pay taxes.

Some of the aldermen looked blankly at one another when this case was mentioned recently, unable to understand the ways of some women in heading for marriage, especially as in this case, a woman with $60 a month income which she had to relinquish when she took this unnamed fellow for better or for worse.

HONOR JOHN ROSE 86 YEARS YOUNG

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Nov. 11.—The disagreeable evening did not prevent a large number of friends and relatives from gathering in Warsaw Town Hall on Monday evening to congratulate Mr John Rose on having reached his eighty-sixth birthday anniversary. Mr. Rose and his son, Mr. Alec Rose, received the guests. His daughters, Mrs. Charles Frankish and Mrs Robert Charlton, with their husbands and families, were present, as were his son, Mr. David Rose with Mrs. Rose and their family.

A large number from Lakefield and surrounding country and among those from other places were Mr. W. Brocks from Belleville, Mrs. A. Smith from Madoc, Mr. and Mrs. E Adamson, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Miller from Keene, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Chamberlain from Otonabee, a brother, Mr. Thomas Rose, and Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Bloyce, Mr. Will Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rose and three children, Miss Anderson from Peterbough.

Some time was spent in happy visiting for nearly all were at least acquainted; most were old friends. Fourteen tables were arranged for progressive euchre for those who wished to play. Those who played had a jolly time. Those who did not thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Afterwards there was a merry sing-song led by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson with Mrs. Wilkinson at the piano. Supper was served by Mrs. Frankish and Mrs. Charlton, assisted by their sons and daughters and Irwin Hawthorne.

Several children were present and had a very merry time.

After supper there were games led by the Misses Frankish and goodbyes were said.

Mr. John Rose is the oldest man in Warsaw, who has lived his life in the neighborhood. He is a man who has always been honored and respected and taken an active part in community and church work, and all wish him yet many happy returns of his birthday.

Big Radium Bomb To Be Built

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP).—The National Advisory Cancer Council outlined tentative arrangements yesterday for making the largest radium bomb in the world for research into the cause and cure of cancer.

(Medical men explained that a radium bomb is a large mass of radium, surrounded by lead, which is used to bombard a cancer).

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the Public Health Service and ex-officio chairman of the Cancer Council, said that construction of the bomb would be studied by a special sub-committee.

The new radium bomb, if built, will be more than twice the size of any previously used in cancer treatment, members of the council said. It will contain about 16 grams of the precious radio-active metal, costing about $250,000 at present market prices.

To Visit Hitler

That the reported offer of Realm Leader Adolf Hitler, of Germany, to act as peace mediator between Japan and China, has been taken seriously by the latter in spite of official denials, is indicated by the fact that Chen Kung-Po, (ABOVE), chief of the publicity department of the Chinese government has been instructed to fly to Germany to contact the Reich dictator. Chen Kung-Po is a close friend of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and was formerly Chinese minister of agriculture.

Hollywood Beauty Has Double Escort

From the (ABOVE) photograph it is difficult to figure which of the two very presentable young men are escorting Dorothy Lamour to the premiere showing of "Hurricane" at Hollywood. If 'Casanova" McCarthy is escorting Miss Lamour then we can readily see why Edgar Bergen is along, for without him the dummy would be speechless. However, if Mr. Bergen is doing the honors then apparently McCarthy is being a "gooseberry". Anyway you look at it both the gentlemen are lucky indeed.

RIPLEY ABITIBI PLAN DEBATED

TORONTO, Nov. 11 (CP)—Argument for and against the Ripley plan to reorganize the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, Limited, was scheduled to resume in the Ontario Supreme Court here today before Mr. Justice C. F. McTague after court observance of Remembrance Day.

The $85,000,000 pulp and paper concern has been in receivership for the past five years and Mr. Justice McTague is asked to approve a reorganization plan advanced by Joseph P. Ripley, New York, and endorsed Oct. 16 by a majority of bondholders.

The Ripley plan provides for exchange of stock and bonds for present holdings and for issuance of a new $14,000,000 bond issue having prior rights over present bonds. The new issue would provide working capital for the reorganized company and pay for improvements. Various minority interests oppose it.

G. T. Clarkson, receiver-manager of Abitibi, told the court yesterday "there are a number of conditions harmful to a company in receivership." He added: "In addition I learn from the Ontario minister of lands and forests the (Ontario) government insists on the company being taken out of receivership."

In his opinion, the shareholders "would be very unwise not to agree to some re-arrangement rather than battle over it." He said the company needed $11,000,000 working capital and an estimated further amount of from $9,000,000 to $9,500,000 for needed improvements.

Opponents of the plan, represented by D. L. McCarthy, oppose the Ripley plan because, Mr. McCarthy told the court, "it recommends a wasteful amount and because it is an injustice to present bondholders to ask them to give up their priority of right to the issue of prior lien bonds."

In these days when so much of the news consists of war despatches from the various battlefronts of the world, the following comes as a bit of happy contrast. "At the National Annual Meeting, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, held in Quebec this year, the delegates approved the suggestion that the order purchase a plot in the International Peace Garden, which is situated on the boundary between Manitoba and North Dakota, and which serves to commemorate the more than 100 years of peace between the United States and Canada. The initial cost of this bit of land is to be taken from the National Chapter Life Membership Fund, but each Primary Chapter will have the privilege of sharing in the future upkeep."

Runnett, and pin by her daughter Miss Isabel Connolly; to Mrs. Boddison, certificate presented by Mrs. Scott, and pin by her granddaughter, Miss Gwendeline Lucas; to Mrs. Dawson, certificate presented by Mrs. H. Harris and pin by her daughter, Miss Frances Dawson. Each lady expressed her thanks and appreciation.

The first part of the meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. John Edgar, when it was arranged that a "hostess" tea will be held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday afternoon next. The new study book, "The Way of the Witness" was discussed by Mrs. M. McCulloch who later presided for the presentation of the life memberships. Refreshments were served at the close by Mrs. Annie Williams and her committee.

Trousseau Tea
Given by Miss 'Ted' Connor.

A bride of this week, Miss "Ted" Connor, was hostess at a charming trousseau tea attended by many of her friends.

Pink, yellow, bronze and white chrysanthemums made lovely bouquets in the rooms, and the tea table covered with a fine lace cloth was a pretty picture with pink 'mums in a silver rose bowl and candles in silver holders, with the silver tea services.

Mrs. Connor received the guests with her daughter. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Alex Donnelly, Mrs. J. H. Eastwood and Miss Lillian Hall and Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Wharry and Miss Margery Read assisted. The trousseau and gifts were shown by Mrs. Legon, Miss Jean Kelly, and Miss Myra Hickey. Miss Lelia Burgess and Miss Maida Connor assisted in the living-room.

Many Affairs

Wharry was hostess at a bridge and linen shower; Miss Margery Read gave a tea, when the bride-elect received a crystal shower; Mrs. J. McKercher of Lakefield entertained at a dinner party; Miss Myra Hickey was hostess at a bridge party, and presented Miss Connor with a large crystal plate; the staff of the Nashua Paper Company was entertained by Miss Lillian Hall in honor of the bride-elect, who was presented with a kitchen and pantry shower.

Bridge Party
King George H. and S.

Many guests spent a most delightful evening in King George School when the Home and School Association held a brige and euchre party on Tuesday evening.

Gay lamps lighted the hall where the bridge tables, forty in all, were placed. Refreshments were served in buffet style in the kindergarten room, where the lace-covered table was arranged with red candles in silver holders and red poppies in a silver basket. The prizes and bridge tallies were decorated in the blue and gold Home and School colors, and with the H. and S. seals.

The guests were recived by the president, Mrs. Max Swanston, assisted by Mrs. E. Wand, Mrs. C. Chapman, and Mrs. G. Groombridge. General convenors for the evening were Mrs. G. Northey and Mrs. Seymour. Refreshments were in charge of Mrs. J. Burgess, capably assisted by the members of the teaching staff and the Home and School Association.

The bridge prizes were drawn for and were won by Mrs. D. Loomis and Mrs. H. Conway. The euchre prizes were won by Miss Leta Ruth (ladies' high score); Mrs. Percy Telford (Ladies' low score); K. Throop, (men's high score); O. Howland, (men's low score). The door prizes went to Mrs. H. Conway and George Eason. Prizes in four special draws were won by Mrs. Fraser Watson, Miss Kay Hodgens, Miss D. Rickard and G. Northey. The prizes were presented by Miss Margaret Eastwood, the draws being made by D. Loomis.

The splendid list of prizes were donated by A. Wander Ltd.; Western Clock Co., Haboco stores, Peterborough Printing Co., Quaker Oats, Coca Cola Co., Sunshine Dairy, Althouse Hairdressing, Grant and Loucks, Kent Troop. The lamps were kindly loaned by McBride and Franks.

White Elephant Tea
W.A. Mark St. United.

A "white elephant" tea was a delightful evening event held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Cunningham, 272 Burnham Street, under the auspices of Group 6 of the Women's Association of Mark Street United Church.

Received by the hostess, Mrs. Cunningham and the leader of the group, Mrs. A. Graham, the guests assembled in the living room and reception hall, where a musical program was enjoyed. It included piano solos by Miss Jean McLeod; Hawaiian trio, the Gray Twins and A. Boat; vocal duet, Mrs. W. Hepburn and Mrs. C. Telford, accompanied by Mrs. Telford; with a number of piano selections by Mrs. Telford.

Baby 'mums and fern centred the lace-covered table, in the dining-room. Tea was poured by Mrs. Boulter, and assisting in serving were Mrs. C. Grant, Mrs. Pully, Mrs. Rome and Miss C. Shepherd. A novelty was the white elephant table, in charge of Mrs. E. Lillico. A home-made cooking table was looked after by Mrs. Hill and Mrs. G. Northey. The program was arranged by Mrs. A. Graham and Mrs. A. L. Stevens. Treasurer for the evening was Mrs. B. Morrison.

Parker-Keeler.

PORT HOPE, Nov. 11.—Lillian Ethel Keeler, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keeler of Port Hope, became the bride of Mr. John Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parker of Cobourg, in an interesting ceremony quietly performed at St. John's Anglican church here. Rev. A. G. Emmet, rector, officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore Latour blue velvet with matching accessories. Miss Marie Keeler, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mr. Ernest Parker of Montreal, brother of the groom, was groomsman. The couple will reside at Cobourg.

Lawrence-Campion.

MARMORA, Nov. 11.—A wedding of much local interest took place on Wednesday afternoon, when at St. Andrew's Parsonage, Marmora, Luta Marguerite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Campion of Marmora Township, was united in marriage to Wallace, son of Mrs. Rose Lawrence of Stirling. Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth officiated. The sister and brother-in-law of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Goldie McInroy of West Huntingdon, were the attendants. After a honeymoon which is being spent in Toronto and other western points, the popular young couple will reside in Marmora.

Niven-Conner.

Against a charming background of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, palms and ferns, in the living-room of her mother's home, the marriage was solemnized by the Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's Church, of Edna Roberta (Ted) Conner, daughter of Mrs. Conner of Walton Street, and the late Walter Alexander Conner, to Hugh Munro Niven of Montreal, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Graham Niven of Glasgow, Scotland.

A period gown of blue-embroidered pink net over satin was worn by the bride. Blue and pink sequins glittered on the shoulder length veil that fell from her small pink cap; she wore silver slippers, and her flowers were Premier Supreme roses and lily of the valley. She held also a handkerchief, carried by her mother on her wedding day, and edged with lace from a bonnet worn by her father as a tiny child.

Miss Maida Conner, gowned in turquoise blue velvet fashioned on princess lines, was her sister's bridesmaid. She wore a matching halo hat and slippers, and carried cream Johanna Hill roses. Frederick A. Fielder of Toronto attended the groom, and Charles Shaw played the wedding music.

Fifty guests attended the reception following the ceremony. Mrs. Conner, mother of the bride, was wearing a gown of black velvet and silver lame, and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. Niven left later for Montreal to sail on the Lady Somers for Bermuda. For travelling the bride wore a rose knitted suit, black hat, and accessories, and a fur coat. The couple will reside in Montreal.

Dowling-Boland.

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding when Mary Clothilde, only daughter of Mrs. Laura Boland and the late Frederick Boland, was united in the Holy Bonds of Matrimony to Joseph Edmund Dowling, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Dowling of Napanee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father T. E Grant of the Cathedral staff.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, M. A. Bolin, of Keene. She wore a Queen Anne gown of metal gold satin, ornamented with a gold brooch set in almost green stones. Her halo hat and shoes were of metal gold satin, her gloves of almond green, and her flowers were rus; chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaid, Miss Laura Herr of Toronto, wore a gown of phosphorus green taffeta, in bouffant style. A large bow ornamented her matching hat, she wore orchid-pink gloves, silver slippers, and carried a bouquet of orchid-pink chrysanthemums.

The groom was attended by Edgar Boland of Cobalt. The ushers were Fred Lang of Toronto and Bert Courneyea of Tweed.

The wedding music was played by Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M., and during the progress of the Nuptial Mass, Miss Geraldine Collins sang "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother," an "Ave Maria" and "Panis Angelicus."

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party and immediate relatives at the Empress Hotel. Mrs. Boland and Mrs. Dowling assisted in receiving the guests, the former wearing a gown of black brocaded crepe and the latter navy crepe.

The young couple left later for a motor trip to Quebec City, and on their return will reside in Napanee, Ontario.

Accessories Are Being Spotlighted In Styles Worn This Season

Suede belt worn with afternoon dress which has fan-shaped buckle With gold trim.

(By Lisbeth)

Accessories seem to have taken the spotlight away from the more important articles of dress— of anything could be more important. Attention today is centered on hats, belts, scarfs, jewelry, etc. The dress or suit has become largely a backdrop for these decorative mediums.

As an illustration, take this young Woman who is wearing a simply styled dress with high neck, long sleeves and side closing. The eye is held by the belt, which is of suede with a fan-shaped buckle with a dash of gold. It is by Belmo, American designer, and he has pleated the suede in the buckle, giving it an unusual touch.

Next you notice the smart hat with its chin strap and graceful veil. And finally the gauntlet gloves with their fringed seams.

Evening Veils Worn

The slight of the veil reminds us of the evening veils which are being worn more and more this season. One pretty one that I observed, was attaced to a narrow velvet circlet, was short and very sheer, and most attractive, and was worn by a young woman at a symphony concert.

Lanvin uses a net mantilla with pannie velvet petals which match those scattered over the skirt of the black net gown with which it is worn.

Flat, Brimlike arrangements of stiffened tulle veiling are used by Chanel with her evening gowns. Sometimes they are topped with bright feathers matching the motif of the dress.

For black lace gowns of Spanish inspiration there are mantillas with high combs and roses.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DROPPING THE BIDDING

IT TAKES a lot of courage sometimes to drop the bidding when your partner has warned you about a misfit. Such action is pointed to quite strongly, however, if your partner rebids his own suit twice in response to calls of two other suits by you. This can be so even if your partner made the original bid, as it may have been based on nothing but one pretty good suit with a secondary honor or two on the side which will not fit your combinations.

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

This deal came up in a recent duplicate and the bidding that resulted was quite varied. In each instance, South was the opener with a bid of 1-Spade, whereupon the North players bid clubs and hearts in response to repeated bids of spades by South.

Some ended up with North playing the hand at 4-Hearts and some at 5-Clubs, and none of these were successful in making their contracts.

The plus score on the North-South holdings was where the bidding started with 1-Spade by South, 2-Clubs by North, 2-Spades by South, 3-Hearts by North and 3-Spades by South. The North player, even though void in his partner's suit, realized that they held misfits and any further bidding on his part would probably get his side into trouble. He therefore decided to let 3-Spades stand, figuring that his partner's suit was no doubt fairly solid. Even though West held five spades against South, the contract was made with the loss of two diamonds, one club and one trump trick.

Miss J. Thomas At All Saints'

In All Saints' Church on Wednesday evening a good-sized congregation listened with earnest attention to Miss J. Thomas of Toronto, Canadian secretary of the Church Missionary Society of London, England.

Quoting the answer of Christ, "One thing thou lackest," to the young ruler who came to Him seeking advice and help, Miss Thomas said, "That young man was very much in earnest, and he was not satisfied, so he came to Our Lord. I take for granted you are all very much in earnest. People do not come out for prayer and Bible study in the middle of the week unless it means something—unless they are seeking something. As the youn man, who felt things were not satisfactory, that they might be different, asked, "Lord, what can I do to inherit eternal life?' so do you go to the Lord, tell Him about it, and He will answre you."

The first thing mentioned after the young ruler came to Christ was "Jesus, beholding him, loved him."

Not like earthly friends who so often will criticise in a hurtful way, Christ first loves, then says gently, "One thing thou lackest." To this young man, who came to Him, whose fault was that he cared too much for his wealth and earthly goods, the Lord said, "Go, sell all that thou hast," with the result that he went away grieved, for he had great possessions. "This has been called "the great refusal," said Miss Thomas, "and notice that Christ let him go. If anyone comes to Him, it must be the spirit of giving up all to follow Him."

"Do not imagine that God is in an opposite camp. Think of Him as on your side, and ask Him to help you, if there is some particular sin you are not willing to forego—no thing very dreadful perhaps, just reading the wrong kind of books, thing wrong thoughts on some matter, bearing some grudge. You say, 'Yes, I'd forgive, but I cannot forget.' As long as you say 'I can't,' you are not free, you are tied and bound. It seems impossible sometimes not to say 'I can't,' but trust God first, and He will show you."

"Come into the Presence of the Loving Lord, and see what He bore on the Cross of Calvary.....the Cross of Christ expresses an eternal truth about the love of God. Sin's reebllion crucified the Lord, and He said 'Father, forgive them,' and to you He says, 'I'll forgive you, but these others, I love them, too, cannot you forgive them?' 'Be ye kind one to another, forgiving one another, ever, as God forgives you.'"

"God does not want you to come for a little while, and then go out into the wark cold world again. Conversian," said Miss Thomas, "means coming to the Lord, but consecration means yielding all and trusting to Him. It means giving life to whichever way He points. Perhaps He needs you in Afrlca, in China, or here in Peterborough. Consecration to Christ means following without question."

Special new hymns brought by the Rev. Canon Paterson from the English Keswick last summer, were sung at the service, which was conducted by the rector.

Take Tantalizing Tips on Popular New Candies

Scotch kisses and butterscotch apples—one recipe makes them both.

And they're decorative as they are delicious, white marshmallows and rosy fruit showing through a coat of crisp golden brown butterscotch.

For the kisses, use the new midget marshmallows. Wipe away starchy powder with a dry cloth and follow these simple directions:

Combine 2 cups sugar, 1 cup dark corn syrup, 1-2 cup water; cook to 270 degrees F., stirring only until sugar dissolves. Add 2 tablespoons butter and continue cooking to 284 degrees F., stirring constantly. Remove from fire, adding 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Dip marshmallows in hot syrup one at a time, using either an ordinary or candy-dipping fork. Place on oiled slab or tin.

With left-over syrup make butterscotch apples. Our diagram shows how: 1. Polish apples. 2. Impale on skewers. 3. Dip into hot syrup. 4. Stand in wire rack placed over lok bowl for cooling.

Our 32-page booklet gives dozens of easy, tantalizing candy recipes — fudge, chewy candies brittles, fondants, chocolates. Party favors. Grand ideas for bazaars, gifts.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of Secrets of Successful Candy-making to The Examiner's Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of the booklet.

SPARKLING LITTLE BOLERO DOES WONDERS FOR DRESS

A SPARKLING little sleeveless bolero can do wonders for a plain dress that is worn all day at business.

Margaret Lindsay, screen star, shows what magic it performs with a simple black dress. The bolero in this case is in black, silver and red metal cloth, and is added when the wearer of the simple dress is going to the theater in the evening —staying down to dinner, you know.

A rhinestone clip at the throat and a velvet dinner hat that suggests Peter Pan or a brownie, completes her costume.

Blues are popular in tweed jacket suits—greenish blue and slate blue. Gold and leaf-rust are other fashionable colors.

A very attractive daytime dress is of russet wool lace, in an open pattern, with a simple shirtwaist bodice, a softly crushed girdle, a high neckline, and a flared skirt.

White starched lace over black cire satin, with back fullness introduced in the tunic as well as in the skirt fashioned on slender lines, makes a very effective dinner costume.

Smart women are wearing black at luncheons these days—black suits accompanied by black satin blouses. And there are also many white satin blouses with black. Silver fox is the outstanding fur, particularly two and three-skin scarfs.

Evening dresses of net, trimmed with sequins, are very flattering. The fashionable colors are black, blue and white.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"I wish that there were some wonderful place
Called the land of beginning again,
Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches
And all of our poor selfish grief
Could be dropped, like a shabby old coat at the door,
And never put on again."

—Louise Fletcher Tarkington.

Dear Friends:

Don't you think we have just such a thing with every new day? It comes to us all fresh and clean, with nothing to mar it but the memories we insist on carrying around with us. We haven't been learnt the true art of thinking aright, that's the trouble.

If we could only learn to do the best we can each day, then go on from there. Some of us have too active a conscience, or whatever it is that makes us take life so seriously. We torture ourselves so much about things that cannot be helped, what someone has said, what another has done, and what does it all amount to after all?

A great deal of bother is caused through lack of training when children are young, and also when they are in their 'teens. They are let go too much, they haven't acquired enough experience to guide themselves, and how can they do anything else but get a wrong impression of things?

If they get their own way through bullying, or crying, if they are not made to toe the mark by being courteous and decent, then they never seem to get a right slant on their duty to others, and others' duty to them, so that their own life is askew and they become a nuisance and a responsibility.

Just sit and figure your troubles out for a bit. Are you the cause of them? Come on now, give yourself the blame if you are guilty, just as you would if it were someone else, then try to see if you can improve and see what a difference it will make.

If the trouble lies with someone else, figure out if you are doing that person good or ill by putting up with this, and if you are doing good, then shoulder your cross and do the best you can.

If you are really doing harm, (and how much harm we can do by putting up with too much from anyone) then alter things. You can do it if you try.

Then you will really get into the land of beginning again, and not just a make-believe land either. And many of our heartaches and most of our mistakes, besides lots of our grief would be dropped never to bother us again.

We all seem inclined to wrap our troubles tight to our bosom, forgetting all about the good things that happen to us. (How I would like to wrap this typewriter around a lamp-post and see how it would like that.)

Because while I am trying to show you a way out of your troubles, this blamed thing will persist in acting up. I wish I was a mechanic and I'd take the thing apart and see what makes it tick. But there are so many screws to loosen and put together again that I doubt if I could do it right.

Yes, I had a man look at it, but all he told me was that it was an old model etc. etc. However if any old typewriter thinks I am going to be bested by it, it has another think coming. So tell your troubles the same thing. Find the screws that are too loose or too tight. Use the screwdriver of common sense, and you will find yourself in the land of beginning again. Now for a screwdriver and heigho the merryo. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Maids Tell Them Where It's Hard

LONDON, Nov. 11 (CP)—The latest development in the campaign to encourage girls to go in for domestic service and incidently solve a problem that is worrying Ernest Brown, minister of labor—is to have the servants tell the mistresses exactly what is wrong with the way they run things.

Florence Davies, 22-year-old cook, addressed the Women's Liberal Federation at Margate. Her chief complaints, speaking for her fellow domestics, were: long hours, lack of independence, bad living conditions particularly in old houses with out-of-date basement kitchens, and bad food.

She suggested that employes should receive references from employers. "Why," she questioned, "should servants be expected to go into households they know nothing about?"

One group of seven young women arrived in London ready to put up with peculiar living conditions, however. They slept fully clothed on camp beds between rows of goatpens at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, during the 59th London Dairy Show which goats were among the competitors.

The girls had to be up at dawn to milk the goats and sleep under lights on all night, but they insisted "it was rather fun," and even cooked their own meals on gas rings.

St. James' W.M.S. Holds Meeting

"A Worshipping Church" was the theme taken up at Wednesday's meeting of St. James' Auxiliary of the W.M.S. and led by Mrs. Bert Pitchford the group convenor for November. In her very fine program Mrs. Pitchford planned that the major part of the members took part.

She opened her devotional service with the call to worship in these words. "Let us remember that wherever in the world a Christian heart bows down to worship there is the church." The responsive scripture reading from the Psalms, and the Hymn Sanctus sung by Mrs. Doig completed the adoration. Intercession for the worshipping people of all lands was offered by Mesdames Fell and Woodley.

Five scripture readings were given in response to the leader's questions regarding the meaning of Christian worship in which Mrs. Cuff, Mrs. Beavis, Miss Deyell, Miss Waterman and Miss Morton took part. A beautiful solo, with sacred words sung to the music of the song "Absent" was contributed by Mrs. Arnold accompanied by Mrs. Doig at the piano.

Japanese Work

Work in Japan was outlined in a splendid paper by Mrs. A. Emery, who based her address upon material gleaned from the Blue Book. In a devotional story entitled "The Church in my life, in all life in all lands," read very effectively by Mrs. Sloane, she pointed out the realities of the church and was followed with prayer for missionary endeavor in all lands by Mrs. A. Davis, which concluded this part of the program.

Presiding over the opening and business sessions, the president Mrs. Elliott led a brief worship period, before introducing the routine minutes, and the treasurer's report.

At a previous executive meeting Mrs. A. Davis was nominated as convenor of the "Study Book." A new church faces a new world, for the coming year, and the study suggested being taken up each week. This was ratified by the Auxiliary in session as was the election of officers by nomination.

Temperance was taken up by a fine report of the Ontario W.C.T.U. convention held at Oshawa, given by the delegate, Mrs. G. H. Rowe.

Letters of appreciation for kindness shown were read by the secretary and a request made that the secretary write expressing the sympathy of the auxiliary to Mrs. A. E. Moorhouse, whose sister passed away suddenly last week.

Reports of an encouraging nature were read by several department secretaries. The autumn thankoffering was received and the payment of fees by a number of members concluded the business session when prayer was offered by the president.

Canned Peas Are Now Sold By Name

Those who remember shopping for groceries twenty years ago will recall that the various sizes of canned peas were identified by name—"Sweet Winkle, "Early June", and so on, rather than by the plain number 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, as is the usual case today. This more modern system of numbering, however, has left the housewife somewhat confused. Not only is it difficult to remember just what size of peas the respective numbers represent, but numbers alone, she finds, are no guide to quality.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the old idea of naming peas according to size is being definitely revived. For example, fancy quality Aylmer size 5 peas are now best known as "Jumbo Sweet Peas." Further, a new label this season for Aylmer choice size 3 peas (the favourite medium size) carries the new registered name, "Honey Drop," which officials of the company state will henceforth designate a special selection of Aylmer choice quality size 3 peas.

Women who buy groceries readily agree that there is much more satisfaction in buying peas by registered name than by mere number. Not only is "Honey Drop" easily remembered as the name by which to order choice medium size peas, but it affords protection against substitution with size 3 peas of inferior quality.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Friday, November 12

Particularly lively and progressive conditions are read from the predominant lunar and mutual planetary configurations. There will be much stirring in business, property and with contracts, which will tend toward an enlargement of real possessions, such as insurance, trust deeds, etc. But be wary with all papers, lest misconstruction or distortion be possible. Be alert to young folk in a business way, but in social, domestic, romantic affiliations there will be much joyous activity.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a lively and progressive year with much worthy effort spent in giving stability and endurance to the fortunes. It is a propitious time for wills, insurance, trusts and other rewards of industry and fidelity. In social, domestic and affectional relations there may be unusual festivities and much happiness or romantic adventure.

A child born on this day may be industrious, studious, trustworthy, attracting the solid support of its elders. It should have a gracious, lovely and captivating personality.

Gold Makes a Dress Gay for a Date

Margaret Lindsay

A simple dress will serve the business girl for her work. But when she has a date with her very best boy friend in the evening she must dress it up a bit.

Margaret Lindsay, screen and stage actress, shows how it is easily done by the addition of gold mesh cuffs and gold flowers at the high neckline of her plain dress to create the necessary festive appearance.

A high peaked black velvet dinner hat completes her costume.

This idea of a perfectly plain little dress to be worn as a background for all sorts of gay fripperies is one of the most fascinating in modern fashions. An ingenious lass can do magical things with a few yards of this or that—silk, lace, spangles, or whatnot, to make the said somber dress fit into almost any event.

After a hard day at the typewriter, in the shop or schoolroom, she can retire for a short while, wash, put on fresh mckeup and maybe change the way she has been wearing her hair, slip a bright scarf around her neck or waist, a tiny gleaming jacket over her dress, a fresh collar or some sparkling jewelry, and she is all ready for a gay evening.

Improving Swings Cape Town Dances

CAPE TOWN, Nov. 11 (CP)—This gateway to South Africa is improving its ballroom dancing in a scientific way. Silver and bronze medals are being given in tests organized by the Imperial Society. These tests are primarily for dancers not anxious to do competitive work but who desire to earn some certificate of proficiency.

Henry Jacques, a London dancing expert, has been here organizing the tests and he watched some of them before returning to England. The Argus draws the conclusion the swing step as danced in London is a very modified version of the same movement demonstrated by Mr. Jacques for the benefit of enthusiasts at the Cape. The paper quotes this from London:

The swing dance is new, although many of us have danced it, willynilly, before it was officially invented or recognized. There is movement in it in the same sense that there is movement in the swing beloved of children—the swing which, attached to an overhead branch, goes to and fro in a strictly-limited space.

The modern habit of hundreds of men and women crowding on to a narrow strip of floor space in restaurants and night clubs has made this 'swing dance' a physical necessity at times. Held up by the traffic, the dancers 'idle' at one spot, swinging and swaying until such time as they are able to win a yard or two of territory. Then it begins all over again—a kind of stationary fox-trot.

Uncle Sam Loses Popular Helper

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(CP).—The United States government lost a valued employe when President Roosevelt accepted "with the greatest reluctance" the resignation of Miss Josephine Roche as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Miss Roche had been at the treasury in charge of public health department personnel and welfare since 1034. She left to resume the presidency of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Company of Denver, the position she held when offered the federal post. She was one of the most popular officials of the treasury. The position will be held open for an indefinite period in the hope she might be able to return.

International Park At Falls Proposed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP).—Representative Alfred F. Beiter, of Williamsville, N.Y., proposed yesterday creation of an International Park at Niagara Falls, under joint supervision of Canada and United States to preserve the Falls as a "perpetual shrine to those who love the beauties of nature."

Beiter sent to Arno B. Cammerer, director of the National Park Service, drafts of two bills he proposes to introduce providing legislation necessary for the plan.

One would authorize the United States' government to accept 621 acres of park lands at the Falls now owned and maintained by the State of New York. The other establishes the Niagara Falls National Park under the supervision of the National Park.

BLOODLESS COUP GIVES BRAZILIANS RULE BY DICTATOR

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 11.—(A P)—Reports from the interior of Brazil indicated today President Getulio Vargas' dictatorial coup was accepted calmly throughout this largest South American nation.

Casinos, theatres and restaurants in the capital functioned with the usual animation and there was no outward sign of resistance to the swift move which Vargas said was inspired in part by fear of armed revolution.

(Private sources in Buenos Aires, capital of neighboring Argentina, indicated that though Vargas had complete military support, there was considerable—if inactive—civilian opposition to his bloodless coup.)

By the decree powers with which he had ruled largely since 1935, Vargas yesterday dissolved federal and state legislative bodies and proclaimed a new constitution with corporative, authoritarian trimmings.

The new constitution was put into effect immediately and a presidential manifesto declared the new regime would suspend payment on all government debts abroad.

Lower Coffee Tax.

Within 24 hours Vargas was expected to decree reduction of the export tax on coffee and effect other measures to carry out his policy of abandoning export price control over this principal Brazilian product.

The President to-day declined the joint resignation of his Cabinet. Both the resignation and Vargas declension were considered formalities dictated by the replacement of the "Liberal" 1934 constitution.

The Foreign Relations Ministry said Vargas' coup was not connected with European political ideologies and denied reports Brazil planned to join the German-Japanese-Italian pact against Communism.

(In Paris and London there was speculation on whether Brazil would join the anti-Communist front or take a stand in the line-up of totalitarian states.

(French officials said they were watching the situation closely and pointed to Brazil's historical link with Portugal, friendly with Italy, Germany, and insurgent Spain.

(One official said the Vargas coup did not necessarily mean "an attachment to the totalitarian states, especially since Brazil is friendly with the United States which has shown itself hostile to the totalitarian states by its presence at the Brussels Conference and by President Roosevelt's Chicago speech."

Speculation In Britain.

(British newspapers carried long reports on the change in Brazil and speculated on whether Brazil would join the agreement.

(The London Daily Telegraph said it could "hardly be a coincidence that Signor Gayda, mouthpiece of Il Duce, especially picked out Brazil in an article published last Sunday, as a South American country ripe for joining the anti-Communist front."

(Virginio Gayda is an authoritative Italian newspaper commentator.

(The Telegraph's editorial added: "Moreover, the long-established penetration of Brazil by German and Italian emigrants has in recent years shown signs of rival penetration by Japanese interests....

("It is no wonder that anxieties are aroused in the United States, mindful of the Monroe Doctrine, and in this country which has important investments in Brazil, regarding any working arrangements which may become to between Brazil and European Fascist states."

(Official circles in Berlin withheld comment but one newspaper, The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, captioned its Brazilian story: "Brazil abolishes parliamentarianism.")

The new constitution proclaimed by Vargas cancelled the presidential election scheduled for January and gave Vargas indeterminate power as the "supreme authority in the state."

The constitution provided that the incumbent president continue until a plebiscite be held at his discretion. Then "if the plebiscite be favorable to the constitution," the president's term would end. No provision was made for an unfavorable vote.

Meanwhile, Vargas would rule by decree.

FAMOUS TRAVELLER COMING TO CITY

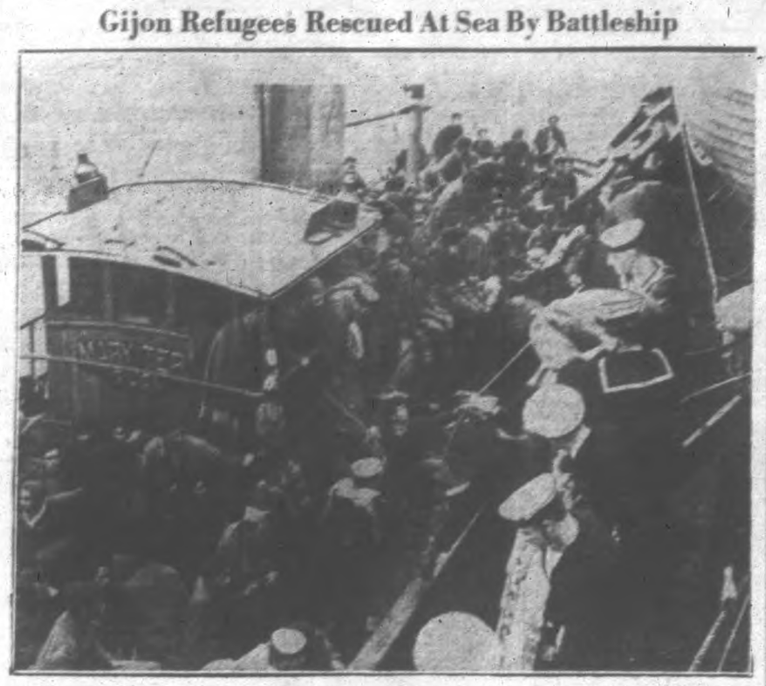
An opportunity is afforded the people of Peterborough on the evening of November 24 when Richard Halliburton will tell of some of his thrilling experiences encountered during his travels to all parts of the world.

Richard Halliburton, who knows the weird corners of the world as few men know them, has traveled on wings, on foot, on elephants, in carts, in autos; swimming, fighting and laughing his way ever on the search for color, glamour and adventure.

He has explored new places and old—often doing spectacular things that most people believe impossible. At the end of his sophomore year at Princeton University, in 1919, adventure-bent he sailed from New Orleans as an ordinary sea-man, spending the next twelve months studying in Paris and exploring the by-ways of Europe. Persuaded to finish school, he returned to Princeton and graduated in 1921, at the age of twenty-one.

Then, with the determination to make literature his profession, he returned to the sea in search of copy and color, and for the past sixteen years he has been doing those daring and spectacular things that people want to hear about. He has climbed Matterhorn and Fujiyama——crossed the Himalayas into Little Tibet—visited Siam, Angkor, Bali, China, Siberia and Japan—retraced the travels of Ulysses—climbed Mt. Olympus—ran the original Marathon—swam the Hellespont—in Latin America he retraced Cortez' conquest of Mexico from Vera Cruz to Mexico—swam the entire length of the Panama Canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific locks, lake and all. Explored in Peru and Brazil—spent a summer on Devil's Island—relived the life of Robinson Crusoe on Crusoe's Island of Tobago—took a two year flight around the world in his own plane, The Flying Carpet—even joined the French Foreign Legion—with permission from the Maharajah flew to Mt. Everest to be the first to explore it by air—in Manila welcomed as the flyers to reach there from Europe. He has stridden across the map in his Seven League Boots—riding across the Alps into Italy aboard his famous elephant, Dally—was guest of Haile Selassie in Abyssinia — secured first eye-witness story of the assassination of the Romanoffs—disguised as a pilgrim attempted to enter Mecca, but was turned back—later interviewed King Ibn Saud outside the city walls.

Gijon Refugees Rescued At Sea By Battleship



This picture from the decks of His Majesty's Ship Southampton, records the rescue of 291 refugees from the Spanish port of Gijon who had put to sea in the trawler Mary Tero just before the armies of insurgent General Franco swept into the last Loyalist port in northern Spain. The trawler, with her load of human freight, was adrift 140 miles off Cape de Penas; her engines stalled, sheets stretched for sails, and bare of food when the Southampton steamed alongside. Joyously the refugees climbed aboard the British battleship—to safety.

Final arrangements were made for the annual bazaar, and tea which is to be held in the basement of the church Friday, December 3rd. The sale of goods and the supper will commence at 4.30 p.m.

The next meeting will be held in the basement of the church when the articles will be marked for the bazaar. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in sewing quilt blocks.

Owing to the Institute bazaar, no refreshments were served at this meeting.

Girls' Auxiliary Meets

The Girls' Auxiliary of Christ church held their regular meeting last Thursday at the home of their leader, Mrs. H. Johnson. As their term's work was on display the members of the senior auxiliary were invited and quite a number were present. The rector, Rev. H. Johnson, opened the meeting with prayer, after which the president, Miss Betty Deyell, took charge of the business. Miss Margaret James, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting. After the business session the guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. Howard, of Bobcaygeon, gave a very interesting and instructive talk stressing the importance of the work of the Girls' Auxiliary. Miss Audrey Weir tendered Mrs. Howard a very hearty vote of thanks at the close of her address.

At the close of the meeting the hostess, Mrs. Johnson assisted by the girls, served tea.

A very attractive and large quantity of children's wearing apparel was on display which the girls have made during the year. Also two lovely blankets which were donated by the A.Y.P.A. This bale is being shipped to Rev. N. Burgamaster's parish near Edmonton. As Mr. Burgamaster is an Omemee boy a great many of his friends are interested in his work.

Personals

Peterboro' Red Cross Society Plans Drive To Raise $2,500

Campaign Drive Will Be Held Between November 22 And 27

It would seem appropriate that on this Remembrance Day the Red Cross letter of appear for the 1937 campaign should be opened by some one thousand citizens. The Peterborough Red Cross Society has always maintained an active Soldiers' Work Committee and down through the post-war years an almost incalculable amount of service has been rendered to the ex-service men not only of this community but to those who were passing through and called transients. The war effort of Peterborough in Red Cross work is a proud page in this city's history, surpassed only by the tremendous amount of work accomplished since 1918. The campaign dates are set for November 22nd to 27th, with an objective of $2,500.

The following brochure which accompanies the letter gives statistics of the years work, and it is worthy of note that the first item is Soldiers' work:

OUGHT TO THINK IN WIDER TERMS OF CHURCH WORK

MILLBROOK, Nov. 11.—"We young people are apt to think of our church in terms of the Young People's Union, since we attend conferences, convention, and other gatherings where our side of the work is wholly stressed; and thus we neglect to think in wider terms, and understand that we are but one organization of the United church, as our Moderator pointed out in his address the broadcast of which we have just listened to."

This message was the initial one in the devotional period at the Y.P.U. meeting on Monday evening, and given by the leader, Miss Phyllis Kidd, who was in charge. In common with many other young people's societies, and congregational gatherings, over the whole Dominion, the local association, with a number of visitors, had met in the church parlors to listen to the three leaders of the United Church, Rev. Dr. Arnup, foreign Missions' secretary, Rev. Dr. Cochrane, home missions' secretary, and the Moderator, Right Rev. Dr. Peter Bryce, in their broadcast message, the latter closing with an earnest appeal for liberal support of the Missions and Maintenance Fund.

Assisting with the worship period were Jean L. Burnham who read the lesson, and B. B. Dawson, who offered prayer. Esther Might presided at the organ, and since the regular meeting night next week, November 16, is the fowl supper in Grace Presbyterian church, the young people will have their gathering on Wednesday, at 8 p.m., with Miss M. Gardiner giving the talk.

Preparing Liner For Winter Flying

One of the major steps in servicing an airliner for winter is shown being taken here in the Chicago shops of a major air line. The mechanics are installing de-icing boots on the wings of a big passenger aeroplane. The boot consists of a long envelope of finest rubber secured to the leading edge of the wing and attached to an air compressor. At the first sign of ice formation on the wing, the pilot forces compressed air into the boot, causing it to pulsate and remove the ice before it has a chance to build up.

THEY WANT WIDER DIVORCE GROUNDS

LONDON, Nov. 11 (CP).—The Divorce Law Reform Union welcomes the passing of A. P. Herbert's Matrimonial Causes Act, but intends to pursue still wider grounds for divorce in Great Britain, it was made plain at the annual meeting of the Union.

"The union must go on with its work, despite the passing of the new act," said Howell Smith, chairman.

"There are still many urgent reforms that require our attention. We are going to press for divorce on the grounds of chronic drunkenness of husband or wife, and also in the case of sentences of life imprisonment after remission of the death sentence.

"We must continue to press for the addition of these as grounds for divorce until they are actually obtained through act of Parliament."

BRITAIN WARS ON LITTERING

LONDON, Nov. 11 (CP) —"Say it with fines" is Sussex' answer to the litter-fiend. A rising tide of indignation against people who picnic in the countryside, leaving scraps of paper and remnants of food, has culminated in police action in the town of Arundel, West Sussex.

Thirty-seven holidaymakers appeared in police court there in one day, summoned for breaking anti-litter by-laws. Two cases were dismissed but the other 35 paid fines varying from $1.25 to $5.

C. V. Porter, who prosecuted, divided the offenders into two classes—those who threw down rubbish anywhere and those who put it in a hedge or a hole in the ground. They made the countryside look like a series of rubbish dumps, he said.

Arundel's anti-litter campaign was well-organized. On three successive Sundays mounted police, uniformed officers and special constables in plainclothes were on duty watching for offenders in two well-known beauty spots, Whiteways Lodge and Fairmile Bottom. Baskets have been provided for rubbish and warning notices posted.

Yorkshire followed the example of Sussex. At Pickering, 16 persons were fined various sums for depositing litter at a beauty spot on the Whitby moors. Dr. R. A. Scott, the magistrate, said district residents found it "absolutely deplorable" in such places after a weekend.

Pirates Busy On Mediterranean As Far Back As 1492

When Columbus Found America Moors Making Looting Big-Time Job

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (CP)—Warships on anti-piracy patrol in the Mediterranean are much better equipped to detect and combat submarines than allied destroyers were during the Great War. But the modern sub, likewise, is much better prepared to protect itself.

On the side of the pirate chasers, naval experts point out these developments since 1918:

1. Improvement of high-frequency sound detectors and direction finders by which surface craft can detect and locate submarines.

2. Improvement in the accuracy of depth bomb setting.

Depth bombs—sailors call them "ash cans"—are, in fact, the one effective weapon against a submerged submarine.

Cylindrical metal cases, they look like five-gallon paint drums but are loaded with 300 to 400 pounds of TNT or other high explosive. They can be set to go off at any desired depth. Water pressure is most commonly used to set off the explosive.

Depth bombs can be either rolled overboard off the stern of a destroyer or shot from Y-guns. These are slingshot-shaped, double-barrelled cannons mounted astern on the deck of the sub-chasing destroyer. They shoot two bombs at a time over opposite sides.

Destroyer Fights Sub

Checking the sub's location every 10 to 15 seconds by sounder devices, the destroyer plows the waters directly overhead, laying a barrage of depth bombs in her wake.

A direct hit by a depth bomb is almost certain to sink a submarine, navy men say, and a bomb exploding within 100 feet will probably put the sub out of control.

But submarine improvements since the war have about kept pace with the advances in sub-fighting weapons. Submarines today are much faster than the German U-boats of the Great War. And they can duck under more quickly, go deeper and stay under longer.

A modern sub can stay under water 72 hours, compared with 24 hours in 1917, and can go down to 300 feet below the surface, while the Great War U-boats dared not dive below 200 feet.

The sub's big disadvantage is that in clear water her dark shadow shows on the surface even from 100 feet below.

65-MILE GALE

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 11—(AP)—A wild autumn gale which obtained a maximum velocity of 56 miles an hour injured two persons here yesterday and tied up Lake Erie shipping, besides causing minor damage to power lines, trees and signs.

Wally Bushey, 57, of Ogdensburg, N.Y., a Great Lakes-sailor, was blown off his feet when a heavy gust swept across the freighter Robinson, which was docked. He suffered a broken leg. The wind tossed Miss Pearl Barnes, 37, against a police call box at a downtown street corner. She suffered a fractured wrist.

STOP SOIL DRIFT STORE FERTILITY

NOTTINGHAM, England, Nov. 11. —(CP)—Measures for fighting soil erosion and the gravity of the situation to agriculture in various parts of the Empire were discussed by Sir John Russell and other experts at a sectional meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Sir John's general discussion of how to create a satisfactory grass pasture led up to the statement that laying land down to grass increases its fertility. Phosphates would increase grass growth which in turn would increase the fertility of the soil. But if the pasture was broken up there would be stores of fertility remaining in the soil that would survive for some years, an asset which would be cashed for other purposes.

A second point about grass culture was its profound importance to the Empire, especially in the sub-tropical and tropical regions. "Covering land with grass stops erosion," he said.

After speaking of extreme erosion in Africa and Asia, Sir John said "one of the most important problems, then, in our own sub-tropical and tropical Empire is to find some way of covering land with rapidly-growing vegetation so as to stop erosion."

Dr. Winifred Brenchley, speaking o fthe ultimate composition of the herbage from various seed mixtures, described an experiment in laying down to grass a loam on clay with a number of mixtures sown in parallel strips. Rye grass assumed and retained a dominant position, the Italian variety proving unexpectedly persistent.

Rough-stalked meadow grass was slow in esabtishing itself, but spread considerably and had invaded areas in which it was not sown. Wild white clover was the only leguminous species that had proved persistent, the quantity in which it occurred being clearly determined by seasonal conditions, especialy rainfall.

BOSTON REVELS IN ROYAL LINES

BOSTON, Nov. 11 (CP).—This city is rich in descendants of kings. All lineages are traced to the legitimate issue of royalty, too, with no bounding over bars sinister, according to John S. Wurts, a Philadelphia lawyer, chancellor of four organizations meeting here.

In place of the Indian feathers of the revolutionary affair members of the Society of Americans of Royal Descent assumed the insignia, of the order—a lion rampant in a shield on an ermine field, the whole surmounted by a crown and attached to a ribbon of blue, red and white.

Also at the tea party were members of the Society of Descendants of Knights of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, the Colonial Order of the Crown and the Plantagenet Society. The Colonial Order members trace their descent to the Emperor Charlemagne. This was a society for men only, at one time, but now women are admitted and may wear the insignia of purple and gold, with a small dangling crown.

Anyone with a lineage from Geoffrey of Anjou (called Plantagenet) who lived in the early 12th century, can, on invitation, become a member of the Plantagenet Society.

MARKS UP-TRENDS IN EMPIRE TRADE

LONDON, Nov. 11 (CP).—Customs duties, quotas, subsidies of other forms of regulation, now "familiar devices in international trade" seem likely to prove long-lived, says the Midland Bank Review, discussing improvement in the turnover of British overseas trade, particularly within the Empire.

Changed conditions had led to some concentration of trade within closely-related areas. The Review observed. Within the British Empire, the share of inter-Imperial trade in the total trade had risen from less than 26 per cent in 1931 to more than 30 per cent and the proportion of imports from Empire countries to the United Kingdom from 30 per cent of the total imports in the first six months of 1931 to more than 41 per cent for a similar period this year. The share of exports to Empire countries had risen from about 44 per cent to 47 per cent.

"The trade of the world has, as it were, adopted a different pattern," it is added, "which may persist long after the need for special methods has passed and the difficulties of adjustment to the changed conditions are bound to be considerable in all major trading countries.

"In Britain's trade, the upward movement in exports has become steeper, notwithstanding the increased competition in world markets resulting from the break-up of the former gold bloc towards the end of last year. Moreover there are indications that the revival is now becoming more pronounced in trade with foreign countries."

upon a small black spaniel dog who was being attacked by a larger hunting dog.

A huntsman of several years experience, Mr. Strickland apparently acted in entire disregard of his own safety. Removing his rifle from his shoulder, it was stated, he grasped it by the barrel and with the stock of the gun tried to part the snarling animals. The gun discharged and Mr. Strickland collapsed. He died a few moments later without speaking.

After Coroner Dr. Smith and Provincial Constable David Silvester, who were notified by Mr. Blewett, had investigated at the scene of the fatality, the body of Mr. Strickland was removed to Webster's Undertaking Parlors. A post mortem was conducted there last evening.

Funeral Time

The funeral is to take place at 2.30 o'clock p.m. Friday from St. John's Church, Lakefield with interment at Hillside Cemetery.

A son of the late Roland C. Strickland and Eleanor Crickmore, Jack Strickland (as he was known to his more intimate friends), was born here. His grandfather the late Colonel Samuel Strickland was one of the founders of Lakefield who settled in 1837, and ever since that day the family name has been interwoven in the social life and the civic progress of the municipality.

Colonel Strickland who came from England was a prominent figure in the village life and his son and grandson carried on the highest traditions of the family, both holding municipal office.

Jack Strickland was Reeve of the Municipality from 1920 until 1926 and in 1922 was Warden of the County—an honor held by his father in 1886. After a brief absence during which time he lived in Peterborough, Mr. Strickland again entered the council in 1929.

On the Yukon Trail

In early manhood, Mr. Strickland left his native village and worked for a time in a bank in Montreal, but the lure of adventure made him forsake his ledgers for the Yukon goldfields.

With other countless thousands he took part in the gold rush to the north west and was on the trek over the Chilkoot Pass to Dawson City.

When the South African war broke out, the fighting spirit of his grandfather was rekindled within him and he saw active service with a Canadian unit on the veldt. Home from his campaigning overseas at the close of the war, he sought further adventure on the prairies, but in the year 1910 settled down to married life.

He married Henrietta Anderson, who predeceased him and of the marriage there survive one daughter Mrs. Adelaide Logan of Buffalo, N. Y., and three sons Gordon, Jack and Roland all in the Northern Ontario mining fields.

Other Survivors

In 1916, Mr. Strickland was married again to Mrs. Harry Hewitt (formerly Winnifred Leonard, a sister of Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie of Grove School), who survives. He also leaves two sisters Mrs. Ernest Casson, Brighton, Ontario and Mrs. Ernest Pratt in England. Another sister Mrs. Charles Goodman died during the past summer, while he lost a brother who was a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and also a brother who was killed on active service overseas during the Great War.

During latter years, Mr. Strickland was variously engaged as a representative of the London Life Insurance Company at Peterborough, as owner of Lakefield Inn and as manager of Wantasa Inn at McCracken's Landing.

At the time of his death he was residing near Burleigh Falls where he was building himself a beautiful residence which had about neared completion.

CANADA PAUSES TO HONOR DEAD

did not open until after the 11 o'clock services.

Antigonish County in Nova Scotia paid tribute to its war dead around a newly-unveiled memorial at Antigonish. In Quebec City, Lieut.-Gov. E. L. Patenaude inspected his guard of honor and veterans' organizations after the cenotaph service. Several memorial services were held in Toronto and Montreal.

Similar services were held in Winnipeg, at the cenotaph on Memorial Boulevard, and in the civic Auditorium. A veteran's parade to the Armouries preceded Regina's cenotaph memorial service. In both cities stores were closed all day. Saskatoon, in North-Central Saskatchewan, and Edmonton, Alberta's capital, similarly paid tribute.

An unique service at the Peace Arch on the Canada-United States boundary between Blaine, Wash., and Douglas, B.C., was British Columbia's tribute to its dead. Hundreds of lower mainland school children participated in the impressive rites with government and church leaders from both countries.

Ceremonies in Ontario.

Fitting observance of the day was held throughout Ontario. Some of the highlights:

Windsor—This industrial city stilled completely during the two minutes' silence as citizens paid tribute before the Cenotaph. Telephone calls were not accepted by the exchange during the period.

Fort Erie— Tobias F. Forestell, K.C., head of the Fort Erie Legion, read the roll of honor before the Cenotaph. It contained the names of all Fort Erie men who fell overseas and veterans who since have died.

Stratford— Forty-eight wreaths were laid on the Cenotaph after the 11 o'clock memorial service.

Chatham—A public memorial service in the Capitol Theatre followed the annual Cenotaph observance.

Goderich—The day was observed as a general holiday. Hotel beverage rooms were closed voluntarily by hotel keepers at 12.30 p.m.

Galt Closes Partially

Galt.—City Council members, war veterans, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides paraded to the cenotaph where the service was in charge of members of the Ministerial Association. Business places closed from 10.30 a.m. until noon.

Kitchener.—The explosion of a signal bomb ushered in this city's period of silence after the annual cenotaph service.

Guelph.—Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire led the service at the Cross of Sacrifice. Students of the Ontario Agricultural College attended at service in memorial Hall.

Forest.—Public holiday was proclaimed.

Orangeville.—Merchants kept their places of business closed until 1 p.m. Public offices and schools were closed.

Yesterday, in an address to war veterans in Toronto, President H. J. Cody of the University of Toronto, said of the war that led to the Day of Remembrance:

"We must not rest until everything possible is done to banish off the face of the earth this curse."

WARM FEET FOR SAILORS

LONDON, Novb. 11—(CP).—Tall sailors in particular hailed with joy an admiralty regulation for their comfort.

In order to prevent a demand coming from sailors who are not so tall but who want roomier hammocks the navy announced all applicants for extra long hammocks will be measured.

The "victim," aged 16, and the older boy were charged with theft of $9.55, the property of the store, while the other lad was accused of receiving 55 cents. The messenger was also charged with stealing a loaded revolver carried by the older boy in the "holdup."

Flew to Scene in August

LONDON, Nov. 11—(AP).—Pembroke Stephens, British correspondent killed in Shanghai to-day, had flown 9,500 miles from London to Hong-King in August to reach the Chinese war zone. He had just spent a year covering the Spanish civil war.

Mr. Stephens was expelled from Germany in 1934 while acting as Berlin correspondent of The London Daily Express. He and his wife were arrested, he said at that time, after making inquiries about "mysterious building activity in a forest near Dessau."

Pleasing Program Campbellford Y.G.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 11.— The regular meeting of the Campbellford Youth Group was held on Monday evening with the president presiding. Following prayers by Captain Sharpe the scripture reading was given.

Betty Bennett, devotional convenor had charge of the program and took as her theme "How God answers prayer". A reading was then given by Isobel Cochrane entitled "May I Play the Game" followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. Sharpe and a further reading by Lily Pickering, "They that Know their God". After the reading of the minutes the annual fees were collected and an interesting feature of the program was the reading of the newspaper clippings by Miss Lily Pickering. After having two contests which were arranged by Mrs. Sharpe the meeting was brought to a close with the benediction.

RENEW REMEMBRANCE WITH CITY'S WAR DEAD

Sense Of Security Is Gone From Tributes Associated With Remembrance Day Event

Louder Echoes of War Resound And Admissions Made That Democracy Is Threatened

With the grateful leadership of the Canadian Legion, Peterborough celebrated this morning another Remembrance Day, the nineteenth anniversary of the armistice that silenced the guns in France and Flanders with a promise that the hush heard round the world was the dawning of a new era of peace.

The Legion paraded again, a tradition of Remembrance Day, and although the ranks have greatly changed and the rhythmic beat of boots on the pavement is not so precise and vibrant as in those years that finally ended on a historic November 11, the ranks seemed to be filled up again around the morning hour of 11 o'clock, memory replacing the faces and forms that are not there.

The parade of the Legion and the two minutes of silence, universal acts of Remembrance that are repeated throughout the land seemed to be invested with even greater significance and solemnity than in other years with the maturing of a nation's sentiment in the full and rather bitter realization of the price that was paid and of victory's increment of peace turned against the ideals that purchased it.

Louder echoes of war resounded in the day's addresses, reference to nations rearming, and admission that democracy which was thought to have been safeguarded is threatened with greater perils than at any other time in this century.

Remembrance was renewed with quiet fervor at the Legion's cenotaph, at the city's heroic memorial in Confederation Square, at the later meeting in the Capitol Theatre, but it was preoccupied with alarms of the present. The sense of security that seemed real and permanent in the years after the war was gone from the tributes associated with community's acts and expressions of Remembrance, and in its place was a note of warning against new enemies of the peoples that derive from the British Isles. Of uneasy significance was the appeal of the Hon Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Defense, for greater unity among Canadians, and of determination and readiness to defend this country and its interests in a world that is increasingly bowing to the sinister ideals of force and hate.

These were the recurrent themes of Remembrance Day speakers, affection for the men who gave their lives in the Great War, and reassertion of the ideals of liberty and democracy to which the British people are clinging while so many others are yielding their sovereignty to dictators.

Sunshine with a frosty nip in the air greeted the men of the Legion as they mustered with the city's Boy Scouts and Cubs and Girl Guides. In the meantime the ex-service employees of the Canadian General Electric Company had formed their lines on the Park Street green opposite the main offices of the plant, and with their own band composed of musicians of the Rangers and Salvation Army, they paraded up town. Groups of civilians fell in behind their column and bringing up the rear was a smart detachment of the Fire Department and other city employees. They joined the main section of the Legion along Murray Street in front of the Armouries.

Wreaths were placed on the Cenotaph by Lt.-Col. M. R. Sloan, president of the Peterborough Branch of the Legion, and some other citizens, and the parade proceeded by way of Murray, Aylmer, McDonnel, and George Streets to the city's War Memorial. In the meantime the guard of honor detailed to meet the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Canada's Minister of Defence, with the main body of the Rangers' Band, marched from the Armouries to George Street in front of the Public Library, under the command of Major G. R. E. Melton, where they were inspected by Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, accompanied by Col. John A. Dewart, M.C., Mayor George A. Macdonald, and J. J. Duffus, M.P.

Splendid Assembly.

This morning's Armistice Day parade, sponsored by the Canadian Legion, was the largest seen in Peterborough since the celebration of the signing of the Armistice was converted into an anniversary of Remembrance. Men of all branches of the service in their medals and distinctive berets responded to the spirit of the occasion in splendid numbers, and with what seemed greater pride than ever in their old associations with the men whose sacrifice was commemorated. At least four hundred of the ex-service men of the city were in line with the Rangers' guard of honor, two bands, the girls and boys of the Scouts and Guides, and representatives of many of the fraternal societies. Joseph Lancashire and William J. Green represented the Odd Fellows in placing their wreath on the memorial.

After the composite bands played the hymn, "Abide With Me," Lt.-Col. Sloan introduced Rev. Captain George S. Easton and Rev. Captain P. J. Kelly, who briefly addressed the large assembly of citizens gathered around the memorial in Confederation Square.

Captain Easton said the nineteenth anniversary of the Armistice set all people thinking as the nations of the world had trodden uncertain paths since the November 11th of 1918. In today's act of memory Capt. Easton asked his audience to go back with him and visit Canada's greatest city. It was not Montreal, Toronto or Vancouver. It was far away and without a name, and its streets were scattered everywhere throughout France and Belgium. Its shrine is located on Vimy Ridge suggestive in its symbolism of Rachel weeping for her children.

"This eternal city of Canadians is a city of faith," Capt. Easton said, "for after all the men who dwell there were dreaming of a better day for the world. As the war progressed, they believed they were fighting in a war to end war, that their sons and daughters would not see the same thing thrust upon the world again."

As we remember them let us recall their ideals and hopes. Let us remember that peace does not come by wishing. No one ever said, "Blessed is the peace wisher or the peace talker," but Some One Who spoke with authority did say, "Blessed are the peace-makers."

Holiness of Sacrifice.

Rev. Captain Kelly spoke of the meaning of word sacrifice in its application to the price paid by the men who were being remembered throughout the land today. It was an act of the highest spiritual character for their country. Sacrifice had been authorized under the old law by the Almighty, thereby possessing a great sacredness. The meaning of the phrase sacrifice of the boys who died in the war took on a deeper significance by that relationship.

Father Kelly urged that this thought be held in its deeper meaning, with the realization that in a very special manner the men who died in the war had died that we might live in happiness. "Let us in our remembrance ask them to watch over our country that it may be preserved from war," Capt. Kelly concluded, remarking that although it might be too much to hope for, but at least the people of Canada and of Britain would not give themselves to any war except of defence.

Many wreaths were placed on the memorial by scores of citizens, and the parade resumed its march to the Capitol Theatre for the concluding espisode of the morning, featuring the address by Hon. Ian Mackenzie. Hundreds of citizens lined the George Street sidewalks witnessing the most impressive memorial parade the Canadian Legion has directed probably since its institution in Peterborough.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 11.— Recipes for the bride's cook book will again be the basis for points given at the Nov. 18th meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Archie McMillan and a special feature will be the report of the Belleville Convention.

CITY SHIELD WON BY YOUNG PEOPLE OF ST. GEORGE'S

Honors went to St. George's church of Peterborough and St. Mary's church of Lifford Line as seven Anglican Young People's Associations of the city and district competed for amateur entertainment honors at the St. John's parish hall last night. A capacity gathering witnessed the widely varied program.

Two shields were at stake in the competition. St. George's young people won the city shield with the presentation of two well prepared and enacted skits and a fine duet. Less elaborate but equally popular with the audience was the presentation of the Lifford Line delegation consisting of a pleasing vocal trio number, a reading and an old-time band act, and achieving award of the shield for the competing district A.Y.P.A.'s. Judges were Cathleen McCarthy, William Hepburn and Malcolm Latimer.

The feature of the St. George's effort was a ballad skit entitled "Waiting at the Church." Songsters and members of the cast were Beatrice Curtis, Mrs. Art Busby, Annette Lefevre, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pallis, Art Henwood, Ken Gibson, Jack Adamson and Tom Maudsley. Mrs. Ray King was the pianist. Ken Gibson and Mrs. Gordon Ray enacted the dialogue skit "Nothing But Nonsense" which followed and Mrs. Art Busby and Mr. Maudsley concluded with a duet.

Wide Variety

The Lifford Line vocal trio which won heavy applause was composed of Isobel Sisson, Gladys Wright and Marjorie Page. Lawrence Staples, George Timms, Ken Anderson, Marjorie Page and Robert Sisson, all in excellent costume, composed the old-time band. Isobel Sisson entertained with a reading, "The Last Hymn."

Other competing societies were All-Saints', Emily, Omemee, St. John's and St. Luke's. All Saints' program was entirely vocal, Griffin Young sang "The Moon is in My Eyes" and Rose Puddick won an appreciative hand with "On a Little Dream Ranch." The "Desert Song" was sung by Doug. Weir.

The offering of St. James' A.Y.P.A. of Emily was no less effective. Grace and Beryl Franks did a vocal duet "I Belong to the King" and Nelson Davis, Alvin Clark and Arthur Boate staged a humorous skit called "Dr. Cufeall." An old-time orchestra, "The Happy Revellers" took the spotlight in an amusing effort. The orchestra, appropriately garbed, was composed of Vera Davis, pianist; Mrs. Arnott Boate, guitar; Albert Davis, violin; and Vincent Franks, mouth organ.

Clever Skit

June and Betty Arbuckle afforded something different in the way of a tap dance and accordian number in the Christ Church A.Y.P.A. of Omemee. Enacters of a clever skit were Audrey Weir and Horace Hill.

St. John's church offering was instrumental and vocal. Jack Marshall who served ably as master of ceremonies of the entire show worked with Beck Flumerfelt in a piano duet entitled "Two Guitars." "Whispering" was a vocal solo done by Victor Coleman and Jean McIlwain was well received with a guitar medley.

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. part of the program was ambitious and well deserved the fine reception it got. A number entitled "Rehearsal of Fibber MaGee" was a take-off on the Fibber McGee radio program. Characters were Mrs. Jim Forbes, Miss C. Long, Mrs. Floyd Curtis, Ralph Mason and R. Krant. Another skit on the radio theme was "Past, Present and Future," enacted by a cast consisting of Daisy and Jessie Bell, W. Bell, Cecil Hope, Bill Hill, Vic Sedgwick, Mrs. F. Curtis, Eileen Biddle and Ralph Mason. The story of Little Red Riding Hood was effectively burlesqued in another number by Queenie Hope, Ralph Mason and Roland Krant.

Between acts, Lenore Gordon entertained with a song "Wake Up and Live" and a dance, and Lloyd Boddison did a Spanish guitar number.

ROPE IS MISSING FROM FLAG POLE

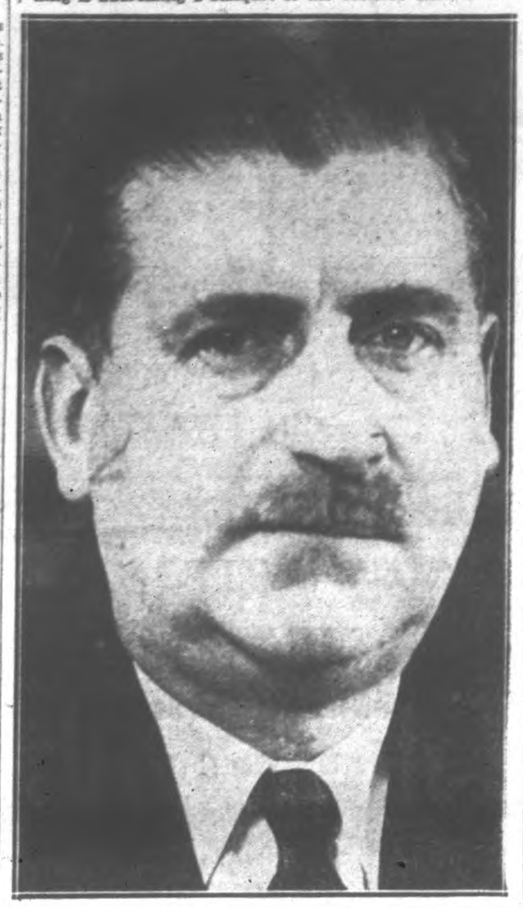
A Hallowe'en prank discovered too late to remedy marred Peterborough Remembrance Day ceremonies and caused civic officialdom grave embarrassment this morning. Although the occasion was distinguished by the presence of Hon. Ian MacKenzie, Minister of National Defence, it was found impossible to carry out the most impressive part of the memorial rites, the lowering and raising of the great Union Jack during the sounding of the Last Post and Reveille on Confederation Square.

When city men went to raise the flag on the tall civic mast at an early hour, they found the rope for hoisting the bunting gone. Hurried inquiries at the Fire Department revealed that there is no ladder in Peterborough high enough to permit threading of a new rope through the top pulley. It will be necessary to obtain a truck from Toronto equipped with special ladders to recommission the pole, it was agreed.

Paraders at Confederation Square contented themselves with dipping their hand-held standards as the Last Post and Reveille were sounded.

Guest Of Honor

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence who was the guest speaker at the annual Remembrance Day services held in the Capitol theatre. Mr. Mackenzie is in Peterborough for the day and this evening is addressing a banquet of the Officers' Association.



HUSBAND GUILTY OF KILLING WIFE

HAILEYBURY, Ont., Nov. 11 (C.P.). — Thomas Romanchuk, Kirkland Lake poolroom proprietor, was convicted of manslaughter by an Assize Court jury here yesterday. The charge was reduced from one of murder. Romanchuk was remanded for sentence.

The jury deliberated 75 minutes. It was charged Mrs. Rosina Romanchuk had been kicked to death by Romanchuk in the kitchen of their home last May 3, during a religious holiday celebration.

In his address to the jury, Charles W. Bell, defense counsel, suggested "the only proper verdict in this case is manslaughter." There had been both provocation and drunkenness, he said, and referred to the party's proceedings as a "drunken debauch."

Coronation Films Pleasing Attraction

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 11. — Sponsored by the Women's Missionary Society and Men's Club of St. John's United Church the Coronation pictures taken by Fred Roy of Peterborough on the occasion of his recent trip to England proved to be a great attraction on Tuesday evening. The views of the Coronation procession and of Their Majesties as well as many beautiful garden scenes in the British Isle, all of which were supplemented by descriptions by the photographers made the evening one long to be remembered.

EXTENSION IS GRANTED

DETROIT, Nov. 11 (CP) — Vincente Cardinelle, seeking citizenship in the United States, sent his daughter to plead for him in naturalization court, when he was unable to leave work to appear in person. Theresa Cardinelle, 11, stepped up to the judge's bench and explained that her father was "not quite ready for the naturalization examination yet."

Theresa is teaching her father English, and reported that he should be reay for the examination in a few months. Judge Arthur Tuttle granted an extension.

FATHER NELLES IS 81

OTTAWA, Nov. 11 (CP)—Rev. Father Nicholas Nilles, believed to be oldest member of the Oblate Order in Canada, today celebrated his 81st birthday at the University of Ottawa where he had been stationed for more than 50 years.

Father Nilles, retired professor of the university, was born at Metz, France, and was ordained 56 years ago.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

WINDOWS DECORATED.

Many downtown stores demonstrated tribute to the occasion of Remembrance Day with show window displays yesterday and today. Wreaths and poppies backed by purple buntings constituted the most frequent decorative scheme.

OLD BOYS' VISIT

Old Boys of the Grove School will pay their annual visit to the Institution on Saturday for the usual rugby game with the school team. It is expected there will be a large number of visitors in Lakefield for the occasion.

TOURIST ELECTED MAYOR.

Suggestion of a visit by a Havelock deputation some time next year to one of its Oak Lake summer vacationists, Dan B. Gutellus, who was elected mayor of Warren, Ohio, a few days ago. He has been so long a regular over in the east end of the county that they regard him as one the regulars, almost a "native son."

IMPRESSIVE WINDOWS.

The city's stores carry out the Remembrance Day motive admirably in their window displays today. Poppy wreaths and Union Jacks have been effectively used in the decorative scheme and some of the stores have an elaborate display that is really striking.

POLICE BUSY.

This was a busy morning for the members of the police department who were all on duty in connection with the Remembrance Day ceremonies. Even the night staff were detailed for work on the street this morning.

PLAN EXAMINATION.

Arrangements for annual re-examination of the corps was made by the St. John Ambulance Brigade at a meeting Wednesday night. The re-examination will be conducted on November 24 by Dr. G. Murray Fraser. Draw tickets on a turkey were issued at the meeting.

LIKE A SUNDAY.

Peterborough's business section resembled a Sunday this morning until the hour for beginning the Remembrance Day ceremonies drew near. All the business places with the exception of restaurants and drug stores were closed and there were few folk in sight anywhere at 9 o'clock.

NORWOOD ROBBERIES

Two Norwood service stations were entered by thieves in the early hours of Wednesday morning. At Fredericks' station $30 worth of cigarettes and a quantity of gasoline was taken while G. R. Baker's service station was entered and relieved of a number of cigarettes. The doors were forced open in both cases. Mrs. Baker heard the marauders at 3.15 o'clock but thought it was her son waiting on a customer.

A PARADE IN ITSELF.

The ex-servicemen employed at the C.G.E. and the DeLaval Company made an impressive showing as they paraded from their places of employment to the Canadian Legion Hall this morning to take part in the ceremonies. There were over 300 veterans in this group, which headed by a large band marched up George street at 10 o'clock. The C.G.E. veterans were headed by R. E. Layfield while G. H. Cutmore had charge of the DeLaval quota. The fire department veterans joined the paraders at Charlotte and Aylmer Streets and marched with them to the Cenotaph.

Formerly Smoke Residence In Paris One Of Finest Homes In The Town

PARIS, Ont., Nov. 11 (CP). — Paris members of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, marched today from the Legion Home to participate in this city's services of remembrance to the Great War dead.

A memorial to Franklin S. Smoke, K.C., once member of parliament for Brant, the home was presented to the Paris Legion for use as a headquarters by Judge Sheldon Smoke of Peterborough. It was dedicated on Monday by Brig.-Gen. Alex. Ross, Yorkton, Dominion president of the Legion.

The home formerly was the Smoke residence here, and was one of the finest private homes in Paris. Judge Smoke made the presentation in honor of the memory of his father. Souvenirs and pictures of the Great War now hang upon the walls of the home, fitted up as a club with a meeting hall, a billiard room, beverage room, ladies' auxiliary quarters and an office.

In a plaque in the hallway the following tribute is recorded

"Great deeds cannot die. They with the sun and moon renew their light forever blessing those who look upon them. In memory of Franklin Smoke, K.C., ex-M.P., an honorary member of Branch 29 of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, and an honored citizen of the town of Paris and County of Brant for over 70 years. This was his home. Erected by members of the branch in appreciation of his personal concern evidence at all times in the welfare of ex-service men. Dedicated November 8, 1937."

HEATING EXPERT TALKS TO DEALERS

Gerald Czechowicz, heating engineer of the Blue Coal Corporation, New York City spoke to a group of coal merchants from Peterborough and vicinity at a meeting held here last night.

Mr. Czechowicz impressed the dealers with the fact that, the coal buying public can obtain 20 to 30 percent more heat from their coal, if they will reduce the amount of loss by the proper operation and manipulation of dampers, the proper insulation, the heating system and the maintaining of clean furnaces and boilers.

This information will help these dealers in rendering better fuel service to their respective communities by imparting this information to their customers.

This is one of a serie sof lectures that Mr. Czechowicz will conduct in Peterborough. Those present were: J. E. A. Fitzgerald, H. B. Taylor & Son, Wm. Scott Co., Scott Coal and Lumber Co., of Peterborough; Superior Fuels, Lindsay; W. J. Charlton, Lakefield; Russel Thompson, Norwood; W. H. Peacock & Co., Port Hope; J. M. Harrison, Cobourg; H. M. Fowlds and Son, Hastings.

Minister Is Met By Committee

The Minister of National Defence who was accompanied by his military secretary, Lieut.-Colonel Clive Scott, received a committee of civic and military representatives at 9.30 o'clock. The committee included Mayor George A. Macdonald, J. J. Duffus, M.P., Lieut.-Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., officer commanding Peterborough Rangers, Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., second-in-command; President M. R. Sloan, Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion, and Captain Wilfred Huycke, K.C. The Honorable Mr. Mackenzie was making his first official visit to the city in his capacity as Defence Minister, but declared he had been here on a former occasion some years ago. Colonel Scott, his secretary, served overseas with the 2nd Battalion, and during the course of a delightful informal chat, told those present he knew several local men who had also served overseas with that unit. Among them he named Lieut.-Colonel G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., former O.C. Peterborough Rangers, and Lieut.-Colonel C. H. Ackerman.

SLICK SALESMAN VICTIMIZES TOWN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Nov. 11 — Lindsay housewives and, incidentally, the police are looking for a slick "salesman" whose specialty is enlarged photographs. The glib-tongued individual has been making a house to house call in the interests, so he explained of a picture contest for children. If a picture was produced by the housewife, the request was made that he be allowed to make an enlargement. All the housewife had to do was to pay 98 cents at the time the picture was handed the agent. Those who made the deposit are still looking for the agent.

This appears to be the season for petty house thieving, a number of citizens having been invited by members of the light-fingered craft. Articles of clothing, etc., have been carried off in some instances. One thief, apparently with a sweet tooth broke into a cellar of a south ward residence and carried off the season's preserves.

The death is announced at Toronto of a former well-known local athlete in the person of Eric Scott, brother of Gordon Scott of Lindsay. The deceased was a foremost boxer and former member of St. Mary's Hockey Club in the Church League. He is survived by his wife, mother, one sister and one brother. Interment takes place at Lindsay.

Adam S. Brock, a well-known resident of Bobcaygeon, and a former reeve, passed away at Ross Memorial Hospital at the age of 79 years. Death resulted from injuries received when the deceased fell while returning from a visit with neighbors. He was a former resident of Harvey, Peterborough County.

800 VETERANS ARE IN PARADE

The Remembrance Day parade that swung down George Street from Confederation Square to the Capitol Theatre shortly after 11 o'clock was the most colorful and impressive post-war pageant that Peterborough has witnessed and featured by the largest turnout of ex-servicemen in the city's history.

Led by the band of the Prince of Wales Rangers, the procession which escorted Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, to the theatre, included some 700 or 800 war veterans, wearing ribbons and medals, and the colored berets that told the story of which division they had served with in the Great War. The C.G.E. and De Laval veterans marched in a separate section headed by a composite band. The whole assemblage of ex-servicemen swung along with a snap to their marching that was refreshing to see.

Included in the parade was the guard of honor, comprising 50 khaki-clad men from the Prince of Wales Rangers under command of Major G. R. Melton, the veterans of the Fire Department headed by Chief George Gimblett, and all the troops of Girl Guides and Brownies, Boy Scouts and Cubs in the city, the whole comprising a most striking parade. The street was lined with spectators as the marchers went by.

TWO TOWNS LEAVE HIGHWAY ROUTE UP TO DEPARTMENT

Ill feeling which has existed between Newmarket and Aurora over the possible routes of the Peterborough-Port Perry-Yonge St. highway for many months was settled when the two municipalities agreed with the Central Ontario Highways Association to leave the matter in the hands of the Department of Highways at a public meeting in Newmarket Wednesday night. The Association announced that the last obstacle to the project has now been removed.

The pipe-of-peace gathering began with a dinner at Newmarket which the Newmarket Council tendered the Central Ontario Highways Association. Present from Peterborough were Alderman James Dutton, chairman of the Association; Fred Overend, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Alderman R. M. Glover and E. A. Outram, deputy city clerk. The gathering of more than 100 included mayors, reeves, wardens, highway engineers and other officials of the municipalities concerned in the highway project. Dr. L. D. Dales, reeve of Newmarket, was in the chair.

Held in Town Hall.

It was at the public meeting in the Newmarket town hall following the dinner that the main business was done. Aurora and Newmarket are about four miles apart, north and south, and both centres have been agitating anxiously to have the link in the Port Perry-Yonge street section of the big highway project routed through their respective towns.

Chairman Dutton outlined to the crowded meeting the history of the project up to the present. W. M. Bowes of Port Perry outlined the manner in which the Association proposes to deal with the Aurora versus Newmarket question. Both municipalities are in York county, he pointed out, and the Highways Association will immediately join with those concerned in going to the York County Council and asking that both the routes through both centres be taken into the county roads system. The Association will then leave the matter of choice of one or another route strictly in the hands of the Department of Highways, he said.

The organizer told the meeting that when the government has made its choice, the Association will back a plea to the County Council to have the route not chosen by the Department paved so that both Newmarket and Aurora will have paved highways.

Dr. F. H. Boyd, mayor of Newmarket, and Dr. Charles Bolding, mayor of Aurora, expressed the satisfaction of their communities with the plan. Officials of the other municipalities concerned joined in the approval.

'What Price War?' Old World Asks To-Day

8,538,318 Were Killed Or Died While 27 Nations Mobilized Immense Army Of 65,038,315

Total Cost Of World War $337,946,179,657—Twenty-One Million Wounded

(By Central Press Canadian).

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—What price war?

That is the question asked once more today—nineteenth anniversary of Armistice Day.

Let's look at the result of the last war. Let's look at the cold figures. Perhaps we can find the answer.

Statistics compiled by various war departments show that approximately 58 per cent. of all individuals connected with the war were either killed, wounded, made prisoners or were listed as missing.

A total of 27 nations mobilized 65,038,315 persons during the four years, three months and 11 days the war lasted. Of this number, 8,538,318 were either killed or died.

Astounding Figure.

This figure becomes even more startling when we realize that it represents the entire population of Canada with the exception of the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba. It represents the entire population of Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Alberta, British Columbia, Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

To put it another way, if the equivalent of the 8,538,315 who were killed or died in the war could be put into one line, the line would extend approximately 1,821 miles or a distance comparable to over half the distance of the boundary between Canada and the United States, or from the Atlantic Ocean almost to Saskatchewan.

More than 21 million men were wounded in the world war. And nearly eight million others were made prisoners or put in the missing class.

Italy, the central figure in war news today, mobilized 5,615,000 troops. Of this number 650,000 were killed or died as a result of wounds or disease.

Great Britain, drawn into the war to protect a defenceless nation, mobilized 8,410,000 troops. And 1,357,000 were killed or died.

Canada enlisted 619,636 men into her battalions and of that number 62,817 did not return alive. The men who died for Canada during the war equal in numbers the population of Windsor, Ont.

France, still another factor in the world drama today, mobilized 8,410,000 troops. Of these 1,357,000 were killed or died. Ethiopia, herself ravaged and crushed by war in 1935, was the only country in Africa that was neutral during the world war.

Still Paying

Perhaps you're interested in the more fortunate ones who returned to Canada after the signing of the armistice? Then think of the disabled veterans. More than 2,800 Canadians suffered amputations as a result of war wounds. These were made up as follows: Both legs amputated, 47; both legs and both arms, 1; one leg, 1,675; one foot, 232; both feet, 11; both arms, 6; one arm, 667; and one hand, 141.

Various estimates have been made as to cost, in dollars, of the world war. Statistics differ. According to one study made by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the war cost totalled $337,946,179,657.

That huge sum is ten times the estimated total wealth of Canada; over 100 times the amount of money deposited by Canadians in the chartered banks of Canada; 50 times the total amount of insurance taken out by Canadians, and over 100 times the national debt of Canada. And every cent of it was spent for destructive purposes.

Virtually half that huge amount represents direct costs and the other half indirect costs. It was figured on a basis of the capitalized value of human life lost, soldiers and civilians, property loss on land, shipping and cargo, loss of production, war relief and loss to neutrals.

Cannot Compute Total.

But the figures do not include the tremendous losses suffered in the world-wide depression that followed and from which the world is still suffering today.

The cost of the great war for Canada reached the total of $1,665,576,032 or a thirtieth of Canada's estimated wealth. The number of Canadian soldiers killed totalled 62,817, with 166,105 wounded.

The totals for the world are even more unbelievable with 9,998,771 killed, 6,295,512 heavily wounded, 14,009,139 lightly wounded and 5,983,600 missing.

Once again, what price war?

Belgian's Queen?

European society circles are buzzing with a report that Princess Maria of Italy (ABOVE), youngest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel, will become the bride of Leopold II, king of the Belgians, whom she has still to meet. Leopold was bereaved in August, 1935, when his queen, Astrid, was thrown from the automobile in which she and the king were riding on the shores of Lake Lucerne in Switzerland. Princess Maria will be 23 next December.

Canada At War— Final Phase Of Operations

By CAPT. W. W. MURRAY, K.C.

The fourth and final phase of the Canadians' operations in the Battles of Passchendaele in 1917 was designed to consolidate the positions captured in the assault of Nov. 6, and to render them more secure from enemy attack. The Canadian line was well beyond the crest along the entire ridge, with the exception of a small portion to the north of the village in the direction of Westroosbeke.

To capture this high ground and widen the salient which the Canadian attacks has indented in the German positions was a task to which General Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Corps, assigned three battalions. Representing the 1st Division were the 7th (British Columbia and the 8th (Winnipeg), while the 20th (Central Ontario) was used from the 2nd division.

This attack was launched at 6.00 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 10, on a front of 2,000 yards and to a depth of nearly half a mile. Unlike the operations of Nov. 6 which were carried out in a clear, crisp autumn day, the final assault was pressed in a violent rainstorm. The torrents poured down on the bogs through which the Canadians had to make their way, nor did they cease throughout the entire day.

On this narrow front the three battalions had to endure shelling of an intensity that was unwonted even in this region. In practically all operations the Germans had been able to withdraw their guns and their concentrated fury was levelled against the attacking Canadians.

Won and Held Ground

In the teeth of this gunfire, and through leaden sheets spurting from countless machine guns, the three battalions, however, made rapid and sustained progress. By 9 o'clock they had attained their objectives; and from what cover could be secured on the blasted slopes they hurled back all efforts to dislodge them from their positions.

The attack of Nov. 10 was the final Canadian operation in the Passchendaele battles. All four divisions had been engaged. Their casualties were large—about 15 per cent. of their whole effective strength, or a total of nearly 16,000.

With those assaults, the Passchendaele fighting came to an end; and the winter settled down with the British in a position dominating the Flanders plain beyond.

MUCH BERATED HAIG STATUE TO SEE LIGHT

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(CP).—Passers-by in Whitehall are surveying with interest the Earl Haig statue, erected in the teeth of an eight-year controversy. The Duke of Gloucester unveiled the statue to-day.

Placed between the Scottish Office and the United Services Institution, the statue is a stone's throw from the cenotaph where for many years the war-time commander-in-chief played a leading part in Armistice Day homage to the Empire's war dead. It is an equestrian figure in bronze, 13 feet high and weighing 3½ tons.

Not since the Epstein memorial to W. H. Hudson, the naturalist, was erected in Hyde Park has London been so exercised over a piece of statuary. In those days of 1925 columns of newspaper criticism and torrents of music-hall wit were poured out over the Jewish sculptor's work and the battle culminated in a House of Commons debate. On dark nights wags tarred and feathered the memorial and painted it green.

In the front rank of the fight against the Haig statue, which finally cost $53,500, was Countess Haig, the field marshal's widow. Lady Haig termed the work "monstrous," and declared: "I'm not going to attend the unveiling. Nothing would drag me there."

"The whole style of the thing is wrong—the horse, the figure, the fact there is no hat," she said. "My husband is riding with a light rein but the horse, by the attitude of its head, is pulling like the dickens. They have depicted my husband with a scroll in his hand. This is ridiculous. He always carried a map."

The statue is the third of three versions planned since the commission was awarded in 1929 to Alfred Hardiman, Rome scholarship winner and associate of the Royal Academy. Mr. Hardiman's first effort was "terrible" to Lady Haig, and others called it "a burly swashbuckler seated on a tartheorse," "a horse fattened on turnips," "a camel."

After Lady Haig, supported by Sir Herbert Lawrence, Haigs chief-of-staff in 1918, appealed to the prime minister, the office of works agreed to order a second model. This Lady Haig found "simply awful," declaring: "Before the horse was too fat, now it's too thin." Others said Haig's coat looked like that of a theatre Romeo.

So "alterations" were authorized to model 2 but still without pleasing the opposition. Hearing there were fears it might be damaged in transit, Lady Haig hoped it would be "smashed to smithereens."

Buffalo's Mayor Not So Tough

TORONTO, November 11—(CP)—Thomas (I'm Tough) Holling, Mayor-elect of Buffalo, said in the office of Mayor W. D. Robbins yesterday that he isn't tough. Mayor Robbins patted him upon the back and said he was sure he wasn't tough.

Mr. Holling got his reputation for toughness when he turned up at the Buffalo City Hall the day after he was elected November 2 and found no executives on the job at 9.30 a.m. He threatened to get tough about efficiency during his forthcoming four-year regime.

He explained yesterday the whole thing had been overdone by the newspapers. "After all," he said, "it was the day after election and everyone was pretty tired."

Looking over Mayor Robbins' office, he expressed his approval with: "Nice little set-up you have here, Mayor."

No One Can Attempt To Calculate Actual Cost Of War

Remembrance Day, 1937, can recall to us the cost of the world war—as nearly as it can be tabulated. No one can attempt to establish the total cost in depression, illness and suffering which was the aftermath.

Recall Spirit Of Old Armies In Armistice Day Ceremonies

Tomorrow Will Bring Tributes To Memory of Ever-Mounting Roll Of Dead

TORONTO, Nov. 11—(CP)—Although the Great War is receding into history and a generation to whom that conflict is only a memory of youth is assuring an increasing share in national activities, Canada again observed Armistice Day as one of remembbrance and consecration.

Throughout the Dominion the people repaired to cenotaph, church and monument, there to recapture the spirit of sacrifice and duty which inspired the 60,000 whose memories they seek to keep green.

Canada's war dead greatly exceed that figure, for men are dying in accelerated numbers in consequence of wounds and sickness incurred on active service. Reliable agencies cite a yearly toll of war veterans in the neighborhood of 3,000. Advancing age has, in recent years, quickened the rate.

Battle casualties in the Canadian forces numbered 190,092 from the declaration of war Aug. 4, 1914, to Armistice Day, No. 11, 1918. Of these 60,661 were killed in action, or died of wounds or sickness. The total represents nearly one-third of all who enlisted in the Canadian forces, in addition to Canadians who served in those of the United Kingdom and the allies.

A total of 647,685 Canadians served. This included Canadian Expeditionary Forces, 619,636; Royal Canadian Navy, 8,826; Royal Flying Corps (including cadets and mechanics) 18,852; Royal Military College graduates in other forces than Canadian, 371. In addition many Canadians served in other armies of the allies and of these there is no official trace.

Men from Canada's military forces, as distinct from those who saw service at sea, fought on eight major fronts. Their concentration was in France and Belgium; but many fought also in the Balkan Peninsula, in Palestine, North-West Persia and the Caucasus; Siberia; North Russia; Mesopotamia and Italy. Records are available of some who ranged as far afield as Russian Turkestan, Afghanistan, East Africa and the Kameroons.

Of those who became casualties as a result of war service, 79,882 are in receipt of pensions while 12,169 receive the war veterans allowance.

For those two items the compensation rate for the current year amounts to $44,452,481; dividing as to $40,517,469 for pensions and $3,935,012 for allowance.

ABBEY CLEANING REVEALS BEAUTY

LONDON, Nov. 9—(CP)—Visitors to Westminister Abbey, recently opened to the public following removal of the Coronation setting, have been amazed by the transformation in the chapel of St. Edmund and St. Thomas, on the south side of the ambulatory.

Gone is the atmosphere of antiquity, no trace of grime and dust. Monuments, tombs and effigies placed in the chapel generations ago have a striking appearance of newness and walls have been restored to their original color. "Just an ordinary cleaning," attendants assure inquirers.

For instance, the elaborate canopy of the tomb of Sir Bernard Brocas, executed on Tower Hill in 1400 for plotting against Henry IV, now is snowy white. Before it was a dull slate color, streaked with black the hall being decorated and a new kitchen for the use of the helpers being voted a great success. Forty-eight dollars was netted for the funds of the society.

VETERANS VOTED FOR PLAIN FARE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(CP)— A feminine diet expert and adviser decided she would ask the Legionnaires—or a few of them—who were h... for their annual gathering from 34 States what best they like to eat. The Herald-Tribune gives their replies.

T... women's editor considers the answers discouraging for any woman who goes in for cooking "doo-dads." "None of your fluffy wuffles, sister, where can a guy get plain victuals in this here town?"

These men desire nothing more than to be steeped to the eyebrows in simple fare, the investigator decided. From boy scouts to octogenarians, this gathering bankers for plain but hearty food. Steak and roast beef are top favorites in the meat line. All like Irish potatoes, baked and mashed. "Plain fried," yell the Middle Westerners.

They like vegetables. The Far West prefers them buttered, the Middle West and South like theirs creamed; New Englanders say "any way," but squash, turnips and potatoes must be mashed."

A desert "first" is apple pie, 10 inches across. They prefer it hot with real country cream and those from up Vermont way will like it cold for breakfast, plastered with butter.

About the steak. The warriors want it thick, broiled medium to raw. "No sauce, lady—just a little pepper, a good amount of salt, and about a pound of butter."

As to cake, "make mine chocolate" is the cry. "Fudge frosting," add the Southerners. New Englanders like a chocolate angel food, no frosting, but syrup logged, under a flow from the maple pitcher.

The majority of these men have had their food tastes influenced by army fare. At least four out of every five have never eaten "gold fish" (or tail it "submarine turkey") since "over there." "Slum," the stew made of "sweepings," so they tell you, has ruined their delight in even mother-made varieties. "Corn willie" has numbed their eagerness for corned beef hash. Stewed tomatoes and "fish eye" tapioca pudding are thumbs down with some, because of overdoses. But, strange as it may seem, for these lads of 1917 ate barrels of beans, they still remember "buckshot" with a certain reverence.

NORTH SMITH

A splendid attendance marked the annual Hallowe'en party sponsored by the League and Sunday School of Wesley United Church and held in the hall on Wednesday evening.

Following the judging of the costumes which was done by Mrs. H. A. Shearer, Mrs. Evans Blewett and Miss Loretta McDougal, a lengthy and interesting program was presented. Because London Park Keeper Is Rugby Fan U. Of T. Player Misses Chance For Game

TORONTO, Nov. 11. —(CP). — Bernide Sheffman's determination to play rugby was foiled because a London, Ont., grounds caretaker was a rugby fan, team mate revealed today.

Sheffman, a player with University of Toronto intermediates, missed the train last Saturday when U. of T.'s secondary squad journeyed to London for an Interscholastic fixture against Western. The game was scheduled to start at one p.m.

Sheffman let Toronto at 10 a.m. to hitch-hike the 120 miles to London. He arrived in that city before one o'clock but found no transportation to the stadium three miles away.

So he ran the entire distance and then found the game was being played on the back campus, another half mile distant. He ran there, arriving soon after play started and began to hunt for his uniform.

But it turned out the caretaker, after locking up the rugby equipment, had gone back to the stadium to see the senior tilt between Western and Queen's, taking the keys with him.

Sheffman was on the intermediate line-up all right, but he spent his time on the bench as a substitute without a uniform.

Thinks Mothers Are Heroines In Raising Large Families

Miss Ida M. Tarbell Gives Her View After Fifty Years Of Writing

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (CP).—Just 80 years old, Miss Ida M. Tarbell, after 50 years of writing about America's prominent people, finds "the great heroines of America are the mothers who bring up their families under circumstances which demand real character, intelligence and smiling confidence that it is worth while."

Sometimes the disadvantages have been material, sometimes wealth itself is a great handicap, she adds. "The greatest people I have come in contact with are those nobody knows anything about. I have been impressed time and again by the real greatness of some unknown woman—not necessarily a poor woman."

The years have dealth gently with Miss Tarbell's appearance. She is a trifle rounder of face than she was five years ago. Her hair is still more gray than white, and she uses glasses only for reading. She clings to the apartment in which she has lived for many years, despite its two long flights of stairs, which she fears sometimes trouble her visitors, but not her.

Miss Tarbell wa an early champion of the New Deal, but now—it's such a chestnut to say it," she interpolated—she fears the praiseworthy aims of the administration are being imperiled by mistaken methods.

"But I am not as scared about democracy as some critics are. The methods of the New Deal are scaring a lot of people, but I believe we shall pull through."

Miss Tarbell was philosophical about the younger generation and its failings.

"I was the younger generation once myself," she said tranquilly. "The trouble with us then was that we insisted on going to college, and that meant sometimes we had no chaperones. Nowadays every one goes to college. They are fairly shoved into it. In my own college at Meadville, Pa., Allegheny College, our problem is to limit the numbers."

Looking back on her five decades of watching America wrestle with its problems, she finds that Grover Cleveland, her first political hero, still stands in her mind as one of the few great presidents this country has had.

"Of course, Abraham Lincoln is just about the most outstanding man this country has produced," she said. "In all the year I don't get bored with him, for he is no faker; he is full of common sense and knows better than to try to do everything at once."

Miss Tarbell has written several biographies and studies of Lincoln and she invariably used the present tnse in discussing him, her most enduring hero.

AUSTRALIA TURNS TO RECALL BIRTH IN SYDNEY FETES

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Nov. 10.—(CP)—Federal elections over and the United Australia-Country government of Premier James Lyons in power for another term, the Commonwealth is looking toward Sydney for the celebration of Australia's 150th anniversary, Jan. 26-April 25, 1938, when it will be summer here.

Australia is offering a program which promises to eclipse in world interest any historical celebration in the southern hemisphere for many years. Plans are well advanced for various trade, educational and other conference and conventions attracting overseas delegates. Of the special events outstanding in interest generally is the British Empire Games to be held here Feb. 5-12 in this part of the world for the first time.

The celebrations program will begin and end on the two most important dates in Australian history, Jan. 26, when colorful pageantry will re-enact the arrival of Captain Phillip at Sydney Cove in 1788 to establish the first permanent white settlement in Australia; and April 25, Anzac Day, when a combined naval, military and air force tattoo will commemorate Australia's part in the Great War.

Combined with the historical pageantry for the opening of the celebrations Jan. 26 will be a regatta on Sydney Harbor, with interstate championships being contested by all classes of vessels. Three days later, a Venetial carnival, with the animated craft of the yachting clubs and the ships of the Australian navy taking part, will be staged in the romantic setting of the harbor by night.

Australia's history as a member of the British Empire will be perpetuated by an "Australian Governors' Avenue" planted as part of the celebrations. It is proposed to invite the governor-general of Australia and each of the state governors to plant a given number of trees. Each tree will be in memory of and will bear the name of a governor, beginning with the founder and first governor of Australia.

The works of Australian composers will be featured in the musical contests at the Sydney Eisteddfod for 1938, which will be held in April. A special series of postage stamps from twopenny to ninepenny has been issued by the postmaster-general Oct. 1 to commemorate the anniversary.

Trophies are being offered in an international contest for biggest fish of various classes caught in Australian water between Jan. 1 and April 23.

GIVEN TWO YEARS TO FINISH TRADE

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 11—(CP)—Clifford Green, an Indian who pleaded guilty last week to breaking and entering a home on the Six Nations Reserve today was sentenced to two years in prison. Magistrate S. Alfred Jones withheld sentence last week when he heard with some surprise the previous three year term served by Green was spent breaking stone. The court wrote to the authorities at Ottawa and a reply letter was read in court today.

The letter said Green was placed in Kingston penitentiary and due to overcrowding was transferred to Collins Bay. He was given some rudimentory instructions in the use of pneumatic chisels on stone work and this was considered a good trade by construction concerns. His worship felt a little more time would enable the accused to get further benefits.

CIGARETTE BUTTS TRAP A BURGLAR

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 11 (CP).—Adventures by night were related in magistrate's court today when Alec Christie, 31, of no address, pleaded guilty of charges of shopbreaking and theft and was remanded a week for sentence.

Police patrolling the market square found a window in Kohler's drug store broken. They notified the owner, who came to the shop and remained the rest of the night to safeguard his stock. In the morning Delbert Day, messenger boy, went to the basement and noticed cigarette butts on the floor. With Joseph Barrett, clerk, he searched the basement. Christie dashed out from behind a packing case, and made a break up the stairs. He was pursued by Barrrett and Day, and Barrett shouted "Stop or I shoot." Christie halted and surrendered to police.

A WALSH TANGLE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11—(AP).—They all but needed a traffic cop to direct the flow of John Walshes through City Judge Edward Ruddy's court.

The case of John Walsh No. 1, charged with careless driving, was called. John Walsh No. 2, attorney for John Walsh No. 1, explained the men he represented was ill.

Then John Walsh No. 3 appeared and said he was the defendant. The attorney was stumped—he was pinch-hitting for another lawyer and didn't know his client.

The baffled Judge settled the tangle by continuing the case of John Walsh No. 1 and dismissing the complaint against John Walsh No. 3.

Mrs. Hepburn was knocked from her chair and doubled up from the shock which left her in a dazed condition. All that she knows of the incident is the blinding light and terrific crash.

CRITICS GAVE WOMAN'S PLAY A HIGH PLACE

LONDON, Nov. 11 (CP). — The symphony concerts, the large choirs and the celebrated artists are into their London season now, and the box office in the average playhouse is not suffering.

It looks like a good season for both business and brilliance. The season ticket-holders have virtually closed out the single-seat purchaser to the musical series, and though there are at least three first-class symphony orchestras many visitors to London will go away without seeing the inside of Albert or Queen's Hall.

Theatre managers are keeping up their good spirits, too. The season started exceptionally well and the public is still finding it necessary to book many days in advance. The queus outside the theatres, forming around noon and liking it, have become commonplace.

The critics, tired of saying nice things about John Gielgud's Richard II and J. B. Priestley's versatility (two new successes within a fortnight) have now rallied to the support of Dodie Smith. This writer's latest play, "Bonnet Over the Windmill," was popular from the start; but is finding a deeper glory in its second moon.

"Dodie Smith can safely claim to be the most successful woman playwright in the history of the theatre," said one writer the other day. Others had said the same thing and the idea was definitely put over by the dramatic critic of The Star under a five-column heading: "She Was Born A Playwright."

Look at the record of runs for her plays: "Autumn Crocus," 1931, played 371 times; "Service," 1932, 191; "Touch Wood," 1934, 213 and "Call It a Day," 1935, 509.

To which must be added a most creditable showing on Broadway and a worthwhile following in other countries. "Call It a Day" had the longest run in London up to that time of any play written by a woman.

Dodie Smith was educated at St. Paul's School for Girls, in London, and studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. On the stage for a short while during the war, she found it unsuited to her and became a buyer for a large furniture store. She wrote "Autumn Crocus" in 1930 and the next year gave up business to concentrate on writing. Apparently not altogether a realist of the new school she adheres to the fine Victorian practice of concealing her age. But in 'Who's Who" she does divulge that her favorite recreation is 'first nights."

What Experts Say

Here's a bona fide consensus of the critics: admirable cast, extraordinary performance, beautifully produced, exquisitely natural dialogue, full of real people who walk and talk as people do. Only The Times critic felt that in some way the play had failed as a comedy written about a young girl's first experience with passion.

But The Times went on to give her a greater compliment in saying that the play revealed Dodie Smith's intention of leaving light bright writing behind her and endeavoring to "win the further bank of serious thoughtful writing" which, it added, had very nearly been gained in this one effort and most certainly would be gained in the near future.

Paul Robeson has turned his back on London's fashionable West End and is to appear shortly at the Unity Theatre Club which produced plays of the working-class struggle.

Sentenced To Die

Mrs. Anna Hahn, decreed by a jury of 11 women and one man to die in the electric chair, is shown (ABOVE), in two poses snapped during her trial at Cincinnati, Ohio. Found guilty of the poison death of Jacob Wagner, 78, a death sentence became compulsory when the jury failed to recommend mercy. The two photographs show different poses, one of which might be termed "not guilty" and the other "guilty."

She Wants In But—

Pictured as she chatted with ship-news reporters on arrival at New York, is Mme. Magda de Pontagnes, who won fame (?) when she shot the Count de Chambrun, whom she accused of breaking up her romance with Premier Benito Mussolini, of Italy. Immigration authorities gave her the "about turn" sign as she is still under a suspended sentence in France for the Chambrun shooting.

THOUGHT ACCIDENTAL

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Nov. 11. — (CP). — Police investigating the death of Corbett Doxtator, 42-year-old Muncey Indian, whose body was found on Sunday morning in eight feet of water in the reservoir here checked several angles in the case to-day. No new developments were announced but police indicated the theory of an accident, rather than foul play, was borne out by their investigations. The persons reported to have been with the Indian prior to his death have been located.

The talented colored singer says he is tired of trivialities meant for a wellfed public and that while he has offers of well-paid parts almost daily he is an artist and intends to to find a role with some depth and meaning in a play with a purpose. He won't be paid for the performance.

HE ATE ALL-BRAN AND IMPROVED WONDERFULLY

Read this voluntary letter: "In regard to your ALL-BRAN, it is marked on the package 'best as a cereal, best for cooking,' and, as far as I am concerned, you might add best for health. Since I have begun to eat it, I have improved wonderfully."—Mr. H. E. Poole (address on request).

ALL-BRAN corrects common constipation, due to meals low in "bulk." Within the body, it absorbs water, and forms a soft mass, gently sponging out the system.

ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Isn't this food better than taking weakening pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily, either as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes. In chronic cases, with each meal. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

ARREST JAPANESE FISHING VESSELS

SINGAPORE, Nov. 11 (CP).—Determined efforts to check alleged "poaching" by Japanese craft in Dutch territorial waters in the Dutch East Indies are being made by the Indies authorities.

Two vessels have been fired on and a third arrested. All the craft have their headquarters at Singapore. Altogether two Japanese fishermen have been killed and two others injured.

Two of the incidents occurred in Rio Archipelago, just south of Singapore's £10,000,000 ($50,000,000) naval base and the other in the Anambas Archipelago, between Borneo and Malaya.

A Japanese consular official from Batavia, M. F. Miyoshi, who is investigating the incidents, has arrived at Singapore.

Legislation was passed in the Indies people's council recently, designed to enforce stricter control of fishing around the sea coasts of the island.

Fishing licenses are being restricted to Dutch East Indian subjects only and a license will be withdrawn if it is found that the holder is acting as dummy for foreigners.

Australia is similarly tightening control of fishing and pearling in territorial waters off the northern coast of the Commonwealth.

Condition Serious

Though seven physicians attending her state there is no immediate danger, attaches at the royal palace in Bucharest, Roumania, believe the condition of Dowager Queen Marie (ABOVE) to be very serious following a dawn visit to her bedside by King Carol. The 62-year-old mother of the king has been ill for some time and it is thought her condition is gradually declining.

MALCOLM BENNETT DIES IN PORT HOPE

PORT HOPE, Nov. 11.—One of the youngest newspaper editors in Eastern Ontario, Malcolm Bruce Bennett, 22, only son of Mayor George Bennett and in charge of the news department of the Port Hope Evening Guide, died suddenly at his home here on Tuesday. Arriving at his office Tuesday morning, he felt ill and went home. Dr. R. McDerment gave cause of death as acute thrombosis of the heart.

After graduating from Port Hope High School, Mr. Bennett learned telegraphy and later started newspaper work with the paper on which he was employed at the time of his death. Prominent in Masonic circles, he was a Past Master of Ontario Lodge, No. 26, A. F. and A. M., and a member of Victoria Chapter, R.A.M. No. 37; Palestine Preceptory and the Shrine of Rameses Temple, Toronto.

He took an active part in local sporting organizations and served on the executives of baseball, hockey, softball and bowling organizations.

He is survived by his parents and one sister, Mrs. Paul Fultz, Detroit.

Soccer Transfer Market Dead Plenty Of Money But No Deals

Old Country Clubs Stick To Present Talent—Want 'Boy' Stars

LONDON, Nov. 11—Those astute managers who, seeing the handwriting on the wall, noted that the stars were growing old and gradually fading out and began to corral young players and bring them along, will be reaping the benefit soon. It is a waste of energy these days it seems for clubs, even those well blessed with cash, to go into the transfer market for talented players because outside of Wolves who seldom turn down an offer of $35,000 or more, no clubs are keen to unload.

There is a general keenness today to sign boy stars. Aston Villa snapped up twenty-one-year-old Harold Labone, who was as bucked as a pool winner at getting out of the Liverpool hotel job where fate seemed to have lodged him for the rest of his life. He's a six-foot centre forward "brought out" by Prescot Cables. Manager Jimmy Hogan just beat Manchester City.

Then seventeen-year-old ambitious Ron. Wilkinson, goalkeeper of Cwm (Mon), skipped work to go for a trial at Everton. He succeeded. Everton kept an eye on him earlier this season; signed him as an amateur.

There is more money waiting to be spent on players than ever before in the history of the game, but nobody wants it.

Manager Tommy Mather, of Newcastle United, gave an insight into the present position in the transfer market when he said, "Here I am, trying my hardest to obtain players, and I am being plagued day after day to release those that I have."

Tommy signed a player not long ago, and within 24 hours no fewer than six clubs were in touch with him trying to buy the player they expected to be displaced by the new man.

Luton Town officials were much troubled over the loss of form of Joe Payne, who jumped to fame by scoring 10 goals in one match, more so because they put a big price on his head when clubs sought his transfer. Finally it was discovered that Payne wasn't well and he will now undergo a special course of treatment prescribed by a specialist and it is hoped this will restore him to complete fitness by the New Year.

Steve Bloomer's Friends

Steve Bloomer of Derby County's palmy days, and perhaps the greatest of all inside forwards, who could score a goal from any angle, has been advised to leave England for his health's sake. But Steve has been very much "down" the past few years and where was the money to come from. A few of his old friends and admirers got together and Bloomer will sail soon to spend six months in Australia. Not so many seasons back Col. Meighen had Steve in Montreal coaching his 48th Highlanders team.

Folkestone saw seventeen-year-old E. Blackwell keeping goal for Cheriton Park, a junior club, were impressed and the lad joined Folkestone. No money was involved, but Cheriton said a couple of used footballs would be useful. Folkestone supplied them.

Not many may know it but at many grounds it is a crime for a player to walk across a pitch with spiked boots before the season has opened and more than one has been reported at the office for this "serious offense."

"Keep off the grass" is a strict order so that the fullest extent many have special practice grounds and the effect of this is that the players are not as familiar with the match pitch as is assumed. They are in fact only at "home" once a fortnight.

Charlton's manager, Jimmy Seed, holds a different opinion. He would not use a practise pitch if he had one." "A ground is there to be played on," he says, "and the more familiar the players are with it the greater their advantage."

Beattie, the little inside-forward Preston obtained from Kilmarnock recently with the idea of nursing him for the future, has stepped into the side in Fagan's place, and looks like staying there. Preston officials say he is the nearest approach to Alex. Jomes they have ever seen, and already he is quite as popular at Deepdale as ever the famous Alex. was.

A Lincoln City eleven without either goalie McPhail or half-back George Whyte would look strange, for these two boys have become the Imps' indispensables. Between them they have made 468 appearances, and whilst the former claims 260, the latter has played his last 160 games without a break.

ODD ITEMS FROM A SPORT SCRAP BOOK

FRED PERRY

Of all the sports in the realm of athletics there is probably none that has come in for the ridicule that has attended the game of ping pong.

It has been the recipient of more jibes and jeers than has probably been poked at all the other forms of athletic endeavor put together.

However, perhaps the jibers would not be so numerous if they were enlightened to the fact that the game is highly recommended by Fred Perry, probably the world's greatest tennis player. Fred was a champion at the midget tennis game on the table before turning to the courts and he is of the opinion that it cannot be lauded too highly.

Perry maintains that it was the game of ping pong that fitted him to become the greatest tennis player in the world. The speed of the game sharpened his eye, and the strokes which are, in miniature, the same as those in tennis, aided him in developing the game's fundamentals.

BASEBALL LOOP DISCARDS PLAN FOR NIGHT BALL

HESPELER, Ont., Nov. 11.—(CP).—The Inter-County Baseball Association, after making an effort to get night baseball started, has put aside the idea temporarily at least because it would be too expensive at the present time.

However, at the 20th annual meeting here last night, R. M. Phin of Hespeler, elected president of the Association, told 70 delegates he felt night baseball "would be the salvation of the game in Ontario."

Phin told delegates the Inter-County had a successful season, winning four Ontario championships. The winners were Ingersoll, Guelph, Straffordville and Galt. He also said an all-star game in London netted the Association $166. The meeting discussed the question of getting cheaper balls and decided to let the executive go into the situation.

A delegation consisting of B. C. Shewan and A. R. McPayden of Galt and Dr. Staples of Ingersoll, was named to meet the sub-committee of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association Saturday in Hamilton to discuss division of gate receipts in the O.B.A.A. play-offs with Galt, particularly concerning the game in Strathroy.

Officers elected for season besides President Phin were: First vice-president, S. W. Reid, London; second vice-president, N. R. Fiebig, Stratford; secretary, S. Shantz, Kitchener; treasurer, Dr. Staples, Ingersoll; executive, A. H. McFayden, Galt, and W. F. Nickel, Stratford. Two members are yet to be appointed to the committee.

BASKET QUEENS WON 292 GAMES LOSING BUT 17

EDMONTON, Nov. 11 (CP)—Queens of basketball, Edmonton Grads have compiled a record unique in the annals of major sports. Since Percy Page formed his first squad in 1915 after coming to Edmonton from Hamilton, Ont., Grad teams have been winning games and titles consistently.

They have won 292 games and lost 17 since Jan. 1, 1922. Complete record of 182 games played prior to that date is not available but Grads won most of them, holding the Alberta title from 1915 until 1921 when they lost a two-game series to University of Alberta.

In the 309 contests since Jan. 1, 1922, the Edmonton team has counted 15,932 points while their opponents were tallying 6,974.

Grad machines have triumphed 46 times in Edmonton leagues, 17 in Western Canada interprovincial playdowns, 36 in Canadian exhibition contests and 24 in European exhibition games.

Since the first series for the North American crown in 1923, Edmonton has won nine and lost five. Durant, Okla., Cardinals defeated the Canadians three straight to win the international title the first year. Grads won the title the next three years, taking nine of 11 games—all against Tulsa Stenos. In 1937 there was no series for the championship.

Of 91 games played defending the Underwood trophy, Grads have won 88. Tulsa Stenos, Eldorado Oilers and Chicago Trunks each defeated Edmonton once while battling for the cup. Durant did not challenge in 1933 and one game of the series was played under girls' rules, so the trophy remained in Edmonton.

London Shamrocks and Toronto Lakesides each have beaten the Albertans once in Canadian finals but Grads have won 24 times when the Dominion championship was at stake. In Alberta playoffs the team scored victories in 30 battles while losing twice, being defeated by Edmonton Var-Sconas and University of Alberta.

In exhibition games against United States squads, Percy Page's teams have a record of 15 victories and three defeats. Cleveland Newman-Sterns beat Grads three times in 1926 when the Canadians played 11 games in 12 nights during a hurried barnstorming tour through the eastern United States.

Against teams of men, Grads have won seven and lost two.

SNOW IS LIKELY CALGARY PLAYOFF

CALGARY, Nov. 11. — Melting snow moistened the Calgary gridiron Wednesday to indicate Calgary Bronks and Winnipeg Blue Bombers may play the deciding game of the Western Canada football championship play-off today under unsatisfactory weather conditions.

Bronks won the total-point series opener in Winnipeg Saturday 13-10, but forward passing provided the margin. Bombers showed a wide edge of ground power and wet weather might favor the Manitobans.

The forecast is "generally cloudy and a little colder Wednesday with scattered snowflurries."

In view of the inclement weather, Bronks last night held only a light workout, enlivened as the players received assurances from Coach Carl Cronin and Manager Larry Price that if they win the title a team will be taken east to challenge for the Canadian championship.

Two of the leading linemen, Howard Hurd and Russ Hale, were not in uniform. Hurd, injured several weeks ago, is nursing a sore knee, while Hale suffered a knee injury and broken finger last Saturday.

Art Stevenson, great halfback of Bombers, has recovered sufficiently from a knee injury to play in the deciding game. Stevenson was on the bench at Winnipeg and probably will not undertake his regular punting duty here, but will do his share of ball carrying. Steve Olander is slated to punt. No other serious Bomber injuries were reported as Coach Bob Fritz drove his men through a final workout at Winnipeg Monday night.

(By The Canadian Press)

Regina Roughriders, top team in Western Canada rugby, defeated Calgary Altomahs 30-2 at Calgary five years ago today for their seventh successive championship. Until 1935, when Winnipeg came through with its greatest team, Regina squads virtually dominated the prairie gridiron scene year after year.

U.S. BOXER SUSPENDED

TRENTON, N.J., Nov. 11 (A.P.).—Athletic Commissioner Abe J. Greene announced to-day the lifetime suspension in New Jersey of Stanley Lachansky, Brooklyn boxer, also known as Jack Lynch, for "fighting under two names and giving unsatisfactory performances."

The boxer, licensed here under the name of Lachansky, was knocked out in two rounds in Jersey City last night by Tiger Allen. The previous night, Greene said, the same fighter billed as Jack Lynch was stopped in two rounds by Joe Wagner, at Newark.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

TRENTON FLIERS have a four-point lead for their return O.R.F.U. playdown game with our Orfuns here on Saturday and they'll need it. On account of this is a jinx town to O.R.F.U. squads, and the local rugbyists haven't lost a game on the Riverside Park gridiron in over two years. Not since early in the season of 1935. And remember the past two years the locals didn't go so well in their group games. They were knocked off two or three times each season, but not at home. Good clubs—like Belleville in '35 and Lindsay last season—came here cocky and unbeaten, all set to smear the Orfuns (as they had done on their own fields) but they limped home with the sour side of the scores. Orfuns got downright tough in their own backyard. And they still are.

* * * * * * *

YE ORFUNS lost two tilts last autumn, one by an 8-1 score in Belleville and the other by a 10-4 count in Lindsay. Yet they knocked off both these teams, and the Scugogers were group champs, right here. Early in 1935 they dropped a tussle to either Belleville or Oshawa in Riverside Park—we just forget which team—but they didn't lose at home since. And, though down four points, and facing a tough team that banks its single points and lets the major counts take care of themselves, the Orfuns ought to trim Trenton in Peterborough this Saturday. Or so it seems to us. We also think they'll trim 'em by more than four points. We'd bet a shilling on it.

* * * * * * *

WHEN IT comes to sports, those R.C.A.F. gents are great front runners. Give 'em a break and a lead and they are hard to head. But smack 'em hard right at the start and they don't go nearly so well. If at all. They showed up well in hockey and rugby but they dropped right out of lacrosse when Auburns smeared them badly early last summer. Gibson is a great kicker when he gets protection from his line—as he did last Saturday—but he gets very bothered and indifferent in his punting after a kick or two has been blocked. Lindsay players know that. Don Crowe ought to hold his own in booting on his own gridiron. Maybe a little better, too.

IT WON'T be hard to figure the Fliers' style of play in advance. They'll stick to straight football, mostly plunges and a few end runs. With plenty of long punts. They'll kick every time they are in danger and they'll hoof for a point every time they are within 35 or 40 yards of the Petes' posts. They will present a good kicker, some nice tackling and a strong line. Orfuns have a good booter, too, and their line ought to be stronger this time than last tilt. They will do plenty of plunging and end running, but they will also pull plenty of passing plays and a few fake formations. They will outrun their rivals and gain plenty on running back kicks. And our tackling ought to be nearly as deadly as that of Trenton. Yeah, it looks to us like a dandy game—with a local win—and it rates a record crowd of fans.

BOXING RETURNS to Peterborough on Wednesday, December 1st, when the local Riverview A.C. puts on an eight-bout card in the Brock St. arena. With prices ranging from 75 cents down to two bits. A draw, which the club is holding, will be made at this time. Advance sale of tickets goes on next week. Four or five good Toronto mitt-slingers will mix it with local pugs and good scraps are promised by the local promoters. A couple of Montreal mittsers may be obtained, too, as the club wants to get going with a bang. New training quarters, opposite the "Y", have been opened and a big turnout of ring prospects is reported. But they want several other boys with previous boxing experience—guys like Pete and Ned Vitarelli and Ward Wright—to come out, too.

IT MAY be a few days yet before we can announce the names of intermediate puck imports for the Petes, since the lads have only just put their applications in to the O.H.A. for a transfer to this town. We ought to get two or three by okay. Meantime, all of last year's squad—which lost out to Trenton Fliers' smart outfit—are available. The 1936-37 team was: Goal, Clarke; defence, Weir and Williamson; centre, Calladine; wings, Burton and Vitarelli; alternates, McDougall, Gardner, Coughlin, Creighton, Ellis and Magee. These chaps may all be trying out again along with such ex-juniors as Starr, Wright, Heal, Kingdon and Harding. Then, too, Buster Whitton is living in this district now and Loucks, if Lindsay has no team. And the imports. So the 1937-38 Petes should ice a classy team.

* * * * * * *

FRANK BUCKLAND will coach the boys, aided by Pick Hines and Bert McLeod. Physical training drills at the Y.M.C.A. may start next week. Dunno anything about a grouping yet. The Petes had tough luck last winter, being grouped with the Fliers who were in the pink of condish from playing in the pre-seasonal Kingston City Loop. At that, the locals scored 66 goals in 10 scheduled scraps, about six and a half a tilt. Calladine led with 25 scoring points while McDougall got 22, Vitarelli 20, and Weir 14. They did okay.

* * * * * * *

CLOSING DATE for entries in the Senior City Hockey League is next Tuesday evening when a meeting will be held at eight in Duffus', and prospective entries should be represented. Despite the extra early organization of the Blood and Thunder Loop this year, there are four teams entered already: Millbrook, Bewdley, Westclox and Pla-Mors. Two more are wanted and Lakefield, champs last winter, are expected back again. Maybe Johnston Motors or another local team. And Hiawatha Indians are talking of joining. Should be a big season in this lively league where they ply the gad with rare abandon. Speaking as a horticulturist, this is a loop where lilies in the hand are more to be expected than shrinking violets or pansies—oh, golly, yes!

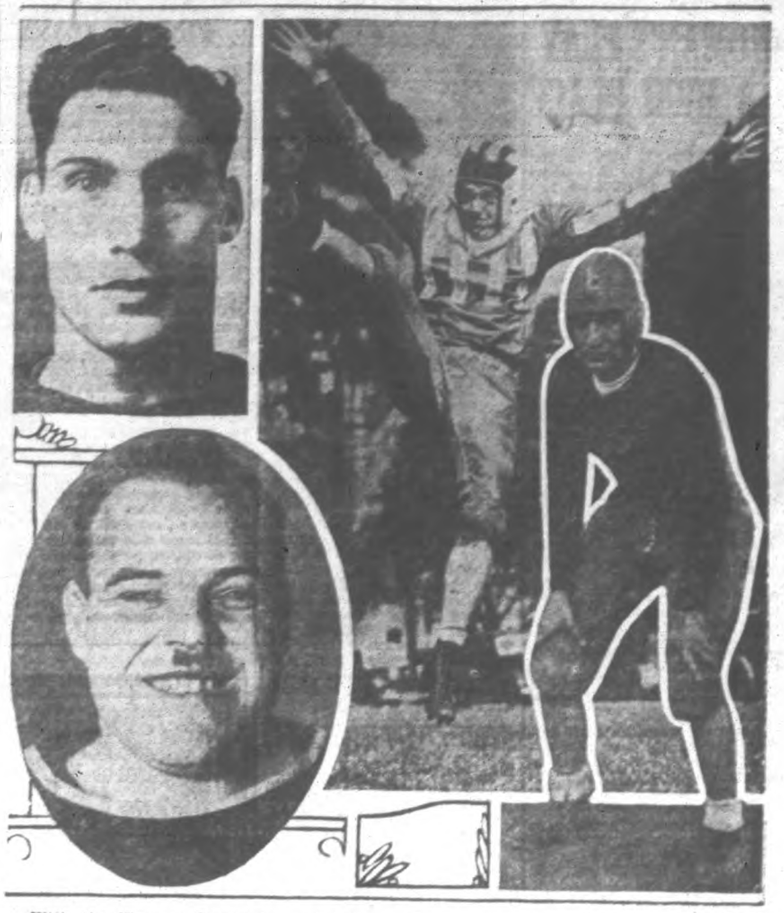
A Hurdle Between Friends

Horse riding may be all right for some people, but then again, others are not so fortunate as can be seen from the photo here "You go your way—I'll stay here," is the attitude taken by "Highland Kilts" as she refused to take the jump. The consequences, as you no doubt have guessed, were that Jacquelyn Galway took the hurdle minus her horse.

These Grid Stars Lead Scorers In Canadian Football



With the Western Rugby football conference schedule ended and the eastern rugby squads quickly drawing to the end of their season, the four top-notch scorers, who are pictured here, are pretty secure in their positions. Once again Hugh "Bummer" Sterling (top LEFT) is showing the way to all eastern gridiron scorers with a total, so far, of 36 points. The great Sarnia Imperial kicker of the O.R.F.U., has scored two touchdowns, three field goals, 11 singles and six converts. Only nine points behind him comes Cam Gray, of University of Toronto, who, in the earlier part of the season, scored all his team's points in the Intercollegiate group. So far this fall Gray, who is seen here after getting a kick away, has scored six field goals, eight singles and one convert for his 27 points. If "Tiny" Herman, of Ottawa Rough Riders, in the Interprovincial Rugby Union, succeeds in scoring just one more point this season he will beat out Paul Kirk, of Regina Rough Riders, in scoring honors. Herman (lower LEFT has scored 19 points this season, while Kirk (INSET) has scored the same number but the Western Rugby football conference schedule is concluded.

Orfuns And Lindsay Play Here Saturday

Trenton Fliers tangle with the local Orfuns here this Saturday afternoon in Riverside Park. It is the return game of the first round O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" playdown series, winner advancing in Ontario grid playdowns but the loser being eliminated from competition. Points count in this two-game series and the Fliers have a four-point margin as a result of their 5-1 win last week at the Airport. Regardless of the weather, the biggest football crowd of the season is expected to see this clash. It should be a bang-up battle between two smart squads, with no mercy asked or given. Orfuns have not lost a game at home in over two years and they promise to win here this Saturday.

The locals will be at full strength, except for Mick Magee, and will be stronger than in their last game when the two Spencelys were absent from the lineup. Coach Bill Turnbull has the team in fine shape and fighting mad at the prospect of elimination, after winning their group. The Fliers depend largely on a strong line and a first-rate booter. They play straight hard football and will be trying to protect their slim lead here. It shapes up as a fine fight from start to finish, with the Orfuns being given a slightly better than even chance of winning out.

London will resurface nearly 2,000,000 square yards of streets within six months.

St. Andrew's College Eleven Suffers 3rd Straight Loss

Ridley School Gains 16-2 Victory In Stiff Battle On Aurora Grounds

AURORA, Nov. 11. — In their annual Little Big Four fixture Ridley College met with stiff opposition, but defeated a hard fighting St. Andrew's rugby football team 16-2 on Wednesday.

In the opening quarter the Orange and Black attempted to kick out of danger, but the Ridley kicker Hodder was caught behind his own goal line for a safety touch. Ridley then worked the ball to the Saints' seven-yard line. On a trick reverse play, Gibbons carried the ball over for the first major score. Hodder converted with a placement. Ridley soon secured a rouge. Later, Reid fumbled and gave Ridley the ball on the Saints' eighteen-yard strip. A beautifully-screened fake placement gave Ridley their second touchdown. Ashburner swept wide around the end and carried the ball over standing up. It was not converted.

In the second quarter, Ridley worked the ball into position for a drop kick. Ashburner made the attempt, but it went wide for a single. In the third quarter some good kicking on the part of Hodder annexed two more points. Towards the end of the quarter a Statue of Liberty play, Hodder to Ashburner, gained 25 yards for the Ridley team, and Hodder kicked another single point. In the last quarter the Saints resorted to a daring aerial game. They failed to score, but in so doing gave the crowd plenty of thrills. O'Brien did the sharp shooting for the Crimson team and completed four out of six attempts for large gains.

Ridley — Schmon, Doherty, Gibbons, Macdougall, Langley, Lewis, McClelland, Hartshorn, Hodder, Ashburner, Davidson, Scrandrett; alternates, Tidy, Denison, Lopez, McMonda, Newman, MacIntosh.

St. Andrew's — Macrae, Mitchell, Bonnell, Macdonald, Reid, O'Brien, Allespach, Hollinger, Kinley, Kent, Christie, Seaton; alternates, Grass, Knight, Archibald, Davison, MacIntosh, Gordon, McCormick.

HEADS U.S. PRO GOLFERS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 (A.P.)—George R. Jacobus, Ridgewood, N.J., to-day was re-elected president of the United States Professional Golfers' Association for the fifth time in a 50 to 2 vote over Alexander Cunningham, Colcago.

TORONTO U.C.C. WINS GRID GAME TRINITY GROUNDS

PORT HOPE, Nov. 11.—Coming from behind with an aerial attack that netted them two touchdowns in the second half, Upper Canada College of Toronto defeated Trinity College Schools in a "Little Big Four" football match here Wednesday afternoon 17 to 9.

Trinity held an edge in the first half when Fleming fell on the ball, following a U.C.C. fumble, to score a touchdown. Grant's kicking, which was one of the game's features, gave U.C.C. four points—a field goal and a rouge.

Upper Canada's passing attack began to click in the second half, which saw Lee and McArthur go over for major tallies, which sewed up victory.

Trinity's forward passing attempts in the closing minutes failed to meet with success. The victory was Upper Canada's second against one loss for the season.

Ridley, by virtue of a win over St. Andrew's Wednesday, tops the standing with two victories and no losses. T.C.S. now has one and one, while St. Andrew's have suffered three straight reverses.

Trinity—Flying wing, Robinson; halves, Irwin, McCullough and Hayes; quarter, Curtis; snap, Seram; insides, Wallace and Russell; middles, Fleming and Peacock; outsides, Mood and Beatty.

U.C.C.—Flying wing, McArthur; halves, Lee, Dealtess and Grant; quarter, Henderson; snap, Huggins; insides, Prentice and Hastings; middles, Turnbull and Bedell; outsides, Bonguard and Roberts.

Farr Turns Songbird For Movies

Tommy Farr, the Welshman who made boxing history when he lasted 15 rounds with Joe Louis, heavyweight champion of the world, is shown in London, Eng., with Doria (playing piano), his collaborator on a song "Maybe I Will Find Someone Else." Farr will sing the song in his forthcoming English film.

Toronto Students Will Take Up Athletics After Barren Fall Due To Paralysis

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP) — The frost on the pumpkin these wintry nights means a little more than usual to thousands of Toronto's high school students this year. Organized athletics soon will be underway again in the collegiates after, athletically speaking, a barren fall.

For the first time since the Great War, the high school boys didn't play football this year. Infantile paralysis sweeping Ontario for four months led education authorities to cancel schedules, fearing further lost time through football would cut too much into studies which started a month late.

Only three or four schools fielded teams, playing floodlight exhibition games at night. There was nothing official as in former years, however, when high school students had Friday afternoon holidays so they could cheer the team.

A few high school players caught on with city teams. But they were few, the majority sticking to studies.

With football on the last lap of the 1937 schedule, organization is going forward in the schools once again as athletic directors hail the advent of hockey and basketball seasons. It won't be long until school yells are echoing through the city's rinks and gymnasiums.

LARGE TURNOUT TORONTO COLLEGE HOCKEY WORKOUT

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—Coach Dr. Jerry Laflamme is up to his ears with hockey recruits again.

No less than 150 candidates have answered the call at St. Michael's College to seek positions on the Junior Major and Junior Buzzer squads. For those remaining there is the House League at the college and several T. H. L. clubs.

"I like a player who looks after himself," said Coach Laflamme. "We have had some fussy ones and they never make the grade. Take a look at that lad in goal, he has all the natural ability. He is playing with an old stick half splinters and refused to wear anything but his own equipment. There is a boy who will get some place in hockey. Our bill for hockey sticks alone last winter was above the $300 mark, that's too much, and along comes a lad who refuses to go high hat."

The goalie who won the admiration of Coach Laflamme for his clean-cut manner was a young lad called Joe Cleary. The boy played with Falcons in the T. H. L. bantam series last winter and if he keeps up the good work there is a big chance of him making the grade with the St. Michael's Buzzers this season.

McNamara Boys Again

With the McNamara brothers in full flight for the Majors, the Callahan boys, Mike and George, appear to be in for a bit of the old dash for the Buzzers. They are younger brothers of Johnny Callahan, blonde defense player with the Majors last year who made such a fine impression because of his aggressiveness and will to win. Both Mike and George have that certain Callahan swing when on the attack. They will bear watching.

With Tommy Dunne, Abe Tonn, Fred and Russ Hunt and Bunky Lukasik of last year's team not available this winter, Coach Dr. Laflamme is faced with the task of filling in several spots on his junior major squad before the Big Seven Junior "A" schedule swings into action next month.

Toronto Coaches Set For Saturday Games

TORONTO, Nov. 11 (C.P.). — Heavy workouts with scrimmage featured drills in Toronto senior rugby camps to-night as coaches massed their troops in preparation for week-end games.

University of Toronto, who move to Kingston on Saturday for a decisive Intercollegiate Union clash with Queen's, went through signals, kicking and passing before scrimmaging with the Intermediates.

Coach Warren Stevens watched his huskies tear through his secondary squad for two touchdowns on pass plays.

Cam Gray, placement kicker extraordinary, had a good session at his favorite pastime prior to the scrimmage. His long shots cleared the bar on nearly every kick.

Scrimmage also was the order of the day for Argonauts of the Inter-Provincial Union. Coach Lew Hayhan gave his beefy boys on the line a thorough workout on blocking and charging and his half-backs exercises in galloping with the ball and tackling.

PERFECT POLO PLAYERS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (A.P.). — Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., Stewart Iglehart, and Cecil Smith, the robust ex-cowboy from Llano, Texas, share the distinction of being the world's three "perfect" polo players, each handicapped at the ultimate 10 goals, in the new listings announced to-day by the United States Polo Association.

New York.—Bronko Nagurski, 230, International Falls, Minn., awarded decision over Ray Steele, 214, Glendale, Calif., 30.41 (Steele disqualified for kneeling).

Holyoke, Mass.—Ali Baba, Turkey, defeated Charles Strack, Oklahoma, two straight falls (heavyweights).

CANADIANS LEAD HORSE SHOW WINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (CP)—The Horses gave way to hockey in Madison Square Garden today at conclusion of the National Horse Show but as exhibitors and competitors headed for other shows the main laurels in military competition belonged to the Canadian army team.

The high spot of the show, witnessed by an estimated crowd of 120,000 during the week was the fine showing of the Canadian army officers in the international military events against United States, Irish Free State, Belgium and The Netherlands.

After winning the low score challenge trophy the first three nights of the eight-day show, the quartet of officers headed by Captain Stuart Bate of Toronto came back last night to win the coveted team championship.

This was the first time Dominion riders have taken the prize in 12 years of competition at the National Horse Show. They compiled a low aggregate of 12 faults. The Belgian team with 15 faults was second.

Earlier in the night Miss Norah Eaton, 23-year-old Toronto rider and daughter of R. Y. Eaton was thrown from her mount Goldair when the horse crashed through a four-foot, six-inch, jump. Rushed to hospital, an x-ray examination showed she suffered a slight spinal injury which did not appear to be serious.

London Minor Teams Want Artificial Ice

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 11.—(CP).—Charles Ross, president of the London Minor Hockey Association and one-time Toronto city playground supervisor, will head a delegation to the Public Utilities Commission for the purpose of obtaining artificial ice for 24 hockey teams from the 12 districts of this city.

At a meeting of the Association last night it was suggested the P.U.C. be asked to lease the London arena for certain hours each week and to have the time devoted to minor hockey. The commission has already approved of a plan to rent the arena three times a week for the use of primary school students. This step was taken due to the uncertainty of outdoor ice the past few years.

Surviving are his wife (formerly Winnifred Leonard); three sons, Gordon, Jack and Roland of Northern Ontario; a daughter, Mrs. Logan, Buffalo, N.Y.; two stepdaughters, Mary and Florence Hewitt, and two sisters. IN MEMORIAM

CHARLTON.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Roy, taken away November 11, 1933.

Gone, dear Roy; gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Lovingly remembered by Dad, Mother, Beatrice and Bruce.

SWAN.—In sweet and loving memory of our Mother, Caroline Helen Swan, died November 11, 1930.

'Tis sweet to remember a Mother so dear,
Though absent from us, yet ever so near,
Unseen by the world, she stands by our side
And whispers, "Dear ones, death cannot divide."
It is not at the time that tears are shed
That tells of a heart that is torn.
But the lonely tears of the after years
And remembrance silently borne.
—Ever remembered by Daughter, Mrs. Lee; and Son, Maxwell Swan.

CHAPTER 34.

The conversation between Kennedy and Dr. Harold Arkwright continued in a rather dismal strain. By tacit consent they kept off the subject of Esther, but her ghost hung over the dinner table. When they had finished, Doctor Arkwright said, with a rather too casual air:

"By the way, I had a letter from Neddy yesterday."

Tim looked blank. "Neddy?"

"Neddy Ashwell."

"Oh, of course, Esther's brother. . . . How's he getting along?"

"Not too well, by his account. The people he's been working for have been badly hit by the depression, and they've had to sell their estables. So Neddy's lost his job."

"That's bad. Still, he must have plenty of friends by now over on that side. I expect he'll fall into another."

"He doesn't seem to think so. . . . In fact he talks of returning to England."

Tim pursed his lips.

"How does he think he's going to live over here?"

"Well . . . that's why I thought I ought to mention it to you. He talks of breaking the entail and selling The Wilderness."

"He can't do that." Tim spoke abruptly.

"Can't he? To tell the truth, I never quite knew what the arrangement was that you all came to, at the time of Edgar's death."

"It was quite an explicit arrangement. He took Esther's share of the money, and Esther took The Wilderness."

"Well, I suppose you've got it in black and white. I don't profess to know anything about the business side of it. I knew the place was entailed, of course."

Tim considered for a moment. "May I have a look at his letter?" he said presently.

Doctor Arkwright seemed unwilling. "He said he was writing to you."

"I haven't heard. . . . I'd like to know what idea he has got into his head."

"All right. . . . I think I've got it on me."

Tim quickly understood the reason for Doctor Arkwright's reluctance to show him the letter. It was Neddy's first letter to England after hearing the news of his sister's death. He was clearly deeply distressed, but his grief took a rather brutal mode of expression. He did not appear to blame his uncle, but his one reference in this connection to Tim was unpleasant. "I don't see how it could possibly have happened if her husband had looked after her properly. If he stood to gain anything I should suspect, worse, but as it is I suppose it's only criminal negligence."

"He was always a reckless young fool," said Doctor Arkwright. His eyes had followed Tim's he knew when he reached the passage.

"Yes, I know," said Tim. He read on. . . . The part about The Wilderness was brief enough. "It'll probably take me a couple of months to round up things here, and I shall be pretty well broke by the time I get over. I suppose the first step will be to cut the entail and sell The Wilderness.

"If you're in London I'll be glad if you'd talk to Marstons' about it. I suppose there'll be formalities. I should think I ought to get £6,000. I am writing to Kennedy. I don't suppose he thinks I'm going to provide him with free lodging for the rest of his life, but you never know."

Tim handed back the letter. "It's all nonsense," he said, with an unusual bitterness in his tone. "As far as I can make out he spent all his early life sponging on his father, and now he's trying to bluff me. But he can't get away with it; he was very generously treated by Esther and me, and he's got to stick to his bargain."

"Well, for your sake I hope you're right," said Doctor Arkwright dubiously. "In any case I shall keep out of it. I shouldn't let it worry you, Tim."

"I don't intend to." Nevertheless as he returned to the surgery he felt distinctly worried, and he found it difficult to concentrate throughout the afternoon. When he had finished, at about half past 6, he loosed in again at Blacklidge's. It was the old man who greeted him this time.

"Good evening, Mr. Kennedy. My son told me you were thinking of letting The Wilderness."

"Yes. . . ." Tim tried to appear casual. "I just looked in again because it occurred to me that it might not be in order for you to go ahead just yet. . . . Of course my wife left everything to me, but her will's not proved yet. I don't know the law on these matters."

Mr. Blacklidge nodded. "I'm glad you've raised this question of title, Mr. Kennedy. It seems to me there might be a snag, directly my boy told me.

"You see, we never had the handling of the Ashwell estate, but I always understood there was an entail. If that is so, you understand that The Wilderness is the property of Mr. Edwin Ashwell— has been in fact since Mr. Edgar's death . . . Of course I haven't heard anything of Mr. Edwin since he went to America, and I'm presuming he's still living."

"Yes, he's still living. . . . But there was a very definite arrangement at the time of Mr. Edgar Ashwell's death. I've always understood that The Wilderness became my wife's property in return for a considerable money sum made over to Mr. Edwin."

"Was the entail cut?"

"I can't remember the exact legal form the arrangement took. But it was quite explicit."

"Well, you know best, Mr. Kennedy. I suppose you have documents establishing it."

"I believe there are some letters."

"No doubt it's all right then. In any case, if Mr. Edwin made that arrangement, I don't suppose he'll want to repudiate it. Unless, of course, he regarded it as only valid during Mrs. Kennedy's lifetime."

Mr. Blacklidge thought for a moment. "I tell you what I'd do if I were you, Mr. Kennedy. Go and see Marstons' in St. James street. They've always been the agents for the Ashwell properties. They'll be able to tell you if the entail still holds, and if it does whether there's likely to be any difficulty about this arrangement you speak of."

It was plain that Mr. Blacklidge was anxious to wash his hands of the matter. Tim went home in a very uneasy frame of mind. He had always understood that The Wilderness had been made over to Esther, and he had never anticipated any such contingency as this. . . . Yet, if there was a legal loop-

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S HOME WORK.

"Gurr! Wow! Snitzio!" spluttered the Bob Cat.

"What's the matter?" asked the Fuzzy Fox.

"Do you mean what's the matter with his face?" asked the Woozie Wolf. The two other Bad Chaps had met the Bob Cat as he was slinking into his den on day.

"Well, I don't exactly mean what's the matter with his face," said the Fox. "I meant why was he talking that way—gurr, wow and snitzio."

"Because I'm mad!.. snareld the Bob Cat.

"But there's something the matter with your face, too," said the Wolf. "It's all covered with icky, gooey pumpkin seeds."

"That's why I'm mad," mewed the Bob Cat.

"How did it happen?" asked his two friends.

The Bob Cat told how Uncle Wiggily had thrown a present of wet pumpkin seeds and pulp in the Bad Chap's face when he sneaked upon the pumpkin seed roasting treat.

Make Plans.

"But I'll fix that rabbit!" snarled the Bob Cat as he washed his face. "Wait until I get him!"

"You won't have to wait very long," said the Fox.

"Why not?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Because" said the Fox, "Wolfie and I just passed the Hollow Tree School and we saw Uncle Wiggily going in there. I guess he went in to help the Lady Mouse Teacher with her home work for all the pupils had gone home."

"Yes?" asked the Bob Cat. "But I think you are fooling me. The Lady Mouse Teacher doesn't have home work."

"Yes, she does," said the Fox. "She has to take home and mark the examination papers of the animal children pupils."

"Sure!" agreed the Wolf. "The Lady Mouse Teacher has home work and Uncle Wiggily helps her with it. We saw him go in the Hollow Tree School. So if you want to catch him go there."

"Why don't you two Bad Chaps get him?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Oh, we're sort of tired chasing that rabbit," said the Fox.

"But if any rabbit had thrown gooey pumpkin seeds in my face I'd go after him or my name isn't Woozie," growled the Wolf.

"You're right! I'll wait until Uncle Wiggily comes out of school and I'll get him!" snarled the Bob Cat.

Waits.

So he went to wait in the woods through which soon the rabbit gentleman came hopping on his way from school.

"Hold on! Wait a minute! I want you!" mewed the Bob Cat.

"Excuse me! I haven't time to wait," said Mr. Longears. "I'm in a hurry to get home to do my work."

"Bah! Don't talk to me about home work!" snarled the Bob Cat. "You only pretend to go to school!"

"But I have home work to do," said the bunny uncle. "If you don't believe me here is a book the Lady Mouse Teacher gave me to look up words and see if the children spelled them right. It's a dictionary."

Uncle Wiggily opened a big, heavy book he was carrying.

"Look!" invited the rabbit. "Then you'll believe I have home work."

The Bad Chap, just like the big snoopy, curious Bob Cat he was, leaned over and stuck his nose in between the open pages of the thick, heavy dictionary.

"There!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Bang!" went the book as the rabbit closed it, slamming it shut on the Bob Cat's nose.

"Oh, wow! If that's home work I don't want any!" mewed the Bad Chap and away he ran down the road. Uncle Wiggily laughed and hopped home.

And if the Jumping Jack will stand still long enough for the camera to take its picture, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's Indian paints.

OFFICE SOBERS INDIA'S LEFTS CHANGES NOTED

CALCUTTA, Nov. 11—(CP)—Congress ministries — disciples of Nationalism — have now had three months in office in six of India's 11 autonomous provinces. In a seventh, the Northwest Frontier, a Ministry of Independents gave place a few weeeks ago to one of Congress members relying for a majority on a group of Hindus and Sikhs. In this predominantly Moslem province the Congress Party is equally dominated by Moslems.

Everywhere budgets have been presented and sessions of legislature held, and although it is far too early to dogmatize about the progress of the new constitution, interesting feaures can be distinguished in the political scene, especially where Congress rules.

The sobering effect of office on India's left-wing politicians has been noticed. Their limited powers in the legislatures under the previous constitution tended to make them recalcitrant. The change now evident in the political scene is a contrast to the bitterness, constant opposition and periods of turmoil between the end of the war and the month Congress took office.

Congress then had no words too bad for government and its officers. When the constitution was inaugurated, it at first refused to form ministries, suspecting, so it said, that governors would, in the exercise of their constitutional powers, constantly interfere with it. Congress ministers are acknowledging that they have received nothing but help from the governors. Of Lord Erskine one of them said: "He has been our guide, philosopher and friend."

They have equally paid tribute to the loyalty with which the government services, so long used to administering, in effect ruling, the country are carrying out their policy, however much of a break with the past it may involve.

These Congress ministers have been in opposition to the government for years, some of them at times breaking the law and going to prison as civil resisters. Yet in the whole of India, with one possible and unimportant exception, there has been no report of friction between any official and ministers or their supporters. Ministers have promised to uphold the dignity and prestige of the police.

Show Independence

A Congress newspaper in a leading article declared it "rather sickening to find Congress ministers going from one extreme to another in their zeal to defend the bureaucracy and the police." It fears that Congress leaders "are tending towards Fascism.'

They are not being upset by comments like that, as an instance in the United Provinces shows. The premier, Pandit Govind Ballabh Pant, appointed a distinguished lawyer, a non-Congressman, as Advocate-General. Some of his supporters held a meeting and upbraided him for giving the post to one not a member of the party. The premier replied in effect that he was not having his decision questioned by anyone, and walked out of the room.

For years Congressman have ostentatiously absented themselves from the legislatures when addressed by the Viceroy or the governors. When last month the Bihar governor closed the Assembly session, Congressmen were present in full force and stood up when he entered. The Congress cabinet saw Lord Brabourne off when he left Bombay for England, lining up for a final handshake.

India is a land of courtesy, and even at the height of civil disobedience the Congress party as a whole kept its manners in resisting the government, if at times some people thought it did not keep its head.

There are however, other significant signs. One of the party's long cherished demands is the separation of the judiciary from the executive.

In India district officials at times exercise both functions of government. In two Assemblies last month Congress back-benchers urged that the time had come for reform. The Congress ministries' reply in both Chambers was similar: "Circumstances have altered. We demanded an independent judiciary because we thought that the executive in the districts was hostile to us. But now we are the executive, the officers are our subordinates, and there is no point in this reform, at any rate for the present.

They Are Realists

Congress ministries are composed almost wholly of the party's right-wing. Their members belong to the well-to-do, normally conservative classes. They are staunch Nationalists and Congressmen, but so far have shown themselves to be neither political nor economic extremists. Realists, they believe in discipline. Some of them have had to handle awkward situations made for them by their fellow Indians.

In the United Provinces' principal industrial centre, Cawnpore, election promises and the activities of a trade union to which extremist utterances have been attributed, led to strikes, throwing thousands out of work.

The Congress Party's official program in labor matters is advanced, but the party has been accused of accepting financial help from Indian industrialists and merchants, it can not afford to antagonize. Pandit Pant and Rajendra Prasad, former Congress presidents, acted as intermediaries between Cawnpore employers and workmen and patched up peace. Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, whose ideas on labor policy are also advanced, helped the peace-makers, telling the workmen that to strike too often was a mistake and that workers could not get wages if mills did not make profits.

Bengal's ministry, which is non-Congress, had an ever bigger strike and the ministry with firmness and tact helped to get the men back to work.

Do You Suffer From Headaches?

Headache is a source of great suffering and often leads to serious derangements of health.

Headache is nearly always symptomatic of some diseased condition, rather than a disease itself, but in most cases comes from a disordered stomach, or poor circulation of the blood, and the cause must be removed before relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters helps remove the cause of headache by acting on different organs of the body to regulate, strengthen and purify the system.

MRS. ARTHUR J. WILLIAMS, Lac Ste. Anne, Alta., writes:—"I suffered for years with dizzy headaches, and sometimes they were so bad I could not get any sleep.

My neighbour told me about Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking several bottles my headaches had disappeared.

My husband was troubled with pimples on his face, causing him great discomfort when shaving, but after he had taken two bottles of B.B.B. he got rid of the pimples."

Mass Relief System To Go Emphasis On Specific Needs

2,500 KILLED, WOUNDED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP)—Foreign Minister Georges Leger of Haiti said today that between 2,500 and 5,000 Haitians, including women and children, had been killed, or wounded, since October 5 in Dominican territory.

These casualties, Leger said, are the consequence of attacks on Haitians "well within the Dominican territory" by Dominican police and civilians.

New Program Is To Break The Relief Problem Up, Purvis Says

TORONTO, Nov. 11. — The National Employment Commission has worked out a plan to change the whole system of unemployment relief in Canada from "indiscriminate grants for dole purposes, treatment en masse" to specific program for specific needs.

This Arthur B. Purvis, chairman of the Commission, stated in Toronto on Tuesday. Mr. Purvis, president of Canadian Industries Limited, is, among a host of positions, a director of General Motors. Attending a General Motors family luncheon at the Royal York Hotel in honor of W. S. Knudsen and other General Motors executives, he told, in an informal address, of the work, recommendations and hopes of the Federal Commission.

Plan Specific Treatment.

The new program for unemployment relief is to break the problem up into component parts and apply specific remedies to each, all this with a practical approach to lead up to placement of uniemployed in private industry. It will be individual rather than mass treatment.

In place, he stated, of indiscriminate grants, there was urged upon the Government a system of specific grants of remedial nature for specific purposes. Noting that there was now observed a shortage of skilled and semi-skilled labor and a surplus of unskilled, he emphasized "We have got to increase employability. This involves the building up of the morale and physique of the unemployed, and also distinction between the unemployed and the unemployable.

"We must have," Mr. Purvis declared, "a nation-wide attack of simultaneous local efforts, carefully devised and practical, that will lead to placement in private industry."

This must bring into consideration the training of youth, the restoring of middle-aged persons to jobs, and "some means of very carefully handled works projects," he continued.

Mr. Purvis emphasized the words "very carefully handled." For, he declared emphatically: "Public works will get us nowhere." He referred to the temporary and intermittent character of such works.

Long-term Planning.

In the system as proposed, he pointed out, the administrative organization must be a modernized employment unit like that adopted in Great Britain, and "there must be long-term planning as well as short term." He noted in passing that the employment services now are set up by Provinces, "and in political hands."

JAP FLIERS BOMB NANTAO TO CLEAR LAST OF SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Nov. 11 (AP)—Japanese airplanes and artillery to-day bombarded Nantao, Chinese quarter adjacent to the French Concession, again plunging the foreign area of Shanghai into the midst of hostilities.

Some 20 Japanese bombing planes dropped explosives along the Nantao Whangpoo River waterfront within a few hundred yards of the anchorage of foreign men-of-war.

Simultaneously, Japanese artillery in Chapei threw a stream of shells across the International Settlement and French Concession into the Nantao area.

The attack was designed to drive out remnants of the Chinese army which retreated from Shanghai yesterday to defence lines farther inland. It followed a Japanese announcement Nantao would be bombarded unless the Chinese troops, variously estimated to number from several hundred to several thousand, withdrew.

The Japanese shells and bombs probably took a smaller toll of life than might have been expected because of evacuation of civilians from Nantao within the last 24 hours.

Many Fires Are Started.

The Japanese planes, which approached the Nantao waterfront from the East, included both army and navy bombers and pursuit craft. The pursuit planes flew over the International Settlement and the French Concession.

The bombs and shells started fires in parts of Nantao before the brief attack ended.

A detachment of marines landed from the French flagship, the cruiser Lamotte Picquet, to strengthen the French forces manning the borders of the Concession. French troops cleared streets in the southern section of the Concession, driving the populace northward from the danger zone.

Chinese soldiers near the French Concession border indicated they had no intention of withdrawing. Before the aerial bombardment they had withstood an attack by Japanese shock troops.

Planes ranging west of Shanghai bombarded the airdrome area of Nanking, the capital. Some Nanking residents said they feared a resumption of extended raids, interrupted by Japanese intensification of the Shanghai campaign.

Chinese officials at Nanking apparently were resigned to a gradual withdrawal of Chinese troops from the Shanghai region to main line defences inland.

hole, he was afraid that Neddy would allow no consideration of common honesty to restrain him from taking advantage of it.

He decided to go and see Marstons' on the following Saturday, and, if the interview should prove satisfactory, to take legal advice.

Next day, however, he received a letter from Neddy. It was cold and curt, and made no reference to Esther's death.

Dear Kennedy,

I am returning to England shortly, so think I should acquaint you with my plans about The Wilderness. You are, of course, aware that the property is mine under entail.

I have not yet definitely decided whether to let the house or cut the entail and sell it. The latter would probably take time, so I will not make a final decision until I get back. In the meantime, if you would care to consider renting the place from me it might save us both trouble, and if we can agree on terms, I will abandon the idea of a sale. I would suggest £400 a year as a fair figure.

In any case it will be a few months before I finish up over here; so you will have ample time to make what arrangements you please.

Yours truly,
Ed. Ashwell.

The cool insolence of it! The disingenuous pretense to a clear and undisputed title to do what he pleased with the place! And the crowning insult of the offer to rent it, at £400 a year, if you please! Tim's first impulse was to write a fierce and bitter reply, but he restrained it. He had to make sure of his facts. If he could produce anything in black and white, Neddy, whatever the legal position, might yet be shamed into keeping his engagement.

It was sent to Mrs. Thurston Doherty by a German, Felix Spherings, of Meerane, Germany, who explained in an accompanying letter that he had picked it up on the battlefields of France 20 years ago.

Mrs. Doherty had given the book to Dyer prior to his departure for overseas in September, 1916. In Sperings's letter were the boldly written words, "Heil Hitler," above the signature.

NORFOLK TOBACCO NETS HIGHER PRICE

SIMCOE, Ont., Nov. 11 (CP). — Norfolk's 82-000,000-pound crop of flue-cured tobacco was moving into the hands of the tobacco companies today and an end to the week-old sellers' strike for higher prices was in sight.

Fifteen millions pounds were sold yesterday according to an estimate obtained here and the market continued active today. Prices paid were reported to be mostly a cent and a half above the appraisal price, a few sales being reported at three and four cents above apraisal.

Leaders of the strike movement, stafied to get a 10-cent increase in the 24½ cent apraisal price fixed by the Ontario flue-cured tobacco marketing board, called growers to meet again today in the Simcoe arena as repercussions of the sales strike spread to other tobacco-growing counties.

Madagascar will supply machinery to aid planters in producing better coffee.

DEFENCE POLICY SHOULD BE KEPT OUT OF POLITICS

United Canada Needed To Support Policies

The importance of keeping Canada's defence policy entirely free of politics was urged by the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, M.C., in his Remembrance Day address to a large group of active and retired officers at a banquet in the Armouries.

"Since assuming responsibility for the administration of the Department of National Defence and particularly during the present year and as far as I can see for the succeeding year, it has been my policy to keep the Department, its policies, and administration entirely free from political influence of any type," he said.

"I believe that we must have a united Canada in order to implement the policies for the direct defence of our country, which have been agreed upon," he stated: The Minister explained that Canada's policy of national defence was not one of aggression but was primarily one of fulfilling the Dominion's obligations as an important unit of the British Empire.

Acknowledges Co-operation

Introduced by J. J. Duffus, M.P., as "a scholar; a lover of the arts; a soldier and politician," the Minister paid a high tribute to all ranks of the Non-Permanent Active Militia for their splendid co-operation and support in the task of reorganizing the militia.

Recommended In 1932

Reorganization of the militia, the speaker declared, was recommended and approved in principle in 1932, but no specific changes had been made until recently.

Speaking of the need that had made reorganization of the militia essential, the Minister asserted, "The Canadian militia was suffering from a serious deficiency of modern equipment. I believe we have in Canada the finest men in the world, but we cannot ask them to do duty in defence of this country without providing them the most modern equipment and machinery."

"Your government is well aware of the obligations with respect to social and economic reform, but it is also acutely conscious of its primary responsibility for the defence of Canada. The policies being made to meet eventualities are the minimum considered necessary for the security of this Dominion and are made with an intimate knowledge of heavy burden already placed on the shoulders of the Canadian taxpayer," he said.

To Build New Planes

Speaking of some of the immediate things which the policy of his Department entails, he announced that during the present fiscal year Canada is to build 102 airplanes. The planes which are to increase the present air fleet, would he said,

JEALOUSY SLAYING INQUIRY STARTS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—(AP).—A coroner's jury to-day investigated the "white flame" slaying by Paul Wright, Glendale airport manager, of his wife and John B. Kimmel, his close friend, at the Wright home here Tuesday.

In his statement to police Wright was quoted as saying that when he saw his wife and Kimmel embracing, "there was a sheet of white flame before my eyes. I fired blindly."

Defence Lawyer Jerry Geisler said the fact his client had undergone a sterilization operation to save his wife the danger of another childbirth would form the basis of his defence.

He said alienists would "give important testimony as to the possibility both Wright and his wife were rendered emotionally unstable as an aftermath of the steps Wright took to spare his wife the dangerous ordeal of future childbirth.

Commenting on Wright's statement County Autopsy Surgeon A. F. Wagner said: "It seems to me it would have been impossible for a person firing blindly to place eight out of nine bullets with such deadly accuracy."

The confessed slayer collapsed in jail yesterday when his father, Dr. J. J. Wright, arrived from Milwaukee.

Mining Syndicates Warned To Spend More Developing

Public's Cash Must Go "North of Queen Street" And Not Into Office Expenses, Says Godfrey

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(CP)—John M. Godfrey, K.C., Ontario Securities Commissioner issued a warning today to small mining syndicates that more of their money "must be spent north of Toronto's financial district" or, in other words that more of the funds subscribed by shareholders must be spent on actual mining development.

The commissioner's warning was issued in the course of a public investigation into the affairs of the Long Beard Mining Syndicate Limited, whose disbursements for office expenses and legal fees he criticised severely.

"The whole purpose of permitting these small syndicates to organize at a small fee was to allow development of claims with a minimum of expense," Mr. Godfrey said. "I intend to have an investigation every time our audits show that the purpose of these syndicates is not carried out. We want the money subscribed by the public to go into mining and not into office and administration expenses.

"We don't intend these little syndicates to be run with organizations like those of a million dollar company. More of their money must be spent north of Queen street." (Toronto's financial district is bounded by Queen street on the north).

Just the Dummy.

Paul Phillips, president of the syndicate and of Gold Sponsors Ltd., the holding company admitted to the commissioner that he was "merely a dummy" holding one unit in the syndicate and one share of the Holding Company's stock. Arthur A. Kamis, general manager of both companies, said he was honestly concerned with the development of the property and agreed to Mr. Godfrey's suggestion that the Commission's auditors should confer with company officials with regard to a readjustment of the company's expenditures.

One of the expenditures most severely criticized by the Commissioner was legal fee amounting to $691 paid David Scher, a barrister and also a director of the syndicate.

"You can't expect $100 every time you come up to the Securities Commission and say 'How-do-you-do'," said Mr. Godfrey as he advised the company to have the fee taxed.

BRITAIN BUYS UP ALL COAL MINES FOR $332,250,000

LONDON, Nov. 12 (CP-Havas).—All unmined coal in the United Kingdom, known or unknown, will pass into possession of the Crown on or before July 1, 1942, under terms of the government mining bill issued last night.

The bill provides that the government will buy out the 4,300 present owners for a total sum of £66,450,000 ($332,250,000), a figure arrived at earlier this year by an arbitration commission.

The measure was forecast in the Speech from the Throne. It will be introduced into parliament shortly.

Coal rights, in private hands since the beginning of the coal industry, will be repurchased by the Coal Mines Commission, which will thus become owner of all unmined coal, discovered or not.

Evaluation of the separate rights will be made before January 1, 1939, and transfer of the subsoil property will take place before July 1, 1942, according to the bill's terms.

Meanwhile, present owners will enjoy use of their properties with a certain amount of control to insure the mines do not decrease in value before the change over.

A central committee for evaluation will divide the whole country into districts, allocating to each zone a sum to be distributed to the individual proprietors by the local commission.

The Coal Mines Commission will be permitted to obtain loans from the Treasury for the purchase of mining rights before receiving the revenues from lease of these rights.

General Pershing To Fight Disease

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP).—General John J. Pershing, a little grayer but still the keen-eyed "Black Jack" of Great War days, is back from France to take command in a new war—the first against social diseases.

The 77-year-old commander of the United Expeditionary Forces returned yesterday from his annual trip abroad as head of the Battle Monuments Commission to take over the chairmanship of the National Anti-Syphilis Committee of the American Social Hygiene Association.

GRABS GOOSE BY HAND

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP). — Harvey George of the Kettle Point Indian Reserve, shows the bird to prove this one. He claims a wild goose flew so low over the hide-out where he was waiting to shoot the birds that he was able to stretch out his arm and capture it with his hands.

Shot In Air Halts Boy Fugitive

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP) —Raymond Woods, 16, of Belleville, who walked out of the Training School for Boys at Bowmanville six weeks ago, was captured by police last night after a shot was fired to halt his progress. He pleaded guilty today to breaking, entering and theft at the James Millar home, Belleville, and was sentenced to one year determinate and one year indeterminate in Guelph Reformatory.

"I guess the training school is no place for you," said Magistrate Butler.

The youth was found in a Station Street residence and attempted to escape as he was being taken to the police station.

Crow Samples Cooking

"Skippy" tame crow, who was cold-shouldered out of the collegiate when he went there to seek a higher education and improved school cooking, has returned to his friends in the city's public schools. Skippy turned up this week at Queen Mary school, Principal O. M. Steer took advantage of the opportunity to teach his pupils nature study at first hand. Following the lesson Skippy willingly accepted an afternoon snack from Jean Cromie, shown here offering the tame fellow a bite while Lillian Morrow is looking on. Skippy has been missing from his home two days.

Every Canadian Cenotaph Sees Dead Honored

Cannot Strive Too Diligently To Confine All Areas of Conflict Says Premier King

TORONTO, Nov. 12 (C.P.). — Canada began her 20th year of peace to-day and looked on a world troubled with conflicts in Europe and the Far East.

But—after observing the 19th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice — Canadians pondered the words of Prime Minister Mackenzie King: "We cannot strive too diligently to confine all areas of conflict."

The Prime Minister's speech, one of several last night in an international broadcast urging peace and harmony, came after a day of Dominion-wide remembrance and reverent tribute to the country's war dead.

With the nation's capital as the focal point, Armistice Day ceremonies spread out across the country. Every city, town and hamlet from the Maritimes to the Pacific Coast had its service before stately Cenotaph or small memorial. For two minutes at 11 a.m. yesterday the nation's voice was stilled in tribute to the fallen.

In countless services from Atlantic to Pacific were repeated words similar to those of Rt. Rev. Ralph Sherman, Anglican Bishop of Calgary who declared: "The implications of remembrance spell the renunciation of war."

A Four-Nations Appeal.

On the same broadcast with the Prime Minister, war veterans of four nations—Canada, Great Britain, the United States, and France — asked for concentration on the work of developing understanding and the will for peace among the nations.

A gathering of war veterans in Ottawa heard Pensions Minister Tower declare the obligation of the Canadian people to its ex-soldiers "has not yet been discharged." He said that obligation would persist "until every just claim, every right acquired on the field of honor has been established."

Entering the hall after the remembrance service broadcast, the Prime Minister, who had not been scheduled to speak, revealed Parliament would honor the banquet guest — Walter S. Allward, sculptor of the Vimy Ridge Memorial. Mr. Mackenzie King said at the next session the Government would introduce a resolution of thanks to Mr. Allward.

Another international aspect to Canada's observance of the day was provided at Blaine, Wash., when British Columbia joined the United States in a service at the 60-foot Peace Arch.

Pair Of Hunters Bag Deer, Moose, Bear

Guelph, Nov. 12 (CP)

TWO Guelph physicians ran up something of a record on a hunting trip in the Algoma District, 150 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, it was learned today. The successful nimrods were Dr. L. H. Leggett and Dr. Charles Pinch and their bag was a deer, a moose, a bear, and a 38-pound fish. "Although successful in hunting sense, a mishap befell the party when Dr. Pinch fell going through the bush, dislocating his elbow.

SCORES DROWNED 30,000 HOMELESS LUZON TYPHOON

MANILA, Nov. 12 (AP)—Scores were reported dead on typhoon-ravaged Luzon Island today in the wake of wind and rain which swept a path 200 miles long across seven provinces yesterday.

Nine were known dead in Manila and 20 missing. Twenty-six others were reported swept away in Rizal Province.

First advices from outlying provinces, handicapped by disrupted communications, told of tens of thousand homeless, scores injured and many missing. Property damage was extensive.

Bulacan Province reported terrific winds swept that region six hours, destroying school buildings, churches and approximately 3,000 homes, leaving an estimated 30,000 homeless.

From Subic in Zambales Province came word 90 per cent of the native houses were blown down.

Three thousand were homeless in Manila, their houses blown away or inundated.

Giant waves dashed 14 heavy cargo lighters upon the rocks in Manila Bay and endangered other shipping. The 20 missing had been aboard 10 fishing boats in the bay.

The British freighter Kenilworth was blown aground at Point Pinandungan, southeast of here, but advices to her local agents said she struck a sandbar and was not damaged. Her captain advised he expected to refloat the ship under her own power.

ONE MANGY WOLF TOTAL BAG OF 400 SIMCOE HUNTERS

BARRIE, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP)—Tall tales of Simcoe county's monster wolf hunt were told last night as some 400 leg-weary hunters dispersed to their homes after covering 50 square miles of bush, swamp and scrub land in search of the wolves that for months past have been raiding farms hereabouts.

The net result of the long-heralded, one-day hunt yesterday was one dead wolf. There was no doubt about that. Kenneth Houghton, 25-year-old Barrie barber, shot it, and today had on display the four foot, seven-inch carcass, covered with a coat of rough, tawney gray fur. It was an old wolf.

But of the other parties of hunters, made up of farmers and townsmen, boys and men, with a sprinkling of Toronto and Hamilton residents, only Duke Smith of Concession four, Essa township, came close to laying low one of the grey shadows of the Camp Borden plains. Smith shot a leg of one big 'un that scampered away on three legs.

It seems the wolves—hundreds of them, say the farmers—have been killing livestock. Chickens, geese, sheep, even young cattle and calves, have been taken. Frightened youngsters have come running home after dark to tell of being chased by the animals. Running in packs, the loboes for months past have terrorized this district.

Representatives Sent Germany, Turkey Reported Arrested

Nazi Consul at Leningrad Is Ordered Home At Russia's Request—Purge Goes On Unabated

MOSCOW, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's ambassadors to Germany, Turkey and Poland were reported by diplomatic sources today to have been recalled. There were unconfirmed rumors two of them had been arrested.

The same sources said Rudolf Sommer, German consul general at Leningrad, had been recalled by the Berlin government at Moscow's request.

The rumors Dr. Constantine Youreneff, the envoy to Berlin and Mikhail Karski, ambassador to Turkey, had been arrested linked their names with the government's purge of suspected enemies within Soviet ranks. The ambassador to Poland is Yakov Davtian.

In connection with Consul General Sommer's reported return to Berlin it was recalled more than 400 Germans had been arrested in Russia in recent months in a drive against suspected spies. These included two declared by Soviet authorities to be agents of Gestapo, the German secret police, who were taken into custody last month.

The purge, meanwhile, seemed to be continuing unabated. Fourteen more executions were reported by the provincial press, including 10 persons in Kazakhstan who were accused of nationalist tendencies, and four charged with spoiling grain in the Vladivostok region.

DOYLE IN FLIGHT FOR AID TO FIGHT RECORD LOVE SUIT

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Jack Doyle, the hefty farm boy whose "love for music" enabled him to combine the arts with those of the fistic world, arrived in Montreal last night to sail for London in search of help to fight his former wife's $2,000,000 suit against the wealthy woman the Irishman plans to marry.

Arriving here on a train from Detroit, the fawn-coated tenor who claims to have a voice "the same type as John McCormick," went to his hotel immediately and agreed to meet representatives of the press.

"I'm going to sail for London just as soon as I can arrange passage," he said with such rapidity it was difficult to follow.

Removing a reporter's coat and hat from the modernistic hotel bed Doyle laid himself gently down and prepared to answer the queries of newspapermen. He was "racing" to England to get in touch with his former manager, Fred Curran and his wife.

Ridiculous Thing

"Curran said Doyle, smoothing his heavy eyebrows with a forefinger, "knows the whole foundation of this case. I hope to get him as a witness. Probably I'll bring him back with me when I return in two or three weeks. . . . This is a ridiculous thing. This suit for alienation of my affections will make Miss Allen look ridiculous and bring her bad notoriety. Yes, $2,000,000 is a lot of money. It's some sort of a record in suits like this, if that means anything."

Doyle appeared bored until advised by reporters what might be found around Montreal in the way of night clubs. Then he became enthused and promised to show "the sights" to Wally Blacker, his pianist-secretary. Drinks were ordered for all: whisky for the reporters, milk for Jack, and water for Wally.

Reiterating his intention of instituting suit of "at least $1,000,000," against two Detroit "people," Mr Doyle said they also had "alienated affections" and had "practically ruined his career. "Things they have done and said," he repeated with indignation," practically have ruined my career."

No Drinks or Smokes.

The 24-year-old Doyle, who neither drinks nor smokes "because it's bad for fighting and singing," said he had been forced to cancel "a lot of contracts, including pictures and a fight with Tommy Farr."

Doyle admitted it was rather difficult to follow the story from start to finish. But he hoped to be able

UNWIN SENTENCED TO THREE MONTHS

EDMONTON, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Joseph H. Unwin, Social Credit member of the Alberta legislature today was sentenced to three months hard labor at Fort Saskatchewan jail by Mr. Justice W. C. Ives.

Unwin was convicted Wednesday by a six-man jury of defamatory libel "well knowing" it to be false in connection with publication of pamphlets entitled "Bankers' toadies."

In passing sentence Mr. Justice Ives told Unwin that when voters of Edson constituency elected him a member of the legislature, they conferred upon him the highest honor in their power and in return he owed the voters the "very best" public service which he was capable of giving.

The taxpayers were paying Mr. Unwin $1,800 a year for the loss of his time given to the public service, Mr. Justice Ives continued, and "you cannot swear that some of your conduct in the legislature" has been in the public interest.

Mr. Justice Ives told Unwin he was taking into consideration the jury's recommendation for leniency and also a statement made by defence counsel. The court said maximum sentence for the crime on which conviction had been registered was two years imprisonment and a fine of $400.

Hunter Suffers Gunshot Wound

James Greer, 32-year-old attendant at the Ontario Hospital, Whitby, was injured by a gunshot wound while deer hunting in Warsaw district late on Thursday afternoon. With three small bones shattered in his left foot, Greer was admitted to Nicholls Hospital. Hunting with his father-in-law the party were returning to camp after shooting one deer when the accident occurred. Greer, it was learned, had placed his rifle on the ground near the camp when a small log rolled over it, discharging the bullet. The bullet entered his left foot near the ankle.

Agent Admits Holdup Story Told Just As A "Lark"

Accidentally Shoots Himself Then Concocts Yarn About 3 Men, Girl

TILLSONBURG, Ont., Nov. 12—(CP).—Blair Hogarth, Tillsonburg insurance agent, was in hospital here to-day suffering from the effects of a bullet wound in the leg, a wound accidentally inflicted and which he thought would be "a lark" to make the basis of a bizarre holdup story.

After questioning Hogarth in hospital for two hours, Chief Constable J. E. Phillion announced yesterday it had been admitted the story which sent police on a widespread hunt for three men and a dark-haired girl was false. The police chief said Hogarth "said he thought it would be a lark to tell the story of the holdup."

Hogarth was found on a highway six miles east of here yesterday by Joe Dennis, a bus driver. The insurance agent said he had been held up by three men and a woman, forced to write a $100 cheque, then shot in the leg and left by the roadside. He said the "robbers then escaped in a green automobile.

Under the chief constables questioning, however, Hogarth said he had borrowed a rifle to go hunting. As he was getting out of his car, his foot slipped and the gun discharged. The bullet lodged in the leg. When found, Hogarth was semi-conscious and was suffering from

Hubby At Waterloo 122 Years Ago Widow Still Draws Pension

London, Nov. 12 (CP)

THE Battle of Waterloo was fought on the northeast frontier of France 122 years ago, but the widow of a British soldier who served under Wellington is still drawing a pension, and the woman today is only 75 years old.

Here's the story of the case:

The woman's husband joined as a bugler in 1815 at the age of 16. He served under Wellington in the campaign against Napoleon and continued in the service at the close of the war. He lived to a ripe age and when on the verge of 80, led to the altar a bride of 17.

Time passed and she became a widow. Hard times brought destitution and ultimately her case was brought to the attention of the widows, orphans and old age contributory pensions authorities.

Sunshine More Than Match For Business Clouds

Trade Boards Are Given Eight Excellent Reasons For Optimism

TORONTO, Nov. 12—(CP)— The sunshine is more than a match for the clouds on the business horizon, Russel T. Kelley, Hamilton, Ont., president of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce told the annual meeting today.

Delegates from all sections of the province are here for the one-day session. Resolutions on widely-varied subjects have been presented and most of the day will be taken up with a discussion of them.

Mr. Kelley had many reasons for his business optimism. He listed eight chief ones. These were:

The Empire trade treaties of 1932 and 1937 mean Canada will share an ever-increasing intra-empire trade.

The reciprocal trade agreement with the United States will result in an increasing volume of business as that nation becomes more urban.

An estimated increase of $60,000,000 in the income of Ontario farmers.

Wealth produced from Ontario's mines promises to set a record in 1937.

Paper prices are satisfactory. The agreed price of $50 a ton for newsprint for the first half of 1938 will help.

Lumber shipments are well ahead of 1936.

Gateman Falls, Train Hits Party Injuring Six, Two Seriously

St. Thomas, Nov. 12 (CP)

SIX persons were injured, two seriously, early today when an automobile was driven into the path of a backing locomotive at a city intersection here. Watchman Joseph Fellows had slipped, fallen and injured himself a few minutes earlier as he was about to lower the gates protecting the crossing.

As Fellows lay on the ground, not badly hurt, the engine backed into a car driven by Viola Brown and containing a wedding party of five.

John Logan of Detroit, brakeman on the Wabash engine, was knocked off a step at the back of the locomotive and suffered a fractured leg. Ronald McDonald, passenger in the motor car, was injured about the head.

Newly-married Mr. and Mrs. Harry Agnew were not badly hurt, though the bridegroom suffered head injuries as did Mrs. Mabel Crane. Two others were uninjured.

JAPS MAY OPEN DRIVE ON REDS SHANGHAI CITY

Chinese Fall Back Line 50 Miles West

SHANGHAI, Nov. 12. — (AP). — China's Shanghai forces, about 400,000 strong, fell back to-day toward the Chinese "Hindenburg Line," more than 50 miles to the west.

Japanese troops, numbering 200,000, forced Chinese from towns and trenches in the Shanghai area. The Chinese fought only rearguard actions as they withdrew toward the chain of trenches and pillboxes, stretching from Changshu south through Soochow, Wukiang and Kaiching, and protecting Nanking.

Nippon's war planes ranged into the interior as the troops advanced. One flight bombed the American church mission hospital at Wushi, 80 miles west of Nanking, killing two Chinese staff members. Five Americans escaped injury.

(The Japanese government in Tokyo to-day refused a second invitation to participate in proceeding of the Brussels conference on the Far Eastern war.)

With the fall of Shanghai to Japanese, officials of the Shanghai Municipal Council began a widespread clean-up of anti-Japanese societies operating in the International Settlement.

Expects No Trouble.

Stirling Fessenden, Secretary-General of the Council, said he did not believe Japanese would interfere with the International group's functions and added there was little friction between the Council and the Japanese.

Fessenden added that if Japan should declare war Shanghai might then become the subject of International discussion. Yesterday General Iwane Matsui, commander of the Japanese army at Shanghai, said, "We might have to take action" against "numbers of Communists" in the International Settlement.

Creeks, canals and lakes alice the terrain Japanese must cross before reaching the new Chinese lines. The countryside is ideal for guerilla warfare such as Chinese stragglers in the north are using against Japanese. Reports from Peiping were that thousands of Chinese were harassing Japanese in Hopeh Province. Flood and famine refugees fled southward in Shantung province.

TWO LARGE BALES ARE SHIPPED WEST

MILLBROOK, Nov. 12.—Mrs. L. S. Clarry, and her daughters, Miss Mabel, of Peterborough, and Miss Gertrude, of New York, but at present at home, were joint hostesses for the November meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Andrew's church, on Wednesday at 3 p.m., with approximately thirty members and visitors in attendance.

The occasion was the annual fall thankoffering meeting, the official program, "The Church Universal," being used, with the president, Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Sisco, taking the chair, issuing the call to worship, and leading in the responsive readings and prayers.

The first prayer of the service was offered by Mrs. Clarry, and the prayer of thanksgiving, following the offertory, by Mrs. L. H. Rea. The thankoffering amounted to over forty dollars, the allocation which the Auxiliary has in view of $200 still needs considerable augmenting if the final amount is to be reached.

Miss E. L. Hetherington took up the study book, "From Sea to Sea" being the chapter, covering the beginnings of the work beyond the seas by pioneer missionaries of the Methodist, Presbyterian, and Congregational churches, now forming the United Church of Canada.

Miss M. E. Hetherington read the devotional leaflet, and the president reported two large bales of clothing packed at the parsonage last week, valued at over forty dollars, and three large packages of books and magazines, all sent on to the needy section of the West. Mrs. Sisco also stated that she has the addresses of a number of women in the West, given her by Mrs. (Rev.) Malcolm, who will be very glad to receive Sunday School papers and periodicals, if private individuals wish to mail same after they have saved a month's supply.

Timely messages were brought by the Temperance and Peace secretaries, Mrs. John Rowland and Mrs. J. H. George, and the meeting closed with the benediction.

In the social hour that followed the guests particularly enjoyed a visit with their hostess, Mrs. L. S. Clarry, who passed her ninety-first birthday last month, and whom they were delighted to find in excellent health and spirits, able to enjoy the meeting, and to take her own part in it, as she always does when the Auxiliary is entertained in her own home, with pleasure and profit to all present.

LINDSAY TRIBUTE TO HER WAR DEAD

LINDSAY, Nov. 12.—Lindsay's war dead were solemnly remembered yesterday with an impressive ceremony both at the cenotaph and at the armories. Headed by the Citizen's Band a procession which included the Lindsay Branch Canadian Legion and the two local troops of Boys Scouts marched to the cenotaph where services were held and wreaths placed at the base of the cenotaph by the veterans, Daughters of the Empire and other organizations. The services at the armories were conducted by the Ministerial Association, and the chief address was delivered by Jasper Forman, clerk of the Surrogate Court, and a veteran of the Great War.

Dies in Kingston

Leona Marguerite Pogue, aged 23 years, of Lindsay, passed away in Kingston General Hospital on Wednesday. The deceased, whose parents reside in Cobourg, was a life-long resident of Lindsay, and was stenographer at the Northern Casket Company. She was prominent in the social life of the community. The late Hilda Smith, of Reaboro, a close companion of the deceased, was killed in an automobile accident at Ottawa on Armistice Day, 1935.

AIRPLANE HANGER WILL BE RAZED

NAPANEE, Nov. 12. — Demolition of the aircraft hangar on the former Camp Rathbun at Deseronto, which was recently acquired by Montreal interests, is expected to begin next week.

The property has been purchased for the erection of a large airplane factory, reported to be of brick and steel construction, with approximate dimensions of 75 by 550 feet. Besides offering unusually natural facilities for seaplane or airplane landing, the site is ideally located as a midway point between Toronto and Montreal and Ottawa on the proposed trans-Canada airways, and it is understood negotiations are under way to form a working connection with this firm with the view to establishing a permanent airport.

Should a satisfactory agreement be reached, a flying field would be laid out under Government supervision. And in addition to beacon lights and other landmarks, one of the requisites would be a one-mile concrete runway.

DEFENCE POLICY SHOULD BE KEPT OUT OF POLITICS

be made in Canada by Canadian labor. "We believe our duty is to made these preparations and invite the support and co-operation of every Canadian citizen," the Minister stated.

The distinguished guest voiced an appeal to employers of labor to give their co-operation in a greater degree to young men in their employ who wished to do voluntary military service. He expressed highest praise of the guard of honor from the Prince of Wales' Rangers, which had paid him military honors earlier in the day and referred to the militiamen as "splendid young lads."

"Our first duty is to the Dominion and our Canadian people," he reiterated with regard to Canada's defence policy. "Might I say with great veneration for empire idealism that we in Canada are looking to the future of this Dominion preserving so far as we can the unity of our people."

Officers of the Rangers turned over their mess to the officers' association for the occasion. So successful was the function that it will go down in history of the local garrison as "a red letter day" to quote Lieut-Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., officer commanding Prince of Wales' Rangers.

Dr. A. W. McPherson officiated as toastmaster and welcomed over 130 brother officers representative of various branches of His Majesty's services, who were present from the whole of Central Ontario.

After the King had been toasted, the Rev. Captain P. J. Kelly, proposed the toast to "Silent Comrades." It was responded to by a deeply impressive period of silence.

The committee responsible for the success of the banquet included: Dr. A. W. McPherson, Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., C. H. Rogers, C. H. Ackerman, Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Dr. A. G. Howson, J. Walton Stevenson, H. C. Sootheran, M. H. Park, and W. F. Huycke, K.C., secretary.

MADOC OBSERVES REMEMBRANCE DAY IN FITTING MANNER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Nov. 12—Remembrance Day was observed in Madoc village by the closing of all stores from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and a community service held at the Armouries at 10.30 a.m. in charge of the veterans of the Great War.

Wm. Hart, president of the Veteran's Society took the chair and the veterans filed into place and the service was opened by all joining in "O God Our Help In Ages Past" with Mrs. L. Ashley presiding at the piano. Scripture reading was taken by Rev. I. E. Kenedy from the Prophecy of Isaiah and from Revelations after which Rev. W. A Hunter led in prayer. Rev. W. G Hope Swayne gave a short, earnest address asking all to try to recapture the feelings of that first Armistice Day as relief, grief and hope held mingled sway in the hearts and minds of all who joined in that mighty outburst of thrilled emotion and to capture during the two minutes' silence some of the tearful emotion of the day. All stood during the two minutes, then the Rev. Mr. Swayne continued his address dwelling on the four things we still hold dear as the result of those heroic dead who gave their all and the efforts of those soldiers who are still with us.

Due to their united efforts we have what Germany would have denied us what they are denying those under their frenzied rule — personal honesty, personal purity, unselfishness and love.

After a collection taken by the Daughters of the Empire for Blind Soldiers and the National Anthem, the procession formed for the Cenotaph where wreaths were placed in loving memory of our fallen heroes.

James Aylsworth sounded Reveille and the Last Post in a cornet solo and the flag which had been at half mast was raised after which Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne pronounced the Benediction. During the ceremony in the Armouries little Miss Norma Haggerty beautifully recited "Flanders Fields" and Master Glen Haggerty gave very delightfully "When the Poppies Bloom Again". In delightful contrast to the evergreen wreaths of laurel and poppies the flowers placed by Miss Mary Alice Davies for the Anglican Church were a gorgeous basket of small bronze chrysanthemums which were donated by the Ladies' Guild for Armistice Day and had decorated the Altar for the Sunday service of Remembrance when the Bishop of Ontario was the honored speaker.

Finds Attractive Girls Who Are Willing But Lack Funds

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 12.—Gordon Sharp of Pontypool, 28-year-old farmer who advertised for a wife with $2,000 to invest in a farm, has since discovered he is not alone in seeking a wife with a dowry.

Gordon is still a bachelor. Many of his proposals have been attractive, but lacking the $2,000. Gordon has been writing to many who answered his plea. One woman, a school teacher from western Ontario, visited the farm, but found it too lonesome. Two others from Toronto Gordon called upon with unsatisfactory results.

In July Gordon wrote a newspaper soliciting aid in securing a wife with a dowry. He stated: "I would like one who can do housework. She must be healthy. I would like a wife with $2,000 or more, a young widow or woman not too old. Of course I believe love is necessary, but I am sure love would grow after we were married."

Two weeks after his SOS Gordon found his rural mail box filled.

Extract from one letter follows: "I fill your request in every way, although I have no money to look forward to, but I have a steady job, making from $12 to $15, plus overtime work. I am a good housekeeper, good in cooking, baking, sewing, knitting, embroidery and I am a good ironer and neat worker."

"Am Very Pretty Brunette"

"I am a young French-Canadian girl, age 18, around five feet three inches, weighing 95 pounds. I am a very pretty brunette with natural curly hair. I am very healthy and would like to live on a farm very much. I have a good technical education. I am very sincere, honest and truthful. I do not go out with anyone."

Wrote a young man from Toronto in regard to this letter: "Dear Mr. Sharp, Re: Young French-Canadian, 18 years, 95 pounds. This girl seems to demand a very high standard of masculine pulchritude and claims the same for herself. If you do not intend doing business with her I should deem it a favor if you would communicate to me her name and address, also what her dowry amounts to, if any?"

From Sarnia came a letter from a young man to Mr. Sharp: "I want a wife myself with around the same amount of money to invest in a home, garden farm and business. If you don't mind sending your ladies' mail, after you have selected a wife; only one is allowed any man, you know. Perhaps I can find my choice among the lot. I am close to your age and have personality and good health."

From the Raglan district, north of Oshawa, a young farmer wrote: "I am a bachelor too; I suppose you have a wife picked out by now. Do you ever do any favors. If so, would you kindly send me the address of the little French-Canadian girl; that is if you have not picked her yourself, or any other names you may have?"

"Found Farm Too Quiet"

Gordon's quest for love and a dowry was nearly ended in August when a young school teacher from western Ontario drove out to the farm. "We all liked her. She had a car, was good looking, had lots of money, but she said she found the farm too quiet. She was of the sporty type, liked to go to parties and dances nearly every night, and couldn't get used to living without electric lights."

Taking time off from his work on the farm, Gordon said he called on one young woman who wrote to him from Toronto, but she said she hadn't written the letter, although the same name on the letter was on the door of her apartment. Another who wrote asking Gordon to call, after she had consulted her mother in Peterborough and received her sanction, Gordon found had moved a week previous from her New Toronto address to some unknown locality.

The search is still on, Gordon states, and it is a serious matter with him. 'I think it is a fair bargain for anyone who is fond of the farm. I am young yet and can wait a while, although with times improving I'll soon have the money myself. Somewhere there is a girl with the same idea. Perhaps by Christmas I'll be married. I haven't changed my mind about girls the least bit; I still think highly of them," he said.

Textile Probe Sit At Brantford

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP). —The Ontario Industry and Labor Board met here today in its inquiry into the textile industry with a view to establishing minimum wages for textile workers.

Witnesses heard included John R. Varey, who described operations of the Slingsby Mills here and Ernest Pusey, mill superintendent, who described card-room operations and various duties of employees.

In answer to a question from J. T. Cohen, counsel for the National Textile Council, Pusey said that since last January, the mills had employed three eight-hour shifts each day instead of two 10-hour shifts "to consume more labor."

"And to produce more goods," Mr. Cohen added.

After a sitting in Woodstock tomorrow, the board will decide whether sessions in other cities are necessary to complete its inquiry.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Wheat futures skyrocketed five cents a bushel on Winnipeg grain exchange to-day, November and December advancing the daily five-cent limit. North American wheat exports, sales of 1,300,000 bushels and severe frost in Argentina were chief factors as prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange closed from 5 to 5¼ cents higher, November, $1.21, December $1.16½, May $1.14 and July $1.08¼-⅜.

New crop wheat damage in South and Western Argentina was estimated at between 75,000,00 and 60,000,000 bushels. In extent these damage reports are accurate, Argentina's crop would probably not exceed 160,000 bushels.

Heavy commission house buying, short covering and good export demand pushed the November future up the five cent allowance limit in the first hour of trading. Other wheat futures moved more than four cents higher.

Brantford Hydro Idea Squelched

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(CP).—Overwhelming defeat to-day met a resolution favoring replacement of the present Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission with a commission made up of representatives of municipal Hydro and Utilities Commissions when it was presented by Brantford delegates to the annual meeting of the Associated Ontario Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.

G. D. Henderson, Brantford, moving the resolution from that city's Board of Trade, said the purpose behind it was to "remove any suspicion that Hydro is controlled or operated directly or indirectly by any political group or party."

Honor In Bootlegging Trade Scarce, Mounties Find

One Builds Still, Gets Farmer To Run It, Then Informs Police After Quarrel

OTTAWA, Nov. 12—(CP). — If there must be honor among thieves there must also be honor among bootleggers. A couple of cases handled by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and reviewed in their annual report appear to illustrate the truth of the adage and its application to the illicit liquor trade.

In one case an attempt by one law-breaker to cheat another led to the detection of both and the punishment of the cheater, but in the other the individual cheated refused to disclose the identity of the cheat although his wife disclosed the trick. A Mountie went to serve a summons on a man at Casselman, Ont., for selling liquor, and heard the man's wife say there were others who should be brought to justice.

This remark led to disclosure of the trick. Two men had sold the bootlegger what appeared to be a five-gallon can of alcohol for $32. He had sampled it and found it good. When he came to pour it out he could get only a pint and a half. A partition had been soldered inside the can, leaving a small space at the top which was filled with alcohol. The rest of the can was full of water.

A resident of Eastview, Ont., reported a farmer at Lascelle, Que., was operating a still. The police found the still, but learned their informant had built the still and persuaded the farmer to operate it. A quarrel followed and the owner of the still went to the police. The farmer was not charged, but the informant was fined $200, or three months in prison.

150 FAMILIES OWN AND RUN THE U.S. SO WRITER CLAIMS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—In a 500-page book entitled "America's 60 Families" published to-day, Ferdinand Lundberg, former Wall Street financial writer, asserts that "the United States is owned and dominated to-day by a hierarchy of its 60 richest families, buttressed by no more than 99 families of less wealth."

"These families," Lundberg continues, "are the living centre of the modern industrial oligrachy which dominates the United States, functioning discreetly under a de jure democratic form of government behind which a de facto government, absolutist and plutocratic in its lineaments, has gradually taken form since the civil war.

"This de facto government is actually the government of the United States—informal, invisible, shadowy. It is the government of money in a dollar democracy."

Among the leading families in Lundberg's list, in order: Rockefeller, Morgan, Ford, Harkness, Mellon, Vanderbilt, Whitney, Dupont, McCormick, Baker, Fisher and Guggenheim.

"Outside this plutocratic circle (of 60 and 90 families)" he writes, "there are perhaps 350 other families, less defined in development and wealth, but accounting for most of the incomes of $100,000 or more that do not accrue to members of the inner circle."

The last 21 names of the 60 are individuals paying family taxes, starting with Thomas Fortune Ryan at $36,000,000, and including Ogden L. Mills, Julius Rosenwald, Bernard Baruch and S. S. Krege, number 60, at $10,000,000.

BUFFALO HEAD PRESENTED

WINNIPEG—(CP)—One of the finest buffalo heads ever mounted—for which the city of Winnipeg paid $750 in 1912—is being presented to the Manitoba museum. The "Old Boy" glowered down on council meetings from his place about the mayor's chair for 25 years. It blocks the view from the press gallery, though, and is being sent to the museum.

Soldiers Of Northern Spain's Rebel Army Decorated With Medals

Members of the Navara of Racquetiera Brigade, red-capped carlist troops, are pictured in impressive marching order during the parade and investiture by General Franco, at Pampeluna, Spain. They were decorated with crosses and military medals for gallantry during the drive on the Asturians which placed northwestern Spain under control of the rebels.

GIRL'S HEROISM MAY BRING AWARD

EDMONTON, Nov. 12, (CP).—Attention of trustees of the Andrew Carnegie heroes' found has been directed to quick action by 15-year-old Hazel Clark which probably saved the life of a younger sister.

Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, president of the University of Alberta, said he had reported to the trustees regarding the heroism of the girl, who lives with her father and seven brothers and sisters, on a lonely homestead in the Hoadley district, 75 miles southwest of Edmonton.

The father was absent Sept. 6 when a lamp exploded, setting fire to the clothes of May Clark, six. While May, screaming with terror, ran out of the house, Hazel ignored her own burns and threw a blanket over the flaming lamp.

Then while other occupants of the room stood paralyzed with shock, Hazel seized a second blanket, ran out of the house, overtook her terrified younger sister, and wrapped her in the blanket to put out the flames. May recovered.

If the fund trustees are convinced May's life was saved by her sister's fast thinking and valor, Hazel may be rewarded with a considerable cash gift, Dr. Kerr said. But whatever happens, Hazel already is recognized as a heroine by Hoadley district settlers.

MONEY BAGS RING ON SEASON'S PLAY

LONDON, Nov. 1 (CP).—After struggling for many years in the third division of the English Football League, Millwall, a London club, has its coffers full and is making a determined bid for promotion to senior company. The plucky squad's run in the English cup competition last season was the main factor in its rise to wealth.

In their spectacular run in the cup, the Londoners defeated some of the finest teams in England until Sunderland put them out of the running by a 2-1 score in a semi-final at Huddersfield. Their showing won thousands of supporters who continue to follow the club.

Now the directors have recommended a dividend of 22½ per cent. The disbursement covers a period of three years, being at the rate of 7½ per cent per annum, the amount allowed by the English Football Association.

The balance sheet tells the story of Millwall's rise to affluence in a single campaign. Last season the club's profit was £7,453 ($36,892) compared with £871 ($4,311) the previous year. Gross revenue reveals astonishing figures, increasing from £18,631 ($92,223) to £43,735 ($216,448).

OUT FOR COONS GOT FOX

RODNEY, Ont., Nov. 12—(CP)—Eddie Sim, local youth, was coon hunting along Lake Erie's shore. He was surprised when not 20 feet in front of him lay a red fox, sound asleep in the sun. One bullet finished it. It is believed the largest fox ever shot in these parts.

HEBERT PLANNING FAIR VOTING BILL

LONDON, Nov. 12 (CP).—A. P. Herbert, Independent member of parliament for Oxford University, who achieved the greatest success of any private member last session with his matrimonial causes act reforming the divorce laws, hopes to "father" another reform measure.

He is planning to introduce a fair voting bill, which in effect would provide for adoption of the proportional representation system of voting, already in vogue in some parts of Canada.

Proportional representation, employed in university constituency elections, and of which there have been instalments in seven British acts of parliament, put Mr. Herbert into the House of Commons.

Now he wants to extend its use, with certain limitation with relation to country districts.

Tailor Gets 'Thanks' Returning $1,598 But Business Jumps 400 p.c.

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)

HERMAN Rosenzweig, a tailor, returned a wallet that contained $1,598 in cash and got only a "thank you" from the owner in reward.

But today Rosenzweig's mail brought scores of congratulatory messages and a gentle rain of dollar bills — from persons who had read of his honesty. His cleaning and pressing business, too, jumped 400 per cent overnight, he said.

"Put it in the papers so the tailors can see," beamed Rosenzweig.

'Tell them the shop is packed with work. Everybody called me a sucker. Well, who's the sucker now? Honesty—it's still the best policy."

$80,182 SURPLUS VISIONED FOR B.C.

VICTORIA, Nov. 12—(CP). — No taxation increase is expected in the British Columbia provincial budget of Finance Minister Hart, who estimates an $80,182 surplus in the fiscal year beginning next March 31 without provision for unemployment relief expenditures nor complete sinking fund allotments.

In presenting his budget to the Legislature yesterday Mr. Hart said he hoped at least part of direct relief costs could be paid from surplus of current revenues. He estimated $28,065,341 revenue for the next fiscal year and $27,984,158 expenditures, but said his revenue estimate was conservative and the figure might reach $29,000,000.

British Columbia's net debt was $151,162,657 last October 1, an increase of $5,547,739 over the figure at the same time last year. Surplus of assets over liabilities at March 31, 1937, was $18,180,236, ar an increase of $1,485,983 from the same date of 1936.

Mr. Hart estimated record production in mining and agricultural industries in the province this year. Agricultural production, he believed, would reach $53,230,000 compared with $46,569,735 last year and mineral production $70,000,000 compared with $54,000,000.

Timber production he estimated at $79,000,000 compared with $72,000,000.

AN AEROPLANE AT NIGHT THUNDERS A MESSAGE TO CAR OWNERS

PASSENGERS relax in transport planes, secure in the knowledge that modern aircraft sets a notable standard of safety. No unexpected storm lies over the dim horizon and no blanket of fog can force a pilot to guess the plane's position for, in addition to detailed weather reports available to pilots at frequent intervals, other radio safeguards "see" for the pilot through even the thickest night.

Great "airlines" do not take chances with anything so vital as a battery, for they depend upon the battery not only for radio operation, but for position lights and landing lights as well. They have learned through millions of miles of flying that they can place their faith in the dependability of Exide.

Guided by such facts you need never rely on guesswork when buying a new battery for your car. Is there any other battery which so thoroughly merits your confidence?

There is an Exide Battery designed to suit every car. The newest Exide is the Hycap—a battery of high capacity as its name suggests. It is specially designed to easily take care of the demands of your defroster, radio, heater, etc., and still have ample power for starting your car in any kind of weather. Look for the Exide Dealer Sign—symbol of honest service.

A Man Talks Too Much

Rev. J. L. C. Dart, curate, presided at Remembrance Day services at St. George's church in Paris. Some time previous to the service he had caused word to be sent forth that he did not wish the Duke of Windsor to attend. The Duke complied and stayed away, although there is probably no place he would rather have been on that particular day.

Afterward Mr. Dart offered apologies, saying he had been placed in the position of insulting a man who could not defend himself, and for that he blamed the reporters, a movement which is popular enough in many quarters, although the reporters had done nothing more than record what the curate had said about the Duke attending the service. It was an ungracious thing to drag the reporters in at all. They do not create news; they merely record what has taken place.

After offering to apologize for what he had done Mr. Dart proceeded with a labored explanation in which he said his objection was to having a man who had married a divorcee enter the church building. One would think the curate had a heaven-sent monopoly to sit in judgment upon all people on earth. Apparently he is possessed of much discipline, but no tact or human kindness.

The Greatest Moment

Peterborough was like other places on Remembrance Day. There had been a good deal of planning in preparation for a fitting observance of the occasion. There were speeches, good ones too. There were ceremonies and they were fitting and impressive. There was the marching of men, boys and girls, and a great gathering of people together in one place for one purpose.

But the one most impressive thing in the whole day was none of these. But rather the two minutes of silence. Just plain unbroken silence where no person is doing anything; where nothing is being said; where there is no oration or movement. Just silence

There is not another day in the entire years where such a thing takes place. It is something which all the people can help to create without preparation or training. And it remains the most impressive feature of Remembrance Day. Just those two brief moments of silence.

It Won't Help William

William Troeller was 13 years of age and he lived with the rest of the family in rooms in a tenement building. He came home the other day looking for something to eat at meal time and found only two grapes. Food had been scarce for a long time for there were six in the family. William lived in New York.

William Troeller may have thought he could help matters by being out of the way. What may have been running through his young mind we do not know, but he went out and hanged himself.

When news of the tragedy became known the family immediately had food supplied. Plenty of it. We read they sat and ate almost greedily while the body of the 13-year-old lad rested on a bed in the same room with a sheet thrown over it. William's shoes were still on but his feet showed through holes in the bottom of them.

And after the news of the tragedy was published a number of people and organizations decided to do something about it. That would benefit the rest of the family, but the movement came too late to help William. Possibly it is correct enough to say that few would know of the condition of that family living in a tenement house in New York. They would have known nothing about the way in which William had been living and eating until they heard he had hanged himself because he found only two grapes in the house to eat. The world is rather busy attending to many other things. New York is a rich city and United States is a rich nation which launched a new battleship the other day which cost $40,000,000. But apparently the riches of New York or the riches of United States in general never touched William Troeller, the lad of 13 who lived with his folks in a tenement building.

Boys—But Criminals

It takes a fair amount of anything to amaze a police department. But we learn the Toronto police were in that frame of mind when they uncovered the work of a gang of juvenile criminals in Toronto. The members of the gang were under 16 years of age but the work in which they were engaged was well over the line in the criminal class.

A few days ago an elderly man was killed when the wagon on which he was riding was smashed into by a car which had been stolen. The boy who arranged the theft of the car was 14, and he had been "taught" how to steal cars by hooking up ignition wires. In that way he could start them with the ignition turned off and locked. With him on the fatal trip were other members of the gang, all of them bearing gang names which were strongly suggestive of the influence of present-day gangdom heroics.

The police have also been dealing with several other lads, all in their 'teens and one under sixteen. The plan was for one member of the gang to have himself engaged as delivery boy for a grocery store, and then to have himself robbed by other members of the same gang when he had the store's money or goods in his possession. A loaded revolver (stolen) also figured in the alleged hold-up.

In both those cases, in one of which a man was killed, and in the other goods were stolen along with cash to the accompaniment of a loaded weapon, there was not a boy out of his 'teens, and several of them were not yet sixteen. About the same age as the average boy in middle or upper school at the collegiates of the country, and yet they are deep in crime. They are acquainted with crime and robbery; they have been instructed how to steal locked cars and they are engaging the attention of the police to the point where the latter admit they are amazed.

We have a good many organizations today dealing with the case of boys and trying to do what they can to make things better and more wholesome for them, but the young fellows seem to be slipping through the fingers of all such organizations. Criminals in their 'teen age. Yes, many of them. And right here in Ontario. If ever there was a challenge to our whole people, there it is.

Franco Has Plans

General Franco, leader of the rebel forces in Spain, explained to a correspondent through an official spokesman, what he had in mind to do if and when victory was his in Spain. Military experts agree that victory will shortly be his, and after that it becomes of interest to know what he intends to do.

The new regime would ask for a seat in the League of Nations.

The new regime "will never enter any conflict directed against France or Britain and will never contribute in any way to menace the vital interests of France or Britain in the Mediterranean."

The word "never" is used several times in the statement, and it is worth pausing a moment to reflect that "never" represents a long time to come.

Just how acceptable such an announcement may be to Mussolini and Hitler is hard to estimate. Both those leaders have been interesting themselves in the Spanish affair and the reason was that they wanted to jointly have control over Gibraltar. If it were possible they would like to have a gate there which could be opened or closed at pleasure with themselves in possession of the key. With that high hope in mind there is nothing much for them but straw in the latest announcement regarding Franco's plans for the future government of Spain.

Masks For The Babies

Rev. R. Ernest Little, described as a quiet-spoken little man, who was England's religious press representative at the signing of the Paris Peace Pact, and the Disarmament, Naval, Indian and Economic Conferences, is making a trip around the world. He is now in Canada. Seventy-one years of age and with hair snow white, Mr. Little says he is out to do what he can for the cause of world peace. He made this interesting statement when talking to a reporter at Toronto:

"Do you know that 90 per cent. of the people of every nation favor peace. That feeling has got to extend to international conferences through governments."

There has never been a census taken of how many people want peace; the people of the world have never had a chance to raise their voice on that issue, and so it is that the 90 per cent. are voiceless. The small minority do all the talking and get most of the attention. They seem so far to have been able to dominate the situation to the point where the normal desire for peace is well nigh smothered

The war-mad element in the world is no longer content with dragging in the adult male population. There was a picture in the Examiner showing small children in England being instructed in the use of the gas mask which will be provided for each and every child. It was explained that masks now made for children were found to be too small for babies, so experiments were now being made to provide gas masks for infants. That is, for those who are not yet able to walk or talk. It is felt they can no longer be safe if they have to depend on breathing God's pure air. Some enemy may come and poison it and against that day must the babes be protected.

So it is we hope this quiet-voiced little man from England, who in his 71st year is journeying here and there over the world in the interests of peace, may meet with a measure of success which will surprise even the gentleman himself. His voice may be only one in number but he speaks for millions who so far seem to have had no chance whatever to speak so that their desires might be given effect.

A Chance For The Ministers

The Stratford Beacon-Herald publishes a church census based on information given to the city assessor when he was making his rounds. In this piece of statistical review the people are all listed according to the religious persuasion which they themselves announced. When people had no church then it was so stated, and when boarders or roomers were absent when the assessor called then they were placed together in a bin called "Miscellaneous." In that assortment there were 416, and the "No Church" people numbered 24. But with these exceptions the 17,384 people in Stratford all gave to the assessor the information that they either belonged to some church, or had some religious preference.

Stratford is much the same as any other city; it has its full share of churches, and it has churches where there are empty seats, and it has churches where the number of folk who attend an evening service is small indeed.

It does look as though in the making of this census, and with the information being supplied by the people themselves, they have placed themselves on the well-known "spot." Thy are now at the mercy of the ministers of the city should they care to swoop down on them. They can readily enough check up the figures of the assessor; they can go and rap on the door of the family long absent or entirely absent and make known the fact that such family has caused it to be officially recorded that it had a religious preference. The people themselves have gone on record so the way is wide open for the pastors of the city to follow through and see to it that those who have openly stated their preferences shall henceforth come forth and make good on their own announcements.

Nor can it be well claimed that the Stratford folk are unable to find a church or denomination of which they approve, for in the list of religious beliefs there are enumerated no less than 26 varieties.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The second book printed in Canada has been discovered. The first one will probably be located sooner or later when some borrower returns it.

Seventeen more executions are reported from Russia where persons are shot almost as readily as public enemies are in United States by the G-Men.

Another resolution for a new flag for Canada will be introduced at the coming session of parliament. At least the motion will give some of the boys a chance to wave the flag.

The Burgomaster of Mons has not forgotten the part the Canadian army played in the World War. In that respect he has a better memory than many Canadians display.

Verulam council has had to pay out more than $200 for sheep killed by dogs. Even dog-lovers will have to admit that pets of that kind are an expensive luxury.

The announcement that Jackie Coogan is to be married will make a lot of folk who remember him as the waif in "The Kid" with Charlie Chaplin feel rather ancient.

The Sioux Indians have failed in a court case to recover $18,000,000 from the United States government. If the braves could not do their collecting in the covered wagon days they will have little chance now.

Major Power's assertion that every Canadian war veteran must be re-established would be the more gratifying if it were not for the feeling that nineteen years after the end of the war there should be no occasion to make such a statement.

William Carson, wealthy lumber man of San Francisco, died recently, and in his will he left his money to a number of people he liked. He picked them as he went along, including those who had been kind to him and those who did even menial tasks with a smile. And that was probably better than leaving it for relatives to fight about.

LOST

¶ I lived beside my Neighbor Joe, and saw him daily come and go, we often stopped to chat; we neighbored like good people should, and helped each other as we could, we borrowed this or that.

¶ At times I'd go and call on Joe, to see if I could use his hoe, to get my garden made; and Joe would some times come my way, when he was working there by day, and he would get my spade.

¶ And when in summer time 'twas hot, and as to work we'd rather not, and that fair suited me; then Joe and I would argue some, and get from out the blazing sun, beneath my basswood tree.

¶ Joe hit me for a loan one day, some urgent things he had to pay, I gave him what he'd need; I wouldn't take a note from him, because his roll was somewhat thin, 'twas just a neighbor's deed.

¶ Since then I don't see much of Joe, not catch him when he'll come or go, he's passed from out my sight; if I do see him down the block, he quickly doubles on his walk, he don't come in at night.

¶ I didn't think that I was rash, when I lent Joe some ready cash, 'twas nothing to offend; if I have lost I do not mind, but then it's tough to also find—that I have lost a friend.

IT IS EVIDENT that the big-gunned, heavily armored dreadnaught, seemingly doomed for the discard in the postwar years of enthusiasm for air attacks, is coming back the world over. The battleships already begun or authorized include four for the United States, five for Great Britain, nine for France, two for Italy and nine for Germany. At the same time unnofficial sources say that Japan has laid down two keels this year and plans two more and the Soviet Union plans at least three.

The aging process—completed in less than ten weeks—is perodically checked by weighing the hams as they shrink in the even heat.

Medical Science Triumphs.

In setting broken hips in older people it is necessary for surgeons to work with fast deft hands for otherwise the patient may die of surgical shock. The best hip-setting technicians usually require 40 minutes for the operation. However at the surgeons' meeting in Chicago recently apparatus was demonstrated that halves this time. A new pendulum device, strapped to the knee of the patient indicates when broken bones are aligned. This is checked with an X-ray picture and then the surgeon uses a rustless steel nail to fasten the severed bone end together. Patients can move their hips in four hours, sit up in a wheel chair in two days, walk on crutches in three weeks and go back to work in five. Formerly they were bed-ridden from six months to a year.

We Have Not Found Nature's Secret

World Needs Labor-Creating Inventions; Can We Learn the Secret of Green in the Grass?

THE MOST important research problem in the world, according to Charles F. Kettering, world famous inventor and research director of General Motors, is to find the answer to the question of why grass is green, which he calls the fundamental problem of man's existence on earth.

"It seems so simple that people think I am joking," Kettering says in an article in The American Magazine, "but I am perfectly serious. It is the green in grass, in leaves and in plants which has brought to us, from the sun, all the energy we have. Some little engine in the green of grass and leaf has the gift, unknown to man, of capturing energy from the sun's rays, storing that energy, building with it.

"Thence came, in ages past, all the heat and power now stored in coal, in wood, in oil, in natural gas. Solve that secret and we shall know how to take power from the sun. If we knew that secret we could build engines to transform enough radiation from the sun into heat or chemical energy or electricity to run our machinery. Then the conservation of our natural resources would not be so important as it is now."

Kettering appeals to business to lay more emphasis on labor-creating inventions, which he says have lagged behind labor-saving inventions.

"It has been said that depressions and unemployment are caused by too much science and invention," he states. "Some people can prove it to you. Others can prove that inventions create more jobs than they destroy. Actually, it is rather simple if you remember that there are two kinds of inventions: labor-saving inventions and labor-creating inventions. Probably a quarter of the workers in America today are employed in industries which were mere infants, or did not exist at all, in 1900. The automobile industry alone gives direct and indirect employment to nearly 5,000,000 workers. The American chemical industry has grown ten-fold in that time. And so with the motion picture, the electrical, the radio, the telephone and telegraph, the airplane industries and all their auxiliaries.

"Right there you have 10,000,000 or so jobs which would not exist had they not been created by research an invention."

Discussing unemployment, Kettering says the trouble is that technological development is behind the procession rather than ahead of it and hasn't created enough new industries in recent years.

"Any bookkeeper can understand a labor-saving invention," he writes, "but only a man of imagination can understand a labor-creating invention. And not all men who hold the purse-strings have the right kind of imagination. That's one reason labor-creating has not gone farther ahead of labor-saving. That's one reason for the depression.

"Nobody knows how much the depression cost us. Billions of dollars we are told. And yet a billion dollars a year would keep five or six hundred research laboratories running full time, laboratories turning out new ideas which would develop into new industries to stave off depression. I do not say that there would have been no depression had this amount of money been spent on research, for the success of the whole plan is predicted on there being enough trained men to fill these laboratories and enough men of the proper type to manage them.

"There must be someone to co-ordinate the work, to pick the problems that we are going to tackle. Of course we haven't yet enough trained men to do this, but if we had them and this plan was carried on for a few years, there would be 'Help Wanted' signs on every door of every factory in the United States.

"I do think, however, that more businessmen are waking up to the fact that a well-run research division is the best insurance policy a company can take out."

Our Nurses Now Barred From the States

Rate of Pay Much Higher Across the Line; Must Now Make the Best of Its Own Land

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

CANADIAN nurses with an objective of working at their profession in the United States will be disappointed because of the special regulation issued by the immigration department of that country to prevent Canadian nurses from crossing the border to accept work.

The new regulation has been put into force because of complaints from nurses' organizations in the United States protesting that the ingress of Canadian nurses was unfair to the home talent.

In recent years, there has been considerable demand for Canadian nurses in the United States. Apparently American hospitals found that Canadian nurses were capably trained and were more efficient in their work than the average U. S. nurse. The appeal to the Canadian girls was that they received higher pay in the United States. The Canadian regulation pay for private patients is said to be $4 a day while the rate for similar work in the United States is $7.

The matter of objection to Canadian nurses being given preference in the States has been under consideration for a year and it is difficult to see how the immigration department could avoid a ban, especially if there are sufficient nurses in the United States to do the work. There is some uncertainty on this point, it being held that a number of hospitals find it difficult to get the kind of nursing help they require. It is the case that American hospital authorities have been writing to Canada to get graduate nurses. Once, however, that nursing associations began complaining that 'Canadian nurses were getting the preference, it was obvious that the government would have to act.

The situation is unfortunate for those Canadian nurses who had opportunity to obtain work in the United States. For a number of years, nursing work in Canada was limited because of depression and there was an excess of graduates. Conditions are better now for a number of the smaller hospitals abandoned their training schools and the number of graduates was greatly reduced.

The ban is just one of those affairs in the economic situation that has come to pass and nothing can be done about it. The Canadian nurses will have to be content with the opportunities for careers which their native land offers.

The Man Who Is In a Tight Place

Not Able to Contribute to Charities Now; Too Old to Make Start and Has No Money

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,—A thought struck me when one of the collectors of the Federated Charities approached a friend of mine regarding a subscription. This friend is not in the position to-day to give anything and so informed the collector. The young fellow looked at his list again and appeared to be very surprised, but made no comment, was in no way disrespectful, and went on his way.

For many years this friend held a position and was able to bring his family up, at the same time donate a fair amount to different charities. Today he is in a very different position and finds himself without any means of earning a mere pittance. He is told that he is now too old and would not be able to adapt himself to new conditions. Can you imagine the feelings of a man who at one time was in a position to give and now is unable to buy himself the bare necessities of life? Can you visualize his state of mind when he goes home day after day with the same question being answered in a like manner? His wife cannot understand it, he was always considered a good citizen and belonged to his church, without making any outward show. His home is still intact, but the situation cannot last much longer and has now reached the breaking point. The question is what is a man to do? He cannot apply for relief and is not eligible for the old age pension, his family is not in a position to help him. He has never had any charge accounts and always paid cash for all his needs. He does not care to borrow from his friends as he does not know when he will be able to repay any loans he might make. There must be many in the same circumstances who are still holding their chins up, hoping against hope that someone or something may turn up and relieve them of their mental agony. Anyone who has not been through this state of mind cannot understand the feelings of the unfortunate individuals who have this condition to face. Perhaps some of your readers can suggest a way out.

MAHATMA'S DREAM.

(New York Times)

THE CROWNING dream of Mr. Gandhi's life is to make India dry, and he believes it can be done by 1940. The Hindus themselves do not drink much liquor and the Koran of course, forbids intoxicants to the Musculman. Consequently, Gandhi thinks prohibition can be made so effective in India that it will be an example to the rest of the world, and especially the United States. He hopes it will induce America to return to the jolly old days of pre-repeal.

The flaw in the argument is that we never had prohibition in the United States. We just passed a law saying that we had. Actually we merely paid more for worse liquor and subsidized the underworld to get it for us, causing various unpleasant complications. Perhaps the Mahatma could arrange to visit Al Capone on Alcatraz Island and find out how the system really worked here. Or it might be even simpler to convert us all into Hindus or Mohammedans.

THE TELEPHONE.

(St. Catharines Standard)

STATISTICS ARE dry enough but there are some amazing figures about the telephone in the National Geographic Magazine.

New York has more telephones than all France with its 42,000,000 people. Chicago has more than all South America and Los Angeles more than all Africa.

There are 800 people telephone from the Atlantic to the Pacific every day, connected up at New York. One can pick up a telephone transmitter and get connection with anyone of 32,500,000. And that number is 93 per cent. of all the telephones of the world. There are seventy countries interlocked by wire or radio with the telephone system of Canada. Only Soviet Russia and New Zealand, also Greenland, are as yet unconnected with the world telephone network.

The United States records 85,000,000 phone conversations a day. The statistics do not give the number of listeners in on the rural party lines. Shades of Alexander Graham Bell!

TRAVELLED VEGETABLES.

(Vancouver Province)

WRITING in the Spectator, Sir William Beach Thomas notes a curious circumstance connected with a "harmless hamlet" with which he is familiar. The hamlet lies on the edge of Bedfordshire.

When the people of the hamlet want vegetables, they go to the greengrocer... The greengrocer gets his supplies from a semi-wholesaler who lives eight miles away and circulates his lorry twice a week. The wholesaler, in turn, gets his vegetables from Covent Garden, and Covent Garden gets a good many of them from Bedfordshire, just beyond the doorstep of the "harmless, hamlet."

400,000 Canadian Bayonets United Canada Minister Says

Finest Remembrance Day Service Seen In 19 Years, Hon. Mackenzie Declares

Once again lights were dimmed and Peterborough ex-service men stood in respectful silence before a glowing red cross as the Canadian Legion held its annual Remembrance Day banquet at the Legion Hall last night. Two hundred enjoyed a social evening which was distinguished by an appearance of Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence.

Speaking briefly, the minister referred to three generations in his remarks—those fallen yet present in spirit, the veterans who came back and the new generation of Canadians. "I want to congratulate Peterborough on presenting the finest remembrance service I have seen in the 19 years since the war," he said.

Behind the Legion

The speaker told the men the Government is solidly behind the work of the Legion and ever has the interests of returned men at heart. "It is the policy of the present Government, and I hope every other Government that men affected by overseas service shall have every consideration," he declared. He commended the Legion branch for its annual program of remembrance, urging that the memory of those who died for their country be kept always fresh. Reminding his audience that he himself saw active service during the Great War, he regaled the men with stories of service which brought back many memories.

"The watchword of the Legion should be the watchword of the world—carry on, he continued.

"It was not Confederation that united Canada; it was 400,000 Canadian bayonets over there and the memories of 60,000 Canadian dead. Speaking for the Government we will not stop until all who have suffered have been taken care of."

He thanked employers in the city for allowing their men to attend "the sacred shrine" during the services.

Mayor Macdonald

Mayor Macdonald praised the work of the Legion, saying the Legion is an organization which Canada can number among its most useful. He declared: "These are the men who made this city and saved it for us and I want to assure them tha. I'll stand behind their every need."

The Mayor said men needing pensions should not have to go to the Government for them, that the Government should seek out such men."

Fallen Comrades

Rev. Capt. G. S. Easton and Rev. Capt. P. J. Kelly spoke to the men with entertaining stories and appropriate references to the remembrance occasion. Dan Douglas toasted the "Fallen Comrades."

HAVELOCK HONORS GREAT WAR DEAD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Nov. 12—The citizens of Havelock turned out in a body yesterday forenoon to participate in the Remembrance Day services Thursday having been declared a public holiday by the village reeve and council.

The parade assembled at the C.P.R. station square at 10.15 a.m. and proceeded to the Memorial gates in the following order: Havelock Kiltie Band, Albion Brass Band, veterans of the Great War, Village Council, school boards, organizations and societies, school children and general public.

The service at the Memorial gates began with prayer, by Rev. D. K. Perrie. Then the placing of the wreaths by the different bodies was performed by the following representatives: Province of Ontario, Reeve Ernest Seney; Imperial Veterans, John Evans; Canadian Veterans, H. T. Mathison, L.O.B.A., Mrs. W. Varty; Mission Hall, Mrs. S. Southward; Belmont Women's Institute Mrs. C. Kennedy; Havelock Women's Institute, Mrs. R. McCutcheon; Eastern Star, Mrs. M. Sexsmith, I.O.D.E. Mrs. S. McGill; Dorcas Rebekas, Mrs. A. Russell; I.O.O.F., D. A. Forde; L.O.L. Robert Crawford; Albion Club, H. Ferguson; Havelock Schools P. Yuill.

Two minutes' silence was observed and the "Last Post", sounded by Bugler Grey Kemp. The service closed with prayer by Rev. S. A. Kemp.

The procession then reformed to march to the Town Hall, where addresses and remainder of the service were heard. The chairman's address was followed by prayer by Rev. S. A. Kemp, and then the singing of a hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers." A very inspiring address was delivered by Major Bygott of the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion, of which the Havelock veterans form a part. The service closedewith the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," prayer by Rev. D. K. Perrie, and God Save the King.

Chairman T. P. Lancaster, speaking on behalf of the local Great War Veterans, expressed their appreciation to Major Bygott, for his assistance and also to the village council for the use of the Town Hall.

Asking for the two-minute silence in tribute to the fallen, he recited a verse of his own composition:

"In this silence of two minutes,
midst the spirits of the past,
Myriad pictures fixed indelibly on our minds and on our hearts.
Let us ponder on the future when that silence means us all
And the misery and sadness of the

HASTINGS PEOPLE RECALL WAR DEAD AT FINE SERVICE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Nov. 12—"The sufferings from war bring to us the facts of its pain, folly and losses. We are recalled, to learn through penitence, for our wrong, the sacredness of human life, that man was born for a divine purpose, which war destroys," stated Rev. W. Stocks of the Anglican Church in his address before the Remembrance Day gathering at the Town Hall Thursday morning, a few minutes prior to the two-minute silence.

"The difficulties which make for strife are many," continued the speaker. "Social, economic, industrial, the spirit of nationalism and the idea of the totalitarian state as well as the evasive secularism secretly destroying the sanctities of life. We must face our difficulties with fair-mindedness and patience and work for a fuller understanding of life's highest calling.

"They shall not grow old as we that
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn;
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them."

Rev. F. W. Newell of the United Church was in charge of the program, which began at 10.30 a.m., opening with "O Canada." Three hymns were sung, interspersed with prayer. Following the benediction, offered by Rev. Newell, the gathering moved to the Cenotaph, where three beautiful wreaths were placed in loving memory of Hastings fallen soldiers.

A large wreath, donated by the Province of Ontario, was placed on the Cenotaph by Harry Dodd, member of the village council, in the absence of Reeve Fairman.

To conclude a very impressive service, Rev. Newell read the names of those killed overseas as they appeared inscribed on the Cenotaph.

Lakefield Citizens Remember Sons Who Gave Their Lives

Impressive Remembrance Day Service Held With Rev. G. S. Easton Guest Speaker

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 12.—"Today the outlook for world peace is better than ever before, I believe," said Capt. the Rev. G. S. Easton, when he addressed a large audience of Lakefield citizens who gathered in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield to pay tribute on Remembrance Day to those who died in the Great War.

"The men who gave their lives in the Great War, fought with the idea that they were struggling in a war to end war, that by sacrificing themselves they were making it impossible for the war menace to threaten their sons and daughters. They died to usher into the world a new day of peace. But the Prince of Peace cannot ride into the world over a highway strewn with suspicions, fear, jealousy and greed. If we are to be true to the memory of these men who gave up their lives, let us see to it that we prepare the way for peace. Let us take suspicion, fear, jealousy and greed out of our lives and replace them with sympathy, service, kindness, good-will and friendship to our fellowmen. Over such a highway the Prince of Peace will come."

The memorial service, which was presided over by Mr. J. R. Hill, a member of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, in the absence of the president, Mr. Jas. Earnshaw, commenced shortly before 11 o'clock.

Mr. Hill, in the opening address, said: "We are here, not to pay tribute to those who survive, but to those who laid down their lives." He called upon the following persons to take their places on the platform and to assist in the service: Rev. Mr. Creighton, Rev. Mr. Kelly, Rev. Mr. Walker, Rev. Mr. Boyle, Rev. Father Garvey and Rev. Father Malane, who represented the local churches; Dr. J. R. Fraser, Mr. W. H. Casement, Hon. President of the local branch of the Legion; Reeve C. S. Tanner; Chairmen J. W. Ridpath and F. L. Erskine of the Public and High school boards Col. Johnson who commanded Peterborough's own regiment in the Great War; Comrade A. A. Clark, fire chief; Comrades Eric Grier and Charles Stenner and His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley.

Two-Minute Silence

The bugler, Bandsman T. Jewell played "The Last Post" as the town clock struck 11, at which signal the audience rose to their feet to pay their tribute of two minutes' silence to the Lakefield men who made the supreme sacrifice in the Great War. At the conclusion of the two minutes, the bugler sounded the Reveille and Comrades Chas. Stenner and Eric Grier read the list of the 42 comrades from Lakefield who gave their lives.

Rev. G. F. Kelly then led in the singing of the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past." Mrs. Kennedy, widow of the late Dr. Michael Kennedy who obtained the rank of captain in the Great War, acted as accompanist. Rev. Creighton led in prayer.

Rev. G. S. Easton.

Mr. Hill then introduced Capt. the Rev. G. S. Easton, pastor of Trinity United Church, Peterborough, who entered the Great War in the role of a buck private.

Rev. Easton said in part: "We are to-day commemorating the nineteenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice. The pathways of the nations have been very unstable since the war clouds rolled away from the sky in 1918. When, on the eleventh day of the eleventh month, at the eleventh hour, the war clouds rolled away, we thought we were on the way to the establishment of a better world. This, being Remembrance Day, should set us thinking. Memory helps us to go back again and walk over roadways previously trodden by us. Someone has said: "God gave us memory that we might have roses in December." But when we look back, to those days of 1914-18 we may think that there were few roses. In those days previous to August 4, 1914, there was in the British Isles a feeling of anxiety and tension and strain—a feeling of growing hostility toward Germany. Few people retiring on the eve of August 4, however, expected to awake to find the roads, railroads and all lines of communication taken over by the government; or to see khaki-clad troops being rushed to the sea coast to embark for France.

The Call of Duty

The call which came across the Atlantic to Canada was the clear, clarion call of duty, and the names of Sommes, Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele, etc., will always recall the undying deeds of Canadian soldiers.

Between 400,000 and 500,000 Canadian soldiers crossed the Atlantic and offered themselves in the cause of freedom and justice. Of these, over sixty thousand returned not back again. They rest on foreign soil and rows of white crosses mark their graves. Of those who returned sixty thousand have gone to premature graves. The cross, the crutch, the staff, the wound-band on the sleeve are all symbols of those men who gave their lives in a fight between hypocrisy and democracy, between selfishness and justice. We remember, too, the mothers and wives and sisters and sweethearts of these men: "I believe," Dr. Easton continued, "that these are the people who made the greatest sacrifice. While visiting in Paris, I saw a memorial, before which every man bared his head. It represented a great tomb on top of which were four soldiers of the allied armies in their characteristic uniforms. Before the mouth of the tomb was a black-robed figure, a figure depicting the "Motherhood of the World" bowing broken-hearted before the tomb of her beloved dead. It is the mothers who make the greatest sacrifices—the mothers and wives and sweethearts who wait and pray only to have their hopes shattered and their loved ones torn from them."

Why Do Men Fight?

Since war is so full of horrors, why do men fight? In the Great War men fought—and died—because they believed they were fighting in a war to end war. They fought to usher in a new day of peace. That is the torch flung to us by those who made the supreme sacrifice. Have we been faithful to these men who gave their lives and who believed that thereby they were making it impossible for their sons and daughters to face such a menace?

"We are proud of Great Britain's traditions, of her attempts to establish a group of nations bound by honor, justice, and peace, even though such attempts are futile when nations are governed by such men as Hitler and Mussolini. In spite of everything, though, I believe that to-day the outlook for world peace is better than it has ever been before.

"Disarmament is a policy which may lead to national suicide, and so Great Britain has abandoned it, but despite the adoption of a rearmament policy, outraged public sentiment is rising up against the outrages of war, as seen in China and in Spain to-day. If we seek peace we must be not only peace-wishers, peace-thinkers, and peace-talkers, but also peace-makers.

"Does it ever occur to you that before highways are ready for traffic there is much preparatory work to be done? The Prince of Peace cannot come into the world over highways strewn with obstacles such as suspicion, fear, jealousy, and greed. We must go into lives and uproot these obstacles. Why should churches talk of world peace when there is not peace among them? If we would be true to the memory of the men who gave up their lives, let us see to it that we prepare the way to world peace. Take these things—jealousy, fear, suspicion, and greed—out of our lives and replace them with sympathy, service, kindness, goodwill and friendship to our fellow-men. The Prince of Peace will come over that kind of highway," Rev. Mr. Easton concluded.

Speaker Thanked.

Mr. Hill thanked Rev. Mr. Easton for his splendid address and called on Colonel T. J. Johnston, who was commander of Peterborough's own battalion overseas. Col. Johnston spoke briefly, stating he was proud to be connected with the British Empire and with her traditions. No one wants peace so much as the returned man, he claimed. We must start in the homes and try to reach a state where the masses will be more contented than they are at present, he concluded.

Chairman Hill then paid tribute to W. H. Casement, honorary president of the Legion, who, he said, is a link with the past. Mr. Casement watched the men march out of Lakefield in '66, and when the Great War broke out he saw the Lakefield lads march off to war, and again in 1918 saw their return.

Rev. W. B. Walker led the audience in the singing of the hymn, "Abide with Me," and after the National Anthem the audience adjourned to Memorial Park where wreaths were placed on the Cenotaph in memory of Lakefield's dead.

Wreaths Are Placed.

W. H. Casement presented the Ontario Government's wreath to Mrs. Andrew Wilson of Young's Point, who lost a son in the War. Mrs. Wilson laid the wreath on the Cenotaph. Mrs. Charles Stenner presented the wreath donated by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the local branch; Miss Margaret Sanderson for the Women's Institute; Dr. G. E. Renwick for the Masons; F. J. Burgess on behalf of the Oddfellows; Mr. Ridpath for the School Board; T. Jewell for the Lakefield Band; H. T. Hill on behalf of the Village; Mr. McGowan for the Legion; Milford Hampton for the Firemen; and Mrs. H. Stuart, all paid tribute by laying wreaths on the Cenotaph.

Afternoon Branch St. John's W.A. Meets.

The afternoon branch of St. John's Women's Auxiliary held the monthly meeting in the Parish Hall. In the absence of the rector, the Rev. Canon Robertson, who was out of town, the devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. G. S. Cameron.

This being nomination meeting, Mrs. F. D. Craig and Mrs. Massey-Cooke were appointed to act as scrutineers.

A portion of the year's study book, "The Way of the Witnesses," was given by Mrs. Cridland, and much enjoyed.

During the business period an excellent report was heard from the Teen-age Girls' branch. It was announced that the Christmas bales are to be sent to Kinmount and Hener Crak, Alberta, this year. It was arranged that a tea is to be held on the afternoon of December 1 at the home of Mrs. Sootheran for members and prospective members. Mrs. Dorrington was welcomed as a new refreshment convenor.

At the close of the meeting, tea was served by the refreshment committee.

Peterborough To Have Book Fair.

Thousands of book-lovers in Toronto have this week been attending the Second National Book Fair of the Association of Canadian Bookmen, being held in the King Edward Hotel from November 4-13. The book fairs have been and are scheduled to be held in a number of other cities and towns in the province and Dominion, and through the efforts of the Lyceum Women's Art Association the A.C.B. will bring the Book Fair to Peterborough for February 24 and 25.

It will be remembered that the Association of Canadian Bookman (A.C.B.) whose president is Dr. Felham Edgar, is the society inaugurated in February, 1936, by His Excellency, Lord Tweedsmuir, and a group of distinguished men of letters in Canada, to increase the knowledge of good literature in this country and to provide individual readers and reading groups with reliable reading courses and frequent information about the best books available on any subject. On the Executive Committee are leading authors, critics, educators, librarians, booksellers and publishers.

The A.C.B. is entirely non-profit and non-commercial. In addition to information supplied, members are presented annually with some important current book, which they are entitled to choose from a list of selected titles.

The A.C.B. is to provide several distinguished speakers as part of the varied and interesting program for Peterborough's Book Fair.

The A.C.B. exists to spread the reading habit.

W.M.S. of George Street Entertain Members of W. A.

Approximately one hundred and ninety ladies were present at a most successful meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United Church, when members of the Women's Association were entertained as guests.

A worshipful atmosphere was obtained by the pianist, Mrs. Purdy, who played sacred music softly while the company was assembling.

The guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Morton, who concluded with a very lovely poem entitled "God's Love," composed by a member of the W.M.S., Mrs. McGee. Many features made the meeting one of unusual interest. The devotional and study period was in charge of Group C, with the leader, Mrs. Parnell, in the chair. The theme for the day being "A Worshipping Church," the hymn "O Worship the King" was sung, the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Douglas Carlisle, and Mrs. McFarlane led in prayer.

Mrs. M. C. Parr was in charge of the study book period and was ably assisted by Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Purdy. The hardships encountered by the missionaries in the early days were vividly pictured by the ladies.

The story of the life of Dr. Jessie Dowe was told in a most interesting way by Miss Might. Dr. Dowe, the first woman to engage in medical work in Honan, China, was a "beloved physician" and an unwearying evangelist.

An interesting playette, given by a number of "Baby Band" mothers, was much enjoyed, during the afternoon, and Mrs. Arthur B. Burrows was heard in a delightful solo, "God will take care of you."

The Rev. A. J. Thomas, a former pastor, who last week conducted a mission at George Street Church, was a welcome guest, arriving near the close of the meeting. Encouraging words regarding the greatness of the W.M.S. work, were spoken by Mr. Thomas, who brought greetings from Mrs. Thomas as well as himself.

The benediction was pronounced by the pastor, the Rev. M. C. Parr. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Interesting Meeting Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary.

A particularly well attended meeting of the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. H. V. Dobson of Engleburn Avenue.

Continuing the study of the place of the church in the life of the nation, the theme of the evening was, "A Worshipping Church". The questions in a biblical questionnnaire were asked by Miss Myrtle Sargent, the passages containing the answers being read by Miss Helen Bannister.

A most interesting paper on the beginnings of the Missionary work in the New Hebrides, Angola and China, dealing particularly with the work of Dr. Currie in Angola and Dr. Jean Dowe in Honan, was given by Mrs. H. Lord. Some very interesting personal reminiscences were given by Mrs. D. G. Bell of Stayner, who had known Dr. Dowe before she went to China, and which made the work of the Missionary doctor even more real to the Auxiliary.

Miss Mary Wharry delighted her audience with violin solos, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" and as an encore, "Londonderry Air." Miss Marguerite Rome played the piano accompaniments.

Encouraging reports of the cooking school held last week in Reid Street Hall, were given, and it was decided to make the school an annual feature. A nominating committee composed of the Misses E. Rehill, I. Giles and H. Bannister was appointed.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Tea was poured by Mrs. F. C. Neal. Arrangements for the evening were in charge of Mesdames H. V. Dobson, H. Lord, B. V. Moore, E. Robinson and Miss Helen Henry.

A "swingie" dress with tricky pockets, Peter Pan collar and sleeves that 'puff up" so cunningly. What could be more spic and span or more appropriate for romping youngsters? It has matching panties to complete it. They are the cut up at the side type so neat and comfortable.

This one piece pantie outfit is quite flat for easy ironing. Whether you make it of plain or plaid cotton, white pique is a nice trim. OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

IT IS easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own; but the great man is he, who, in the midst of a crowd, keeps with perfect sweetness, the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Dear Friends:

In other words, many of us can be good while there is no temptation to be otherwise, but we daren't trust ourselves where we are libale to be tempted in case we fall.

And others can agree with certain opinions if a number think along the same lines, but are no good in making decisions when left to themselves.

But, if you can live a certain way in solitude, and have the guts to stick to it when you are out in the world, then you have true manhood or womanhood. So many haven't the courage to say no or yes and stay with it if others don't agree with them.

It isn't always easy, sometimes it is really hard, but it builds a core within you, a dependibility and sincerity to be able in the midst of the crowd to stick to your guns and to the mode of living that gives you most satisfaction.

"No man can serve two masters" does not only apply to money. It can also mean that we cannot be true to ourselves and still do everything people ask us to do. If, for instance, you are with a crowd who are going to do something which you feel would lower you in your own eyes, then let yourself be persuaded to do it, you are not keeping the 'independence of solitude."

And the same thing applies if you are strong where another may be weak, then use your strength against him, for you only show that your strength is just bullying, and only cowards are bullies.

It is very easy to agree with everyone, is it hard at times to stay with your principles, but it makes your backbone straighter, and gives you an inner peace and sweetness which nothing else can do.

Sometimes you hear a person say, "I'm going to do this or I'll never do that," but when they come up against other people's opinions they cannot stick to it. They straddle the fence and tell themselves they will do it another time.

I find it better not to make too many promises either to myself or to anyone else, but to wait until I must make a decision and then stick to it.

We all have such good intentions but it is easy to knock them into a cocked hat when we try to use them. You might be weak in one thing where I am strong, but you also could be strong where I am weak. It works both ways.

Yet, if we believe in ourselves enough not to let ourselves down, if we are faithful to the ideals we cherish in solitude even when others disapprove and think we are a stick in the mud ,then we have something which no one can take from us.

Most of our weakness comes from within, not from without. If you contract a bad habit, why shove the blame on someone else. You don't have to do something because someone else does it, and you can always change your company.

Adam shoved the blame on Eve, and there have been a lot of Adam's ever since. It's your hand that lifts the cigarette to your mouth, or anything else for that matter. Think it over.

Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

Good Manners a Key to Added Popularity

Sophisticated young people, Tom and Emily. Off for a day in the country. They feel easy in each other's company because each knows the other will do the correct thing.

Tom didn't sit hooting his horn till Emily came out and climbed into the car unassisted. He rang the doorbell, greeted her father—young men say "sir" to elders—helped Emily into the car.

Emily doesn't enter the country club clinging to his arm. In the dining-room she follows the head waiter while Tom follows her.

If friends stop at their table, Tom rises. Emily acknowledges introductions with, "How do you do?" not, "Pleased to meet you."

Raise Your Blood-Count

And You'll Feel "In the Pink"

NORMAL BLOOD has a count of 4,500,000 red corpuscles. If your blood count is below this you just can't feel well, because only these tiny cells can carry the necessary nourishment from your food and the energizing oxygen from your lungs to every part of your body. With a low blood count you're bound to be always tired, easily upset, nervous and depressed, without appetite, sleepless, under weight. Everything is drudgery.

You needn't go on in this way! Take Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Originated by a Canadian physician, this tested tonic quickly raises your blood count. You get new energy and vigour, your depression and nervousness disappear, your appetite and normal weight return, you sleep soundly, and your life is worth living again. If this is not your experience your money will be refunded. 50c at all druggists.

Style Whimsies

For black afternoon or evening dresses white flower hats are very smart. The flower hats are usually of velvet. Or black hat with white flower trim are chic.

A variation in the slim coats is a Parisian lamb that fastens with a slide at the side.

The new metallic labes and laces embroidered with glittering sequins make gorgeous evening gowns.

You can vary your fall costume by wearing colored shoes. For example, a deep wine tint of malaga worn with black or navy puts new life into an otherwise dull costume.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Saturday, November 13

This is a day in which the secret, subtle and probably undercurrent influences dominate the situation, according to the mutual and lunar aspects. With vigilance and wariness as to this behind-the-scenes "wire-pulling", great progress may be made in political or diplomatic circles in connection with rings mergers, secret orders or other undercover organizations. Promotion, favors and power may come through intrigue, collusion or secret agreements, but such subtleties work both ways, calling for discretion. Beware of snares.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which intrigue, secrecy, craft, collusion or other undercover factors hold sway. Discreetly managed, this combination may bring advancement, favors prestige and position, but in all beware of entangling alliances that might rebound.

A child born on this day may have a nature springing from subtle and mysterious endowments. In one way it may be spiritual and mystical, in another given to stratagem, conspiracy, craft. It may attain high position, and attract others by a seductive, intriguing and winsome personality.

A Heffernan Weds a Heffernan

The bride was formerly Miss Elizabeth Heffernan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Heffernan of Douro, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Heffernan of Otonabee. Attendants at the wedding were Miss Teresa Heffernan, and Thomas Heffernan, brother of the groom. —Cripps Studio Photo

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WAIT FOR AN HONOR.

IF YOU SEE that the declarer has the K or Q in the dummy and may possibly hold its mate in his closed hand, be careful about the way you use your A. If you play it on a small card, you will then set up two tricks for him in the suit, whereas waiting for an honor can limit him to perhaps one trick and may thereby beat his contract.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

One pair in a duplicate tournament got real ambitious with the North-South cards of this deal and landed in a contract of 6-Spades, whereas at all other tables the players were content to play for 4-Spades.

Fortunately for the daring pair, the West player made a bad slip on the second play and thereby enabled them to make an impossible contract. West choose as his opening lead the spade 10, three different suits having been bid by the opponents. South won the first lead with the spade J and realized at once that he needed those three remaining trumps in dummy. He therefore led to the second trick the diamond 5. When West played the 4, South had his contract, for the diamond K took the next return, the heart A provided a discard for a diamond, and the diamond Q enabled South to toss away a losing club in the dummy. Three clubs were ruffed in the dummy and the contract made.

Had West held off on the first diamond lead, the diamond Q would never have provided a discard of the club in dummy and a trick would have been lost on that suit.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

What play enables South to make 7-No Trumps after the lead of the heart 3?

WAGE WAR ON TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

The General Federation of Women's clubs is waging a nation-wide campaign to help cut the toll of traffic accidents. Mrs. Edward Hammett, Sheboygan, Wis., chairman of the federation's committee on public safety, recently presented figures showing that 36,000 persons were killed in traffic accidents in 1936; 1,000,000 more were injured; and there was a total cash loss of $1,250,000. Many of these accidents she pointed out, could have been avoided.

WEDDINGS

McCullough-Dawson.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at Baltimore on Wednesday, November 10, when Margaret Ruth, younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Dawson of Bailleboro, became the bride of Murray Oscar elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCullough of Cobourg.

The bride was charming in a gown of black velvet, with matching hat and black and white accessories. She carried white Killarney roses.

The attendants were Miss Jean Dawson, sister of the bride ,and Winston McCullough, B.Sc., brother of the groom.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. M. Cook, assisted by the Rev. Mansell Smith.

Following the ceremony, the young couple returned to Bailleboro to place the bride's flowers on the graves of her late mother, father and brother. After a honeymoon in Montreal, they will reside in Cavan.

to disclose more information later which would fill in the missing sequence. For the benefit of those who had not followed the theme from the start, (and Doyle inquired if his doings had been recorded in Canada) Jack said the trouble all started when he and Judith Allen, the screen actress had been divorced. He had an interlocutory decree, he said, when Miss Allen started the $2,000,000 suit against Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell Baker Godde, the heires whom he met at her husband's English estate and whom he hopes to marry in May.

And when they are married, said Doyle, who added that he once had been in charge of the Guard at Buckingham Palace and knew the Duke of Kent "real well," the young Irishman will go to Milan to study voice. He wouldn't say defintely that he would forsake his fighting career for that of a singer.

vision—and Game Warden D. Buie directed operations. Six parties went into the field from Angus, Lisle, Tioga, Everett, Alliston and Baxter. Camp Borden was the centre of the 18,500-acre hunting area.

Clad in vari-colored garments of all descriptions, hunters came from miles around. A system of "beaters" was employed and men and boys of all ages tramped the scrublands wherein the wolves were said to be.

Houghton killed his wolf with one shot from his rifle. Provincial Constable W. B. Elliott of Alliston was a witness. It was shot one mile from the federal buildings at Camp Borden. A little later, Smith saw another and several in his party verified the fact that a leg had been severed.

Of the hundreds of hunters, only three were known to have shot at what they thought were wolves. They were W. Kerry, Alliston; W. D. Bailey, Nicholson, and George D. Banting, Deputy Reeve of Essa township. There was a lot of promiscuous shooting, of course, chiefly by Toronto and Hamilton residents who had come north for a day's outing.

GIRLS WHO HAVE NO BOY FRIENDS

Quick Easy Way to Get Charm

Girls who don't attract boy friends wonder why. Beautiful, perfect features are not the reason. Cleopatra and famous women were often ugly. Have nice skin, plenty of animation, and watch out for your figure—you'll be surprised how popular you are. So many girls have poor complexions—no life—their figure slipping, and don't realize it. Take "Fruit-a-tives" and you'll soon be amazed how different and how attractive you've become. 25th Anniversary Of School In Otonabee Is Celebrated

Day Is Opened With Solemn High Mass In Church Of Sacred Heart

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of St. Joseph's school, Otonabee, in the parish of the Sacred Heart, was celebrated Thursday by ratepayers of the section with graduates, pupils of the present term, and a number of the clergy of the diocese.

Families comprising the section assisted at solemn high Mass, receiving holy communion, at the Church of the Sacred Heart. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, parish priest, was the celebrant, with Rev. Herbert Fitzgerald of Parry Sound, a graduate of the school, as deacon, and Rev. J. C. Maloney as sub-deacon. Thanksgiving for the continuous success of the school during the quarter of a century since it was built in 1912 was the special intentions of the community's worship with which the several events of the day began.

Dinner was served by the women of the section in the main room of the school. Tables were tastefully decorated with flowers and candles, and a bountiful repast was served by a number of the younger ladies. At the conclusion of the dinner an hour was spent in speeches of reminiscence and also of hope for the future. Vincent O'Toole, chairman of the school board, presided, and with him at the head table were: Rev. Father O'Brien, Rev. Father Maloney, Rev. J. V. McAuley of Campbellford, curate of the Church of the Sacred Heart from September 1910 until September 1917, Rev. Father Fitzgerald, Rev. J. J. Garvey of Lakefield, curate from January until May in 1921, Rev. Dr J. V. Masterson of St. Peter's Cathedral, and Rev. Victor McFadden of Downeyville; also Frank Lynch and J. A. Powers, trustees, and Frank Sullivan, secretary of the school board.

Some of the Graduates

In his address, Rev. Father O'Brien sketched in review the history of the school. The site of two acres was a gift from Richard Redmond, and the building cost $3,000. The contractors were A. J. Rose and Wm. McAuliffe.

Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston was the parish priest and his assistant was Rev. Father McAuley. They assisted the ratepayers of the new school section in planning for the school, Father O'Brien said, and the trustees took a keen interest in all the details of the work and subsequent organization of the school. Of the pupils who have graduated from St. Joseph's school, two are priests, Rev. Patrick Lynch of Kearney, Ontario, and Rev. Herbert Fitzgerald of Parry Sound, and Joseph Lynch is at present pursuing his studies at St. Augustine's seminary. Fourteen of the graduates became school teachers, incluring Alphonse O'Toole, now a university professor in St. Paul, Minn., and Stephen Clancey, B.A., of Sudbury who was one of the youngest students in Canada to receive his degree in Arts.

Sisters in religion who only a few years ago were young girls of the section are: Sister Modesta (Loretta Fitzgerald), Sister Rosamond (Kathleen Lynch both of Peterborough, Sister St. Dominic (Marie Carey) Cornwall, and Sister Dorothy and Sister St. Raymond, daughters of Mrs. P. Fitzgerald. Three former teachers are now members of the Community of St. Joseph, Rev. Mother St. Robert, Sisters Josepha and Sister Bernice.

School Tax Light

Leonard J. Clancey recalled that the estimated school tax twenty-five years ago was five mills on an assessment of $150,000. "As a matter of fact," he said, "the rate is 4½ mills and is one of the lowest in Ontario. I know of men with assessments of $6,000 who have paid in the twenty-five years $400 more in taxes to the public schools of their sections."

The school tax in the section was not only unusually low, Rev. Father O'Brien said, but the present assessment of $183,000 was one of the largest Separate School sections in the province. "We have been speaking of the graduates," he continued, "but there is one group that has not been referred to. They are the foundation of the school and the section. I mean those who have stayed on the land, boys who have succeeded their fathers and are working the land when their fathers have grown old, and young parents living in the section and sending their children to the school."

Rev. Father McAuley expressed his happiness to be a guest at the jubilee dinner and to meet again the people of the section. "I can remember the older men, but I see boys and girls here who are all new to me. The dayy will come when they will be in charge of the next jubilee. I congragulate you all on your loyalty to St. Joseph's and on the splendid work that has gone on here down through the years."

Rev. Father Garvey of Lakefield said he was glad to see the affairs of the school in the hands of young men who were taking an active interest in its administration.

Credit to the Church

Rev. Father Maloney said he could attest that the young men and women, graduates of the school, were always a credit to the parish of the Sacred Heart, and were among the most faithful to the monthly holy communion. They had received a good Christian, Catholic education, and, as in the past, there was no way of calculating all the good that could be done in the future.

Short speeches were also made by the other visiting priests, the school trustees and several of the other ratepayers, also A. J. Rose, and Mrs. John Farrell (Annie McAuliffe) on behalf of the successive teachers. The present teacher is Miss Josephine Lynch and the enrollment of pupils is 25.

Appreciation was expressed of the women's committee, of which Miss Mamye Fitzgerald was secretary, and Mrs. Dennis O'Toole, convenor for the successful arrangements of the dinner, and Rev. Father McFadden suigested that it might inaugurate a Home and School Club in the section.

St. Joseph's School is situated on the Keene Road nearly five miles from the city.

Three thousands miles of new railways are under construction in Russia.

CANADIAN ISOLATION GONE FOREVER

Long-Range Airplanes Have Made It Most Necessary That Canada Be Prepared

Civic Banquet Is Tendered Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister Of National Defence

Development of the long-range airplane has made a policy of isolation no longer practical and Canada must be prepared to defend herself, Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, told City and County leaders of business, industry and the professions and municipal and legislative representatives gathered at a civic banquet in the Empress Hotel Thursday noon. He appealed to even the most peace-loving Canadians to recognize this necessity and co-operate toward the end of an adequate defence.

"The problems of defense in Canada are important to every one of us," the distinguished guest declared. "No minister or no government can take care of these problems without the support of the people. We must have public opinion behind us."

He said the Department of National defence has received excellent support from the nation as a whole in the past, such that last year $36,000,000 was expended to provide for defence of Canada through 43 branches of service. He implied, however, a danger existed in a possible tendency of Canadian people to feel a false security through a belief that Canada stands in a position of military isolation.

Guard Neutrality

"Isolation is gone forever," he said. We must think in terms of our own security. Isolation may be preached by some but the range of the modern airplane renders any policy of isolation impractical." He reminded his audience of the flight of the Russians over the North Pole to California and of the flight of the Italians from Rome to Chicago. The Department is concerning itself with defending Canada's coasts, defending its greater inland centers and defending its neutrality in event of war between foreign powers, he said.

He paid a tribute to the young men who have served in Canada's militia forces since the War. "During the years of depression, these lads did magnificent service in maintaining the spirit of service," he said. He asked for full co-operation of employers in regard to the service of young men in the militia, particularly the periods of summer training. Many units have been taking the training at such small pay that officers have had to pool their wages to keep units functioning, he said.

He suggested that the Canadian national defence policy should not be partisan but a policy with the solid backing of all Canadian legislators and Canadian people.

A tribute to Peterborough was paid by the visitor. "If I survive till midnight to-night through the program in store for me, I shall return to the capital of Canada with the happiest memories of beautiful Peterborough and its hospitable citizens."

Welcome Expressed

Mayor Macdonald presided over the dinner, the gathering numbering 45 persons representing all fields of City and County activity. "We have friends at court but we are always glad to make another," the Mayor told the Hon. Mackenzie. He introduced all those present by name to the minister.

J. J. Duffus, M.P., introducing the guest, declared the city and country had never received greater honor than that accorded by Hon. Ian Mackenzie in his Remembrance Day visit. He said the minister has organized the Department of National Defense in a manner "necessary having regard to the fact this country may have to take its part in services not pleasant to the ear." He characterized him as the most capable Minister of National Defence Canada ever had.

Following the dinner, Hon. Mackenzie was conducted on a tour through the factories of the Western Clock Company, the C. G. E, the Quaker Oats and the DeLaval.

SCHOOLS RANSACKED

Provincial Police are studying the writing of hoodlums who broke into three schools in the Oshawa district and, after ransacking rooms, threw inkwells around and wrote obscene passages on blackboards. The proximity of the three schools involved, Maxwell No. 3 and the Base Line, both in East Whitby Township and the school at Courtice leads police to believe it to be the work of the same gang of boys.

BAG BIG BEAR

A Fenelon Falls hunting party not only got their quota of deer, but also returned with the largest bear ever shot in the Counties of Victoria and Haliburton. A rifle in the hands of Mac MacCallum brought down the big bruin, which weighed more than 600 pounds and measured 14 inches across the head. The kill was made at Hawk Lake.

HAD OTHER ENGAGEMENTS

Letters from Archbishop O'Brien of Kingston and Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough conveyed good wishes to the ratepayers of St. Joseph's School, Otonabee, in their twenty-fifth anniversary celebration Thursday and regrets that other engagements prevented them from attending.

THAT C.G.E. BAND

A lingering impression of Remembrance Day parade was the band the C.G.E. men got together to head their own parade from the plant uptown to the Legion Hall. They had strength of numbers and grand tone, putting the "old soldiers" behind them on their toes. It was altogether a notable contribution to the outstanding success of the celebration of Remembrance Day in Peterborough.

RECEIVES A SHOCK

Lester Davies, a young lad residing on Barnardo Avenue received a severe shock on Wednesday when a guy wire from a pole of the power line which the provincial Hydro is building from Auburn to Lindsay became energized in some way not yet disclosed. The boy came into contact with the wire while playing and was rendered unconscious for a few minutes and sustained a burned hand. The first air squad of the local Utilities' Commission was called and young Davies soon recovered. The provincial Hydro authorities are investigating the affair.

They will go to Toronto for the competition on Monday, seeking to bring a third successive victory to Peterborough from the Royal.

STILL ANOTHER CHANCE.

Yielding victory to Carleton county in the Ottawa Fair judging competition, Peterborough county judging boys were disappointed to see the chance for permanent possession of the trophy slip through their fingers, but they consoled themselves with the fact they still have another chance next year. Any three wins, not necessarily successive, will take the cup. Peterborough has two and now Carleton county is on equal terms, also with two wins.

MOVE OLD SUTHERLAND HOME

Removal of the old Sutherland house on Albert street from the property recently acquired by the Canadian General Electric Company is under way. MILLBROOK CAR HIT BY TRAIN AT FRASERVILLE

Serious Accident Narrowly Averted

(By A Staff Reporter)

FRASERVILLE, Nov. 12.—Awareness that the noon train to Port Hope was about due prevented a serious accident at the Fraserville crossing today as an automobile driven by Mrs. G. S. Harrington of Millbrook was lightly struck on the right fender by the C.N.R. engine's pilot bar and pushed across the road without overturning.

With Mrs. Harrington were Lillian Burton and Ethel Forsythe of Millbrook. The right front fender and radiator were dented, and the windshield was cracked, but the total damage was slight.

"We were driving north to Peterborough," Mrs. Harrington told The Examiner. "We knew the train from Peterborough to Port Hope was due at Fraserville around that hour, and I slowed down for the railway crossing. The car had come almost to a stop, and thinking the road was clear, as I did not notice the train, I started to move on again. Then I heard the whistle of the passenger train which had approached rapidly, and we just reached the railway as the engine was crossing in front of us."

The narrow escape of Mrs. Harrington and her companions was indicated by the positions of the car and engine as they collided. More serious results might have occurred if the automobile had reached the centre of the railway when the engine struck.

Rope Removed Sunday Night

Revelation of new facts to-day indicated that the absence of a rope from the civic flag pole in Confederation Square, preventing the flying of the Union Jack during Remembrance ceremonies yesterday, was not the result of a Hallowe'en prank but of a deliberate theft.

Roy C. Heard, 891 Water street, reports he was in the vicinity of the Square last Sunday night and saw a man stop his car, walk over to the flag pole, pull the rope off and drive away with it. The observer was unable to catch the thief's license number.

Ald. Walter Stocker states city officials did not learn of the disappearance of the rope until yesterday. If the loss had been known in time, a rope could have been strung through the top pulley by the fireman who did it two years ago, he said.

Three Hunters Missed Two Deer Seen But They Came Back With A Black Bear

ROY Maxwell, Bert Craymer and Joe LaPointe of this city went hunting yesterday, missed the only two deer they saw but came back with a 200-pound black bear.

Their encounter with the bear was as much a surprise to themselves as to Johnny Bruin. The three were sitting on a log off the 9th Line of Dummer, 15 miles north of Stoney Lake, eatin gtheir lunches. Maxwell was startled to see the bear reach his paw out from behind a big stump just four feet from where they were sitting.

The only one of the three with his gun handy, Maxwell quickly raised his high-power .22 rifle and fired point blank without aiming. The bullet went through the bear's heart to kill him instantly. The three huntsmen figure the bear was behind the stump asleep all the time they were sitting on the log.

Consciousness of War Costs Main Hopes For Peace

Canadian Club In New York Hears Ontario's Attorney-General On Armistice Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (CP).—Canada's hope for world peace is based on the consciousness of what the Great War cost her—216,000 casualties from enlistments of 619,000 men—Attorney-General Gordon Conant of Ontario said today in an Armistice Day address to the Canadian Club of New York.

"Canada is deeply concerned in what flowed from the war, and in what the future has in store for the nations of the world and for civilization," he said. He was glad the United States shared Canada's sentiments "for we are good neighbors in all respects and in all things."

The Attorney-General, who said he was speaking on behalf of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, unable to fulfill the speaking engagement, made only one reference—an indirect one—to Ontario politics. He did not specifically mention the Committee for Industrial Organization, whose entry into Ontario Labor and industrial life the Hepburn Government has opposed.

"You of this great nation have no doubt been interested in the reactions of the people of the province of Ontario to a movement far more than economic in its aspirations and calculated to be subversive of law and order," he said.

"These reactions and the revulsion of our people have recently resulted in the return of my leader to power as Premier of the Province of Ontario, and in my own election as a member of the Legislative Assembly representing the constituency where the greatest effort of that movement was concentrated.

"There has since followed my appointment as Attorney-General of the province, an office concerned chiefly with the maintenance of law and order.

Hopes For United Efforts.

"Recent events in your great country, near the International Boundary, have indicated that you, too, are concerned with the maintenance of your institutions and with respect for law and constituted authority.

"Let us hope that unitedly we may maintain the sound principles and practices of government laid by our forefathers, and the institutions they created in order that we may, with equality, engage in the pursuit of life, liberty, and happiness.

While Mr. Conant said the world's civilized nations were maintaining law and order in their domestic affairs, conditions were not encouraging in international relations.

"We are bewildered and alarmed by the actions and apparent aspirations of some of the nations of the world," he said. "They seem to threaten the very foundations of civilization and the continuance of an ordered society. Chaos seems imminent to replace the order which we hoped would emerge from the last conflict."

LONDON MANSIONS OPEN IN GLORIES OF NEW FRESCOES

By MOLLIE McGEE
Canadian Press Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 12—(CP).—The opening of parliament October 26 brought the first royal pageant of the pre-Christmas season. In their state robes the King and Queen rode in the traditional procession with an escort of mounted household troops and scarlet and gold clad outriders from Buckingham Palace to the Houses of Parliament.

Meantime prominent hostesses are arriving back in London and great houses are opening hospitable doors. Prime Minister and Mrs. Neville Chamberlain were among the first to return to town while painters at 10 Downing Street were still giving the hall and passages a new coat of sunshine cream. Mrs. Chamberlain is busy choosing color and furnishing schemes for this important house which has undergone extensive alterations during the summer.

Another hostess newly-arrived and planning redecorating and furnishing is Countess van Limburg Stirum, wife of the Netherlands Minister, who expects to be in residence at the Legation in Portman Square. Every week fresh supplies of dahlias arrive from Holland for her rooms.

The most recently redecorated embassy is the Carlton House Terrace mansion which Herr von Ribbentrop had arranged as a modern German home by workmen brought specially from Germany before the Coronation receptions. Last spring London's elite saw the streamlined furniture and light-painted walls; now they will see the embassy in the last touch of modernity.

It is rumored Mrs. Irene Robbins, widow of the former United States Minister to Canada may pay a visit to England. She has been appointed to travel round the world directing the interior decorations and furnishings of United States embassies and legations. The official London home of the American Ambassador is one of the most beautiful of the foreign governments and is actually two houses made into one, with a broad terrace overlooking lovely gardens at Prince's Gate.

Strong on Oriental

The Chinese Embassy with exquisite gold lacquer and silk hangings is among the most spectacularly furnished of all, yet two other embassadors' wives have shown partiality for Chinese decoration. Countess Raczynska, wife of the Polish Ambassador has a Chinese room with gilded walls and oriental treasures; Countess Ahlefeldt-Lauvig, wife of the Danish minister, a room with pale green walls showing off a collection of little white Chinese figures.

The Canadian High Commissioner's house in Hyde Park Gardens, arranged so carefully last year by Mrs. Vincent Massey, has white-panelled walls hung with paintings of typical Canadian scenes by Canadia nartists. These are of such interest that receptions often have the air of an art exhibition.

Geography will be in high favor among London's social set this season. A map painted on the wall of the living-room of the week-end house in the British Pavilion at the Paris Exhibition has given an idea to country house hostesses who now are using colored maps showing the location of local beauty spots as pictures. Cigarette and vanity cases have engraved maps on their lids and maps are even being brought into bathroom decoration.

Equipment of many plants in France is being modernized to offset the increasing costs caused by the new legislation.

Owner Treasures Ancient Bottle of Whiskey Liquor Buried Under Flag Pole In 1873

CALGARY, Nov. 12 (CP).—Connoisseurs of rare old brands would like, no doubt, to sample H. "Casey" Oliver's ancient bottle of whiskey. It is at least 64 years old and has been in his possession for 24 years.

"I must give the honor and credit for its existence today to my wife," he explained. "She saved it from going the way of all good bottles."

Oliver, veteran of the old North West Mounted Police, obtained his rare keepsake, in 1913—from under a 70-foot high flag pole where it had been buried many years before.

The flag pole, pride of the Canmore police post in the early days, was destroyed by a wind storm. "Casey," from an old timer of the force, had learned of the "buried treasure." A search was made and the bottle was found intact. A second bottle was there too, but the cork had rotted and it was empty.

At the christening of the flag pole, the bottles had been buried as "prohibition was the law of the land" in 1873.

"I would not be surprised if it was the oldest bottle of whiskey in the country," he wrote a Calgary friend. "I wonder."

Oliver now lives at Radium Hot Springs, a Rocky Mountain resort.

After the war, Samuel returned to Calgary. But, he continued to correspond with Miss Hart.

SAYS BANFF NOT AFFECTED BY ACT

BANFF, Alta., Nov. 12—(CP).—Banff, federally-owned and directed national park, will not come under the licensing of Trades and Business Act approval at the last session of the Alberta legislature, Councillor J. H. Bannerman told the Banff Advisory Commission.

Mr. Bannerman said he had obtained legal opinions which showed the Alberta government has not the power to collect business licenses in the town owing to its unique position.

The Rocky Mountain resort town is in a dual taxation position. Both federal and provincial governments can collect certain taxes from the towns-people. Under the Natural Resources agreement the province has power to collect taxes such as income, car licenses and gasoline taxes, but has no control over trade within the park boundary, the councillor said.

Under the Licensing Act the minister of trade and industry was empowered to license all trades and businesses and industries except those exempt by statutory regulations.

ARMISTICE DAY SERVICE PACKS MARMORA HALL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Nov. 12.—The nineteenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice was observed as in former years by Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion with a largely attended banquet in the Town Hall, excellent catering being carried out by the Ladies' Auxiliary. Comrade T. Cousins, president of the branch was toastmaster.

After the Royal toast had been submitted, "Fallen Comrades" was given by Comrade G. Jarvis. "Last Post" was sounded by Comrade G. Brooks, the two minutes silence following, after which the branch bugler sounded "Reveille."

1,500 Legion Branches

The next toast "Canadian Legion" was ably proposed by Comrade P. Gray, past president of the branch. He stated today there are 1,500 branches or more today of the Canadian Legion and informed the gathering that not only were ex-service men members of the Canadian Legion but worthy citizens who have helped the returned men may be granted honorary or associate membership.

He then expressed his pleasure as having served in the 21st Battalion under the responder to the toast, Lt.-Col. H. E. Pense, D.S.O., M.C., whom he then fittingly introduced to the gathering.

Lt.-Col. Pense in response instanced his interest in branches in the rural districts. In passing, he mentioned that he had been president of the Walkerton Branch for two years. He said there was no question of the Legion having justified its existence. There was no room in the Legion for the radical or the agitator but there was room for the free expression of opinions. Col. Pense, briefly mentioned that most of the legislation affecting the returned men had been sponsored by the Legion in the first instance. In conclusion, he mentioned that the government had made an appropriation for to help such men as might undergo a retraining for a profession.

The Guest Speaker

Next on the program was an eloquent address by Major Rev. W. E. Kidd, M.C., war time chaplain of the 21st Battalion. Maj. Kidd referred to the pleasure which it gave him in fulfilling a long desire to visit Marmora and also stated that he had commenced his ministry in Hastings County, namely at Coe Hill. He was always pleased to visit a gathering under the auspices of the Canadian Legion. "In working for the Legion, we are continuing in the service we are rendering to our country," he reminded his comrades.

The guest speaker also dealt with the Legion's work regarding pensions and the burnt out man. He felt that in inviting the public to such gatherings on Remembrance Day, much was being done to educate the people on the proper viewpoint of Remembrance Day. Sixty thousand had, through sacrificing their all, been taken out of the life of the country just as they were coming into a larger field of service for Canada.

Touching upon the matter of every returned man having personal recollections on Remembrance Day, he said that many who had enlisted, had been criticized for what was seen of their character before enlistment. But when he thought of St. Paul's enumeration of the fruits of the spirit—gentleness was one of these—he thought no better illustration could be found than when some of these criticized men were seen to carry a wounded comrade miles through mud, and other discomforts to the dressing station. Before the war, many who enlisted had been kept up by the convention of the society in which they lived. When moved out of these conventions they stood out as real men.

Doubtless it was in the light of Remembrance Day that we saw the statesmanship of our Empire in recent trying months working for the preservation of peace with honor.

Major Kidd was fittingly introduced by Comrade W. Mumby, past president of the Marmora Branch.

The toast "Visitors" was handled by Comrade W. J. Cottrell and responses were forthcoming from Reeve S. B. Wright, Deloro, Reeve W. R. Linn, Marmora, James Lamb, Ottawa and H. Welford, Cordova.

To The Ladies

The final toast, "Ladies' Auxiliary" was proposed by Comrade W. Mumby and Mrs. Percy Gray president of the organization in replying, mentioned that there were now 96 auxiliaries in Ontario and thanked the Legionnaires and others for support of the local auxiliary's work.

With Comrade T. E. Pritchard as song leader and Gladney Hodge accompanist, some hearty community singing interspersed the speeches.

Mrs. Percy Gray sang "The Road That Leads to You," and Past President L. R. Rundle rendered "The Trumpeter."

Comrade Cousins announced the receipt of a telegram from Lt.-Col. A. V Yates, M.C., now on his return trip from England. The message read: S.S. Ascania via Louisburg Radio, Legion Marmora, Ontario, "Remembering with you today.—Yates."

The auspicious program was closed with the singing of "Good Night Ladies' 'and the National Anthem.

Annual Service

The annual Armistice service under auspices of Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion was held at the Memorial Hall on Thursday morning. After the Last Post and Reveille had been sounded by Comrade G. Brooks, prayer was offered by Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth. The hymn "O God Our Help In Ages Past" was then sung. Wreaths were placed beneath the memorial tablets by Capt. C. A. Bleecker and Mrs. John Cronkright following the two minutes silence. The service was attended by Reeve W. R. Linn and members of the Council and a goodly number of Legionnaires and citizens.

Arriving At The Outpost

A patient is here shown being brought to a Red Cross Outpost in Northern Ontario by dogteam. This patient had to be brought 70 miles to this hospital which is one of a number which the Red Cross has established throughout the more remote sections of the province. The annual Red Cross drive in Peterborough is scheduled November 22 to 27.

Campbellford Veterans Honor War Dead On Armistice Day

Nearly 700 Take Part In Impressive Service—School Students Assist

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 12. — The Campbellford Cenotaph was rededicated in an impressive Armistice Day service attended by approximately 1,500 people at 10.30 o'clock on Thursday morning. It was Mayor F. F. Long who gave the official dedication address and reminded the citizens that they were gathered to pay tribute to the memory of the 67 men whose names were inscribed on the monument. "Time will soothe all grief and dim all memories," said the Mayor, "and perhaps it is better so."

"The Cenotaph was constructed not only to honor our heroic dead, but to keep their names ever fresh in the eyes of the public for years to come, and indeed, it is only right that we should be looking up at the Cenotaph and the names inscribed thereon.

"Although dedicated at its erection it is now to be re-dedicated in its new form, as also are the two new flagpoles which were donated through the kindness of Charles Payne, K.C., of Campbellford and Belleville."

Bringing his address to a conclusion the Mayor recited the following verse:

"In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in his bosom that transfigures you and me;
As He died to make men holy, they have died to make men free,
And their souls go marching on."

Rev. Harold B. Neal then offered a special dedicatory prayer, after which the wreaths were placed with the Province of Ontario wreath being put in its place by Mrs. James Massey. "It's a high price to pay for peace if it's bought at the price of honor," Rev. (Captain) A. G. Emmet of Cobourg, who was guest speaker, reminded his listeners in his remarks on the sacrifices made by the heroes of the War.

Nearly 700 took part in the parade which left the Public Library at 10.30 on Thursday morning and included nearly 100 members of the Legion as well as Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, Public and Separate School students, the I.O.D.E. and Chapter, the Mayor and other civic officials all marching to the music of the Midland Regiment Band.

Rev. B. Simpson Black, Rev. T. H. Floyd, Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick, and Captain Douglas Sharp also assisted in the services at the Cenotaph.

In the evening members of the Legion attended a banquet in the Lodge Rooms of the I.O.O.F. where a number of impromptu speeches were given by the Mayor, N. A. McColl, Major J. M. Bygott, and A. Rapport as well as brief remarks by visiting members of the Legion.

Clarence Massey, president of the Campbellford Branch, was chairman for the occasion.

Queen's Alma Mater Is Trying To Make Sissies Out Of Freshmen Is The Claim

KINGSTON, Nov. 12. — Husky Queen's Rugby players expressed their anger with the Alma Mater Society at the stadium for not allowing the freshmen to hold their annual "pep parade" to-night, the day before the big game with the Toronto "Blue and White."

The Alma Mater Society has clamped down on all such demonstrations as not becoming the dignity of college undergraduates and because too much damage was done the last time the freshmen broke loose on the Limestone City. Freshmen, a month or so ago, "broke into" Ban Righ Hall, the home of all the lovely co-eds and wreaked havoc among feminine hearts.

Rugby players claim the "darling Alma Mater" is trying to "make sissies out of the freshmen." The pride of Queen's have even gone so far as to threaten a "sit-down strike" unless the ban is lifted.

"Why shouldn't we be allowed to hold the 'pep parade'?" angry players in various stages of undress asked the reporter in the team dressing-room Thursday afternoon. "It is one of our customs to hold a parade of this sort before the Queen's-Varsity game. The students need the parade to get into the proper mood for a victory. They are trying to make sissies out of the freshmen. If they are not careful they will turn Queen's University into a seminary for girls."

CHEESE PRODUCTION HIGH

EDMONTON — (CP). — Alberta cheese production this year will total about 1,750,000 pounds, compared with 1,451,000 pounds last year, provincial department of agriculture officials reported. This is the highest mark since 1923 when 1,865,000 pounds were produced.

WEATHER DELAYS WILKINS FLIGHT

REGINA, Nov. 12 (C.P.). — Sir Hubert Wilkins and members of his expedition to-day awaited better weather conditions before continuing a flight to Edmonton and the Arctic to resume search for six Russian transpolar fliers missing three months. Wilkins hopes to continue the flight to-day.

The Australian explorer-flier said yesterday, after he brought his plane down here on a Winnipeg-Edmonton hop, there is no reason why the Soviet fliers should not be alive and in good physical condition if they landed safely in the Arctic.

They carried a food supply which would serve until the middle of November and had guns and ammunition to kill game, he said.

Indians' Invasion Of Ottawa Highlights Football Program

Loser Of Crucial Game Will Be Through For The '37 Season

TORONTO, Nov. 12 (CP) — The schedule makers toss eight of the east's senior football teams at each other tomorrow in a glorious windup of the Big Four and Intercollegiate Unions' regular 1937 season. They could not have arranged a better card if the season's results were known in advance.

Seven of the eight squads still remain in the hunt for playoff positions, all to be determined tomorrow in a four-game program highlighted by the Montreal invasion of Ottawa, home of the tough Rough Riders. The loser will be through for another year.

Other tid-bits of this football dish, not smacking of the potentialities of the Rider-Indian game but appetizing just the same, are: Hamilton Tigers at Toronto Argonauts; University of Toronto vs. Queen's at Kingston and the Western Mustangs against McGill in Montreal.

Only McGill has no direct interest in the outcome of all this gridiron activity. Victors but once in five starts this Redmen, nevertheless, could complete the roundup of Mustangs with their second victory, something they have been threatening to score for two weeks. This may be the spot for McGill.

Chance For Mustangs

A Western victory would tie Mustangs with Toronto if the Blues fall before the hard-charging Tricolor, unbeaten in their last three games. A second-place playoff then would be forced between Toronto and Western with the winner to play Queen's for the college title. An easier solution would be for Toronto to beat Queen's, retaining the title without necessity of post-season clashes.

Tied in second place behind Argonauts, Hamilton, Montreal and Ottawa fight for the remaining Big Four playoff berth. Argonauts, first place assured, are favored to eliminate Tigers from further consideration.

If last week's performances were a criterian of things to come, the Ottawa-Montreal clash should be wide-open with Indians staking their daring aerial attack against the more conservative plunging and running game of the 1936 champions.

The Indian offensive exploded be-

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. — Trainer Max Machon says: "That feller is nuts about the movies, ain't it?.... Frankie Frisch, in a brand new overcoat, puffing a big cigar in front of Dempsey's and wishing he had a pair of Army-Notre Dame...Up comes a reporter and hands Frank a pair on the 50-yard line..."Lissen," said the old Fordham flash..."The Cards will win the National League pennant and you'll have a whole box to all seven games."

Mike Jacobs limped out of the Algonquin restaurant on a cane...A gambler in front of Dave's blue room calling Washington and Lee, "Washington and Looey"...Joe Jacobs, the fight manager and Damon Runyon, the author, make a night of it in a Greenwich village spot...And Jimmy Kelly, owner of same, lamenting: "Things are lousy with me...Business is off $500 per night...I haven't won a bet in 30 days...And when I bid $10,000 for the Chief, a rich guy comes along and goes me four grand better...Jack Dempsey busy applying the old hot foot at a luncheon for boxing writers in his joint ...Lou Gehrig and the Mrs. emerging from a swanky restaurant.

The boys around town are having a good laugh on Walter (Good Time Charlie) Friedman, who (may the saints forgive him) was responsible for Jack Doyle and other non-clicking fistic importations...Somehow the word got around old good time was being featured in a Hollywood picture...When the cinema hit the stem, the gang all flocked down to see it....One reel, two reels, three reels passed and no sign of Walter ...Finally they flashed on a scene showing a fighter entering the ring ...Behind him, carrying a pail of water, was Walter (Good Time Charlie) Friendman. He was in and out, just like that...But he was swell while he lasted.

P.C.I. PLAYS NOV. 20

Coach Bamforth of the Collegiate senior rugby team has received word that the Central Ontario Interscholastic grid semi-finals will be a sudden-death game between Albert College of Belleville and P.C.I. here on November 20. The game will be played a week from to-morrow at 2.30 p.m. in Riverside Park, the winning team going into the C.O.-S.S.A. finals.

IT'S "SEZAARAVITCH"

NEWMARKET, England—(CP).—There were the usual pronunciation slips when the Cesarewitch was run October 27. British Broadcasting Corporation announcers were told to call it "Sezaaravitch" with the "sez" as in "says you," and the "aar" to rhyme with "car."

neath Argos last week when the Scullers took their first beating of the season. Led by the pitching and catching combination of Lefty Abe Eliowitz and Captain Johnny Ferraro, Indians forward-passed and lateralled Argos dizzy.

Shaken by the bruising Ottawa offensive last week, Tigers will bring up two men from the Ontario Union Panthers to bolster their lineup against Argonauts. But Monet will replace the injured Denny Whitaker at quarterback and Eddie Strachan will relieve the veteran Huck Welch should it be necessary.

Set For Tigers

An unexpected Tiger triumph would force a second-place playoff against either Indians or Riders. But the Argo machine is prepared to stop that possibility. Prepped by an arduous week's training, the Argo end-running attack has been declared ready again after the Indian derailment.

Captain Turney Williams will remain at centre for the injured Doug Turner when Toronto Blues move against Queen's. The Tri-Color, boasting all the fundamentals of all teams coached by Ted Reeve, have the strongest line in the Union and its finest kicker, Johnny Munro.

Against the line and Munro, Toronto will hurl a well-drilled force led by place-kicking Cam Gray, their triple threat, and bashing Don Mumford, the team's No. 1 plunger. Aside from the Turner injury, Toronto is in perfect shape.

With nothing to lose, McGill supporters can look for their Redmen to try all that is daring against a Mustang team which has shown signs of weariness after a brilliant early-season campaign. The Mustangs have dropped two straight games, fading last week after piling up a 7-0 first-quarter lead against Queen's.

CENTRAL ONTARIO CRICKET LEAGUE MAY FIND FAVOR

Upon the initiative of the Oshawa C.C. a meeting has been called to be held at Port Hope tomorrow, Saturday, Nov. 13 to consider the formation of a league for Eastern Ontario. Representatives have been invited from Oshawa, Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay, Belleville and Whitby. The Peterborough club will be represented by F. Dyer and R. N. Stuart and Whitaker's by A. Radford and A. Hamilton.

If such a scheme can be carried out—even in part, it would be of the greatest value to the local clubs. It would provide a regular schedule of matches within reasonable distance and so avoid the heavy expense and inconvenience incurred by the long trips to Toronto which have been necessary in the past.

It would also be likely to give this part of the province some voice in cricket management and jurisdiction which it has previously lacked.

BOWLERS PLANNING YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

(By Herb Martin).

We know that when many people read this article, they will say, "Surely they are not lawn bowling yet?" We admit it is rather late in the season to write about lawn bowling, and while the actual bowling season was over some time ago, yet we are working on the "organization" which takes twelve months of every year. And it is the organization work with which we intend to deal with today.

On the third Monday of October the shareholders met and elected a board of directors—this board in turn selects the chairmen of the different committees, and immediately the organization is under way for the coming year. The precision and rapidity shown by the 1938 board has been to us both amazing and satisfying. Two days after their election they met and appointed their chairman, and we believe these chairmen have their committees chosen already.

The greens committee this year will be under the leadership of B. Chesler and already they have met and have recommended many improvements that have been passed upon by the board.

The games committee is again under R. Hendry, and he and his committee are very busy drawing up a schedule for next year that we believe will be a great improvement on past seasons.

H. Clegg heads the membership committee, and no doubt he will be looking forward to a big season.

Probably the most outstanding changes will occur in the ladies' section. This year the activities of their club will come under the supervision of the men's games committee—and we are one of those who believes that it should have never been otherwise—and no doubt will be run on the same lines as the men's games.

And then this new membership committee elected by the ladies themselves is certainly working fast. They are aiming to have at least twenty rinks next season, and have already most of the rinks well organized. This committee is under the supervision of Mrs. L. Campbell, and is assisted by Mrs. G. Borland, Mrs. J. Coursey, Mrs. E. Crowe, Mrs. L. Deyman, Mrs. F. Ford, Mrs. R. Hendry, Mrs. M. Northrop and Mrs. C. Williamson.

We will be greatly surprised and also sadly disappointed if 1938 is not the best season we have ever had.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THERE ISN'T a great deal we can say about tomorrow's big grid playoff here—though that won't stop us from trying!—when we stop to figure it. Everyone interested knows that it's between the Trenton Fliers and our Orfuns, an O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" playdown return tussle, with the Fliers having a four-point lead. And everyone knows that unless the Orfuns overcome that deficit here tomorrow in Riverside, the local rugbyists are through for this year. On the other mitt, most football fans know that the Orfuns are almost unbeatable on their own field—not having lost a home game in over two years—and that they were reported as being below form when they dropped that 5-1 decision at the Airport a week ago. So it should be obvious that the Turnbull team has a fine chance of coming out on top, and that it ought to be a pip of a grid scrap from start to finish.

* * * * * * *

AS WE said yesterday, the Aviators stick to straight football, featuring neat tackling, hard plunging, a strong line and an ace booter. Orfuns play a bit more open rugby and will shade 'em on running and passing plays. Our line, too, ought to hold its own and Crowe should kick on even terms with Gibson here. We feel confident the locals will win but, of course, four points are four points and the Fliers are tough babies. One never knows what will happen when two good squads, pretty well matched, clash, in a money fixture. This game is a natural and rates a record crowd of fans.

* * * * * * *

WE LOOK for Loucks to do some nifty broken-field running 'gainst the R.C.A.F. outfit. And for Kearns and Crowe to gain a lot of yardage. With Pulkinghorn, Mitchell and Begley ripping into that rival line like wild men. We look for a lot of nifty passing, good runbacks on boots, hard tackling and a whole lot less fumbling than was the case in Trenton. We look for both sides to fight like fury—with elbows and knees higher than the price of milk in Toronto. We foresee a fracas that will be talked about around Central Ontario for weeks—and we predict a Peterborough win. In a scrappy exhibition of the autumn classic, as colorful as the Painted Desert of Arizona—as thrilling as a lad's first suit with long pants! With a large and frenzied crowd forming the background.

* * * * * * *

THIS ITEM comes from Belleville: "The absence of major scores, in other words touchdowns, have been most prevalent throughout the current O.R.F.U. football season locally. Doubtless this can be attributed to the splendid defensive football played in this neck of the woods, but the patrons of the game do like to see a player carry the ball over for that coveted major score. The Fliers now enjoy a four-point lead to haul into Peterborough. Knowing the Liftlock City outfit as we do, we merely warn the Airmen to assume the offensive in Peterborough, and under no consideration try to play too much defensive football." Or that four-point lead will wind up in a three-point landing for the Fliers, eh? Gus Ryder and Jack Kirkwood have been named to officiate at the fray here.

* * * * * * *

AND WE see by the Quinte columnist yesterday that the Albert College grid squad of Belleville have been officially crowned senior school champs of the Bay of Quinte. They had an 11-1 edge over Marmora High School and the latter gang conceded 'em the series, figuring they had no chance of overcoming this margin in the return tussle. It was the first time in quite a few years that the yellow-green-black uniformed Albert outfit had taken this rugby title. The team now meets the P.C.I. crew in the first round of C.O.S.S.A. playdowns. We haven't heard definitely when the first fixture is but some of the local players seem to think it won't be for another week. The Albert College eleven is rated highly down that way, but P.C.I. ought to knock 'em off.

* * * * * * *

OUR CONGRATS to the Galloping Ghosts of Cobourg upon winning their first O.R.F.U. intermediate "B" playdown round. They took a 6-1 win over Kingston Garrisons yesterday in the Limestone City to cop the round by 13 points. Meikle again starred for the Wraiths, booting a placement and three singles for all six points. They made no mistake when they imported this classy kicker, along with Jacobs, to the Lakeshore town this year. The Cobourgites deserve a lot of credit, playing two full seasons with but one victory in that time, yet coming back for another try with a stronger squad. They took "B" honors in our group this season and gave the local Orfuns two mighty tough battles before the Petes grabbed off the "A" slice of bacon. We rather expect to see the Speedy Spirits haunting the Ontario playdown picture for some weeks yet.

* * * * * * *

AT A recent meeting of girl basketball representatives in Cobourg, three or four clubs indicated intention of entry into a Central Ontario gals' cage circuit. Belleville, Cobourg and two local squads, Westelox and C.G.E. were represented. Lindsay and Port Hope are possibilities yet, we hear. The loop should get really organized shortly and affiliated with the L.O.B.A., Don Clark of Cobourg being this group's delegate to the L.O.B.A.

* * * * * * *

THERE WILL be about six teams in the Kingston City Hockey Loop which gets going any day now in the Harty Arena. Perth, Prescott, Belleville, two Kingston squads and possibly Queen's, are said to be entries—while the Trenton Fliers may yet agree to join. Squadron Leader Tommy Lawrence of the R.C.A.F. crew, which won out in 1936, states his outfit isn't fussy about lining up with this league unless more consideration is given the team. Their share of gate receipts last winter was quite slim though they drew big crowds. As Lawrence points out, the Fliers can get plenty of pre-season contests in the way of exhibition tilts on artificial ice to satisfy their demands and put the Airmen in shape for the O.H.A. season—without having to depend on the Kingston circuit. However, their demands may be met by the latter loop.

COBOURG OUSTS KINGSTON TEAM IN 'B' PLAYOFF

KINGSTON, Nov. 12.—Kingston Garrison was eliminated from the O.R.F.U. Intermediate "B" play-offs here Thursday afternoon, when they lost to Cobourg, 6 to 1, who won the first round of the play-offs with a thirteen-point lead in the two games.

A placement in the fourth quarter and three singles spread over the remaining quarters made up the six points for the winners. Garrison scored their lone single in the second when Lawford kicked for a point.

Meikle, for the winners, was by far the outstanding player, scoring the whole six points. A single in the first quarter, two in the third, and a placement in the fourth went to his credit.

GLASGOW RANGERS IN UNBEATEN CLASS

GLASGOW, Nov. 12 (CP Cable). — When Scottish Football League teams line up for Saturday's games they will conclude three months of the eight-month schedule, and indications at this date point to a sustained battle for the championship.

Dundee demonstrated brilliant early-season play, surprising critics with a seven-game winning streak that gave the Dens Park eleven a clear lead. Rangers then assumed leadership with a steady procession of victories and draws and remains today the only unbeaten club in the loop.

Motherwell took over the top position two weeks ago when Rangers postponed league activities to win the Glasgow Cup. Motherwell now leads with a one-point margin over Rangers and Hearts. Dundee is three points behind.

Aberdeen is confidently expected to better its position after the weekend match. The Dons meet Clyde at Shawfield Park. Other matches bring together Kilmarnock and Queen of South, Morton and Hamilton Academicals and St. Johnstone and Hibernians.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers Regain Western Football Honors

Pegs Beat Calgary Bronks 9-1 To Win On The Round 19-14

CALGARY, Nov. 12 (CP)—Football kings of the West again, Winnipeg Blue Bombers looking to the East today for the final hurdle in their path to another national championship.

Bombers crushed Calgary Bronks 9-1 here yesterday to regain the Western title they lost last year to Regina Roughriders. The big blue machine, defeated 13-10 by Bronks in Winnipeg Saturday, won the title series 19-14 to step into the Dominion final for the Grey Cup they won in 1935.

The opening quarter was the best 15 minutes Bombers have played this season. Three times in that period Winnipeg crossed Calgary's 10-yard stripe—once for a shifty Fritz Hanson touchdown—and only a fumble robbed them of a second touchdown in the next quarter. Bombers trained their heavy artillery — Bob Fritz Greg Kabat and Steve Glander—on the Bronks on a snow-covered field and in their big moment called on Speed-made Hanson to send them ahead.

Superior All The Way.

Winnipeg held an advantage in every department—in running plays, in forward passing and in kicking. On the ground they gained 180 yards to Calgary's 86, scored 12 first downs to Bronks' six and completed four of six forward passes for a total gain of 100 yards while Calgary gained 99 yards on five completed passes in 14 tries.

After counting a touchdown from the 10-yard line on Hanson's reverse dash around the end in the first quarter, Winnipeg came within an ace of getting another in the second gaining possession at the Calgary 26 when a Rosano kick went out of bounds. Bombers struck quickly to put play in the shadow of the Calgary goal posts. A Fritz-to-Bud Marquardt pass was completed for a gain of 22 yards. Fritz carried the ball on the next two downs, fumbling as he plunged over on the second Jerry Searight of Calgary pounced on the loose ball and was rouged before he could get off the ground.

In the third quarter Winnipeg built the score to 8-0 when Olander sent a long punt and Rosano was rouged by Marquardt. Both got rouges in the final quarter.

ODD ITEMS FROM A SPORT SCRAP BOOK

JACK SHARKEY

The annals of sport through the years reveal many peculiar instances of eccentric athletes, and one that need not rest in the shadow of any other is Jack Sharkey.

Sharkey, the one-time heavyweight champion of the world, was involved in many incidents that were other than ordinary.

Due to his emotional temperament, he was unpredictable. One time he would fight like a world beater, but next time out his efforts would be reminiscent of a fourth-rate stumblebum.

Sharkey had the idea that he could cow his rivals with his glare, before a fight, and it was almost ludicrous at times to watch him as he would fix his opponent with his eyes and attempt to strike fear into his heart before the battle started.

But it didn't always work, as we imagine Sharkey would have testified after the Dempsey fight.

Montreal Selects Trophy Candidates

MONTREAL, Nov. 12 (CP). — Ernie Henpey and Len Hutton last night were named Indians' candidates for possession of the Jeff Russel trophy, awarded annually to the Big Four player rated most valuable to his team.

Hempey and Hutton are outside wings, although Hempey started the season at middle wing. Voting of the team members was the closest in years. The trophy has been won twice by Montreal players.

Johnny Ferraro had his men out on the practice field last night for the last heavy workout before the Tribe meets Rough Riders Saturday at Ottawa. Montreal needs the win to get anywhere in the play-offs and after trouncing Argos last Saturday are confident they can take Rough Riders to camp.

SCHMELING WANTS 15-ROUND TUSSLE WITH H. THOMAS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. — Max Schmeling arrived on the Bremen Thursday and immediately demanded that his first tune-up bout, with Harry Thomas of Chicago, in preparation for Champion Joe Louis, be lengthened from ten to fifteen rounds—to "ensure victory."

The welcoming committee which met Herr Maxie at Quarantine was amazed at his plot. The bout is slated for Madison Square Garden December 13.

Schmeling, arriving from Germany for the seventeenth time since 1928, explained, "Ve von't gamble mit Thomas. He's a goot fighter. He gets tough, maybe, early in da fight—und I need more time, maybe, to cool him off. Always I do better in longer fights."

Nate Lewis Agrees.

So—was Maxie afraid of Thomas? Was the world's No. 1 challenger for Joe Louis's heavyweight championship afraid of a tune-up opponent?

"Ach! No!" expostulated the invader from the land of the Swastika. "I'm not afraid—joost careful. I vant no slips before June, ven I knock out Louis again und take da title."

Maxie repeated his demand to Promoter Mike Jacobs at the pier "Uncle Mike" said fifteen rounds was okay with him. He telephoned to Chicago and obtained agreement to the longer distance from Thomass manager, Nate Lewis.

Schmeling, though less bronzed than usual, appeared lean and in excellent condition. He said he weighed about 197 pounds, just two over his fighting weight. He plans two more tune-ups, after the Thomas bout, to harden him for Louis in June. He said he needed three contioning scraps because he hadn't fought since June 19, 1936, when he kayoed the Brown Bomber. Lengthy layoffs are dangerous when a fighter is 32.

Maroons Defeat Canadiens 3-0 In Scrappy Montreal Battle

Chihawks Whip Rangers 3-1 To Top American Section

TORONTO, Nov. 12 (CP)—When King Clancy promised he would make Montreal Maroons a fighting hockey club he meant what he said. He has a big, bruising team that refuses to be stepped on.

Maroons' schedule is two games old and the first contest brought a 4-2 loss before Boston's improved Bruins. But Clancy's men threw their weight around and scrapped to the finish in that tussle and came back last night to take a torrid 3-0 decision from Canadiens as the season's intra-Montreal warfare began.

For two periods Maroons incurred chippy penalties and had to let Canadiens carry the play while they were shorthanded. During that time Bill Beveridge was an amazing bulwark as he turned back Habitant aids that seemed sure to bring goals.

Maroons In Fighting Form

Then the big red team organized and in less than four minutes of the third period scored twice. A snarling, confident pack, Maroons continued to wade in and when a penalty-box fight between Babe Siebert of Canadiens and Baldy Northcott of Maroons developed Coach Clancy and most of his soldiers piled into the fray willingly.

When Referees Babe Dye and Clarence Campbell had quietened the battlers and administered penalties Maroons went right back to work and continued to pour rubber at Goalie Wilf Cude. Five minutes before the finish Rookie Des Smith converted Herbie Cain's pass into the final goal. Wentworth and Cook scored the first two.

The night's other result was a 3-1 victory for Chicago over the Rangers in New York, more of an upset even than the convincing beating the Canadiens took. Bill Stewart's Hawks, with Doc Romnes, Mush March and Paul Thompson leading, took a lead after a minute of play and carried on with rugged defensive tactics that thoroughly discouraged Rangers and the crowd of 16,000.

Tops U.S. Section

Chicago went to the front in the league's United States section through the victory.

Romnes with two and March was Chicago's scorers. Dillon got Rangers lone counter.

The argument at Montreal started after Siebert and Northcott were penalized for combing one another with their sticks. As they went off they argued and when they reached the bench they grappled. Stu Evans led a rush of players from both teams and it was minutes before the pack could be pulled apart.

Siebert and Northcott were given majors and match misconduct penalties, while Evans drew a 10-minute misconduct sentence. Northcott suffered a forehead cut which required several stitches.

LOCAL GRIDDERS FACE ACID TEST

Orfuns will have to fight from behind here tomorrow (Saturday) when they clash in Riverside Park with Trenton Fliers in the return game of their O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" playdown series. The locals are down four points, following their 5-1 reverse at the Airport last Saturday, and they face elimination tomorrow unless they overcome that deficit. As the Orfuns have not lost a game at home in over two years, they feel confident they can win this one and by a sufficient score to continue in Ontario rugby playdowns, eliminating the R.C.A.F. gang. It promises to be a grand battle and should draw a record crowd of grid fans for the season.

Trenton Fliers depend on straight football, having a good line, nice tackling and a classy kicker. Gibson booted all their points in the previous game and he also continually kicked his squad out of danger when pressed. The locals played below form in this first match but will be at full strength and fighting with their backs to the wall tomorrow. With a strong line, some first-rate running halves, a good passing attack and steady punting, they figure to pull out a win. There is little to choose between these smart squads and it will be a thrilling joust all the way.

JACK McAULIFFE

Sports world mourns the passing of Jack McAuliffe, who never was defeated after he became lightweight champion in the bare knuckle days. Jack, 72, died at his Forest Hills, N.Y., home after a long illness. He had retired from the ring in 1892. Jack's most famous bout was with a Britisher, Jim Carney, which went 74 rounds.

Over 1,000 devotees of the horse, harness and sulky sport saw Gilbert Grattan take the last two heats of the four-heat event in an afternoon's racing that was begun in bright sunshine and finished in semi-darkness long after sundown. In fact, it was so dark when Gilbert Grattan paced home under the wire in the program's final heat, that many fans came to the judges' stand and claimed that a mstake had been made in the announced placing of Benny Harvester at the finish of that heat. Benny Harvester was officially announced as finishing seventh in that final heat; folks who had backed him in the wagering said he finished second, instead of third.

DEAD RECKONING

BY

BRUCE HAMILTON

After a long search Tim Succeeded in bringing to light what he wanted regarding The Wilderness. There had been an exchange of letters, but a glance was enough to show Tim there was no help for him in the one he found. He even doubted whether the letter had any legal value at all; it had been a family agreement, and the possibility of repudiation had not been entertained. It merely specified that Esther, in return for the money paid over should have full use and control of The Wilderness. It did not verbally limit this to her lifetime, as there seemed no doubt that Neddy could reasonably argue, without being held to have broken a gentleman's agreement that it naturally terminated with her death.

There was no reference to any steps having been taken to break the entail. Tim realized that if it had been broken he could hardly have failed to know of it. He recalled with bitter self-reproach the diplomatic discretion and easy-going apathy which had led him to decline to interfere personally in the business. It had seemed an excellent bargain at the time, when the expectation was that Esther, several years younger, would outlive him.

No question of such an outcome had ever visited his mind. He had come to assume that The Wilderness had actually become Esther's property, and would, in the event of her death, pass to him. If he had ever known about the entail—up to now he had only the haziest idea of the meaning of the word—he had long forgotten all about it.

He paid a visit to Marston's on Saturday, and his apprehensions were fully justified. By discreet inquiries he had elicited that there was no doubt at all as to the title. It was clear that Neddy had the law on his side.

Everything, it seemed, was working against him. This second blow had a very detrimental effect on Tim's morale, but it was not to show immediately.

At first all his pertinacity was aroused. He saw that there was at least the possibility of a compromise by which something could be saved, and he set himself to be conciliatory. A few days later he wrote to Neddy as follows:

Dear Neddy,

I was glad to hear from you again. I hope you will forgive me for having left it to Uncle Harold to break the news to you about Esther. I can still hardly bear to think of it, much less write of it; she was everything to me. I know well how devoted you were to each other, and how you will share and understand my own grief.

Harold had told me that you had not enjoyed the best of luck in the States just lately, and I gathered from him you were likely to be returning. It must be very distressing to lose so good a position through no fault of your own, at such a time. However, it's an ill wind, etc., and I for one shall be delighted to see you back in the old country again. And I've no doubt, with your experience during all these years, you'll be able to fix up something satisfactory this side of the herring pond.

I must say I was a little surprised to hear your views about The Wilderness. I had always understood that the house had been made over to Esther in return for her share of the money left by your father, with which you started your venture in the States. In fact, I have a letter to that effect; and as, if Esther had retained the money, it would come to me under her will, I certainly think I have some rights in the matter. I'm afraid I couldn't consider paying you a rent for the house.

But I don't want to be unreasonable, and, though I do definitely maintain I'm entitled to remain in occupation of The Wilderness during my lifetime, I think we could manage to come to an agreement. I would even be prepared, for the sake of the affection I know subsisted between Esther and you, to acknowledge a joint interest. Thus if the house is let or sold, we could make an equal division of the proceeds.

I'm sure you'll consider this suggestion in the spirit in which it is made. We can go into details on your return, which I hope will be soon.

Very sincerely,
T. J. Kennedy.

Tim was rather pleased with this letter, which seemed to him to show a happy blending of firmness with conciliation.

For the next fortnight he was able to sustain himself with the hope that Neddy would see reason.

Then came a reply, prompt, brisk, and uncompromising, and his fool's paradise was blown to atoms.

Dear Kennedy,

Your suggestion is preposterous. I can hardly believe that you were unaware that the property was entailed, and that you have no rights in it whatsoever.

With regard to the private adjustment of our father's legacy, made between Esther and myself, I can hardly see where you come in, and you allusion to it seems to me, to put it plainly, an impertinence. Since you have seen fit to mention it, though, allow me to point out you have derived very considerable benefit from it. For over nine years you have lived rent free in a house whose annual value is probably over £400, the total sum this amounting to almost double what I received from Esther.

I do not see that you have any grounds for complaint. Under the circumstances your proposal that I allow you "a joint interest" hardly appeals to me.

I shall make my own arrangements on returning to England. I find now that I shall not be able to come over till the New Year. I am willing to allow you to remain in occupation, rent free, until Christmas, but I shall expect you to be out of the house by then.

I hardly think it necessary for this correspondence to continue. If you have any further communication to make to me, I would prefer you to do it through my Uncle Harold.

Yours faithfully,
Ed. Ashwell.

Plainly there was nothing more to be done. Things were looking bad.

At this juncture Tim thought of Mower. Seen in the light of his present position the proposal made a few weeks back, insolent though he had thought it at the time, seem-

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S INDIAN PAINTS

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School as Uncle Wiggily hopped in one day to bring her back the dictionary. "Ha! Ha! Ha! Wasn't it funny?"

"It really was," said the rabbit gentleman.

He had been telling Miss Mouse whom he sometimes helped with her home work, how he caught the nose of the Bob Cat between the pages of the hard wood dictionary book and sent him scurrying away.

That was why Miss Mouse laughed. Uncle Wigilly also laughed as he asked:

"Any more home work I can help you with today, Miss Mouse?"

"Thank you, no," she answered. "This is Friday and tomorrow is Saturday with no school so there is no home work."

"All right," said Uncle Wiggily, as he put the dictionary on the desk of the Lady Mouse Teacher. "Then I will have nothing with which to fool the Bad Chaps if I meet any on my way home through the woods."

No, Thanks

"Oh, I hope you don't meet any," squeaked Miss Mouse. Squeakink was her way of talking, just as mooing is for a cow. Only, of course, the Lady Mouse Teacher of the Hollow Tree School wasn't a cow. "I surely hope you don't meet any of the Bad Chaps on your way home from here," said Miss Mouse.

"I hope the same," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Especially the Bob Cat," continued Miss Mouse, "whom now you pinched in the dictionary book.

"No, I wouldn't want to meet him," said the rabbit gentleman, twinkling his pink nose and twiddling his whiskers.

Then Uncle Wiggily looked at the desk of Miss Mouse and on it he saw some crayons, colored red, green, blue, pink, white and purple.

"Have you been coloring Easter eggs, Miss Mouse?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Oh, no," she answered. "Those are Indian paints, or crayons."

"Indian paints?" exclaimed Mr. Longears.

"Yes," went on Miss Mouse. "You know here in my school I teach my little animal children pupils as nearly as I can like the teachers of real boys and girls in other schools. There they study Indians, you know."

"They do? You mean in other schools?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Yes. Indians, you know, especially in our United States, have a part in the history of our country. The Indians were the first Americans. So we study about them."

War Paint

"But what has paint to do with that?" asked the rabbit, partly because he wanted to know and partly because he liked to hear Miss Mouse squeak when she talked. "What did the Indians do with paint?"

"They painted their faces," said Miss Mouse. "They streaked their faces with red, blue, green, yellow and purple paint, or with soft stones like by crayons here."

"But why did they do that?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"As I told my pupils in Indian history class today," said Miss Mouse, "when I drew pictures of painted Indian faces, they did it for two reasons. One was to frighten away their enemies."

"Like Bad Chaps?" asked the rabbit.

"Just like them," agreed Miss Mouse. "Another reason the Indians painted their faces was to make them look like the Autumn leaves in woodland colors—then they wouldn't be so easily seen. But I can't tell you any more now, Uncle Wiggily. I must scurry home."

So Miss Mouse scurried home, leaving Mr. Longears in school looking at the Indian crayons. Something was going to happen. I will tell you about it in the story Uncle Wiggily's Indian face. But please don't let the flat tire pretend to be a pancake with maple sugar on it.

ALBERTA'S SIXTH BY-ELECTION SET FOR DECEMBER 2

EDMONTON, Nov. 12 (CP).—When voters in Lethbridge provincial constituency go to the polls Dec. 2 to elect a member of the Alberta legislature it will be the sixth by-election since the Social Credit government of Premier Aberhart was elected in August, 1935.

The first two by-elections were arranged to permit the seating of Premier Aberhart and Charles C. Ross, former minister of lands and mines in the legislature shortly after the general election. C. H. Tade of Colinton resigned the Athabasks seat and Mr. Ross was elected by acclamation and William Morrison of Okotoks-High River resigned and Premier Aberhart was elected by acclamation.

Elevation of Mr. Justice W. R. Howson, former leader of the Liberal party, to the bench necessitated the third by-election. In this by-election in Edmonton June 22, 1936, Dr. Walter Morrish, Liberal, was elected with a majority of 144 over his Social Credit opponent.

E. L. Gray, provincial Liberal leader, won the Edmonton provincial by-election Oct. 7, 1937, which had been necessitated by the death of George Van Allen, Liberal member. Mr. Gray was elected with a majority of 4 477 in a five-cornered fight. He was nominated by the Liberals and endorsed by Conservatives.

The forthcoming by-election in Lethbridge constituency was necessitated by the resignation of Hans E. Wight, Social Credit member, who recently moved to Calgary to make his home. In the general elections of 1935, Mr. Wight won the seat with a majority of 1,759 in a four-cornered fight.

In the five by-elections held to date, the result has been the same as in the general election of 1935. The present standing of the legislature is: Social Credit, 52; Liberals, five; Indpendents, three; Conservatives, two; vacant, one. Total, 63.

ed to offer almost his last way out. Not quite his last, for there was still Alma, but his reluctance to reveal to her, much less involve her in, his financial difficulties, remained overwhelming.

His position had indeed reached a pretty desperate stage. For now he was faced not only with the necessity of making a stiff regular payment to Adams, but also with the task of finding a new home. It was true that that home would probably be Maybank, for which in the last resort he would not have to pay any rent, but he could not easily reconcile himself to the prospect of so humiliating a loss of independence.

It had become more than ever necessary to buy off Adams, and for that he must have a sufficient quantity of ready money. No matter if he did suffer a loss in income through the partnership—though, actually, he knew this would be nothing so substantial as he had suggested to Mower—it would enable him to get straight again.

Nevertheless, it was with great difficulty that he brought himself to the point of approaching Mower. He disliked the young man, and he cherished his professional independence. He had always been his own master, and the sacrifice went against the grain. However, one morning he rang up Mower and invited him to lunch at the William and Mary.

Mower could talk about nothing but Rugby football when they met. He had recently been to see the All Blacks play, and he treated Tim to a long account of the game, leading on to more personal reminiscences of his own athletic career when a student.

Tim heard him out with polite patience, hoping he was successful in concealing his utter lack of interest in Mower's prowess as a scrum half. What he had ben assuming was that sooner or later the man would come out with some such remark as "I don't know if you've thought any more about that suggestion I made the other day"; but they reached, and half consumed, their coffee without any such words being spoken. Tim saw that he would have to make the running, and he ordered liqueurs.

EDEN REJECTS JAP PLEA WAR HER OWN AFFAIR

GREEK VESSEL SINKS, 6 SAVED 22 ARE MISSING

14 Said in Lifeboat; 8 in Water Off Virginia

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 13 (A.P.).—Coastguard headquarters here reported the Greek freighter Trenychandris sank to-day off Diamond Shoals Lightship and that six members of the crew were rescued from a lifeboat by the steamship Swiftsure.

Coastguard officials said the Swiftsure reported: "We picked up six men in lifeboat 30 miles north-west Diamond Shoals light vessel. Survivors claim eight men in water with lifebelts. We will search for them in vicinity. Signed—Allen, Master."

The cutters Mendota, Bibb and Bonne were despatched to the scene to join the cutter Sebago which had already been sent.

Another lifeboat, said to contain 14 members of the crew, was reported adrift on a foggy sea 30 to 40 miles north-east of Diamond Shoals.

EX-CONVICT TRIO HELD IN KIDNAP

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 13—(AP).—A trio of former convicts face charges today of kidnapping Dr. James I. Seder, 79-year-old dry leader, and attempting to extort $50,000 ransom from his family.

They were seized by Federal agents and West Virginia officers within 24 hours after a farmer found the former missionary and retired evangelical minister exhausted and bruised near an abandoned mine where he was held prisoner for 11 days.

R. E. Yetterli of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said the three, Arnett Booth, John Travis and Orville Atkins, admitted participation in the abduction and extortion attempt.

Yetterli said the kidnappers demanded $50,000 from Seder's sons, Arthur Seder of St. Paul and Willard Seder, officer of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in Pittsburgh. "If you want your father back alive." No money was paid, he said.

MINER IS JAILED 1,500 WALK OUT

SPRINGHILL, N. S., Nov. 13. — (CP).—Fifteen hundred Springhill miners, employed at No. 2 and No. 4 collieries of the Dominion Coal Company, were idle to-day because a company worker was refused bail on a contempt of court charge.

After a three-hour session of United Mine Workers last night, a statement was given out declaring the men would not work to-day.

Walter MacDonald was to appear before Magistrate Lambert yesterday on a charge of tampering with mine signals contrary to the Mines Regulation Act. When he failed to appear a warrant was sworn out and McDonald arrested.

Refusal of the Magistrate to free him on bail led other workers to decide to tie up the mine.

Bigger Cut In Profits Is Ontario's Aim For Laboring Man

Province's Policies to Call General Respect For Canadian Institutions, MacBride Claims

BRANTFORD, Nov 13.—(CP)—Labor policy of the Ontario government will demand respect for Canadian institutions and laws by both employers and employees, Hon. M. M. MacBride, said at a banquet in his honor here last night.

A larger share of production profits for labor will be one of the objects of his department, Mr. MacBride said. Present at the banquet honoring the elevation of Brantford's mayor to a cabinet seat were three cabinet colleagues, the Speaker of the Legislature and the wife of a fourth cabinet minister.

Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs; Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Highways Minister and representing Premier Hepburn, unable to attend because of weather conditions in Northern Ontario where he is at present; Hon. Peter Heenan, Forests Minister; Hon. N. O. Hipel, Speaker of the Legislature and Mrs. Harry Nixon, wife of the Provincial Secretary, attended the meeting.

"The government in which I have the honor to be Minister of Labor is committed to a definite policy of aiding the working people," Mr. MacBride said. "We shall insist that there be due respect for law and order and that there shall be no unlawful interference with private property."

Mr. McQuesten said labor would play an important part in the policies of the government. "There never was a greater opportunity than exists today to settle perplexing and outstanding labor questions and the present government intends to legislate in the interests of all classes, particularly the working class," he added.

GRAVE DESECRATED AT ASHBURN PLOT SPITE SUSPECTED

ASHBURN, Ont., Nov. 13.—(CP).—Malicious removal and destruction of grave stones from the plot where his grandfather, George Hickingbottom, is buried was charged to-day by Andrew Bryant, farmer near here. Auburn is 12 miles north of Whitby.

Bryant said crow bars and sledge hammers were used to uproot and break nine marble pillars and ornamental iron piping about the grave in Presbyterian church cemetery.

"It must be spite work," said Bryant. "I know of no reason why anyone should have a spite against me. If that is what happens to a man who is dead 30 years what is to become of us when we are buried?"

W. A. Kerr, church board member, said he did not think the desecration was spite work. Provincial Constable W. H. Clark said the alleged offence was committed some time ago.

Young Cyclist Hurt In Street Accident

William Smith, 14, of 514 Gilchrist street was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital early Friday evening with a fractured left leg, police report, as the result of being struck from the bicycle he was riding at the intersection of George and Simcoe streets. John Lovely, 413 Sheridan street was alleged to be the driver of the truck involved. It was learned that the truck was proceeding north on George street and was turning left at Simcoe street when it was involved in collision with the bicycle. The cyclist was riding south on George street. The accident occurred shortly after 5 p.m. Dr. J. M. O'Brien attended.

A BOROUGH WAR

LONDON, Nov. 13 (C.P.). — It looks like war between South London shopkeepers and the mobile street merchants who display everything on their barrows from hairpins to shrubbery.

London County Council regulation stipulates certain days for district closing. The barrow-men move from one borough to another and escape the closing edict.

Traders' Association declares this gives the mobile street-merchants an advantage, and in retaliation 500 shopkeepers of South London have decided to remain open on Sundays.

ASK SAFETY ZONE IN SOOCHOW CITY

SHANGHAI, Nov. 13 (A.P.).—The Japanese were requested to-day to create a safety zone for foreigners at Soochow, city west of Shanghai which the Japanese have threatened with bombardment.

Negotiations were begun with the Japanese Embassy at the request of United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson to whom American missionaries in the Soochow vicinity had pleaded for help.

A Japanese official disclosed negotiations were in progress, but said there had been no decision regarding creation of a refugee zone at Soochow.

A message received at the American School in Shanghai, however, said all foreigners had evacuated Soochow, in the path of the Japanese westward advance to-day.

Soochow, once the capital of a Chinese dynasty and now one of China's cultural and literary centres, apparently was in danger of a heavy Japanese air attack.

SUFFOCATES IN SNOW

Mrs. G. F. Harrington of Millbrook (BELOW) was driving over the C.N.R. crossing at Fraserville when her car was struck on the right front fender and shoved into the ditch at the side of the tracks. The driver and two passengers in the car fortunately escaped possible death or serious injury.

Runaway Balloon Plunges Million Into Darkness

British Sausage Drifts To France, Cuts Wires, Sets Fire, Heads For Belgium

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, France, Nov. 13 (AP)—A runaway sausage balloon of the British Royal Air Force, trailing a cable across high tension wires, escaped pursuers today on its madcap course over Northern France.

The balloon, carrying thousands of dollars worth of meteorological instruments, cut high tension wires last night near Audruicq, causing a short circuit and setting the town's post office afire.

The homes of an estimated 1,000,000 inhabitants of northern France were plunged into darkness.

Short circuits darkened the lights and cut electric services in Calais, Boulogne, St. Omer and Bethune. Power was cut off until the cables were repaired.

The balloon, which snapped its mooring at an airdrome near Ramsgate last night and crossed the English Channel, was reported drifting toward Belgium. Although its cable still dangled, its contact with electric wires had not damaged it.

(The balloon was described in London as one of a number stationed at Royal Air Force airdromes throughout England to register wind currents and temperatures at various heights. The information was used for air-weather charts.)

No Liverwurst Proof Wife's Love Lost

New York, Nov. 13 (UP)

MR. Charles A. Stiff got on the witness stand in Supreme Court today and said he had suspected for some time that he had lost his wife's love, but was sure of it when she began leaving liverwurst out of his lunch box.

Mr. Stiff is suing his brother-in-law, Oscar F. Douglas, Jr., for $250,000 alleging alienation of affections. It seems that Mr. Stiff and Mr. Douglas married sisters.

WEARING ASSAILS GOSSIP DANGERS

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP).—Danger of gossip, prejudice, and misguided sympathy in everyday life was stressed by Judge Joseph Wearing of London, Ont., in an address to the Windsor-Detroit McMaster Alumni Association here last night. He urged his hearers to apply logic to all they heard, said or did.

"In these days people are cynical on the whole question of authority," said the Judge. "That is why the Church of Rome is friendly to the Fascist form of government, because they want authority to back them up."

Judge Wearing contended politicians rely neither on truth nor logic. They guide themselves by the often misguided will of the people, as did Pontius Pilate in freeing Barabbas. "The way it works out, there isn't any reasonable judgment on the part of the voters," he said.

The Judge said newspapers often make it impossible for a man to have a fair trial. He said in British countries the press has standards to which it tries to adhere. No British paper will publish that which might obstruct the course of justice, but in other countries "it is horrible, from the standpoint of a British judge," the extent to which "trial by newspaper" is carried.

"The case of Bruno Hauptmann (in the Lindbergh kidnapping case) was an instance. I believe that he was justly found guilty, but if he had been innocent, he could not have received a fair trial because of the way the case was tried in the newspapers."

$600,000 STATUE

LONDON, Nov. 13 — (CP). — A memorial statue, 10 feet high, to King George V. will be erected opposite the Victoria Tower to the Houses of Parliament on a site costing £120,000 ($600,000).

It will depict the King standing in a naval uniform and wearing Garter robes. It is being carried out to the design of Sir William R. Dick, R.A. The cost is being met by an allocation from the £600,000 King George V Memorial Fund.

The fund has provided 41 playing fields as memorials to the late monarch. The playing fields have already cost £391,000.

BOTH OATS, WHEAT LOWER FOR YEAR

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—(CP).—Canada's 1937 wheat crop was estimated at 182,505,000 bushels in to-day's crop report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This is a reduction of more than 5,500,000 bushels from the September estimate of 188,181,000.

To-day's estimate for oats was also 7,600,000 bushels lower than that of September.

Total yields of the principal grain crops in Canada are now estimated by the bureau, in bushels, as follows, with the 1936 figures in brackets: Wheat 182,505,000 (229,218,00); oats 274,468,000 (271,778,000); barley 85,969,000 (71,922,000); rye, 5,749,000 (4,281,0); peas 1,178,600 (1,229,300; beans 1,178,500 (876,000); buckwheat 7,522,000 (8,601,000); mixed grains 36,389,000 (33,639,000); flaxseed 687,300 (1,795,300); corn for husking 6,492,00o (6,083,000).

The average yields per acre, in bushels, are as follows, with the 1936 averages in brackets: Wheat 7.1 (9.1); oats 21.0 (20.7); barley 19.8 (16.) rye, 6.4 (6.7); peas 14.0 (13.3); beans 27.4 (13.7); buckwheat 19.0 (21.6); mixed grains 32.3 (28.7); flaxseed 2.8 (3.8); corn for husking 39.2 (37.0).

THREATEN TO CLOSE ORILLIA FACTORY

ORILLIA, Ont., Nov. 13—(CP). — R. W. Phelps, head of Tudhope-Anderson Co., one of Orillia's largest industries, told the town council last night he was taking immediate steps to liquidate his interests in the concern and close the factory because of a "ridiculously high" tax assessment.

"We have been operating at a loss and if the town isn't willing to back me up, then I am ready to quit," he said. "If they are not interested, I'm not."

Yesterday he reduced the company's employment roll from 156 to 133. He said he would make further reductions in the staff to-day and next week.

HONOR HOWE, CAMPBELL

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Nov. 13.—(CP).—Hon. C. D. Howe, Federal Transport Minister, and Hon. Colin Campbell, Ontario Minister of Public Works, whom Mr. Howe believes are the only two civil engineers ever to become Ministers of the Crown in the British Empire, were guests last night at the same banquet table here. Mr. Howe declared he was the first civil engineer to become a Cabinet Minister in the Empire and Mr. Campbell the second.

Must Keep Treaties If World Peace Desired, He Warns

Davis, U.S. Envoy, Backs British Attitude; Sees Issue One of Greatest Facing Mankind

BRUSSELS, Nov. 13. —(CP Cable)— Foreign Secretary Eden, in a strong speech before the nine-power treaty conference, today rejected the Japanes plea that the war in the far east was a matter for Japan and China alone.

"The mere recollection of recent events," Mr. Eden declared, "shows how unacceptable such an idea must be to us."

Great Britain, he said firmly, believed there was only one way for the preservation of world peace. That lay not in national ambitions, alliances, or idealogies, but in respect for international law and in the observance of treaties.

After a round of speeches by the heads of delegations, the conference adjourned until tonight when the text of a declaration drafted by the British, United States, and French delegations, in the light of Japan's rejection of a second invitation to attend the conference, will be distributed to the other delegations.

Davis Joins Eden.

Norman Davis, chief of the United States delegation, and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos of France joined Mr. Eden in emphasizing the importance of respect for international treaty obligations.

Dr. Davis declared that the question of whether international relations shall be determined by arbitrary force or by law and respect for international treaties was "the greatest issue that faces the world to-day and is one of the most momentous problems that mankind has been called upon to solve."

M. Delbos argued that only by respect for international treaties could peace endure.

"Any solution by force," the French delegate exclaimed, "would neither in law, nor in fact, settle in a satisfactory and durable manner the relations between Japan and China."

Peace in the Far East, like world peace, was linked to respect for international law.

Only Way to Escape Conflict.

Mr. Eden warmly supported the declarations of the heads of the United States and French delegations. In respect for international law and the pledged word lay the only hope.

"By these means, and by these means alone, can the world escape further ordeal such as it passed through 20 years ago," the British delegate declared.

"That does not imply we will not consider any change, at any time, on any subject. Such an attitude would be impossible to uphold, for the world is not static.

"But it does imply that we are opposed to changes brought about by force, that if such changes continue to be attempted, on whatever pretext, ten civilization will proceed, by ever-increasing suffering, to destruction."

It was on respect for international law that the British Government based its international policy. It was the only basis acceptable to the British Government. The British Government was convinced it was the only basis which would achieve the end all most desired—the preservation of world peace.

VICAR RESENTS CALL TO EXPLAIN REBUFF TO DUKE

PARIS, Nov. 13—(AP).—Rev. I. L. C. Dart—asked by his superior for information on his rebuff to the Duke of Windsor—said to-day, he probably would answer, but "no one on this earth as the ecclesiastical right to demand an explanation of me; neither the Bishop of Fulham, the Archbishop of Canterbury, nor anyone else."

The Rt. Rev. Basil Staunton Batty, Bishop of Fulham, wrote from England, asking details of the situation created by the Rev. Dart's remarks on the Duke's plan to attend Armistice Day services at St. George's Church.

Mr. Dart had said, "I would rather the Duke did not attend the services."

The vicar also had commented on the attitude of the Church of England toward divorce and re-marriage, reopening church criticism of the former monarch's marriage to a divorcee.

The rebuff, later the subject of a public apology by Mr. Dart, caused the Duke to cancel his plans to attend the ceremony. Associates said he was "stunned."

Just a Personal Note

The Bishop of Fulham, who supervises all Anglican churches on the Continent, said "the matter would appear ended, since the vicar had apologized.

Rev. Dart said the bishops letter was not a demand for a report, but more in the nature of a personal note asking for information.

The European edition of The New York Herald-Tribune editorially criticized the vicar, declaring the Duke "already is beginning to appear in the guise of a martyr to his own convictions which are more widely shared than was thought."

"Neither ecclesiastical practice nor Anglican moral theology would sanction any churchman barring a man from church for marriage reasons," the newspaper said.

The Paris Post of the British World War Legion, whose invitation to St. George's Windsor declined at the last minute, was reported planning to invite the former King to its annual dinner December 3.

15 KITTENS IN BAGS

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 13. —(CP).— Fifteen kittens in burlap bags, all alive, were found by Humane Society Inspector A. E. Marshall where they had evidently been dumped by a motorist. The kittens were destroyed and Mr. Marshall is hunting for the person who sought to get rid of them.

LOYALISTS STRIKE ON ARAGON FRONT

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 13.—(AP).—Spanish government forces opened an artillery drive to-day along the Aragon front while supporting war planes raided insurgent supply centres—all in an effort to delay the prospective insurgent push into Catalonia.

The gunners blasted at insurgent fortifications while aviators bombed Teruel, Calatayud, Moline De Aragon and Pamplona, war bulletins reported. Insurgent headquarters said more than 100 persons were killed at Pamplona.

In Northern Aragon, Catalan gunners, raking their enemy's front line, were said to have inflicted "great damage" in the vicinity of Cuesta Del Batanero.

The insurgents replied to this shelling, which started yesterday, and wrecked government communications, they reported. Infantry engagements were limited by heavy rains to skirmishes.

France has 306,000 unemployed, a drop of 25 per cent. in 12 months.

Wind And Circus Rider's Tights Started Pink Lemonade

Laundryman Spotted As Leper Case

Montreal, Nov. 13 (CP)

TO youthful Dr. Cecil Krakower goes credit for discovery of a case of leprosy in Montreal.

Home on holidays from his studies of tropical diseases at the University of San Juan at Porto Rico, Dr. Krakower met the Chinese laundryman at the door of his mother's home.

He suspected the deliveryman of having the disease, and city health investigators were summoned. Last week-end the Chinese was taken by airplane to the leper colony at Tracadie, N.B.

Accident With "Brew" Made Young Dispenser Famous 64 Years Ago

PLEMINGTON, N.J., Nov. 13. — (AP).—A circus woman's pink tights, so the story goes, accidentally made William Henry Griffith of Three Bridges famous 64 years ago.

Griffith was 80 yesterday. When he was in his 'teens, he was a circus refreshment dispenser, but there were no hot dogs, ice cream cones, chewing gum, packaged candies in those days. Grifith made his own tally and lemonade.

On a gusty May day in 1873—Griffith tells the tale—his lemonade was ready for customers. The bareback rider's tights were drying on a nearby line. Up blew the wind, down flew the tights—plump into Griffith's lemonade. A surprised young man was he when he found his concoction pink, not pale yellow.

It was too late to make up more, Griffith says, so he barked his own product:

"Step right up and get your pink lemonade. It's absolutely new."

Thus, so the story goes, was discovered pink lemonade.

Flinton Lad Falls Off Gravel Wagon And Wheel Crushes Him

Bellville, Nov. 13 (CP)

EVERTON Sedore, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sedore, resident one mile east of Flinton, 50 miles north of this city, was killed today when the rear wheel of a loaded gravel wagon passed over his head after he fell from the vehicle.

Coroner Dr. G. F. Wilson of Napanee decided the death was accidental and no inquest would be held.

The wagon was in charge of W. H. Spicer who told police he had warned the children not to jump around just before the accident. He said he was first aware of the fatality when one of the boys with the victim told him "Everton fell off."

Ask China Join Anti-Red Pact Oust Britain, France

Move Would Give Japan, Germany, Italy Strategic Bases In Fight With Russia

(Copyright by Havas News Agency.)

TOKYO, Nov. 13—(CP-Havas).—A six-point program for Chinese "co-operation" with Japan to end the Sino-Japanese conflict, based on the Nanking Government's adherence to the anti-Communist pact, was outlined to Havas by well-informed Japanese sources to-day.

This program which these sources understood has already been proposed to General Chiang Kai-Shek, Premier of China, by Germany and Italy, would give Germany, Italy and Japan important bases in China for action against the Soviet Union and would eliminate "undesirable" foreign influence in China—particularly that of Great Britain and France.

Japanese spokesmen consider the program would permit General Chiang to "save face" and present the peace conditions as a "moral victory" because they would align China with the "dynamic" powers and permit her to abolish concessions granted to "decadent" nations.

After defeat of his troops at Shanghai, General Chiang must accept such "co-operation" or submit to military downfall, according to general opinion here.

Door Open to Hitler?

The present moment is held particularly opportune for presentation of the alternative to General Chiang who, it is said, has not completely closed the door to the mediation

King, Queen Revisit Old Courting Spots

London, Nov. 13 (AP)

KING George and Queen Elizabeth decided yesterday to visit the scene of their courtship.

Breaking a routine of weekends at Windsor Palace, they motored from Buckingham Palace to the Hertfordshire countryside at St. Paul's, Waldenbury, where the Queen spent much of her girlhood, and the King wooed her.

They were guests of Hon. David Bowes-Lyon, the Queen's brother, and his wife.

Best Man Marries The Bride In Mix-Up Ceremony Has To Be Repeated

Belfast, N. Ireland, Nov. 12

THE best man at a wedding yesterday "married" the bride in a mix-up ceremony in a Presbyterian church in County Tyrone.

An amateur in his role, the best man took the wrong place at the start and made the responses of the bridegroom.

When the time came to say "I will," the best man replied, making the responses while the bridegroom stood by silently.

The mistake was discovered only when the parties were signing the register. The ceremony was started all over again—and this time the best man kept quiet.

TRADE MEN ASK FURTHER INQUIRY IN C.N.R. ECONOMY

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (CP) — The provincial government will be asked to name a board of qualified engineers and other competent persons to devise a long-range flood control, drought prevention and reforestation program for southern and western Ontario.

Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce meeting here yesterday heard William Porter, London farm paper editor, tell of the troubles that have followed the cutting of forests and the depletion of swamps and then adopted resolutions calling on the province to act.

If every available sapling were planted for the next twenty-five years the land that cannot now be used profitably for agriculture would not be filled, Mr. Porter said. The music of trees falling had become sweet to those who settled Ontario and now the penalty was being paid in drought and flood.

The businessmen called on the federal government to look further into the railway operation economies proposed in the Duff Royal Commission report. Only a small part of the saving suggested in the report had been realized. Meanwhile the national treasury was being drained by Canadian National Railways deficits.

In any plan of economy through co-operation and co-ordination of the two great railway systems consideration should be given to adequate compensation for railway workers who might be displaced. J. J. Gibbons, Toronto, said the nation could pension these and be financ-

GLUT IS FEARED, DROUGHT CATTLE

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (CP).—It is a little too much to expect city-bred girls to teach agriculture to boys being raised on the farm, William Reek, Ontario Deputy Minister of Agriculture, yesterday told the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.

Hamilton Chamber of Commerce had a number of resolutions dealing with farm problems. One started: "Whereas it is most desirable that the sons and daughters of our present farmers make farming their life work." It then went on with a call for the teaching of agriculture to make farm boys and girls fit for the farm.

Mr. Reek said nobody had the right to suggest that a person should stay on the farm because he or she was born there. Some farmers' sons and daughters were needed for the cities. As for the teaching of agriculture in the primary schools, it was impractical to expect a city girl to teach farm-raised boys and girls anything about the farm.

Drive On Weeds.

Other Hamilton resolutions called for the building up of a strong Provincial markets department to assist farmers in the orderly marketing of their products; for a campaign on noxious weeds and for government assistance to the improvement of livestock.

President Russell Kelly, Hamilton, said poor farming was costing millions. The only way to keep the farmer on the farm was to make farming more profitable.

Mr. Reek said so far as the marketing of farm products went, it was a matter for self-help. The government could provide market intelligence and perhaps assist in the formation of marketing organizations.

"It is doubtful if we should go much further," he said.

Frank Biggs, Hamilton, said the Ontario beef cattle industry would face a crisis unless some orderly marketing plan for the 90,000 cattle from Western drought areas now being fed in the province were quickly drawn. He feared a market glut.

Train Hits Truck Kills 1, Hurts 2

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 13—(CP).—One man was killed and two injured to-day when a double-header Canadian National Railways freight train struck a truck on Moore's sideroad a mile west of Caledonia.

Charles Goulding, 18, of Fruitland, was killed. Steve Danyshyn, 20, and Victor Bowley, 18, both of Fruitland, were brought to hospital here. Their injuries were reported not to be serious.

Skippy Missing From His Home

Has anybody seen "Skippy," the pet talking crow belonging to Bert Curtis, 584 Downie Street? He disappeared on Thursday morning and has not been back home since.

"I'm quite worried," Mrs. Curtis said this afternoon. "He often goes away, but this is the first time he has been out all night. Other times he's been away, we've had lots of telephone calls to let us know where he is, but this time we've had none."

The Curtis' will be grateful if those noting the whereabouts of the friendly wandering bird will 'phone 1959J.

DIES OF BURNS

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP).—Miss Susan Wright, 76, of Hamilton, died in hospital here last night from body burns suffered when her clothing became ignited. Police said a spark from the cord of an electric toaster touched her apron, causing the thin garment to burst into flames. Her niece, Mrs. W. H. Stoker, smothered the blaze with a heavy rug.

Collegiate Notes

REMBRANCE DAY SERVICE.

Wednesday morning the student body observed a very impressive Armistice Day service. Lieut.-Col. M. H. Park of the Normal school staff, was guest speaker. Following the singing of the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," Lieut.-Col. Park emphasized the younger generation's duty in preserving world peace. The service concluded with the hymn, "Abide With Me." A period of two minutes' silence followed by the sounding of the Last Post and then "God Save the King."

Slides of former members of the school who had given their lives in the Great War were shown on the screen.

938 Cadet Corps.

Rapid progress is being made toward production of a bigger and better cadet corps than ever before. A well attended class of officers and N.C.O.'s is being held regularly in the armouries under the supervision of Captain H. A. Craig. There is also a large class, especially for those who are interested in machine gun drilling. This class is a continuation of last year's innovation. Its members study the mechanism of the machine gun first, before they actually engage in shooting.

The First Aid Corps is taking instructions from the St. John Ambulance Brigade. Members are indebted to L. E. Tompkins, who has instructed the classes for the past two years. This year the Corps is being trained by A. O. Phillips, who has already conducted several meetings. Jack Craig, son of Dr. J. J. Craig, received the medallion, one of the highest awards of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Jim Lillico and John Hooper are again in charge of the signallers.

PC.I.'s Rugby.

The senior rugby team was quite successful in winning the group championship with six successive victories. They are now awaiting to advance further into the Ontario playdowns against Albert College of Belleville on Nov. 20th. This will be a sudden death game played in Peterborough.

The winners of this game will enter the semi-finals against Barrie. This year Coach Jackson's juniors made a very good showing but were unable to capture the championship. Although they did not get to the top they will be a great help to Coach Bamforth's 1938 squad.

Glee Club.

The new Glee Club is forming rapidly under the expert leadership of Martin B. Chenhall. Already nearly 150 students are working faithfully in the evenings after 4 o'clock. The school is looking to this club for talent for another operetta, if one is presented this year.

The addition of Bob Graham with a saxaphone, Jim Lillico and Allen Brown, with violins, as a support to Merrell Smith at the piano, has been a pleasant innovation at the morning assemblies. A new song leader in the person of Hugh Davidson is doing duty to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of C. S. Browne from the baton-wielding job.

Observation Platform.

The Students' Council has fulfilled one of the recent campaign promises by introducing one popular song a week.....The first Literary Society meeting will be held Monday, November 15. Entertainment will be provided by 4A and 5B Academic.....A girl's badminton club is being formed in the school and is being received with a great deal of enthusiasm.....There have been school dances held regularly in the evenings of home rugby games, with music by George Broadley on the piano.....A girl's inter-form volley ball tournament is to be staged on Nov. 24th.....The school symphony orchestraa, conducted by E. J. Weames, is shaping into fine form and will provide music for the first literary mee ting.

BUYING SWAMPS WHEAT MARKETS

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13 (C.P.). — Spectacular buying swamped world wheat markets on Friday on reports of severe frost damage in the Argentine. Prospects of more frost focused eyes on the southern country where new-crop production estimates dropped below 200,000,000 bushels and exportable wheat surplus to about 70,000,000.

Argentine crop conditions supplied the spark that touched off a long overdue rally in world markets. Wheat futures on Winnipeg Grain Exchange slid to new seasonal low levels in listless trading earlier, but bounded back to show gains of 7⅛? 8¼ cents for the week.

July which came on the board last Saturday gained nine cents and at Friday's close sold at $1.08¼-⅜. Other futures closing prices were: November $1.21, December $1.16½, and May $1.14.

Frost damage, rust infestation, and root-rot caused by too much rain earlier in the month, all took toll in the Argentine. These bullish reports dominated dealings on Friday. After the Armistice Day holiday buyers scrambled for wheat holdings.

Exporters turned to North America where 3,000,000 bushels of wheat were reported sold, most of it United States grades. However, sales of Canadian wheat for the week totalled around 2,000,000 bushels, including two cargoes of durums to Greece.

Estimates of this week's Argentine wheat crop damages were from 25,000,00 to 75,000,000 bushels, severely cutting previous crop production forecasts of 227,000,000 bushels.

Modification of the short-week legislation is being urged in France.

A timber railway is being built between Tomsk and Chulym in Siberia.

JAPS CUT BOOM OVER WHANGPOO HEAD UP RIVER

Plan to Run Supplies Through Settlement

SHANGHAI, Nov. 13 (AP)—A Japanese gunboat successfully crossed the partly broken boom obstructing the upper Whangpoo River today after armed Japanese naval launches had swept the stream of mines, exploding several harmlessly.

The exploratory voyage up the Whangpoo and the trip of two other armed launches up the Soochow creek indicated Japanese preparations to use both streams to transport military supplies to its armies advancing westward toward Nanking.

Japanese declared officially they intended using Soochow creek to transport supplies through the international settlement. Foreign defence officers avoided possible friction, recognizing the creek was an open waterway.

Before the Chinese withdrawal from Shanghai, British officials prevented armed Japanese launches from proceeding up the creek.

Shanghai Quiet

Restored quiet in Shanghai and Japanese naval plans to widen the breach in the boom to permit passage of destroyers up the stream was expected soon to make possible resumption of the waterway's normal traffic.

Japanese planes, widening their activities, bombed the railway station and warehouses at Ningpo, on the south shore of Hangchow Bay in Chekiang province, and concentration areas north of Kaling and west of Kashan, in the Hangshow Bay region south of Shanghai.

A number of fires still were blazing in Nantao, the native area bordering the French concession, and in Pootung, the once rich agricultural and industrial district across the Whangpoo from the International Settlement.

Otherwise, after three months of almost incessant fighting, all was proposal attributed to Chancellor Hitler.

The Japanese Government apparently is determined not to permit the Brussels Far-Eastern Conference to under take such mediation.

The six major peace conditions were outlined to Havas as follows:

1.—China's adherence to the Italo-German-Japanese anti-Communist pact.

2. Maintenance of Nanking's nominal sovereignty over all China.

3. Demilitarization of all Chinese provinces north of the Yellow River by a broad interpretation of the 1935 Sino - Japanese agreement which included abolition of local armies and consolidation of administrative autonomy.

4. Withdrawal by Japan—as compensation for fulfillment of point three—of all her troops north of the Yellow River after a period of several years.

5. Slight extension of the demilitarization of the Shanghai region, provided in the agreement of 1932.

6. Recognition by the Nanking government of "the free disposition of the Mongol and Manchu minorities" which would entail de facto recognition of the independence of Manchoukuo and Japanese-controlled inner Mongolia.

At the same time Chinese adherence to the anti-Communist pact would imply the following measures:

1. The presence of Italian, German and Japanese advisers in the Nanking government's diplomatic, economic and military services.

2. Re-organization of the Chinese armies and the "anti-Communist defence corps," deprived of any offensive arms.

3. Utilization of strategic basis in China by the anti-Communist powers.

4. Economic cooperation between China, Japan and Italy.

5. Elimination of "undesirable" foreign influence by "the recovery of China's integrity from Anglo-French-Soviet encroachments."

Japanese authorities, Havas informants said, could make the terms palatable to public opinion here by pointing out that China's adherence to the anti-Communist pact would mean Nanking's definite renunciation of anti-Japanese "agitation" and of support from Geneva, London and Moscow.

POTATOES ARE OFF FIVE CENTS A BAG

Potatoes were off five cents a bag and eggs ranged more widely in price on the Farmers' Market this morning. In a drizzling rain on the outdoor market, farmers yielded from the 75 cent price which has prevailed for the past six weeks and accepted 70 cents a bag for their potatoes.

For eggs, prices ranging all the way from 35 to 45 cents a dozen were asked, the lower prices prevailing later in the morning. Chickens were 20 to 25 cents a pound, turkeys 30 cents, geese 20 cents and ducks 23 to 25 cents. Butter sold from 28 to 32 cents a pound.

Small offerings of apples were made at prices from 25 to 40 cents a peck. Pork brought 12 to 14 cents a pound for quarters.

RUSH EXPORTS FROM BRAZIL

So anxious are mine owners of Brazil to export minerals that railways cannot handle the heavy shipments to ports.

Premier Attends Memorial Services

RECOVERY SHOWS IN BASE METALS; GOLDS EASE OFF

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (CP).—Price movements of stocks did practically nothing this week to indicate what might be expected in the near future and the end of the period found quotations slightly lower and trading volume about equal to the month's average.

The moderate recovery in the London quotations on the metals turned the attention of traders to the base metal group and the active issues recorded sizeable gains. Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Noranda and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting advanced $2 to $3.50 and International Nickel gained 65 cents in the week, producing a 2¼-point gain in the miscellaneous mines index of the Toronto market. The gold and the industrial share indices lost one to two points each.

Markets were not entirely dull, however. The sudden announcement of the formation of a dictatorship in Brazil was regarded with dismay by holders of Brazilian Traction stock and they sold heavily, causing a decline in the Toronto market of $3.35 in the week to $12.75, the lowest price touched by Brazilian in more than a year. The decline was even heavier in the London market.

Distillery Active.

The steady advance of Distillers Corporation-Seagrams over the last two weeks was explained on Thursday by the announcement of a 50-cent dividend on the common, the first distribution in years. On Friday the stock sold up to $18.25, where profit-taking became quite heavy and the price backed down to $17.50. It sold down to $10.50 in the weak market of October 19. Walkers Common drifted down $1.75 under moderate realizing. Spotty weakness developed during the week in the steels and foods.

Secondary gold issues held up under substantial buying but the seniors sagged widely. Lake Shore recorded a decline of $3, McIntyre $2.75, and Dome $2.25 and Hollinger 75 cents. Wright - Hargreaves, Macassa, Bralorne and Buffalo-Ankerite dropped 10 to 25 cents each. Among the gainers, O'Brien stood out with a net advance of 90 cents to $5.40 on the news that a new body of high grade ore had been found.

Silver shares continued to churn about within a narrow range on comparatively light volume. Eldorado closed three cents down at $1.80 and Mining Corporation was unchanged in the week.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13 (C.P.). — Wheat at $1.21 a bushel came back to the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday for the first time this month in a skyrocketing market that sent futures 5 to 4¼ cents higher. Big export business in North American wheat followed frost damage reports from the Argentine.

Destruction in Southern and Western Argentina, said to have destroyed approximately 75,000,00 to 60,000,000 bushels of new-crop wheat, shot the prices steadily upward since Monday. On November 8, July wheat slumped to 97¾ cents.

Argentina did not ship any wheat to European markets this week, marking the first time in several years, no business was reported for a week.

Export buyers turned to North America yesterday. Sales were estimated between 1,500,000 to 3,000,000 bushels, of which Canada contributed more than 500,000 bushels. More than a million bushels of Gulf hard wheat and 250,000 of Pacific Coast wheat were taken by Continental countries.

Liverpool gained more than five-pence in mid-session trading and when Winnipeg opened a huge volume of commission house orders appeared. Short-covering also was reported. Liverpool closed 2¾d to 4¾d higher, and Buenos Aires at noon 2% to 3 cents higher.

Though Black Sea shipments increased 160,000 bushels this week to 4,341,000, Russian movements dropped from 3,600,000 bushels to 2,140,000 bushels.

A good trade was reported in cash wheat though No. 1 and 2 Northern grades eased a cent at the close and were 21 and 17 cents above the November future respectively.

Speculative buying in rye and light demand for flax featured coarse grain operations.

WITNESSES

Jesus saith unto them:—Ye are witnesses of these things.
—St. Luke 24,48.

"Ye are martyrs of these things" is a free translation, for the word "witness" is our English word "martyr." As St. Luke, more than twenty five years later, writes this word he knew how truly it was fulfilled. As a physician he had attended to the wounds, bruises and purifying sores of many a witness who had been cruelly scourged and cast into a filthy prison to rot. Moreover he remembered those who had made the supreme sacrifice and laid down their lives as faithful witnesses.

What was their witness? That Jesus of Nazareth died on the Cross and rose from the dead and ascended into Heaven and is truly the Divine Son of God, "Who for us men and for our salvation, came down from heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary and was made man". This is the Christian religion; this is the witness for which men in every age suffered and died. How are we to witness, for the same Lord Jesus is speaking to us through His written word?

We are to be propogandists, to use a modern newspaper term. There will be times when you will have to confess your faith; that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. When the opportunity occurs you must not be ashamed to confess the faith of Christ crucified. But the most effective way of testifying is by being Christ like. The Spirit of Christ must enter into you and slowly, gradually the Christ will be formed in you. This is the outward and visible sign of the inward transforming power of the Holy Spirit. "Sir, we would see Jesus" asks the modern man of you. He is quick to recognize Him when he sees you reproduce His sweetness, His attractiveness, His purity, His lowly-mindedness, His patience. Perhaps in this rushing age patience is the virtue we most need. Patience is the opposite of passion. It means determination to endure; to endure bitter criticism, hostility, misunderstanding, loss of friendship. It is the martyr characteristic. "In patience ye shall possess your souls" is the Master's promise.

Above all you are to witness by the intensity of your faith that Jesus Christ is indeed the Son of God. This is an age of laxity of thought. There are many claiming to be Christian who extol Jesus as a wonderful Teacher. True, He is a Teacher. Others tell us He is a social reformer. True also. But He is more. Have you ever noticed His apparently contradictory claims. "Learn of Me for I am meek and lowly in heart" He cries. Then the meek and lowly One makes the astonishing statement: "I am the way; no man cometh unto the Father but by Me."

There is a most interesting passage in St. Matthew 11; 25-27, which is identical with St. Luke 10; 21,22: "All things are delivered unto me of My Father and no man knoweth the Son but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father save the Son and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal Him." Our Lord makes a most tremendous claim of Unity with the Father. This passage is considered by modern conservative scholars as being copied by the two Evangelists from that extraordinary Manuscript, perhaps a Diary kept by one of the Apostles during the ministry of Our Lord. If this is so we have the very words of Our Lord claiming to be the Divine Son of God in an unique sense. His ecclesiastical judge recognized that He made this claim: "The Jews answered Pilate; We have a law and by that law He ought to die because He made Himself the Son of God."

If you deny His claim then you cannot say He is a good man; or that His teaching is worthy of acceptance.

The martyrs of every age were men and women who were deeply convinced, not only by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in their hearts, but also by intellectual conviction of His Divine Sonship. In the days of sorrow, trouble, sickness, such a faith enables you to stand firm and men are quick to recognize you are not a man of straw. Can your intimate friend say: 'Now we believe, not because of thy saying, for we have heard Himself ourselves and know that this is indeed the Christ, the Saviour of the world?" Now hear me while I pray.

My faith looks up to Thee
Thou Lamb of Calvary,
Saviour Divine:
Now hear me while I pray.
Take all my guilt away,
O let me from this day
Be wholly Thine.
—Rev. Ray Palmer.

Silence Shattered

Two minutes silence at the cenotaph in London during the Memorial Day service was shattered when a demented man broke through the lines of the sailor guard and shouted, "All this is hypocrisy — you're deliberately preparing for war!" King George (ABOVE), standing in prayerful salute to the Great War dead, remained composed while police removed the man, later found to have escaped from an institution for the feeble-minded.

EXPLORES BRITISH GUIANA

VANCOUVER—(CP).—A mineral concession embracing 217,000 acres in British Guiana will be explored by William Dann, well-known British Columbia mining man, who has returned here from a five-month prospecting trip to the district where natives have been mining gold and diamonds for years.

National Message

By the late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, M.I.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

The House of David is the kingly line that first ruled over the Tribe of Judah alone; then over the twelve tribes; then over the two tribes that constituted the House of Judah; then, according to the oath of God contained in prophecy, it was to rule over the House of Israel. Israel in the Isles—not the portions of Israel during their scattering in Europe and Asia.

Ephraim is the birthright-holding tribe and the leader of the tribes of the House of Israel, which House is again and again addressed as Ephraim.

Israel in the Isles. These isles are indicated in Isaiah as north and west of Palestine. One body of scholars says it refers to Israel in the British Isles which lie in exactly that direction. This makes a good case, and it might rest there, but another group of scholars says it refers to "The coast lands," Israel in the coast lands.

Perhaps both are right. The latter would be an extention of division both chronologically and imperially, for Celto-Saxon peoples dwell in the coast lands as do no other people on the face of the earth. All the coast lands of Scandinavia, the British Isle and a large part of Western Europe, or, in other words, the north-west corner of Europe, are theirs. All the coast lands of North America from the border of Mexico to the Arctic Sea are theirs. The Panama coast lands are theirs. The coast of British Guiana, Honduras, British West Indies are theirs. The coast lands of New Zealand, Tasmania, and Australia are theirs. The coast of numerous islands of the Pacific Ocean are theirs. The coast lands of India and of the Straits Settlements and of Burma, to say nothing of other parts of Asia, are theirs. Numerous stretches of coast in Africa are theirs. So that whether one makes the Israel in the Isles to mean the British Isles or the British Empire and the U.S.A., the matter comes to the same thing in the end. Such are the meanings of the terms.

But Israel in the Isles has more than geographical meaning. Ethnologically it means the ancient Israel colony settled in Britain before the time of David and Solomon, and to which came all the tribes in due course.

"Yes people from far" can be construed in the light of context only. It evidently refers to those of the Israel captivity who, having been ordered to march out of the land of the Chaldeans to the end of the earth, had in due time arrived and been merged with "the Isles," with whom they are from that point forward identified.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

We stated last week that the supersensual or spiritual world was governed by law, system and order just as is the material world. What is not so easily realized though is that the knowledge of these laws constituted a part of the secret doctrine that was confined to the inner circle of the disciples and those closely associated with the Master. Some may argue that there is no such thing as a secret doctrine, but leaving aside what is taught in the great mystery schools, there are so many indications in the Scriptures themselves that such is the case, that denial is futile. The fact also remains that the disciples and apostles and the infant church in general, for a hundred or so years, and more, employed the higher powers in the production of "miracles," and also that the knowledge of these spiritual forces declined in the exact proportion that the Church became enmeshed in secular affairs. This shows that if there is one thing more important than another it is the necessity of what may be termed the single vision or the perception of the realities. We cannot subordinate the spiritual vision in favor of the worldly. If we do, we do violence to the truth. Likewise, we cannot truly reconcile the spiritual vision with the worldly, no matter how it may be expedient to do so, for then we do violence to ourselves. As the spiritual vision is the only true vision our efforts should be directed to the moulding of the material things to spiritual ends, and not, as so often is the case, doing exactly the opposite. "All things work together for good," provided that we make the good our goal, keeping it in the forefront as the motive for our efforts. What we do, whether it be digging ditches or directing the affairs of state is not so important. What is important is the spirit in which we approach our task. It must be remembered that the afflictions of this world are sent neither by God or devil, but are the results of our own muddled thinking that falsely separates God from man. They are the results of causes that we have set in motion, no matter whether they afflict us as individuals or en masse. Without exception, they all have their origin in self; the illusion of separateness which prevents man from realizing he is essentially a spiritual being, with Divine parentage, and that at the very core of his being dwells the Eternal Word of God. So in the self-hood of the outer mortal man he suffers and perishes; whereas if he but awakened to the Divine Love within him, he would no longer prostitute the gifts of God to unworthy ends, but doing everything to the glory of God, he would enter into his true kingdom. Then the earth would no longer be the "sorrowful star" but be again the paradise it once was.

Branch Notes

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

St. John's A.Y.P.A. held their annual district amateur nite on Wednesday evening. Over 250 people enjoyed the program put on in St. John's Parish Hall. Seven A.Y.P.A. Branches entered the contest, a shield being the trophy for the prize, one for the city and one for the district. St. John's entered three numbers—Jack Marshall and Beck Plumerfelt playing a piano duet, "Two Guitars"; a vocal solo by Vic Coleman, 'Whispering"; and a guitar solo by Jean McIlwain. Jack Marshall was master of ceremonies. The stage was kindly decorated by the Quaker Oats Company. Mr. George Nicholls led the community singing, and war songs were sung, it being so near Remembrance Day. Judges for the evening were Miss Kathleen McCarthy, William Hepburn and Malcolm Latimer.

Refreshments were served to the contestants, judges and out-of-town visitors, by Winnie Lord, Rose Puddick and Jean McIlwain. The proceeds of the evening are for the district treasury.

Two special numbers during the evening were singing and tap dancing by Lenore Gordon and a guitar selection by Lloyd Boudon.

All members going to the annual banquet at Bethany next, Wednesday are requested to be at the Parish Hall at six o'clock.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH

Thursday evening being literary night, was enjoyed by all who attended. The president opened the meeting after which two minutes silence was held in memory of the War dead. Miss Frances Legon, literary convenor introduced the speaker, Ken Weldon, who gave a very interesting talk on his trip around the world.

Rotary Song

In response to the demand for a theme song for Peterborough Rotarians, Dr. Barr sends in the following. It is sung to the tune of "Mandalay."

We are men of no mean city
On the banks of the Otonabee
And we think it is a pity
You don't know our industry;
For we puff up wheat like bullets
And we lift boats in pontoons
We make rugs like those from Persia
We line brakes for your balloons;
Yes! Line brakes for your balloons.
CHORUS
We're the Peterborough Rotary
With a laugh and a smile, you see;
Though we do make many a blunder
We plug on to victory;
We are brothers of one another
At the shrine of Rotary;
For the good of our fair city
On the grand Otonabee.

Sheppard's Life To Be Reviewed

The life and work of 'Dick Sheppard' will be reviewed by Rev. E. W. Young at St. Andrew's Church at the evening service on Sunday.

Two weeks ago one of the best-known ministers in England, popularly known as "Dick Sheppard" passed suddenly away. He had just gone through an exciting election in which he had been chosen as Lord Rector of Glasgow University, defeating Winston Churchill and two other candidates.

This versatile cleric was known from one end of Britain to another as "King's Chaplain," "Champion of Homeless Men," "Radio Preacher," "Leader of the Pacifists," "Canon and Precentor of St. Paul's Cathedral."

Whilst vicar of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, London, he made a refuge in the crypt of the church for homeless and destitute men and thus

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 14 is I Timothy, 4:1-16; II Timothy, 2:1-4, the Golden Text being I Timothy, 4:14, "Neglect not the gift that is in thee.")

ST. PAUL, by every right is entitled to give advice to Timothy. On the grounds of age, it is "Paul the aged" advising the "youth"; on the grounds of experience, Paul has spent three years as pastor in Ephesus where Timothy is beginning his ministry; furthermore, Timothy is as a son to Paul spiritually, and as Professor Plummer says, "Timothy might have called himself the disciple whom Paul loved."

Minister a "Good Mixer"

Some folk seem to believe that the chief requisite of a good minister is that he be "a good mixer." On the contrary, Paul seems to indicate that there are circumstances in which a good minister must be a good "separator," able to separate false teachers and false teaching from true, and to keep his people separate from the corrupt manner of life taught by such "seducing spirits." He warned Timothy concerning "the hypocrisy of men that speak lies, branded in their own conscience as with a hot iron." He said, "If thou put the brethren in mind of these things, thou shalt be a good minister of Christ Jesus, nourished in the words of faith, and of the good doctrine which thou hast followed until now."

Keeping Spiritually Fit

"Exercise thyself unto godliness," Paul advised, "for bodily exercise is profitable for a little, but godliness is profitable for all things, having promise of the life which now is, and of that which is to come. Faithful is the saying, and worthy of all acceptation." Thus Paul underscores his advice that the young minister keep himself spiritually fit as athletes keep themselves physically fit. The minister must take Christ and his salvation so seriously as to strive desperately to labor zealously for spiritual excellence for himself and for his people: "To this end we labor and strive because we have our hope set on the living God, who is the Saviour of all men, especially them that believe." The salvation of souls is serious business. Let the minister so regard it and strive for effectiveness in it.

Ministerial "Dead Line"

Evidently Paul did not consider the "ministerial dead line" an old man's peril more than a young man's peril. For he urged the youthful Timothy to make sure of his continued growth and development: "Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the laying on of the hands of the presbytery. Be diligent in these things; give thyself wholly to them; that thy progress may be manifest unto all. Take heed to thyself, and to thy teaching. Continue in these things; for in doing this thou shalt save both thyself and them that hear thee."

A Full Time Job

The peril of a minister's "going into business on the side" is that shortly he will find himself "in the minister on the side." Against this peril Paul warned Timothy: "Suffer hardship with me, as a good soldier of Christ Jesus. No soldier on service entangleth himself in the affairs of this life; that he may please him who enrolled him as a soldier." As long as hosts of his people hug the borderline of spiritual illiteracy the minister may best devote his time to this field rather than to telling them how to vote or how to do a number of other things in which their training and experience may greatly exceed his.

The Christian Minister — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Timothy 4:1-16; II Timothy 2:1-4.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buschkiel

On his first missionary journey Paul was stoned by a mob at Lystra, Timothy's home. Later Timothy became a Christian minister whom Paul called "my son Timothy."

Paul wrote two letters to Timothy, the second from prison just before his death. Both letters are full of advice given to help Timothy to be "a good minister of Christ Jesus."

"Exercise thyself unto godliness. Labor and strive because we have our hope set on God who is the Saviour of all men," so Paul advised Timothy.

Timothy was to give his full time to the ministry: "No soldier on service entangleth himself in the affairs of this life." (GOLDEN TEXT—I Timothy 4:14.)

His Idea Of A Joke

In the papers of Thursday Blair Hogarth, 21, described as an insurance agent at Simcoe, figured on the pages of newspapers all across the country. He had been held up by three men and a girl who were riding in a car; he had been forced to write a cheque for $100 and then shot in the leg and left to his fate. That is substantially the story he told police.

On the following day, Friday, Mr. Hogarth admitted to police that the story was not true. He had been out hunting and had shot himself. There had been no bandit car, no bandits and no cheque for $100. He thought it would be "a lark to tell the hold-up story."

And his lark meant that police officers in a number of places were moved out rapidly to try and close in on the bandit car. It may never have occurred to the lark man that some innocent person driving a green sedan such as he described might be placed in a very embarrassing position. Never occurred to him that papers all over the country would be publishing a story which they would be moved to contradict in the next issue. And possibly he never took time off to think that in the end he would be made to look rather foolish. These lark people in their playful moments are at times rather hard to understand. Harder still to appreciate.

Protesting And Selling

It looks as though part of the business of being a tobacco grower in Western Ontario consists of attending meetings to see what is going to be done about selling the crop. One report says 1,200 farmers and share-croppers gathered at a meeting in Simcoe and decided they were not in favor of the price set by the market board, a provincial affair. They were all in favor of having Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, see what he could do about it.

The feeling was that the strike should continue and nothing should be sold. Which is interesting were it not for the appearance of another report from Simcoe on the same day which announced that "about 25,000,000 of the 52,000,000 pounds of tobacco harvested in the Norfolk district was sold up to last midnight. The market was busy today."

It looks as though the growers were not so certain about being able to force any buyer to pay the price they demanded. Market schemes may be desirable enough, but we have not yet come into possession of such power that will force a purchaser to put his hand in his pocket and hand over the cash. Evidently a good many growers felt that way about it.

Electing A Mayor

Civic elections have already taken place in Edmonton, and by a vote of 18,393 to 4,400 decided they did not want the mayor of the community to be selected by the aldermen. Under that plan the mayor-to-be has to be first elected as an alderman, and then the elected aldermen decide which of their number shall be mayor. It is the system which county councils use in electing the warden.

Several attempts have been made to have the plan extended to the councils of cities but it nearly always is turned down by the ratepayers themselves. They like to feel they are electing their own mayor, and they are not content to allow any set of aldermen to take that piece of business from their hands.

It is also an admitted fact that a civic election is keener when a mayor is being elected. The voters appear to feel they have something rather important to attend to, and a plan which would bring on a succession of civic contests without a mayoralty race would soon produce flatness.

In The Nuisance Class

William F. Peck is 67 years of age and he appealed at the police station at North Plainland, N. J., for a night's lodging. We read he presented what was described as a "pitiful" appearance. His clothing was poor and thin, and it did not appear as though he had been well fed.

As the custom is at police stations where people apply for lodging they have to hand over what they possess, and secure it again on departing. Officers found that William Peck had in cash on his person and to his credit in savings banks the sum of $25,193. He explained he was saving that to provide for his old age.

It is hard to say at first glance whether William Peck needs some plain talking to from the court or intelligent advice from some person capable of giving it. He is wandering about alone, looking for lodgings or meals where he can find them, and there is no occasion for that at all. The money which he owns could be invested for him at four per cent and give him an income of $1,000 which would provide nicely for him and all his wants. A man in that favored position who persists in wandering around begging is merely making a nuisance of himself and for no good purpose.

The Price Is Too High

Toronto can have the American Hospital convention in 1939, and the Automotive Building at the Exhibition grounds is large enough to house the 8,000 people—mostly doctors—who will attend. But Toronto finds it would cost $27,000 to provide heat, light, care-taking and place the premises in the condition needed to house the convention. So Toronto Board of Control, while admitting it would be a fine thing to have the convention, has decided the price is too high. And we believe the conclusion is right enough.

If that many delegates arrived in Toronto they would have to be housed and fed, and likely they would spend some money in the stores, but the $27,000 which would have to be spent to get the convention would be paid in by all the property owners of the entire city. Some of it would be paid by men with small salaries whose work or earning power would not be affected to the extent of a dollar by the coming of the convention. There is such a thing as paying too much of the people's money for the sake of securing a convention. If those who are likely to receive the most benefit were heading the subscription list with their own funds the case might be different.

We All Put It Off

The grates in the furnace had become rather badly warped. We knew all about that when the fire went out for the last time in the spring, but nothing was done about it. When the furnace was started again a few weeks ago the grates were just the same; the long rest in the summer had not improved them at all. The fire kept on dropping through into the ash pit just as it did in the spring. Something would have to be done. And at once.

The man who attends to all such matters took the orders and instructions, but smiled when he heard the "at once" part of the instructions. Yes, he would like to have it attended to at once but it could not be done that way, and the reason was that every other person with a sick and ailing heating plant wanted it attended to just the same way—at once. We do not believe the affable gentleman was rubbing it in, but he did say something about there having been weeks and months when a job like that could have been attended to—at once. It was his experience that nearly all the people who knew there was something wrong with the heating system in the house left it alone until the day when the fire was needed, and then they formed a great procession and all wanted their work done—at once.

The man who sharpens lawnmowers once told us the same thing. The mower could stand idle for months but when the grass started to grow it was brought down and it was wanted—at once. Grass was growing on every lot in the city at the same time, and all the dull lawnmowers were coming in almost at the same time and they were all wanted—at once.

We met a young chap hurrying along the street the other day and he was taking a shirt and some collars to the laundry. He was going out that night and found he had no shirt fit to wear. So he too wanted his work done—at once.

There are some well-regulated people who attend to things in general well in advance; everything about their premises seems to be in order. But they are in the minority. Most folk we are certain go romping off to the furnace man to get something fixed the day they want to start the fire.

Kitchener Is A Bit Crude

Magistrate's court in Kitchener has a method of its own. As a rule one has to be rather guarded when writing about or reporting what takes place in court. There is a certain form of discipline there which needs to be reflected in reporting court proceedings. A bit of the majesty of law and the impressiveness of justice greets one as he enters; there are people in uniform; there is a routine which is not easily disturbed; the usual affable method of conversation must make way for the voice of authority. And so on.

In Kitchener it is different. To illustrate: There came to the police station a wanderer, and it was recorded that on the same evening he had eaten three suppers at three successive farm homes. The man of the road had whiskers and he was advanced in years. Upon his framework there were four shirts and they offended the official idea of the degree of cleanliness and sanitation which should become affixed to a gentleman's shirt. We learn that all four shirts were cast into the burning fiery furnace in Kitchener's civic building, and it was also publicly recorded that the man from the road was taken to the place where he could become cleansed and freed from the signs of toil and the evidence of grime or filth or whatever it was which had settled upon him.

On the following day his case was called in court, and appended to his name on the blotter was this notation: "Too lousy to appear this morning. Adjourned until November 16." We consider that entirely too crude for entry on a police court blotter. That form of speech lacks elevation. If everything were made as plain as that it would never be necessary for a barrister to go to court to explain anything or unravel something else. It seems to jump at the flag pole without making any approach shots and it is lacking entirely in anything which is subtle.

It would have been much better if some one wearing the regalia of office had announced: "I beg to inform this honorable court that the gentleman has been detained as he is suffering today from an attack of pediculosis or phthiriasis. May it please your honor to grant adjournment." Of course either of those words means nothing more or less than "lousiness," but either one sounds better in court. More impressive, more dignified and even more dangerous. The Attorney-General might perhaps drop a note to officialdom in Kitchener to make certain that a degree of grammatical elevation is made effective in that court.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Those bandits who tried to hold up a gambling club in New York just as the police raided the place were evidently a little off in their timing.

The C.I.O. is trying to organize the bootblacks in New York. That seems like good tactics, as any great movement must work from the bottom up

"Boy Killed, Hit by a Truck"—"Child Dies of Injuries"—"Woman Hit by Bicycle Dies"—The daily repetition of such headings is an indictment of the common sense of the people of Ontario. We become panic-stricken over an outbreak of infantile paralysis and yet ignore the much more serious menace that modern traffic conditions offer.

ENVIED HIM

(By A. B. K.)

¶ When Dick was but a little lad, we envied everything he had, we said it wasn't fair; his father was our richest man, most everything in town he ran, and Dick was raised with care.

¶ Dick had a wheel; the rest had none, in town his car was first to run, his clothes were swell indeed; Dick never had to do the chores, or help around when out-of-doors, there wasn't any need.

¶ For there were men to dig the yard, and do the jobs both long and hard, he never shoved a spade; at finding jobs he never tried, he had a lot of family pride, nor would he learn a trade.

¶ Dick's father died twelve years ago, and Dick was left to run the show, he mussed things bad somehow; he didn't know just how to start, or fix affairs that came apart, he'd never studied how.

¶ So things slipped through his fingers bad, and he lost everything he had, it wasn't that he'd shirk; but everything had come his way, and all he did was loaf and play, he never had to work.

¶ He couldn't even drive a nail, nor could he talk and make a sale, and he's lost all his tin; I often think how wrong we were, and how inclined we were to err—because we envied him.

RECENT ISOLATION of a plant-disease virus revealed that the "dead" crystals immediately started reproducing when smeared on live tobacco shoots. This gave philosophers a chance to ponder the difference between life and death. Dr. John H. Northrop, Rockefeller Institute researcher, announced discovery of a new borderline chemical, a protein. Is it dead or alive? Neither—and both. Put it on the table and it will show all the activity of a lump of clay. But drop a tiny speck of it into a colony of staphylococcus germs and it will multiply feverishly, devouring the bacteria in its process. It's called a bacteriophage, medicine's name for anything that gluts on a diet of microbes.

It was announced recently that Edward R. Stettinius Jr. would assume the chairmanship of the United States Steel Corporation next April, succeeding Myron C. Taylor who is resigning. Stettinius who is only 37 years old himself will head probably the youngest crew of key executives ever assembled for so important a job for the average age of the six newest directors of the big Steel Corp. is less than 45. The chairman-elect although young in years has silvery gray hair, almost turning white.

He Guards Mussolini.

THE MEN who has kept assassins off the track of Premier Benito Mussolini since 1926 is Arturo Bochini, born in a peasant cottage near Naples fifty-seven years ago and now Senator and head of the Ovra, all-powerful Fascist secret police.

Unlike his chief Bochini never was a radical. As soon as he had taken his law degree he joined the secret service and by the end of the war was its boss. He did not join the Fascist party in 1922 but co-operated with it at the King's command. In 1923 lack of a party button cost him his job which Mussolini gave to a deserving Black shirt, but after an anarchist's bullet had just missed the Duce in 1926 Bochini came back.

China's Red Leader.

THE BRAINS of China's defence in Northern China is the Communist General Chu Teh, a former coolie who was born 51 years ago in Western China and who early took to soldiering and opium, like thousands of other poor Chinese at that time. After Sun Yat-Sen's 1911 revolution Chu Teh gave up the pipe for communism and studied strategy in Germany, France and Britain. By 1928 he was commander-in-chief of all the Reds who had rebelled against the 1926-27 Chinese liberator Chiang Kai-Shek after he threw out his Russian advisers.

In 1934 Chu led his cohorts in one of history's most famous retreats, 8,000 miles across the wilds of Central China, pursued by Chiang's combined armies, without suffering one serious defeat.

After this, ignorant Chinese peasants spoke of the Red generalissimo as a reincarnation of the War God Kwang Yue. "Nothing can hide from his fearless gaze" runs the natives legends. "he can see 150 miles. He sleeps in the mountains and in the fields and the whole of the people keep watch over him. No force can restrain him. Even the foreigners flee to save their lives."

Last summer Chiang Kai-shek diplomatically waived the $100,000 he had once offered for Chu's head and put the jazz-loving Communist philosopher in charge of defending Northwest China against the Japanese invaders.

Still perched precariously on his wobbling throne Albania's bachelor King Zoghu is arranging the biggest national festival to date for Independence Day, November 28. Eight days' continous feasting and holiday will mark the occasion but most of the King's subjects are Moslems and will forego alcohol. Mountains of Turkish sweetmeats and sticky sickly drinks will however be available for refreshments. For the orthodox and Catholic minorities the first Albanian brewery is turning out huge quantities of home-made beer; others are distilling plum brandy and mastika a transparent potent drink tasting of pepperment which turns milky when diluted with water.

Too Tough to Get Hurt; He'll Die in Bed

Working in a Well When a Horse Fell In; Man of 86 Thinks Car Drivers Are Careless

(From London Free Press)

GLENCOE—Philip Gilbert will tomorrow celebrate his 86th birthday anniversary at his home, two miles south of Glencoe.

When a reporter called to offer congratulations, Mr. Gilbert was busily engaged on his small holding, but readily took time off for a chat.

Pointing to plowed land which he had just turned over, in less than a day, he said: "That took a young fellow the best part of three days to plow for me last year."

When it was suggested this was quite an accomplishment for a man of his years, he replied: "I have worked hard all my life and I'm still able to do a fair amount. I've just got my potato ground ready for next year."

Living on the new provincial highway, No. 7A, and on the direct course traveled by the American Airway's planes, Mr. Gilbert expressed his opinions on modern day travel.

Speaking of the automobile, he said: "Autos are all right, but everyone is travelling too fast. More traffic officers should be employed to clean up on offenders, especially drunk drivers. I would use the cat-o-nine-tails on every drunk driver, for their driving is worse war."

As an airplane passed over his head, Mr. Gilbert was asked how he would like a ride in one. "Not me," he replied, "I would sooner dig a well," a task that he was more familiar with. "I have dug a good many wells in my time, and I have been lucky," he continued.

NEARLY TRAPPED.

"How is that?" he was asked. "I was down a 25-foot well that I was digging on the gore of Westminster for a man named Baker, some years ago, when a horse fell in on top of me, and I escaped unhurt. Another time I was digging a well in Southwold, close by the side of another one, and when I was 28 feet down, I noticed the wall caving in. I was hauled out just in time before the whole thing collapsed.

"Later, three of us were employed down the same well to clear out the fallen earth, when without warning, it collapsed again, burying one man and almost another. I again escaped unhurt, one of the others was killed and the other received a broken leg."

"Why would you select a dangerous job like that, sooner than a smooth and comfortable ride in a plane?" he was asked.

"Maybe it's because I know all about the one, and nothing about the other," he replied.

Mr. Gilbert was involved in another accident a year or so ago, when returning home from Glencoe in his buggy, a speeding car crashed into his horse, killing it, and cutting it clean out of its harness, he himself again escaped unhurt. When reminded of this, he laughingly remarked that he guessed that "he was too tough for a violent death, and he would have to die in his bed."

THE LIGHT WAS OUT.

(Baltimore Sun)

A FELLOW with a bitter nature gives a hoarse laugh as he relates his recent experience in Kansas City, where the citizens continue very proud of their war memorial, a huge cylindrical shaft in the downtown plaza. His host insisted on the Baltimorean's delaying his visit to it until evening, when the enternal fire blazing in its peak would be visible.

"There," said his host triumphantly, bringing his car to a halt. My friend dutifully looked out and craned his neck to look upward.

"Where's the eternal light?" he demanded. His host stretched his neck, too, then in some consternation got out of the car and stared incredulously at the top of the shaft. No doubt of it. The eternal light, on this particular occasion, was out. It was the most humiliating experience of Kansas City since Will Rogers, also importuned to look at the very modern memorial, said admiringly that it was the biggest allo he had ever seen.

THREE KINDS OF GIVERS

To get water out of a sponge you must squeeze it, and the more you squeeze it the more you get. But the honeycomb just overflows with its sweetness.

AN EDITOR'S GREAT LOSS.

(Fergus News-Record)

OLD-TIMERS will tell you that Hallowe'en isn't what is used to be. The installation of waterworks systems in the municipalities, the bringing indoors of the plumbing and conveniences, and the replacement of board sidewalks with concrete, caused a great change. Of course, smaller villages have only the concrete sidewalks, and police protection is often inadequate. There is too often a tendency to condone the pranks of Hallowe'en. As a result there are apt to be serious losses.

Through some of our brother editors, we learn that one newspaper man in a village not so very far from Fergus suffered a disaster, and it remains to be seen whether he can carry on much longer without the assistance of a "Specialist" and a considerable expense. The newspaper plant was not entirely housed within one building, it seems, though details are somewhat conflicting and a bit meagre. Another small building stood on the lot behind the office and it was carried around to the main street, so the story goes, and set on fire. No fire brigade serves the community and we are told that the building was almost entirely destroyed. It did not carry any insurance and so the owner will have to face the loss as best he can.

Perhaps he may be able to make some kind of a deal with one of his neighbors on front street, who is said to have had three of four similar buildings lined up across the front of his store on Sunday morning, October 31st. A bank in the same community is offering a reward for the apprehension of certain persons, and we understand that this does not refer to bank robbers either.

BANG WENT $100.

(St. Marys Journal-Argus)

ONE OF OUR linotypes, those ingenious contraptions which are the heart of the modern newspaper plant, developed the colic—chills in the breadbasket, as it were. The automatically heated metal pot, which spews molten lead, refused to spew. Genial Foreman Grose, scratched his depleted locks in diagnosis, he called an electrician, he pulled the metal cover off the metal pot, spreading asbestos cement about the composing room, he cussed a little, prescribed the usual medicine—but the Lino still had "tummy" trouble. Finally an expert was called, the usual operation followed, and when at last after two days, the Lino went back to its work of setting news for The Journal-Argus, the doctor's bills came rolling in—the price a neat $100, plus loss of two days' production.

CHEERFUL GIVER.

(Hanover Post)

WE KNOW of a church, influenced by the right idea that a list showing the contribution of each member should not be circulated among all the members, which decided not to issue such a statement at the end of the year, but the term was only half completed and the offerings had fallen so alarmingly, that it was decided to cancel the resolution and again issue a list of contributions. Secure in the knowledge that nobody would know how much they gave to the church, many members had straightway reduced their givings, but, when it was announced that this secrecy would no longer obtain, they brought their contribution up to a respectable total, and the church was saved a deficit.

A Bit of Nonsense

LABOR ECONOMICS

Johnson was talking about his farm to a young city man staying at the village inn. "Why don't you have one of those motor harvesting machines?" asked the city man. "They do the work of six men, you know." The other stroked his beard. "No use to me, mister. I've only got enough work for four men, so the thing would be wasting two men's time."

"ONLY THAT—"

"Have you broken off your engagement?" "Yes. The young man told me he was a bookmaker, but I found out he was only an outsider."

WRIST WATCH FOR MARWOOD STINSON

JANETVILLE, Nov. 13. — About one hudnred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Marwood Stinson on Monday evening for the purpose of presenting to him a farewell token as well as having one last social time together, before he takes up residence in Windsor with his sister, Miss Jean Stinson.

The evening was pleasantly spent at cards and dancing, and when all had assembled Marwood was given a seat of honor while Mr. Roy Marshall read a well-worded address and Misses Elsie Armstrong and Muriel Stinson made the presentation of a wrist watch and club bag.

In a few words Marwood expressed his appreciation. At midnight a dainty lunch was served and afterward dancing was resumed, music being supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walker, Mrs. Roy Armstrong, Clairmont Morgan of Fleetwood, and Art Pogue of Reaboro.

Marwood is a most popular young man who has been for some years carrying on the farm duties of the homestead since the death of his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Stinson and the departure of his brothers, Archie and Carl, to the States, where they have splendid positions.

His many friends here sincerely regret his departure but are wishing him every success and happiness in future years.

TWO MEMORIAL TABLETS UNVEILED

OSHAWA, Nov. 13—In the absence of Hon. Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, who was taken ill suddenly on Thursday, Colonel R. S. McLaughlin, President of General Motors of Canada, Ltd., unveiled two bronze memorial tablets in the presence of an overflow gathering in the company's auditorium here last night.

Symbolizing the sacrifice made by employees of General Motors who did not return from the war, the tablets are beautifully designed and bear appropriate inscriptions. Invitations to the unveiling ceremony were extended to present employees who had served overseas with the British or allied forces, more than 700 attending.

Colonel McLaughlin and Colonel Frank Chappel, Director of Industrial Relations, along with Captain Rev. A. D. Robb, Major Rev. S. C. Jarrett, Rev. J. V. McNeely and Joseph T. Patterson, inspected the guard of honor outside the auditorium.

Flanked by two buglers and draped with the Union Jack, on which was focussed a brilliant spotlight, one of the tablets rested on an easel on the stage. The other, also covered with a flag, faced the main stairway to the auditorium.

TOO MANY THRILLERS?

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (CP).—Efforts were made today to save a 15-year-old suicide from a pauper's grave. Forty dollars must be raised to bury him beside his father in a local cemetery.

The boy's mother is on relief and without funds to bury him. She told Chief Coroner Smirle Lawson her son was in good spirits 15 minutes before a 19-year-old sister found his body dangling from a rope in the basement of their home.

The only explanation of the suicide the family could offer was that the boy had been reading many detective stories recently.

$500,000 BE USED FOR THE TRAINING OF YOUNG PEOPLE

With a fund of $500,000 contributed in equal parts by the Dominion and provincial governments, the means of establishing a Youth Training Programme is being placed at the dispôsal of local committees to be organized at public meetings throughout Ontario on Sunday, November 28.

The director of this plan to assist young men and women in improving their fitness for and chances of employment is Dr. Charles Sinclair, Ph.D., and apparently it is expected that local co-operation and leadership should come from municipal authorities.

The Dominion Provincial Youth Training Program is the title of this new project which has the personal support of Premier Hepburn. Its purpose, according to information from Dr. Sinclair, is to "train older young people, between 18 and 30, whose learning years have been largely devoured by ravening locusts of depression." From that flight of expansive rhetoric the circular letter affirms that the program "will provide training through apprenticeship and special courses, living allowances for those in needy circumstances, and special representatives to canvass industry and commerce actually to find places for youth taking training under the plan, which means jobs are really becoming available for young unemployed people in your own district."

The Dominion government's Home Improvement Plan failed to accomplish one of the objectives that had been set for it, the enlisting of apprentices in the building trades. The big feature of the new plan is apprenticeship training.

Here is another quotation from Dr. Sinclair's letter:—"Economic conditions are better in Ontario. Now it is possible to do something for youth, if each citizen, every organization, service club, Chamber of Commerce, local educational councils and churches of every denomination will co-operate to work out a province-wide solution.

Youth Rally Day will be celebrated throughout Ontario under the auspices of the Dominion Provincial Youth Training Program. At 3.30 on Sunday afternoon friendly folk who like youngsters, mothers and fathers, will meet in some convenient auditorium to demonstrate their interest in the plan."

Effective use of the plan evidently will depend upon the interest it arouses in a community and the energy that is placed behind it. The Examiner has this opportunity of outlining the purpose of the Dominion and Ontario governments in contributing half a million dollars for the success of the plan in this province.

Nothing more definite than this introductory summary of the project has been received from the director, but it is expected that further information will be available before the proposed time of organization.

Japs Again Refuse Bid To Parley

BRUSSELS, Nov. 13 (CP Cable). —The first phase of the Nine-Power Treaty conference ends in failure. Japan sends a blunt "No," and the view at to-day's meeting of British Commonwealth delegates was that she has banged the door against negotiations. MARK ST. W.M.S. KEENE VISITORS

KEENE, Nov. 13—The W.M.S. of the United Church held their autumn Thank offering on Wednesday afternoon, with a good attendance.

Mark St. W.M.S. of Peterborough were visitors and had charge of most of the program.

Mrs. Jas. McFarlane was in the chair. Mrs. Hugh McFee read 1 Corinthians, 13th chap., followed by prayer by Mrs. Knox.

Mark St. W.M.S. then took charge of the program, with Mrs. Alton in the chair.

Mrs. Northrop and Mrs. Pomeroy sang a very pleasing duet.

Mrs. Adam gave an address on the meaning of Thanksgiving. Mrs. Payne also had a most appropriate reading on "Giving."

Mrs. Jas. McFarlane thanked the visitors for their help and inspiration to the society, for the Thank offering meeting, after which lunch was served, and all enjoyed a pleasant half hour together.

DEMOCRACY BASIS FOR BRAZIL RULE

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 13. — (AP).—Foreign diplomats watched the unfolding of Brazil's new authoritarian program to-day with the assurance of Getulio Vargas' foreign minister it was "neither Fascist nor Communistic,' but had "democracy as the basis."

President Vargas, who assumed wide dictatorial power by replacing Brazil's often suspended "Liberal" constitution with an authoritarian document in a bloodless coup Wednesday, was seeking to fill out his cabinet, which moved over into the new regime almost intact.

Odilon Braga, Minister of Agriculture, however, has resigned and his portfolio was offered to Fernando Costa, president of the National Coffee Department.

The situation in the capital was calm—as though no change had taken place — and this tranquility seemed to extend through the nation.

Mario de Pimentel Brandao, foreign minister, elaborating upon previous government assurances the dictatorial powers were necessitated by Brazilian unrest, told Rio De Janeiro's diplomatic corps yesterday Vargas' action was dictated by demands from all part of Brasil "for a solution to the manifest crisis."

"Having promulgated the new constitution in such a way as not to injure democracy or the representative system, the administration has democracy as the basis for the new program," the Foreign Minister said.

(The new constitution provided for a two-house legislature but reserved to the president broad power to initiate and guide legislation. It was placed in effect immediately, to be passed upon in a plebiscite to be held at the discretion of the president).

It was reliably learned that Italian and German envoys to Brazil had made overtures to gain Brazilian adherence to the Italian-German - Japanese anti - Communism pact but had been turned down.

Basque Children Like England

LONDON, Nov. 13—(AP).—One hundred and sixty Basque children whom Great Britain rescued from war in Northern Spain started back for their homeland today, many of them in tears.

The first contingent to be repatriated out of 4,000 boys and girls given refuge in England, they entrained at Victoria Station for the start of the land and water journey to territory now under insurgent military sway.

"They were all terribly sorry to go back," said Mrs. Leah Manning, a member of the National Joint Committee for Basque Children. "Many of the boys threatened to throw themselves in the sea rather than return to Bilbao."

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Remedy at Home

Quick Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them a much more dependable remedy for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its effect on throat membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough remedy, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

"ASPIRIN" and Your Doctor

Each performs a vital function. "Aspirin" in relieving headache, neuralgia and other muscular pain. Your doctor in locating the cause and correcting it. Intelligent people do not hesitate to call on both.

● This may sound like strange advice for the maker of a headache remedy to give. But, nevertheless, we give it.

If you are subject to frequent headaches, go to your doctor and tell him about it. He may find the cause of your headaches, correct it . . . and make your life far more pleasant.

On the other hand, if you have an occasional headache, step into the nearest drug store, the moment you feel it coming on, and get a box of quick-acting "ASPIRIN". Take one or two tablets with a glass of water, and see for yourself how quickly relief comes.

We refer to "Aspirin" tablets as "quick-acting", for one reason, because they disintegrate or dissolve in the stomach almost instantly you take them. Hence are ready to start their work of relief very quickly.

Just drop an "Aspirin" tablet in a tumbler of water and you'll get the point at once. You'll see it disintegrating before it reaches the bottom of the glass! And that's the way one acts in your stomach when you take it.

● "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Oshawa's Home Improvements Are Void Of Assessment

Court Of Revision Makes Important Announcement To Motor Town Citizens

OSHAWA, Nov 13.—Most important revelation at Friday night's court of revision was the attitude of three members of the court as expressed by the chairman, Frank Mason, who stated that it was the decision of the court to treat home owners who made improvements on their houses out of their own pockets in the same way as improvements Plan are treated, that is, no assessment would be made on such improvement for a period of three years.

Court Makes Announcement

"If a citizen has enough thrift and pride in his home to improve that home with his own money, we are going to give him the same advantage as is extended to those making improvements under the Home Improvement Plan," said Mr. Mason.

This attitude was revealed as a result of the appeal of Edwin Clark, College Hill property owner, who has been one of the leaders in the agitation for reduced assessment, on his property at 126 Mill street on which he said he had expended over $400 on improvements this year. It was his opinion that the system of assessment worked against the man who tried to make his home a better place in which to live.

Mr. Mason then told of the agreement which the members of the court had reached. Mr. Clark's assessment on his house was accordingly reduced $400.

"And I ask the assessor to make a note of that and see that he is exempt to that amount for the next three years, just as if he had improved his home under the Home Improvement Plan," Mr. Mason stated.

On the recommendation of Cyril Luke, assessor, the assessment on Mr. Clark's land at the same address was reduced $150 because of the peculiar shape of the land. Assessment on two other properties appealed by Mr. Clark were confirmed by the triumvirate.

CONTRARY TO STATUTE

W. J. Henry who is in charge of Peterborough's assessment department was asked what practice was adopted in this city in regard to exemption of improvements to dwellings. In reply he read the recent amendment to the Assessment Act which authorized suspension of assessment for a period of three years on all improvements to such buildings for which loans were obtained under the Home Improvement Plan. There was no exception, he said, in favor of the home-owner who expended on his property money from his own savings and other resources.

"In the routine course of assessing," Mr. Henry said, "there would be no increase made for such improvements as the shingling of a house, for example. That would come under the heading of necessary repairs, but if some addition were made of permanent and extra value to the house, such as a sun porch it is likely that some increase in the assessment would be made."

"How are we to know whether an improvement has been made by means of a Home Improvement Loan?" Mr. Henry remarked.

From a brief interview with the Assessor it was stated that Home Improvement Plan improvements are entitled to exemption from assessment, and the effect of the amendment to the Act remains effective for three years, until 1939. It also seems to be the duty of a property owner making improvements of that kind to call them to the attention of the assessor, or to examine the 1937 assessment and compare it with last year's assessment. The assessment statements are distributed to all property owners. In most instances and in the ordinary course of procedure no increases would be made in assessment for improvement of houses.

If a property owner who obtained a H.I.P. loan and spent the money on his house, and then finds that his assessment has been increased by that improvement, he can make a claim to the Court of Revision by virtue of the amendment to the statute. The assessment made this year is for next year's taxes, and it is understood that no claim was filed under the H.I.P. provision. John A. Haratone, chairman of the Court of Revision, stated a few nights ago that the Court's work had to be completed by November 15. It may be too late now, if any case deserved hearing, to make an appeal to the Court for adjustment of assessment for the purpose of next year's taxes.

The substance of Mr. Henry's comment was that in all probability no changes had been made in assessments for home improvements this year. In any event, he said, he would have no authority to exempt a house for improvements paid for out of personal resources instead from the proceeds of a Home Improvement Plan Loan.

Many Uses Found For Glass Today

There is nothing new about glass but the modern homemaker is finding new uses for it. Walls, mantels, fireplaces and screens are being manufactured from this material.

Glass-tile walls come in many colors for bathrooms. Spray panels of glass frequently replace shower curtains, dressing tables of glass and occasional tables may often be found. Mirror panels for mantels and even wall partitions are found of glass-brick.

In modernizing your home through funds obtained under the Home Improvement Plan, bear in mind that built-in equipment is eligible.

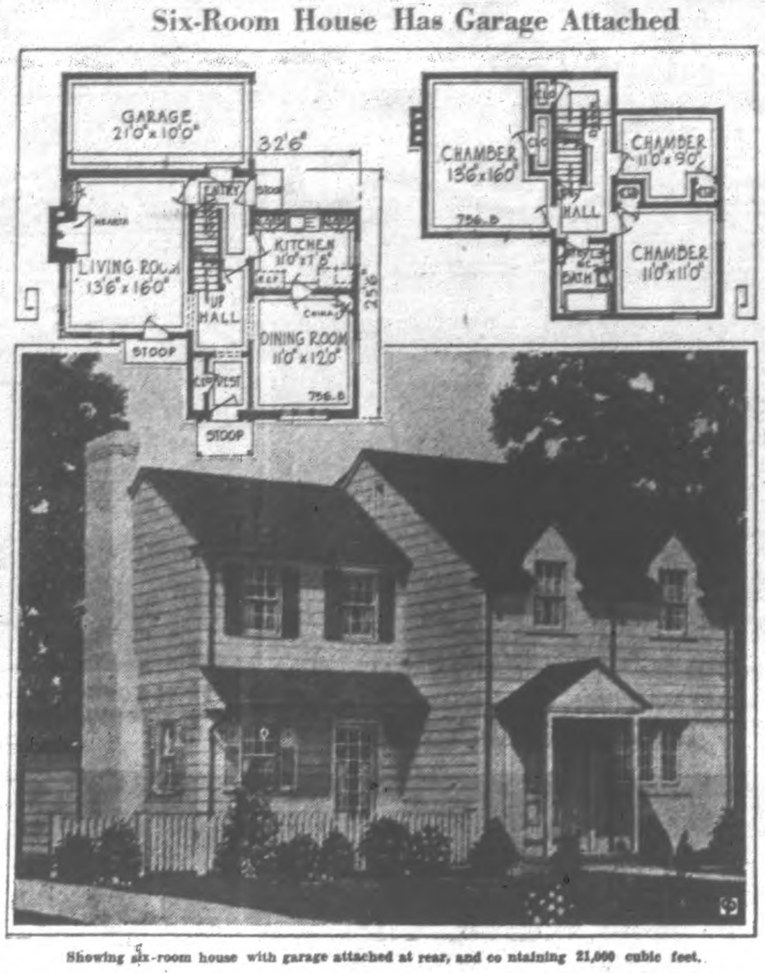
Six-Room House Has Garage Attached



Showing six-room house with garage attached at rear, and containing 21,000 cubic feet.

This house has a number of features that will recommend it to folk who have a yen for owning their own homes.

In the first place, there is an attached garage on the back of the building instead of at the side, which is usual. An entrance from the house to the garage is made through the hall, which runs through the middle of the house. The attached garage allows some economy in construction and much in time.

Another unusual feature is the living room, which occupies what might be called the "wing" of the house, with a fireplace with chimney on the outside. This room is 13 feet 6 inches by 16 feet in dimension. The central hall has a vestibule with coat closet and on the other side of it are the dining room and well-arranged kitchen.

The dining room could serve for the study during the evening, if there are children or young people who have homework to do.

Three bedrooms, the master room the same size as the living room, occupy the second floor, with bath and closets.

This house contains 21,000 cubic feet.

The presentation of these pictures was sponsored by the Women's Association of Bensfort United church.

"We May Have To Fight Again" Apsley Veterans Are Told

92 - Year - Old Isaac Lean Places Wreath At Impressive Ceremony

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Nov. 13.—A simple but impressive service was held at the War Memorial in Apsley on Remembrance Day with a large attendance from the village and vicinity, and a company of war veterans.

The service conducted by the Rev. F. C. McMulkin and Rev. M. McMullin, opened with the singing of the hymn "Breathe on me, breath of God", followed by an inspiring address by Rev. R. M. McMullin, in which he referred to the unknown soldier's grave in Westminster Abbey and gave the words of the inscription.

On this occasion, the speaker continued, we are reminded of the precious things of life, all so worthwhile yet so simple that every one can have them: belief in God, faith, freedom, love and justice, all great things yet simple. Our honoured comrades in whose memory we are assembled here, gave their lives for these things. When they enlisted, they did so for these ideals, which we should never lose sight of liberty, justice, home, God, King and country, and they died not disillusioned.

May Have to Fight Again

"In closing let me say a word especially to my comrades present," said the speaker. "Though much is taken much abides; and though we are not that strength which in old days moved earth and heaven, that which we are, we are. One equal temper of heroic hearts, made weak by time and fate, but strong in will to strive, to seek, to find; and not to yield—(Tennyson).

"Peace at any cost?" conclued the speaker, "No! We may yet have to fight once more for peace."

The address was followed by two minutes silence after which the government wreath was placed at the foot of the memorial by ninety-two-year-old Isaac Lean, whose son Wilbert, lost his life in the Great War, and Mrs. McMullin deposited a wreath on behalf of the Women's Institute.

After the singing of "Abide With Me", prayers were offered by the Rev. F. C. McMulkin, and the service closed with the benediction pronounced by the Rev. R. M. McMullin.

Three numbers were contributed by the local group—a reading by Miss Isobei Sisson, a vocal trio, "Three Old Maids," by three girl members, and an old-time orchestra selection, all of which were highly commended.

Fall work in this locality is nearing completion. On Monday Archie Staples, local thresher, having finished his work for the season, headed his machine for the home buildings to be stored for the winter months.

Farmers in this locality are in general much more optimistic than a year ago, their granaries and feed mows presenting a much less vacant appearance. Plowing with a few exceptions is also finished, the fine open weather being most favorable for disposal of this line of work before freeze-up. Most farmers are taking advantage of the continued fine weather to haul off stones and make preparatins for winter in various ways.

Run Down—Tired Out Only Weighed 96 lbs.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are what weak, nervous, run down men and women need to help make them strong and well again.

They are a well balanced tonic for the treatment of those whose nerves are shattered, and for those feelings of faintness, weakness and dizziness caused by an overworked, run down constitution, or whose health is not up to par.

They help to infuse new life and energy into depressed, health shattered men and women who have come to think there is no relief for them.

Mrs. P. Baucourron, Penwick, Ont., writes:—"I was so run down and tired out all the time I did not care whether my housework was done or not.

I only weighed 96 pounds, but after taking three boxes of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills I now weigh 122 pounds, and do my own work for eight in the family.

I only wish I had started taking H. & N. Pills a year ago."

STAN. LOWE BAGS BUCK, ONE SHOT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Nov. 13.—Back from Chalk River on Thursday from a hunting party, which included ten hunters, Stan Lowe reports the bagging of five deer, with others of the party remaining to get their count.

Owing to rain on Monday, the hunting was called off for the day. The next day, Mr. Lowe admits he missed an easy target with the firing of one shot. On Wednesday, luck changed for the Marmorian. Within forty minutes of hitting the trail, namely, at 9 a.m., he used his second shell to good account, getting a 250-pound buck. Mr. Lowe, who has partaken freely of other sport, told The Examiner that he had never gone deer hunting before, and considers his experience amusing as well as remunerative.

In the party was a veteran hunter, who has never been fortunate enough to get a buck, and he has now christened the latest addition to his party "One Bullet Lowe."

FIVE YEARS TO PAY FOR HOME IMPROVEMENTS

NATIONS TROD UNSTABLE PATH PAST 19 YEARS

"Let us be peacemakers rather than peace thinks or peacehopers," Rev. Captain George S. Easton declared in an address to the annual remembrance meeting of the Kiwanis Club Friday. "Let us start in our own homes, our own clubs, our own churches."

Rev. Easton told the club members that during the 19 years since the Armistice, the nations of the world have trod a very unstable path. He spoke of memories of that world turmoil 19 years ago as being available now to enlighten the present and guide the future.

Three philosophies are dominating the madhouse which has fomented in the 19 years—the Marxian philosophy of the Russians, the philosophy of the supremacy of the Nordic races and the philosophy of rule by the sword, the speaker continued. He told his hearers they might thank God that the British Empire has clung to the philosophy which holds honor, justice, liberty, freedom and democracy dear.

Not An Aggressive Service

Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne spoke of the work which is being done by the Prince of Wales Rangers of which he is second in command. "We are training young men to realize to a full extent their responsibilities to their own country. The militia is not an aggressive service yet we must realize that the day of safe isolation is gone and we have a responsibility for our defence." He pointed out that the Government spent $38,000,000 on the military last year and must have spent that great sum with some good reason.

"The only way to make a good unit in Peterborough is to make it part of that city," he continued, thanking employers of Peterborough for co-operating with the Rangers unit in the matter of the service of their employees. "Nobody wants a war but you have got to be prepared if you want to stop war."

Inadequately Armed

J. J. Duffus, M.P., declared few Canadians realized how inadequately armed was Canada just two and three years ago. It was fortunate in the way that expensive arms bought five years ago would have been obsolete now, yet the Dominion would have been at the mercy of any strong and ruthless power at that time. The increase of $13,000,000 in the nation's defence budget last year is an indication of the move now being made to place Canada in a safer position, he said.

Very impressive was the commemorative portion of the Kiwanis meeting. President Al. Sharpe said:

"We meet today in remembrance of those men who were friends of yours and comrades of these returned soldiers who are today seated at the head table. Not only do we think of those we left in France and Flanders but let us not forget those who returned and from their war disabilities have since passed on. I think today of our own member, Perry Giffen, whose vacant chair stands as a tribute to a soldier and a Kiwanian. So gentlemen, to the memory of those who have given their lives for the country they loved, let us standing, pay tribute."

Following a two-minute silence, Bugler Jack Sage sounded the Last Post and Reveille and Rev. J. D. Paterson offered a prayer. G. D. Carlisle sang "There is No Death."

The vacant chair at the head table, symbolizing the absence of the late Perry J. Giffen, bore purple drapings and a wreath of remembrance.

FENCE IS GAINING IN POPULARITY

The fence is once gaining in popularity. At one time it was symbolical of a man's domain, but in recent years it fell into disuse and long lines of unbroken green lawn from one end of the block to the other were popular.

Modernization funds may now be obtained from any Canadian bank under the Home Improvement plan at a very low rate of interest. These funds, which may be repaid in small equal payments over a period up to three years, may be used for the addition, alteration, repair or improvement to property. Building of fences is one of the uses to which the money may be put.

Fences serve a triple purpose. They add to the appearance of a property, they set off the boundary lines and prevent trespassers from trampling grass and flowers. Picket, rail, brick, stone or iron types may be found to suit various architectural styles.

ANCIENT FIREARM

HIGH RIVER, Alta.—(CP).—An ancient percussion cap pistol, probably 100 yeras old, was discovered in the banks of the Highwood River, 20 miles west of High River. The markings bore the sign of the crown and initial "G.P."

Grain Thieves Take Up Reins From Prairie Rùstlers

Growing Menace Brings Call For Increased Penalties As Curb

OTTAWA, Nov. 13—(CP).—Grain thieves have taken the place of cattle and horse rustlers as the most detested criminals on the Western plains, according to the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

So prevalent has grain stealing become and so difficult is it to check, that increased penalties for the offence are being proposed. The report states the Saskatchewan Attorney-General is proposing the minimum penalty should be raised to imprisonment for one year.

Cattle and horse rustling in former years was kept in check by the severity of the sentence imposed, from three to 14 years.

"The identification of stolen cattle and horses was a much easier matter than that of grain," says the report. "Brands and natural marks on animals were often a means of identification. The identification of wheat is a difficult matter except for the outstanding expert.

Sometimes Lynched.

"The old cattle rustler was somewhat of a sportsman as compared to the mean wheat thief of today. In his maraudings he took a sporting chance and sometimes stopped a bullet from the rifle of the rancher or his cowboys and was even, in the U. S. A., occasionally lynched when caught by them.

"To effectively stop the depredations of grain thieves it is considered they should, on conviction, be much more severely dealt with than they are at the present time. Otherwise the practice which is already very extensive will grow to alarming proportions."

In Saskatchewan 245 cases of grain theft were brought before the courts in the year under review and 207 convictions were obtained. The average sentence was approximately six months.

In Alberta 126 convictions were obtained out of 297 complaints received.

Built-In Cases Small Apartments

Built-in bookcases are being used in effective ways by occupants of small apartments. In one apartment there was no bedroom, and consequently no room for a dressing table.

The apartment consisted of a living room, fair-sized foyer, kitchen, dinette and bath. In the foyer, modern bookcases of different heights were built-in, with a desk which contained, not writing implements, but toilet articles. An unframed mirror hung over the ensemble and served as a dressing table glass.

Built-in bookcases may be installed under the generous terms of the Home Improvement Plan.

MUSIC TEACHERS TO GIVE CONCERT

The Council of the Ontario Music Teachers Association is meeting in Peterborough next Wednesday to form a local Chapter, and, judging from the interest shown in the visit, Peterborough musicians are eager to form a part of this rapidly growing movement to protect their profession. The nine members who represent Ontario in the Council are: Harvey Robb, Charles Peaker, George Lambert, Frank Blachford, all of Toronto, Cora Aherns, (Stratford), Dorothy Allan Park (Peterborough), Jessie Hill (Guelph), P. G. Marshall (Simcoe), and Frederick Newnham (London).

A concert will be given in George St. church on Wednesday evening, when some outstanding Canadian musicians will provide the program, after which the Ontario Council will meet with the Peterborough music teachers to explain the aims and ideals of the O.M.T.A. and to suggest the policy for the local branch.

The artists appearing include Margaret Brown, brilliant Canadian pianist, who recently made a successful debut in London, England, and who will be remembered for her delightful playing at a concert given by "The Madrigal Singers" some years ago; Frank Blachford, well-known violinist of the Toronto Symphony, and a valued member of the Toronto Conservatory staff; George Lambert, baritone solist of Bloor St. United church, Toronto, and always a popular concert singer; Charles Peaker, the eminent organist of Walmer Road Baptist church, Toronto, who is considered one of the finest organists on the continent; Dorothy Allan Park, Soprano soloist of the Church of the Redeemer, Toronto, who has not sung in Peterborough for seven years; and Harvey Robb, organist of Bloor St. church, Toronto, who is so widely known for his radio work, as well as his many other activities, that any remarks would be superfluous. These busy musicians are giving their services absolutely gratis, and there is no doubt that Peterborough music lovers will turn out en masse to hear such an unusually varied and excellent program.

WAR EXPERIENCES TOLD TO KINSMEN

The Peterborough Kinsmen on Friday night observed the Remembrance Day season with an address from one of their members, Vern Selkirk, who in a most interesting style told of his experiences in the Great Wark. Selkirk enlisted with the 93rd Battalion when only 17 years old and served in France with the 5th C.M.R. The horrors of war and the battles in which the Canadians fought in the latter part of 1916-1917 and 1918 were described by the speaker.

Dave Hubbert, the club treasurer, reported a profit of over $500 on the Kinsmen Hallowe'en carnival and draw.

Three members of the Toronto club, Max Kirby and Orley Brooke, two of the founders of the Peterborough club, and Hugh Mathewson who were returning from the deer hunt, west of Apsley, were present at the meeting.

Picks His Old Hat As Best In Store

Belleville, Nov. 12.

WISHING to blow himself to a new hat, Robert Wilson, Sidney farmhand swaggered into a local clothing store yesterday.

After more than a score of new fedoras had been taken off the shelf, Wilson finally exclaimed: "This one fits perfectly. I think I'll take it."

"Do you want your old one?" asked the clerk.

"I don't suppose I'll ever wear it again, but you might put it in a bag and I'll take it along with me," replied Wilson.

To the amazement of both, it was then discovered Wilson had purchased his own hat.

Nearly 222,000,000 acres were planted to grain in Russia last season.

Get Rid of Your Inferiority Complex

They're sisters — but you'd never know it! Anne is still timid and awkward, but Jane has won a fight to the finish with that baffling sense of inferiority.

Both these likable girls were brought up by an aunt—had to wear dowdy clothes, no pretty ribbons, never a curl. The other children made fun of them, tormented Jane about her red hair, called her "Carrots." Such a childhood can cause paralyzing feelings of inferiority, which in maturity can develop into a serious complex.

If you suffer from such a feeling, our 32-page booklet will tell you how to get rid of it. It's written by a sound psychologist who has helped thousands. Let him help you with this vital mental problem.

Sheward-Sanders.

A very lovely fall wedding took place in St. George's Anglican Church at half past seven on Friday evening, when Viola Eleanor, youngest daughter of Ernest Sanders of Peterborough, and the late Mrs. Sanders, became the bride of John William Sheward, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sheward, also of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. Gault, rector of the church.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Ray King. She was charming in a gown of midnight blue velvet with high neckline and rhinestone clips at the shoulder. Her small halo hat in the same shade of velvet with a nose-veil, and silver slippers completed her costume. Her flowers were a bouquet of pink Briarcliff roses.

Miss Dorothy Rowland, as bridesmaid, wore an attractive gown of embroidered black net over taffeta, a black felt turban, lace mittens silver slippers and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Donald Little was the best man, and Max Sanders, brother of the bride, acted as usher. During the signing of the register, Miss Betty McLeod sang, "Because."

Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Sheward received with the bridal party at the reception held at the home of the bride after the ceremony. Buffet refreshments were served from a table lovely with a hand-crocheted cloth, yellow candles in silver holders and centred with the bride's three-tiered wedding cake.

The gift of the groom to the bridesmaid was a white gold necklace, to the soloist a compact and to the best man a silk shirt.

The popular young couple, who were the recipients of a very large number of gifts, will reside on Edison avenue, following their honeymoon. For travelling the bride wore an apple green crepe frock, matching hat, and a green coat trimmed with red fox fur.

Caledonians' Whist Drive
Woodmen of the World Hall.

Caledonians met for a whist drive at their regular weekly meeting held in the Woodmen of the World Hall on Friday evening. W. Petrie acted as timekeeper in the keenly-contested games. Prize-winners were as follows: Ladies, 1st, Mrs J. Brown (121). Ladies, 2nd, was a tie between Mrs. A. E. Borland, Mrs. W. Petrie and Mrs. A. Pickles. On a draw Mrs. Pickles was awarded the prize. Men, 1st, Mrs. A. Jackson (117) (playing as a man). Men's 2nd was a tie between J. Hodgson, J. Pirie and Mrs. Fletcher (116). Mr. Hodgson won on a draw. Consolation awards went to Miss Nancy Pooley and Mrs. O. Sugden. After the card games refreshments were served and dancing engaged in, with Mrs. J. Harrison at the piano.

Grenfell Mission Successful Tea.

Clever and artistic handicraft from the missions in Labrador—beautiful rugs and chair seats, woolly scarves and huge warm mitts—the work of the girls and women on that bleak coast; finely-executed bits of carved walrus ivory and wood—made by the boys and men convalescent in the hospitals—all sorts of lovely things—were on sale at the Grenfell Mission Tea yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. R. Morris, Homewood Avenue.

The guests were received by the hostess, Mrs. Morris, president of the Grenfell Mission in Peterborough.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. F. M. Somerville and Miss Nan Hall. The lovely cloth with extremely find drawn-work and embroidery had come from the Philippines, woven from banana fabric. Dark green holly from Mrs. F. D. Kerr's garden, made an unusual and perfect centrepiece above the cloth.

Tea assistants were Mrs. J. D. Collins, Mrs. Adrian MacDonald and Mrs. G. M. Roger.

The handicraft was in charge of Miss Linden Hall and Miss Clara Morris. Mrs. G. R. Langley and Mrs. D. B. Falkner looked after a home-cooking table, and lovely Grenfell Mission Christmas cards were sold by Mr. S. D. Carver and Mrs. D. V. Canning.

A pretty baby jacket made by Mrs. F. C. Anderson, on which tickets were sold, was won on a draw by Miss E. W. Davis. A Labrador rug was won by Miss Florence Edwards, and a most delicious-looking cake, donated by Mrs. Morris, went to Mrs. Waram. The tickets were sold by Miss G. Reinhardt. Treasurer for the afternoon was Mrs. F. C. Anderson.

Provincial President
Addresses St. Paul's W.M.S.

Mrs. J. A. Hilts of Toronto, provincial president of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church, was the special speaker at the Thankoffering Meeting on Friday afternoon of St. Paul's W.M.S., attended by a large number of members and friends.

It is a rare occasion that the W.M.S. has such an oportunity of getting first hand information regarding the actual work that the missionaries are doing. Introduced by Mrs. James Dutton, Mrs. Hilts spoke of changes made during the past year, of new work started in Northern and Western Canada, and of workers in Manchuria, South China, India, Formosa and British Guiana. Unintentionally, about the half the money subscribed had been spent overseas and the other half in Canadian missions. In closing the speaker left an impressive thought with her listeners, "Activity without prayer is like a shuttle without thread."

In opening the meeting, held for the special occasion, in the Sunday School room, the president, Mrs. Dutton, reminded all of the many blessings for which they had to be thankful. "Come let us sing of a wonderful Love," was the opening hymn.

Why "The Glad Tidings" should be read was answered with seven reasons briefly given by Mrs. M. B. Chenhall. The devotional period was taken by Mrs. James Walker. The psalm, the New Testament Chapter, and the prayer each had for their theme the spirit of thankfulness and "giving unto the Lord."

Miss O. Culien sang by request, "I shall not pass again this way," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. Barrie.

The dedicatory prayer was offered by Miss M. Lees, and the benediction pronounced by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr. A short social time was enjoyed.

Ash-Rowe.

A charming house wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, at two o'clock on Friday afternoon when Olive Eleanor, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rowe, of Bethune street, was married to Lloyd Bradley Ash, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ash of Aylmer street. The ceremony was performed by the bride's brother-in-law, the Rev. Arthur Leggett of Molesworth, Ontario, who was assisted by the Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United Church.

The bride and groom stood before a setting of palms and ferns, with bridal decorations in white satin streamers and a large white bell. Bouquets of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums were arranged in the rooms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was beautifully gowned in silk net over metalasse brocaded satin fashioned with very full skirt anda tiny bolero of net covering the shirred bodice with heart-shaped neckline. She wore a finegr-tip length veil of fine white net, which fell from a little cap of braided ribbon. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of pink Butterfly roses.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. M. C. Parr before the ceremony and during the signing of the register. The young couple were unattended.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for about twenty guests, when refreshments were served in buffet style. White satin streamers were prettily arranged from a white bell below the chandelier, to the corners of the table, where the three-tiered wedding cake held a place of honor and other lovely decorations were palest pink chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Rowe, mother of the bride, was wearing a gown of black satin and cut velvet, and Mrs. Ash, the groom's mother, was gowned in wine crepe.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ash left later for Toronto and points west, the latter travelling in a wine coat with grey fur trimming, wine accessories, and an aquamarine wool frock. They will reside at 86 London street, when they return from their honeymoon.

Bailieboro Girl
Honored By Friends.

Mrs. O. M. McCullough, formerly Miss Ruth Dawson, younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Dawson of Bailieboro, whose marriage took place this week, was the guest of honor at a large miscellaneous shower prior to her marriage.

A dozen Bailieboro boys, playing different musical instruments, welcomed the bride, and during the evening presented an interesting program of music. A special feature of the evening was a mock wedding.

The Rev. E. M. Cook acted as chairman. Many very lovely gifts were presented to the bride, with the reading of an address.

The bride made a very suitable reply, and refreshments were served, bringing a pleasant evening to a close.

Visiting Housekeepers.—

The Peterborough branch of the Red Cross Society maintains a staff of four women who are on call to go to homes where the homemaker is taken sick and the laboring man is unable to stay at home and look after the family. Red Cross Visiting Housekeeper Service Is Important Aid to Laboring Man

One of the most important services of the Peterborough Red Cross Society and one which has increased greatly during the past year is the Visiting Housekeeper Service. Four housekeepers, all Peterborough women, are now employed and the year's report shows that they attended nearly forty families comprising about 150 persons. It is pointed out by Mrs. Charles Ray, the Convenor of the Visiting Housekeepers Committee, that these women are on call and are only paid for days that they work. All the housekeepers took special training to fit them for their work.

The Visiting Housekeeper service in a word is the provision of a trained woman to step into the home of a labouring man when his wife is taken ill and he, because of employment, is unable to stay at home and attend to his family. This service is a real boon to such a man who in many cases would lose pay by his absence and also might lose his job. The housekeeper remains only during the day and leaves when the father has returned from work.

Social workers in Peterborough are loud in their praise of this service and Mrs. Ray reports that many letters of appreciation have been received during the past year from families who have been helped.

The campaign which opens on Monday, November 22nd, is to support this fine Red Cross Service as it is expected that there will be no lessening in the calls during the coming year.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Sunday, November 14.

Sunday's horoscope is a very favorable one for all ecclesiastical, cultural and social vocations and avocation, although necessary business matters could be profitably engineered. But keep calm. Very lively social functions may develop a situation of sudden romance of a rather hectic nature. Be circumspect.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a very lively year in business, with especially profitable prospects for quick openings in new directions. The energies will be under high pitch. In private affiliations sudden romance blooms with very festive and ardent precipitation, but be fairly circumspect.

A child born on this day may be notably lively, enterprising and versatile and may have a keen mind and dependable judgment. Its private life should be pleasant and romantic.

For Manday, November 15.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a fairly active day, with profitable new business and the renewal of desirable contracts. An element of secrecy or tacit understanding may be necessary to put these over, but be careful that there are no loopholes for confusion or misconstruction. A sudden journey is in order. Be cautious in employment.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a fairly progressive and profitable year in new business, particularly in new arrangements and contracts. If secret or tacit agreements be desirable, be careful to forestall all misinterpretations or confusions. Be decisive. An unexpected journey may promote such new projects.

A child born on this day may be energetic, versatile, alert for a quick chance or speculative coup. It may be generally successful and personally sought for its witty and cheerful companionship.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BUILDING A SQUEEZE

IN THE BUILDING of a successful squeeze play, it is frequently necessary to use the maneuver called the "Vienna Coup". This consists of laying down the ranking card of a suit and deliberately setting up the next card of the opponent whom you intend to squeeze. Then, when the pressure is put on, any discard he makes is disastrous. Failure to lay down that high card can change the whole timing of the squeeze and make it possible for him to pick a discard which will do him no harm.

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

Seven-No Trumps was the final contract reached by North-South on this deal. South opened with 2-No Trumps, North called 3-Clubs, South 4-No Trumps, North 5-Spades and South went to 7-No Trumps.

If South's play had been equal to his bidding of the hand, he could have made the contract. He won the first lead of the heart 3, covered by East's J, with the heart K. He then cashed his three high spades, ran his five clubs and then the spade K, but as West discarded after South he was able to guide himself accordingly and consequently set the contract one trick.

With 12 tricks in sight, and from the original lead, placing the heart Q with West, if South figured that West also held the diamond K, he had a good chance for his contract. He should have won the first trick with the heart K, cashed the three spades, then the clubs A and Q and then the diamond A. Now, when he entered dummy with the club 9, to run the remaining clubs and the spade K, it would have been impossible for West to hold the diamond K and a stopper for his hand Q, and any discard would have proved valuable to South.

After the lead of the spade J, what defense sets South's contract of 1-No Trump?

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"There is so much of loneliness
On this uncharted earth
It seems each one's a prisoner
Within a cell from birth.

Even the closest comrade
Never fully knows
Each intimate Gethsemane
The spirit undergoes."
—Lucia Trent, in The Christian Century.

Dear Friends:

Isn't it true? Don't we all have to go through things by ourselves? No matter how sympathetic our friends may be, they cannot lift one bit of our pain from us and bear it FOR us. We have to do it alone.

Sympathy helps, never doubt it, only, the fact remains we are happier by far when we do not need sympathy, or so we think. And, no matter how they try to assuage our grief of mind, or pain of body, no one ever fully knows how much we suffer, because we bore and weary them if we go too much in detail about either.

We aren't all brave in the same way. For instance I have much patience in sickness, (altho' I certainly think I get far more than my share) but I am scared sick at a mouse. Vermin of any kind brings me out in goose-flesh, but I can help in sickness or accident without turning a hair, all my desire being to help as much as I can.

But my thoughts will get me down, and no doubt yours do too. And that is why I write of the everyday things, so that we can be in closer touch with one another.

Lucia Trent goes on to say:

"There is such need for union,
Such need for clasping hands,
Yet we deny the brotherhood
The human heart demands."

Why should we deny to others what one day we may need from them? Why our troubles loom so large to us, and other people's seem so small? Because no one can ever take the smallest part from us in reality. They can ease us with comforting words, but in the wee sma' oors of the night, we have our Gethsemane same as our Lord had, and think in our hearts ,"Could ye not watch with me one short hour? A dog when it is wounded, crawls away by itself to either get better or to die. But we as humans have not that fortitude, for we want help, we want ease of pain, we want speedy recovery, and it is only by union with one another we can get it.

Dogs and horses and many animals run in packs. Humans do the same. We NEED each other, and when one stays aloof they harm many. If I share your burden and you share mine as far as we can, the way doesn't seem so hard. We may have learnt something which will help the other, something which will ease the pain of either body or mind, and by with-holding it, the other's pain is doubled.

And yet, we are sealed into ourselves until eternity. Our personality, our hates and our loves, our high resolves and our failures, our achievements and our despairs, all inside where no one can ever truly penetrate.

Shouldn't it, then, make us more considerate, knowing we are all alike in that respect. Shouldn't it draw us together more and as Burns says: "Gently scan your brither man, Still gentler sister woman; Though they may gang a kennin' wrang To step aside is human."

Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Bare Legs The Fashion In Bermuda

TORONTO—So many people in Toronto stared at Mrs. Eva Bryan's bare, sunburned legs she had to "cover them up," the former Brockville woman said. "They've kidded the life out of me about wearing no stockings. I think they are all sissies! It's quite the custom to go about wearing only short socks in Bermuda.

Eminent Canadian Expresses Confidence In Youth Of Present Generation

William Perkins Bull, K.C., Tells Supper Club Members To "Follow Through"

"I can speak for you anything you want if you go after it. Look where you're going; following through and you'll get there," William Perkins Bull, K.C., counselled young men of the Friday Night Supper Club before whom he spoke at the Y.M.C.A. last evening.

Mr. Bull who won public attention first as a barrister practicing in Toronto and later in finance and commerce in Canada and Great Britain, was introduced to the large gathering of young men by the Honorable G. N. Gordon, K.C., who spoke of the guest of the evening a "a very eminent Canadian philanthropist, historian and outstanding member of the Bar."

Moving a vote of thanks at the close of Mr. Bull's address, F. D. Kerr, K.C., expressed himself as being in fullest accord with all that the speaker had said and was impressed not only by his eloquence but by his sympathy and perception.

Charles Shaw who presided as chairman was presented by the distinguished guest speaker with an autographed copy of his newest publication "From Spring to Autumn." Guests of the club in addition to those previously noted were Mrs. E. M. Leeson, superintendent Nicholls Hospital, Jacob Low, H. Steggles and A. B. Rhodes. Andy Rutter acted as song leader, with Stanley Northrop at the piano.

Confidence In Youth

Speaking from an experience of "nearly three score years and ten," Mr. Bull a picturesque figure of a man with a rich grey beard asserted, "My feeling about young people—and I am one of a family of eleven and the father of seven children—is that all children are born into this world equal in ability. Some are handicapped by being born of rich parents or in the city. But I have a feeling every child leaves the cradle with an equal chance barring the handicaps I have mentioned. The difficulty most of them have is in following through."

Quoting Shakespeare's "To thine own self be true and thou canst not then be false to any man," the speaker declared, "In my opinion if you will do that you are bound to get there."

Remarking on his age and stating with a twinkle in his keen eyes, "I'm glad none of my children or grandchildren are as old as I am," the speaker said he had the firm conviction that life has something still to offer.

"Looking at life I feel I must say a word about Remembrance Day. You and I must remember the boys that fought and died in the Great War. They counted not the cost and did not go for glory and honor. But if they had not gone you and I and our country would I feel be today where Ethiopia, China and Spain are. I feel we would have been hewers of wood and drawers of water, doing the goose step."

Tribute To War Dead

Paying his tribute to the 60,000 Canadian war dead, he asked, "Was it worth while?" The answer to that question, he said, lay in the heart of every individual.

"Are you and I in our everyday life and conversation true to the ideals and principles for which those boys fought and died," he challenged. "Are you and I following the right course in our daily associations. Are we following the course that when we too shall pass on, we may expect those on the other side to reach out a welcoming hand and say 'I'm proud of you; you upheld those things for which I gave my life'."

Mr. Bull stressed the importance of loyalty. Loyalty to country, loyalty to those in authority and loyalty to employers and friends. "I am not a Grit and I'm a Tory, but I live in a democratic country and I'm shouting for the men at the head of affairs," he declared.

Urging his listeners to cherish the sanctity of home and family life, Mr. Bull referred to the former King Edward's speech of abdication in which he said of his brother who was to succeed him on the throne, "He has one matchless blessing, enjoyed by so many of you and not bestowed on me, a happy home with his wife and children."

A Hand of Homes

Having been a resident of England for quarter of a century, Mr. Bull assured his audience "Britain is a country of homes where family life is still cherished." He deplored the increasing number of divorce and matrimonial scandals that were threatening home and family life all over the civilized world and believed society could not be built on that sort of thing.

While he recognized the motherland and her dominions beyond the seas as al being countries of homes, he contended, "In no single country in the world today are Christian principles so closely adhered to as in England." It was he said the very sub-stratum on which the solidity of that country rested.

Developing his thought along this line, Mr. Bull urged the young men to build their characters on a solid foundation and to remember always it was not so much the job in which one happened to be, but the manner in which that job was tackled.

"Do your work thoroughly and no matter what you think of the boss over you, give him your unswerving loyalty and look up to him. At every turn it is the personal equation that has to be figured with, and if you are not succeeding take a look in the glass and see whose fault it is. I can speak for you anything you want; go after it," he concluded.

The Rambling REPORTERS

WHERE DO THEY GO?

On Water street between Hunter and Brock—and that is just outside the office window—a youth was delivering bills. They were printed on yellow paper and the man who was taking this way of getting his business message to the public probably was sure enough he would get a fair enough coverage. There were nine cars standing along the west side of the street and a bill was tucked under the windshield wiper of each car. The wind was fairly brisk at the time and it was not long before four of the nine bills had been blown away. The drivers of two cars by the post-office came out and drove off, but before doing so reached over and took the bills from under their wipers and threw them away. So that accounted for six of the nine bills.—K.

Police Quell Interrupter

Two minutes silence during the Memorial Day service at the London cenotaph was rudely interrupted when an allegedly demented man broke through the guard of sailors and shouted, "This is all hypocrisy!" PETERBORO SKIS ARE BEING SENT TO UNITED STATES

That Peterborough may eventually become as famous for its skis as for its canoes in the world at large is suggested in a report from the Peterborough Canoe Company that a heavy demand for skis from the United States has increased production this year.

"For several years past since the skiing craze struck the United States we have been shipping skis to the New England and North-Eastern States, and the demand is growing," W. A. Richardson, general manager, said. "This year we are developing a market new to us in California and the other Pacific Coast states."

Mr Richardson said ski production is up 30 per cent. this year over last. The factory has been in production on skis since August, with two shifts. While the largest foreign demand comes from the centre of the American skiing craze, the New England States, orders came from all States in the Union except the far Southern States, he reported. Hickory and ash skis in cross-country and slalom models are sold in largest volume.

Following the initial flow of toy contributions to the Fire Department toy repair effort, contributions have fallen off sharply, the firemen report. Repeating their request to citizens for old toys, they urge that those with toys available for repair at the Department send them in or notify the Department immediately, since a last minute rush before Christmas would be of no avail.

SHOT FINE BUCK.

Back from the chase, a local hunting party brought with them a buck that weighed over 200 pounds, which was shot and killed at Papineau Lake near Maynooth, North Hastings County. The party included Alex. L. Elliott, M.L.A.-elect, Dr. Ralph Honey, E. A. Chalmers and Vern Ferguson. They left here last Sunday and returned to the city Friday night.

REWARD UNCOLLECTABLE.

Police have yet found no trace of the culprit who turned in a false alarm from a fire box at the corner of George and Charlotte streets in broad daylight two weeks ago, Chief Gimblett reported to-day. GOT THEIR DEER

Max Kirby, Hugh Mathewson and Orley Brooke, members of the Toronto Kinsmen club, have been hunting for the past nine days in the Apsley district, and passed through Peterborough in Friday night with their three deer, two fine bucks and a doe. MARKET SPOILED.

MINISTER DELIGHTED.

J. J. Duffus remarked to the Examiner today that the Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Defense, was greatly impressed and pleased by his reception in Peterborough. Every detail arranged by the Canadian Legion, the Prince of Wales Rangers and Mayor Macdonald and the city council was woven into a memorable day. The large attendance of citizens at the morning events was another striking incident. "The Minister told me that in its spirit and setting Peterborough's celebration of Remembrance Day was one of the finest he had ever witnessed, and he was delighted to have had a part in it."

WOMEN TEACHERS GIVEN OUTLINE OF GREAT WRITERS

To dwell for a brief hour on the intellectual heights inhabited by men of literary genius, seeing and hearing them talk through the medium of one who had met them face to face, was the rare treat enjoyed by those who heard Professor G. H. Clarke, M.A., F.R.S.C., F.R.S.L., head of the English Department at Queen's University, give a witty, entertaining and instructive lecture to the Women Teachers' Guild in the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening.

Quoting an old Chinese proverb, "A single conversation with a wise man is better than a month of books," Miss Helen Staples, president of the Guild, made a few introductory remarks, and announced that this was the first of a series of lectures to be given by the Extension Department of Queen's. Two weeks from now Dr. Graham of the History Department will speak on the "Problem of Naval Rivalry."

Tom Allen, M.A., introduced the lecturer as one who needed no introduction to the Queen's students present, as a fine scholar and keen critic, a poet and writer, and an authority on Browning and Shelley.

"The passion for heroes, whether disappointed or not, persists with all of us," said Dr. Clarke. Though he never met him, Shelley was always a hero to Browning, who wrote poems and essays in his praise. "All heroes are 'essential men,'" said the speaker, "and all men are possible heroes." Accounts of his intercourse with such famous authors as Shaw, Kipling, Conrad, Galsworthy, and Hardy were given.

Met George Bernard Shaw.

Dr. Clarke's first meeting with George Bernard Shaw came when he joined a group of 72 Canadian writers, which included many who could not merit that description, who were touring Great Britain. Shaw, supposed to speak to the group at 8, arrived at 11.30. "a truly Shavian gesture," remarked Dr. Clarke. People "ripening toward departure" turned back at sight of him, and Shaw, mounting a dais, revolved like a mannequin, saying, "I know you are all intensely anxious to see me, so I will show myself," and added that he was glad to welcome them, as he had not supposed there were any Canadian authors. A more sensible note was struck when he said, "Your boundary line is a natural and scientific one, promoting goodwill and peace; European boundaries are unnatural, unscientific, breeding war."

Dr. Clarke met and talked with Shaw again at the Malvern Dramatic Festival, where Shaw admitted he had made the remark about Canadian authors because others, chiefly Chesterton and Kipling, were so much praising them. "Another incident of the impish spirit of the man," said Professor Clarke.

Rudyard Kipling, whom the speaker had also met at that time, in addressing the authors, said that Canadian writers had dealt either directly or by implication with every part of their country's background, but were too modest about marketing their literary wares in Britain. He said there was a great need of a good anthology of Canadian prose and poetry.

"And there is a dispostiion to foster Canadian literature by too much praise," declared Profesor Clarke, "and it will not progress fast enough till we get rid of that bad habit." He had three or four other opportunities to converse at length with Kipling, who "had a warm interest in Canadian progress, arts, sciences and governmental relationships."

Joseph Conrad, Profesor Clark met under different circumstances in 1922, when he received a letter from the author inviting him for a short visit at his home in Bishop's Bourne, Kent. The letter told him exactly when to arrive and when to leave, "the English way, but a splendid way all round," said the lecturer, who was born in Kent himself. Conrad was born in the Ukraine, but was greatly attached to Great Britain, and when asked for the chief reasons, gave as his answer, "The political sagacity of the ruling classes which has saved Europe more than once, and the innate kindliness of the British character in all classes."

Extremely Nervous Man.

Profesor Clarke found Conrad a delightful host though an extremely nervous man. He asked his visitor, "Have you read all my books? Which do you think the best and which the poorest?" He seemed satisfied with the reply that "The Rescue" was the best, and "The Arrow of Gold," the least worthy, but said "Nostromo" was his largest canvas." "He was disturbed that he could not write verse though his prose is among the most beautful in the English language." Conrad talked to the speaker of many authors. Masefield, whose "sincerity" he liked, and Henry James, whom he did not think was justified in rewriting his books.

John Galsworthy, whom Dr. Clarke met at a tea party, gave the lecturer's verdict on Conrad's works, and added: "Nostroma" is a jungle. The pot of a man's popularity boils over sometimes and not with his best work, and that is not good for him."

The speaker met Thomas Hardy, also in 1922, and was impressed by his personal charm and intellectual range. He talked at length of many things, including his colossal work, "The Dynasts," and defending himself against the charge of pessimism, as shown by his novels, said he was "an evolutionary ameliorist" and felt it a duty to look the worst the world has to offer fairly in the fact and not live in "a Fool's Paradise." "If we do not know the evil in the world, we don't know our task, and can't make a sound reconstructnon."

Of John Masefield, the poet laureate, Dr. Clark said: "He is a most delightful friend, a true, sincere, humble, gracious, kindly man." Though his prose is not of first rate importance he is a great poet, and his sonnets in praise of beauty a great artistic achievement. The lecturer finished his address with a remarkable poem of his own composition written around the incidents in Masefield's life.

Words of appreciation for Dr. Clarke's lecture were spoken by Miss Alexis Howson.

JOHN C. STRICKLAND IS LAID TO REST HILLSIDE CEMETERY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 13—As the village flag fluttered at half-mast the residents of the municipality of Lakefield turned out in large numbers to pay their last respects to one who had served the village long and well, for Mr. John Crickmore Strickland, whose funeral was held at 2.30 p.m. in St. John's Anglican Church, Lakefield was for many years, reeve of the municipality.

The church was crowded with friends of the deceased who came from far and near to pay their last tribute. Mr. Strickland's varied career took him to many parts of the world and everywhere his pleasing personality won for him friends. Dr. A. W. MacKenzie who delivered the funeral address spoke very feelingly of the fine and engaging qualities of Mr. Strickland. "It falls to very few men to leave behind them such a record of kindly deeds done and noble works performed as did this lover of the out-of-doors. "He was not a rich man as most of us judge riches, but he was rich in kindness, in charity, in vitality, and all the qualities that go to make up a true sportsman.

A Noble Son

He was the noble son of a noble family. His grandfather was the founder of this village and Col. Strickland's spirit still permeates the community."

Rev. Creighton, pastor of St. John's Church, conducted the funeral services, being assisted by Dr. A. W. MacKenzie, principal of Lakefield Preparatory School and a brother-in-law of the deceased.

Honorary pall-bearers were: S. J. Charlton, Braden Blewett, John Blewett, T. J. Wood and N. A. Moore of Lakefield and G. G. Connell of Arthur, Ont.

The pall-bearers were: Reginald Bloomfield and A. E. Dawson of Toronto; F. M. DelaFosse and Robert Leeming of Peterborough; Reeve C. S. Tanner and W. J. Charlton of Lakefield.

The Lakefield village council paid tribute to Mr. Strickland's years of service to the village by appearing at the service in a body. Interment was in Hillside Cemetery. Beautiful floral tributes were received.

FAVOR RAMBLERS HOCKEY CONTEST

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—(CP). — Philadelphia Ramblers, who look like the team to beat in the International Hockey League although they have played only one game so far, get their second test to-night as action resumes on three fronts.

Ramblers, middle link in the "Three R" chain that sends players from New York Rovers, to Ramblers, to New York Rangers in the National Hockey League, are favored to take New Haven Eagles in a home clash. Pittsburgh Hornets play host to Syracuse Stars and Springfield Indians entertain Cleveland Barons in the other games.

Ramblers made their start last Saturday, an impressive one by trouncing Barons 5-1 before 5,000 home fans. It's been the only decisive victory of six league games to date and that's why the Ranger farm team gets the call over Eagles from most intam fans.

Hornets will be out to keep their record clean of defeats in their game against Stars. The Pittsburgh entry, in their single game, scraped by with a 1-0 win against Providence Reds. Stars have a draw to their credit in their only game as have Springfield.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac this here Sat. is a important day in football circles both here and in the other loops and by the time the evening shadows has fallen across this here article the customers will know all about it and will know whether our Orfuns is out for the season or is pointing for further triumphs. Last Sat. the lads hiked eastward down to the airport and was beat by the Flyers 5 to 1 in a game in which all the points was single 1's. Naturally the winners took to the air a lot and they win out largely because their Mister Gibson was hoofing better on the day's showing than our Mister Crowe. We got a idea there will be a different showing here Sat. and we are looking to see the Orfuns grab theirselfs enough scoring points to put the Aviation Aces out for the season and get a little revenge for last season's hockey licking.

Collegiate vs Waiting

Meanwhile our Collegiate Grs. is waiting for a chance to get into action with Albert Collitch which same clash is on the cards for next week. The Belleville boys is touted as tough medicine and they may be all of that but in any case they will find Coach Bamforth's speed merchants a busy little outfit to keep track of especially if the ball is dry and the footing is good. They got a habit of uncorking a trick play or something and busting a game wide open just when the other fellows think they has everything under control. Here last Sat. Bowmanville held them to 2 points in the 1st half and right off the reel after the rest period the garnet and gray kids pulls a 80 yard touchdown play out of the bag and away goes the old ball game before the rubbertown kids heardly knew the 2nd half was under way. P. C. I. is been having a lot of tough luck with injuries and such but in spite of that they been going along nicely and if they don't toss Albert for a loss well that outfit is a better intercholastic machine than we had any idea was 1 operating around these parts.

The Hockey Doings

The pro hockey games so far Mac make me look like a punk in picking Detroit to repeat but like the scroud twin I'm happy about the whole thing. It's a long grind until next March and the Red Wings will be moving along just about the time when moving really means something. The surprise so far has been them Chicago Black Hawks which led by Umpire Bill Stewart is at the date of writing actually heading the United States of the loop and had the nerve to step right into New York and spoil the Rangers' opening by trimming the Patrick entry 3 to 1 and that after the Rangers had whitewashed Detroit right at home.

The teams aint in shape yet old timer but they is one thing sure them Toronto scorers is already in mid-season form and determined to get a leaf up at the top of the scoring statistics. In the game with the Amerks last Sat. nite the boys wasn't just sure who scored a couple of goals but they took no chances of robbing anybody so they tossed in a pair of assists to go along with each marker. It is a old Toronto custom and nobody would bat a eye about it if the Queen City scribes wasn't always squaking about other towns doing it.

Well old timer that seems to be the works so we'll pause here for the week.

Sportfully Yours,
A. Wise Cracker.

PITT FAVORED BEAT NEBRASKA RUGBY CLASSIC

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (A.P.). — This is the day. Games which bear on the United States football championship go begging for attention. Traditional matches with their roots in football's lusty youth strive to make the headlines. This is the day. Army vs. Notre Dame at New York.

Before any other game can be mentioned the spotlight must swing to Yankee Stadium and the meeting of the Irish and the Cadets. Millions of old Blues from 'Hard Knox' will cheer for the Irish and other millions who never saw the grey battlements of the Point will be chanting in time to the Army battle songs.

On form it's all Notre Dame. But this battle has never been played on form. The series is full of startling reversals and stunning upsets. Army apparently is outmanned by Andy Pupils and his pals. Notre Dame should be strong enough to take the Cadets.

Army has had an uneven year. The Grey and Gold won indifferently from Columbia and Harvard, played sloppy football to lose to Yale. But it's still anybody's football game, and 80,000 or so will be on hand at the kick-off for the next chapter in the one of football's all-time best sellers.

Pitt and Nebraska play at Pittsburgh in a clash of two mighty football powers. The Pittsburghs may have used up their stuff against Notre Dame, but there's a feeling the Panthers will have enough left to pull through against a sturdy eleven which is noticeably weak on attack.

Top ivy imbroglio of the day is the Yale-Princeton game at New Haven, a game that is runner-up to the Army-Irish meeting for attention in the East. Just behind it are a half-dozen other headliners: Dartmouth-Cornell, Columbia-Syracuse, Manhattan-North Carolina State, Penn-Michigan, Brown-Holy Cross, and N.Y.U.-Georgetown.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

WAS IT a dream? Yeah, it must have been. The other day we were reading something about the Western Ontario Sports Writers Association going to hold a meeting or something. And having a malleable mind, we got mulling the matter over in it, only using a Central Ontario setup. And it seemed to us that the Central Ontario Sports Writers Association—called the C.O. Scribes Assoc. for short—held an organization session. It was held in the Ford Hotel in Toronto, on account of they couldn't agree on whose town to hold it in and they couldn't afford the King Eddy or Royal York. Must have been a dozen gees on hand, counting weekly and daily newspaper coverers of athletics. Took a bit of arguing to get a big room in the basement, but the deskman was finally persuaded we weren't gangsters.

* * * * * *

BROTHER COLLING of Belleville talked himself into the chairmanship, not giving anyone else a chance to speak up. This is one advantage of being an umpire and sounding impressive and often. It took a great deal of time to get the delegates seated—since it seems there were a number not on speaking terms and who refused to sit "anywhere near that dumb so-and-so of a——!" They finally got Bros. Campbell of Oshawa and Foote of Cobourg on opposite sides of the room. Bro. Walsh of Kingston agreed to sit next to Brother Nelson Osborne of Bowmanville. They placed Bro. Perdue of Peterborough between Brother Begley of the Lindsay Post and his pal from the Scugog Warder—yours truly always being put smack in the middle of trouble. Others were parked here and there.

* * * * * *

YE CHAIRMAN gave an eloquent address which no one paid any attention to, something about burying the ink-spattered hatchet and forming a union to provide uniformity in reports and freeze out undesirables on publicity. But there was so much bickering going on between the scriveners about "that ball game in Peterborough", and "those rough rugby players of Bowmanville," and "those Blown Bombers", and "rabid fans at gals' softball games in your town", etc., that even the Quinte columnist ran out of words. A call for entry fees resulted in a total of 63 cents, 14 buttons and 79 press complimentaries, being collected. It was amazing.

* * * * * *

WELL, THE Association died aborning. The boys just couldn't agree on officers, fees, program, next place to meet, who'd pay the hotel room, what refreshments to order, or even on sitting in the same room and being friendly. It was a flop. It was no dream—'twas a nightmare, indeed!

* * * * * *

NEXT COMPETITION for the senior P.C.I. gridders is the sudden-death C.O.S.S.A. semi-final betwixt the locals and Albert College of Belleville. It will be played here at 2.30 next Saturday in Riverside, the Albert outfit agreeing to playing it here—for a price, of course. Winner of this serial steps into the C.O.S.S.A. final series 'gainst the victor of the Georgian Bay-Niagara Falls series, possibly Barrie—and isn't that a jinx town for us in hockey—within a couple of weeks. So next Saturday's scrap here may quite easily be the final home stand for the P.C.I. players this year, regardless of whether they win or lose, as they may be ordered (if they rub out Albert Collitch) into a sudden-death joust on foreign terrain in the next round. P. C.I. juniors finish today.

* * * * * *

COACH HARVARD L. Bamforth is a smart grid mentor. He will not thank us a bit for mentioning this matter, preferring to pilot his P.C.I. senior rugbyists into the playdowns, after winning their group, season after season—and having the credit go to the school and players rather than himself. But when you see a winning squad year after year under the same skipper, and see the brand of tricky open plays they produce, you can't help but recognize the fine hand of a smart coach. Those Bamforth-coached crews supply more brilliant plays and thrills for the fans—along with a battling spirit—than a dozen ordinary rugby machines. Yeah, the husky coach at P.C.I. (who used to play himself) knows his football and can teach it to the boys.

* * * * * *

SAYS TED Reeve in the Tely: "If there is a senior O.R.F.U. next year there will be more than two senior teams and the Hamilton Cubs on deck. Rumors are flying about, and such spots as Dundas, Cobourg, Oshawa and Peterborough have been mentioned for senior berths. Dundas, long a great football town, has an intermediate team now that should win the title. We hear they do quite well against the Tigers in practise and should they enter senior company they would have several Hamilton players. The Cobourg leathermen have done nicely in the intermediate 'B' series, eliminating the husky Kingston Garrisons in a hard struggle at Richardson Stadium. Meikle's kicking and the running of Don Williams, the Bowmanville boy, featured the fray in which the Cobourgs, who are coached by mail by Chuck Peck, showed a strong tackling line led by Spooner, who had some experience with Balmy Beach. Mr. Peck was on hand and decided to stay with the system that has carried them through the season so, instead of a pep talk at halftime, he sent the boys another letter."

* * * * * *

WITH WINTER racing on us, we feel like the second last rose of summer—a riled Irish rose. But must face the music of crackling frost, we suppose. Was thinking the other day about telling Knotty Lee once that it was possible for a team in one inning to have three singles, a double and two triples and not score a run! We told him that the first two guys up might triple and be out trying to stretch hits. Next gee doubles and goes to third on a single. He holds his base as the next man beats out a bunt. Then the next chap hits a line drive that strikes a runner, retiring the side but being scored as a single. Old Knotty said: "Huh, it's possible to have four triples, two doubles and six singles in one inning and not have a run scored! Have it the way you explained in two halves of one inning!" We were so mad we could have counted 1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8-9-10 at least eight times and still have seen the Petes' pilot through a red haze. And did he chuckle!

BLUE BOMBERS MAY PLAY TWO GAMES IN EAST

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—Winnipeg's Blue Bombers may be invited East to play a semi-final game in the Canadian football playdowns and, if they win, stay down here for a second and championship intersectional game, it was learned Friday. The Canadian Rugby Union is toying with the idea.

President Bill Foulds of the C.R.U., said today his executive had been asked to consider playdown plans in a detailed way, now that Winnipeg is ready to represent the West, Sarnia Imperials the Ontario Union, and Montreal Westmounts, the Quebec Union.

But the C.R.U. head wasn't prepared to say when or if the Bombers would be asked to toy with a proposition that, in all probability would send them against the powerful Imperials, December 4, and against the Big Four champions, December 13. It was considered likely Winnipegs would be given a chance to refuse the idea, anyway.

Four schedule finishes today with a two-game, total-point playoff between the first and second-place teams slated for November 20 and 27.

Certain to be in this playoff are Toronto Argonauts. Today's hostilities will determine whether Montreal Indians, Ottawa Roughriders or Hamilton Tigers provide the opposition. Should Hamilton defeat Argos today, a second-place tie would extend the playoffs another week.

Completed plans call for Montreal Westmounts, challenging in senior company for the first time in many years, to race Sarnia November 20. Should the Imperials get safely through that test they would be ready for the eastern final against the Big Four champions.

Nobody is saying much about it, but chances are Winnipegs and Imperials will be sounded out without undue delay about playing a December 4 game.

EMPIRE OARSMEN RACE OF NEPEAN

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Nov. 13 (CP)—On the peaceful waters of the Nepean River, where state and Australian championships have been rowed since 1928, crack oarsmen and scullers from many British nations, including Canada, will match strokes in the British Empire Games of 1938.

Fringed by the Blue Mountains and well-sheltered, the Nepean is about 34 miles from Sydney on the main western highway. Under normal conditions there is no run on the stream and a three-mile, almost straight course which can accommodate at least eight crews abreast, is available.

First time they have been staged in the Southern Hemisphere, the British Empire Games are being held here from Feb. 5-12 in connection with Australia's 150th anniversary celebrations, which start Jan. 26 and end April 26.

Most famous of Australia's rowing courses is the historic Parramatta River of Sydney, universally known as the scene of many great races for the world sculling championship. But industrialization of districts surrounding the Parramatta forced rowing authorities to look further afield for a safe and sheltered course.

In 1927, the inter-varsity eights and the following year the King's Cup eights were rowed on the Nepean at Penrith. Since then Australia's great races have been held there.

During January and February, when athletes will be in training and competition, a daily period of more than 12 hours sunshine will be experienced in Sydney. Athletes long have looked upon the Sydney summer as "easy" for training purposes, with generally warm days tempered by prevailing summer north-east breezes—the cool trade winds of the Pacific.

EXPECT SWIMMERS TO MAKE RECORDS

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Nov. 13 (CP)—In the largest city of the land that gets credit for showing the world the value of the "Tuppa Tuppaid," known as the Australian crawl, the speediest swimmers from 17 countries will meet at the British Empire Games here Feb. 5-12 in connection with Australia's 150th anniversary celebrations.

Because climatic conditions are probably more favorable to the sport in Australia than in any other country in the world, swimming is regarded as the national pastime. Of Sydney's 40 public baths, the recently-erected $200,000 North Sydney Olympic Pool was selected as the venue of the empire championships. Officials, because the new pool has proved fast, expect many records to be broken.

Modern in every respect the basin of the pool is concrete with tile facings. Starting pedestals are situated at the deep end and guide lines are incorporated in the bottom by means of black tiles. For racing conditions cork lanes are fitted and for backstroke events overhead lanes will be provided.

The pool is 55 yards long and 25 yards wide, and filled with fresh chlorinated water ranging in depth from 17 feet, six inches to four feet, six inches. The 10-metre diving tower was constructed in accordance with Olympic requirements and the three-metre springboards are equipped with movable fulcrums.

Permanent seating arrangements at the pool are for 2,000 persons. But a special temporary grandstand, to be built at the southern end and over the children's pool, will provide for total seating accommodation for 4,000.

Breaks Record

MR. KEN KINGSTON

Peterborough representative of The Dominion Life Assurance Company, who, during the month of October, sold life insurance to 50 different people. Mr. Kingston's volume of business was approximately $75,000, and, as far as is known, this constitutes a record for life insurance sales in this district.

KURTSINGER AFTER HIS 3RD KENTUCKY CLASSIC VICTORY

(By Central Press Canadian)

Charley Kurtsinger, the Louisville jockey, hopes to become a member of a very exclusive society some time early next May.

He had visions of becoming the third rider ever to ride three winners of the Kentucky Derby. The other members of this ultra-exclusive set are Earl Sande, now a trainer, and Isaac Murphy, one of the most famous colored jockeys ever to ride in the United States.

To accomplish his ambition Kurtsinger will have to quit one high paying job and accept another. The rumors are around that when his present contract with the stable owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago, which carries with it a guaranteed salary of $10,000 a year, expires in another month, he will pass up a new contract and instead will sign one calling for even more money with Hal Price Headley, widely known owner and breeder of thoroughbred horses of Beaumont farm, near Lexington, Ky.

Here's what the move will mean to Kurtsinger. It will give him the mount on Mr. Headley's Belmont Futurity winner, Menow, in such great three-year-old specials next year as the Kentucky Derby, Arlington Classic, American Derby, and Preakness stakes. It will permit him to ride Mr. Headley's other splendid 3-year-old Bourbon King in the Flamingo stakes and possibly the Widener challenge cup to be run during the winter in Florida.

As a result of his easy victory made in record time in the Belmont Futurity, Menow at this early date is the favorite to win all or at least a majority of next year's specials for three-year-olds. He looks like one of the fastest and gamest three-year-olds that have come to the races in a number of years.

Kurtsinger should know how to get the best out of this son of Pharamond II. He did it with two such great three-year-old champions at Twenty Grand and War Admiral. Few jockeys ever have been afforded such an opportunity to pick the prize of the flock in another early three-year-old division. Isaac Murphy scored his three Derby victories on Buchanan in 1884, on Riley in 1890 and on Kingman in 1891.

Sande's first Derby triumph was rolled up on Zev in 1923, his second on Flying Ebony in 1925, and his third on Gallant Fox in 1930. Both Zev and Gallant Fox were great horses. Flying Ebony did not reach that classification.

Sande should have a fourth Derby triumph to his credit. He hasn't for the simple reason that he picked the wrong horses. In 1919, while riding for J. K. L. Ross, Sande had his choice of the Ross Derby colts, which were Sir Barton and Billy Kelly.

Sande thought Billy Kelly was the better of the two. He picked that one to ride. Billy Kelly finished second to his stable companion, Sir Barton.

Kurtsinger is the only jockey still riding with a chance to score a third Derby triumph. A. Johnson, who has two victories to his credit, has turned trainer.

Linus McAtee, with winning Derby rides on Whiskery and Clyde Van Dusen to his credit, is wealthy and has turned gentleman golfer. He visits the track only now and then.

'37 CHAMPIONS HOLD ATTENTION NATIONAL LOOP

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (CP).—The National Hockey League's eight teams will be in action tomorrow night on four fronts. To make the weekend more interesting, the opponents in two of tomorrow's games will battle one another tonight.

Shakeups in standings and in scoring statistics and a clearer picture of the clubs' comparative strengths are sure developments. Last winter's sectional champions, Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens, will attempt to fight their ways from the cellars as they meet twice in two nights.

The sitlists' slow start has been a main feature of the young race. Detroit could gain only a 2-2 tie with Toronto, then was shut out 2-0 by New York Rangers. Canadiens drew 2-2 with Chicago in their opener and lost 3-0 to Maroons.

So a good deal of the spotlight will be fastened on the teams which battled in N.H.L. finals last spring as Canadiens attempt revenge for the loss in that series tonight at Montreal and tomorrow at Detroit. Red Wings will have Wally Kilrea in the lineup again, replacing the injured Gordon Pettinger, while Polly Drouin, former Ottawa amateur, will be Canadiens' ninth forward tonight and George Brown will replace him tomorrow.

The current leaders, Chicago of the American section and Toronto of the Canadian, are the other teams to collide twice. Toronto fans expect answers tonight to the questions which have sprung up around Bill Stewart's Black Hawks in their tie with Canadiens and even more amazing 3-0 victory over Rangers. A crowd of close to 15,000 is expected to welcome the Hawks back to Chicago tomorrow, for they will count their current road trip successful no matter what the result tonight.

Tomorrow's other games pit Montreal Maroons against the Americans at New York and Rangers against Bruins at Boston. Maroons, King Clancy's bruising brigade, will meet a club which has left some questions to be answered after spilling Chicago easily and taking a thorough beating from Toronto Rangers' combination of a win over Detroit and a loss to Chicago is just as puzzling to the bashing Bruins, winners in their only start.

League President Frank Calder today continued his investigation of a third-period melee which sprang up in Thursday's Maroon-Canadien game after Babe Siebert of Canadiens clashed with Baldy Northcott of the opposition. Reports of Referees Babe Dye and Clarence Campbell and of Coach Clancy, Northcott and Stew Evans of Maroons have been heard and Siebert likely will be interviewed today. Northcott received a forehead cut in the free-for-all.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Torchy Peden, Victoria six-day bicycle rider, established a world's one-mile mark at Minneapolis six years ago today. Paced by an automobile, Peden pedalled the distance in 48 2-5 seconds—16 seconds better than the mark set in 1917. The record since has been lowered again.

Surplus Of Players Forecasts Good Year For Detroit Wings

Four From Last Year's Championship Squad Found Bench Too Crowded

By Central Press Canadian

DETROIT, Nov. 13.—With an over supply of good hockey talent available, the Detroit Red Wings, Stanley Cup champions for the past two seasons, look to be the team to beat in the National Hockey league race again this year.

There are good reasons why Jack Adams should lead his world champions across the finish line ahead of the rest of the teams, and one indication is given by the fact that he has so much first-class hockey talent in his camp that it has been necessary to send good players out of the Motor City camp.

Adding to the crowded condition caused by an overdose of star material, Adams has back in his lineup for this season Larry Aurie, of the first-string line of Aurie-Barry-Lewis, and Doug. Young, husky defenceman, who were both out of action for the latter part of last season with broken legs.

To get the squad down to league proportions, star players had to be sent away. Earl Robertson, the rookie goaltender who turned in such a stellar performance during the Stanley Cup series last spring against Montreal Canadiens, when Normie Smith, ace goalie for Detroit, was injured, was sold to New York Americans. If Earl keeps up the brilliance he showed last spring, he should become one of the greatest puck-stopper in the N.H.L. and a worthy successor to Roy Worters in the Amerks' net.

Three Others Also

Johnny Gallagher, a defenceman with the Red Wings of last season, was sold to the star-spangled crew along with Robertson. He was another of the stellar championship crew of last year, yet Jack Adams was able to let him go without feeling that his team was weakened. After selling two such players, he still found himself loaded down with more good hockey talent than he could carry, so back to the Wings' farm club, Detroit Olympics, went Wally Kilrea and Orville Roulston. Although they will probably be there only temporarily, the fact remains that there wasn't room for them on the Wing bench. Roulston, a rookie, did not see much action last year due to a broken leg, but the husky defenceman proved himself a hard man to pass. Kilrea, although a near-veteran, still has a lot of good hockey in him.

With these four missing from the line-up, the Wings still shape up as a team of championship calibre. The 1937-38 edition of the champions has Normie Smith in goal, and he must be ranked as one of the best net-minders in the league, winning the Vezina Trophy last season. In case you have forgotten, this trophy is awarded yearly to the goalie scoring the greatest number of shut-outs during the season.

On the defence there are the hard-hitting "Bucko" McDonald, Ebbie Goodfellow, Doug. Young and Ralph "Scotty" Bowman. With two rear lines composed of these four, the Detroit defence is just about as firm as the Rock of Gibraltar. Apart from their defensive abilities, this quartet can and will start some dangerous rushes in the current campaign.

Three "Hot" Front Lines

In front of their stone-wall defence, the Red Wings have one of the greatest forward lines in the N.H.L., that of Aurie, Barry and Lewis. To back up this first-string line, the champs have two more dangerous trios. The second line is composed of tricky Syd. Howe, red-headed Johnny Sorrell and Pete Kelly (no relation to "Pep" Kelly of Toronto Maple Leafs). The third Red Wing line of Gordon Pettinger, Modere "Mud" Bruneteau and Johnny Sherf, although just a new line, carries plenty of potential scoring dynamite. From his showing to date, Pettinger is just about twice as good as he was last season, which adds to the Wings' chances of retaining, for the third straight year, the Stanley Cup. In Johnny Sherf, the lone rookie on the squad this year, they have an up-and-coming forward. Veteran Hec. Kilrea is the final man on the team, and he will be used as a utility player. Jack Adams, starting his 11th season as Red Wing mentor, is satisfied his team is the Stanley Cup team for 1937-38. He figures it like this: "We were good enough to win the cup last year. With our cripples back, we're just that much stronger. I think we still have the best team—now we'll go out and prove it."

Maybe hes right; the team certainly looks good on paper. It all depends on whether they can click again this season.

Goes To Rovers

HARRY BRAITHWAITE

Formerly with Toronto Rangers, Harry Braithwaite will play his hockey this winter with New York Rovers, farm club of the New York Rangers. Manager Lester Patrick announced. This smart netminder is not yet ready for N.H.L. competition, but it looks as though Patrick wants to keep his eye on him for futufe hockey material should he need another goalie. The Rovers are an amateur team in the eastern United

For many years the family chain
Was closely linked together;
But, ah, that chain is broken now,
Three links are gone forever.
My lips cannot tell how I miss you,
My heart cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how I miss you
In a home that is lonesome to-day.

SECTIONAL RALLY HELD AT HASTINGS BY 5 AUXILIARIES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Nov. 13.—Five Auxiliaries, Hastings, Havelock, Campbellford, Norwood and Warkworth, were represented at the Sectional Rally of the Women's Missionary Society of the Peterborough Presbyterial held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Hastings, on Wednesday afternoon. There was a large attendance present when the session opened at 2 p.m. with the president of the Hastings W.M.S., Mrs. C. Dodd, extending a hearty welcome to the ladies.

Mrs. C. E. Meiklejohn, of Warkworth, presided over the meeting which is held for the purpose of getting the members of smaller places in conference. Psalm 108 was chosen as the opening hymn, after which Mrs. J. A. Brown of Hastings, read the scripture. Prayer was then offered by Mrs. William McEachnie of Hastings.

Auxiliary reports and roll calls were given by the secretaries. Mrs. Reta Johnston reported for the Hastings W.M.S., who packed a bale valued at $40 as their missionary offering. Mrs. C. Dodd also reported for the Home Helpers.

Mrs. W. W. Rutheford reported for Campbellford, whose society obtained their allocation through free will offerings.

The Norwood Society as reported by Mrs. W. Robb, packed a bale valued at $14 and found free will offerings the most successful way of obtaining missionary money.

Miss Parks, of Warkworth, told how their Society had celebrated their 40th anniversary by holding a birthday party when a free will offering was taken in order to raise their allocation. A bale valued at $53 was also packed.

Mrs. G. A. Gobeen, of Norwood, conducted a most successful questionaire. Among the questions and answers were: How many Presbyterials are there in Toronto? 24; How many residences are under our supervision? 4; What are the divisions of the W.M.S.? Eastern and Western; When was the W.M.S. first organized? 1864; How can we interest those who do not believe in foreign mission? By encouraging the study of missionary work by distributing literature such as the Glad Tidings.

Tribute was paid to Remembrance Day by the singing of "Lest We Forget", followed by two minutes silence, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated.

Auxiliary Programs

Mrs. A. Connors of Campbellford, gave a very helpful talk in regards to Auxiliary programs, which should be in charge of various members. The one in charge should have the program thought out and considered long before the day of the meeting and should give it her prayers and deep meditation and aim to keep up the interest of the meeting. She should be faithful and aim at being helpful at the meetings and to all concerned. Information for programs should be obtained from the Bible, the Glad Tidings, newspapers, records or the assembly.

Mrs. C. Dodd and Mrs. Reta Johnston rendered a very pleasing duet "To the Harvest Field, Send Me" with Mrs. H. B. Wilson presiding at the organ.

Rev. D. K. Perrie, pastor of St. Andrew's church, Hastings, extended greetings from the society and gave a most inspirational address. After listening to the various reports he hoped the Women's Missionary Societies would always hold to free will offerings in obtaining missionary money. He urged for a wider appeal for W.M.S. programs and that a wider area be opened up in the work and that the programs be extended to things concerned with the Christian life and religion.

A message from the Presbyterial president, Mrs. A. G. Thompson was very instructive as she spoke on the needs of the missionary work along the lines of study, work and prayer. She also expressed her appreciation of the support given her by the vice-presidents and by Mrs. Meiklejohn and urged the secretaries to be most accurate in their reports.

The ladies then assembled in the basement of the church and after Rev. Duncan, of Warkworth, had given thanks, all enjoyed the delightful refreshments served by the local members.

On motion of Mrs. Black, of Campbellford, and Mrs. Storey, a vote of thanks was extended to the Hastings members and to all who assisted in making the sectional rally so successful.

The Mission Circle Girls of Trinity United church held their monthly meeting at the home of Miss Grace Orr, of Percy Township, on Tuesday evening, when fifteen members were present.

The chapter from the study book, 'A Christian Church faces the New World" was taken by six girls, each one representing the part taken in starting religion in Canadad. The leader, Mrs. Clifford Baker, started the chapter and Misses Helen Collins, Clardine Hoard, Irene Oliver, Ruby Fleming and Pauline Scriver, each contributed towards the reading.

A great deal of discussion was held in regards to the cooking school on November 17th, under the auspices of the Mission Circle Girls. An admission fee of fifteen cents will be charged and everyone is welcome to attend the class when Mrs. Aitkens of Toronto will demonstrate home cooking. Prizes and samples will be given away. Committees were appointed to assist Mrs. Aitkens serve afternoon tea.

Committee were also appointed to make arrangements towards entertaining the children of the church at Christmas time.

Following the meeting Miss Orr assisted by her mother, Mrs. H. M. Orr, and sister-in-law, Mrs. Wallace Orr, served dainty refreshments.

SHOWMAN ROSE WILL WED HOLM

DENVER, Nov. 13—(AP).—Showman Billy Rose said to-day he has discarded all "silly Shenanigans" about concealing his romance with Eleanor Holm Jarrett and decided to declare publicly they would be married as soon as they are divorced from their present mates.

And when they are married, Rose said, Miss Holm simply will be his wife. Her career as swimmer, movie player and actress in his huge stage spectacles will be chucked.

Glamorous Miss Holm, who defied the United States Olympic committee last year and was bounced out of the big Berlin show as a result, assented meekly:

"He's the boss."

Rose said his divorce from Fanny Brice, comedienne, would be up to her. Miss Holm, he said, will take action to divorce her singer-husband, Arthur Jarrett, as soon as she completes movie retakes in Hollywood.

8,450 PARALYSIS CASES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP).—The Public Health Service said to-day that infantile paralysis afflicted 8,450 persons in the United States from January 1 to October 16 — a figure exceeded only by the 9,386 cases in 1935 and 13,600 in 1931.

The seasonal decline was less than usual this fall, the service said. During the last four weeks 2,615 cases were reported. More than twice the number in the same period a year ago.

VETERANS PLAN EVENT FOR DUKE

PARIS, Nov. 13 (AP).—British veterans of the Great War today planned an event at which the Duke of Windsor would be received—in replacement of the invitation to Armistice Day services which he declined Thursday.

Col. Theodore Crowther, commander of the Paris Veterans' Post, said several suggestions had been made and the Post would attempt to fulfill the Duke's expressed wish to meet the veterans.

A friend said he believed the Duke's disappointment at not being able to attend yesterday's memorial ceremonies at St. George's Church and Notre Dame Cathedral was greater than when he recently postponed his tour of the United States.

Members of the Duke's suite said he was "stumped" by the statement of the Vicar at St. George's, the Rev. J. L. C. Dart: "I would rather the Duke did not attend the services."

The Duke cancelled his acceptance of the veterans' invitation to the church following the vicar's comment.

GHOUL NOTE HINTS WHERE BODY HID

TORONTO, Nov. 13 (CP).—Police today scoured Richmond Hill Park in the search for the body of W. Thompson, removed from its grave in nearby Woodbridge last week.

They hoped the eighth of a series of notes received by them, purporting to be written by the ghouls who robbed graves at Streetsville and Woodbridge would lead them to Thompson's body.

The note said the body would be found in Richmond Hill Park. Police said, however, only two of the eight notes were known to have been written by the Streetsville ghoul, one demanding $100 ransom for the return of the body of Hyden Pope and another saying where it would be found.

Others were believed to have been false. Police warned stern measures would be taken against persons found to have written false notes in connection with the crimes.

DIES OF POISON

COBOURG, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—Floyd Williams of Cramahe Township died to-day. Police said Williams had gone to the home of Archie McKenzie and told him he drank disinfectant a short time before.

Dr. F. Bember of Colborne was called immediately, but he was unable to save Williams' life. No inquest has been announced as yet.

CHAPTER 36.

"I've been thinking over your suggestion of a partnership," Tim managed to get out at last during his luncheon with Mower. "I'm not sure I wasn't a bit too hasty in turning it down out-of-hand. You see, I've always been on my own, and I've always rather valued my independence."

"Yes, yes, of course. I quite understand." Mower seemed a little ill at ease.

"But I realize, of course, as you suggested, one doesn't get any younger. And it might be worth while to feel I've got someone young and strong at the back of me." Tim brought this out with the greatest difficulty, but he had been able to think of no more plausible reason to account for his change of front.

"The question from my point of view is really one of terms," he went on. "If you could manage a premium of £1,000 in consideration of my special interest here, I'd be ready to agree right away."

"I'm afraid that's quite impossible," Mower replied.

"I thought you'd say that," Tim continued smoothly, "though I've worked it out and think it's a very fair figure. . . . But I don't want to drive a hard bargain. Under the circumstances I'm prepared to split the difference, and take £750."

Mower looked definitely unhappy. "Honestly, Kennedy, I'm afraid it can't be done. I wouldn't know where to raise the money."

"You mean £500 is your maximum figure?"

"Yes . . . absolutely. . . . Even then I'm a bit doubtful."

Tim's heart sank. "But, my dear fellow, the other day you made me a definite offer of £500."

"I wouldn't say definite. . . . I think I only said I might go to that."

"Supposing I made you here and now an offer of a partnership on equal terms for £500?"

"Well, it's very tempting, of course. . . ." Mower's attitude was painfully irresolute. "Truth is, Kennedy, I'm not absolutely sure I can make it now. When I spoke to you before, I was expecting to receive a certain sum-a legacy—which hasn't turned out anything like what I expected. I should like to join up with you, of course; nothing better, but I don't know now that I can afford to buy myself in."

"Well, think it over," said Tim, rising abruptly. He was crimson with mortification. "I'll keep the offer open a week."

"Thanks," said Mower. "I'll try to make it if I can possibly raise the wind. . . . I shall know in a day or two, and I'll let you have a line at once."

He tried to pay for the lunch but Tim, boiling with inward anger, refused to allow that. The upstart!—behaving as though he had refused a favor, and was trying to make up for it. For he had very little doubt that Mower's intention was to go back on his offer, as gracefully as he could—and that was not very gracefully. Nevertheless, he decided to give him every chance. He would wait for the week he had stipulated.

On the third day he received a letter. Mower was very sorry, but he feared he could not now make an offer. . . . A financial disappointment. . . . He would be glad, of course, to give Tim any assistance within his power, at any time.

Why had he changed his mind? Tim was not deceived by the excuse of the legacy which had not come up to expectations. There must be more in it than that. But for the life of him he could not think of a reason. A partnership for £500 would undoubtedly have been a very advantageous proposition to Mower. Tim could only attribute it to the instability of youth.

Meanwhile, however, another resource had failed him, and his position remained one of deadly seriousness. It was now mid November. He had little over five weeks more at The Wilderness. Apart from Dr. Harold Arkwright, who had agreed not to talk about the matter, nobody in West Shilston yet knew this. But it would have to come out soon, and Tim was particularly anxious that the news should not reach Alma's ears before he had settled things up with her.

To declare himself, establish a private engagement, and then after a week or two let her in on some of his difficulties, was a permissible course, however far it fell short of the ideal. But to go and ask her in marriage, with her already aware of his financial troubles, was to introduce a very doubtful flavor to the transaction, and his intentions, even by Alma might be misunderstood.

According to the program he had laid down, it was to have been well into the New Year before he approached Alma. He had pictured the spring as the season when a new and more intimate relationship would be inaugurated, a golden summer of romantic courtship, followed by marriage and the bringing of a new mistress to The Wilderness in the autumn.

That last dream had been abruptly dissipated, and in any case, events had not waited on him. It had become necessary to adjust his plans, and it was clear that he could no longer wisely postpone the first step. The decision made, he felt happier, for all his instincts favored it; and now it was ratified by reason, he enjoyed all the sensations of a child suddenly confronted with a glorious treat that had hitherto been only a distant prospect, too remote for reality.

So on Sunday afternoon it was with a little trepidation, owing not to fear or doubt, but only to a delicious tingling anticipation of imminent rapture, that he met Alma at the usual rendezvous in the Charing Cross Arcade.

He was silent in the train, and on their walk up the hill from Richmond station, so silent that Alma remarked on it. "It's nothing," he replied. "Just happy." He was going to wait for the right moment, and he wanted to produce an impression of spontaneity.

It was a stormy afternoon, with low, gray clouds blown gustly overhead, massing, dissipating, and changing their pattern every few seconds. In the park the wind was smashing the dead leaves whirled in demented circles on the ground, and sudden squalls of rain, ceasing as abruptly as they began, descended every few minutes.

The effect of this wild weather on Tim was exciting, almost aphrodisiacal; he felt it must be the same with her, and he let her have an

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S INDAIN FACE

"Well, well! Those old Indians certainly were funny chaps," said Uncle Wiggily as he looked at the paints on the desk of the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School. "To think of how they colored their faces red, blue, green, pink and purple to scare away any enemy Bad Chaps who might bother them. Very strange, but interesting."

Uncle Wiggily picked up some of the colored chalk crayons Miss Mouse had used in class that day to teach her animal boy and girl pupils about the early Indian history of their country, of the United States and Canada.

"Why, there's an Indian painted face on the blackboard now!" said Mr. Longears as he looked at one Miss Mouse had drawn like a picture from a book.

Disguise.

"There's a funny Indian chap with red painted rings around his eyes, with green streaks on his cheeks, with purple spots on his forehead and with his nose as yellow as a pumpkin. It certainly is very funny. The face does look like a bunch of Autumn leaves. Miss Mouse said Indians painted their faces like Autumn leaves so their enemies wouldn't so easily see them in the woods.

"Well," went on Uncle Wiggily as he twinkled his pink nose, which certainly needed no paint, "I had better hop home before it gets dark."

He was about to hop home when a friendly Blue Jay bird, whom the rabbit gentleman had once helped, flew to an open window, shrieking and calling as Blue Jays do.

"Hay! Hay! Hay!" cried the Blue Jay. "Where are you going, Uncle Wiggily?"

"I am going home," said the rabbit gentleman.

"Better not!" yelled the Blue Jay.

"Why not?" asked the rabbit.

"Because as I flew over the woods a little while ago I saw, hiding just outside this school, the Bob Cat Bad Chap."

"You did?" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily.

"I certainly did," said the bird. "And I think he is waiting for you, Mr. Longears."

"I am sure of it," said the rabbit. "He's angry because I pinched his nose in the dictionary book."

"You'll have to stay here all night," said the bird. "Unless you want me to go get the Police Dog."

"Thank you, no, I won't trouble the Police Dog. I'll fool this Bob Cat myself," laughed Uncle Wiggily.

He Knows a Way.

"How can you?" asked the Blue Jay.

"With my Indian face," said the rabbit. "Watch me!"

With that Uncle Wiggily began to color his face with the crayons as the old Indians painted theirs. He made purple circles under his eyes, he colored his ears, one green and the other red. He left his nose pink but on his cheeks he dabbed some yellow patches like eggs.

"What do you think of me now?" he asked the Blue Jay.

"I would never know you if I met you on the boardwalk," said the bird.

"Then I think I can fool the Bob Cat," laughed the rabbit. "I will either scare him so he runs away or he will think I'm a bunch of Autumn leaves and I can hop right past him."

Well, that's what happened. Boldly Uncle Wiggily hopped out of the school wearing his Indian painted face. Up popped the Bob Cat. But when he took one look at the Indian rabbit the Bad Chap tucked as much as he could of his silly little tail between his legs and ran away. Oh, but he was frightened! Serve him right, too, I say.

Now if the apple pie will take the piece of cheese to the movies I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's big shout.

quiet on the former Shanghai fronts.

The Japanese reported the capture of Kiating, 18 miles northwest of Shanghai, one end of a rough arc stretching through Anting and Sunkiang to Kashan, in Chekiang province. Anting is 22 miles west and Kashan 40 miles southwest of Shanghai.

The Chinese were retreating steadily toward their "Hindenburg Line" unable to withstand the Japanese pressure or entrench themselves to stiffen their resistance.

The line was about 30 miles west of the Japanese front and about 50 miles west of Shanghai. Nanking, China's capital, evidently the aim of the Japanese drive, is 125 to 150 miles further west.

Suggests Payments

Mortgagees who have availed themselves of the provisions of the Ontario mortgagors' and purchasers' relief act should now be required to make semi-annual payments on the principal sums of mortgages if they are to stay under its provisions, another resolution said.

The resolution as presented by the Oshawa Board of Trade called for repeal of the act. However, it was reported, mortgage companies do not favor this. Many debtors were relinquishing their rights under the act to obtain lower interest rates.

The convention approved a Northern Ontario proposal for the establishment of a game preserve north of North Bay on the Ferguson Highway. Delegates said wild life was disappearing in the north and that this season only one moose had been shot in all Nipissing district.

The convention also backed a northern plea for permanent surfaces on the arterial roads of the north. Tourist traffic is retared by poor surfacing even on the main roads, it was reported.

Appointment of a royal commission by the province to report on ways to achieve the maximum development of the north's natural resources was also asked. Appended to this was a request for a study of a more equitable division of mining company taxes between the province and the municipalities.

30 MINUTES AFTER Eating-Drinking ALKALIZE

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkalizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready.

Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonfuls of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," over-acid stomach are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

hour of it. Then, as the wind dropped a little, and a steadier, more penetrating rain began to settle over the earth, he led her out, and they had to race to the Lass round the corner to avoid getting soaked.

The sudden warmth of the little side room which they entered was like a benison. Tim ordered the tea; they took off their wet outer things, and settled down on a big sofa near the fire, glowing with bodily well-being.

Presently their tea was brought. "I'll settle for that now," said Tim to the girl. He wanted to be free from the fear of interruption. The room was a small one, and they had it to themselves. It was too late in the season for many people to be likely to come to the place for tea, and for those who did there was a larger room available.

So they took their tea in solitude; when it was finished they lit cigarets, and Tim switched on a portable radio on a table close by. A program of phonograph records was being played, and they came in for two movements of a Mozart symphony—the Jupiter. Tim did not not know what the music was, but he was stirred, and covertly watching Alma he sensed that she was equally affected. The music ceased. His hour had struck. . . .

"Alma," he said.

He reached out for her hand, and she let him take it.

"Alma, dear, are you happy?"

"Very happy, Tim."

"Happy in yourself, to be here with me? You're not just being kind, while you're really indifferent?"

"Of course not, Tim."

"I can't go on so," he said at last, in a choking voice. "I love you, Alma. I need you, always. Not just like this. . . . I can't do without you. . . . Alma, dear, will you marry me?"

She said nothing. Presently he apprehended that she was crying. His heart leaped. He was assured that he had won.

U.S. WIDENS FIGHT TO SPUR BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—(AP).—The Federal Housing Administration held out the prospect of larger earnings to-day to induce private capital to build thousands of new homes in the United States.

The F. H. A., first agency to respond to the efforts of President Roosevelt to stimulate private construction, increased from 6 to 8 per cent the maximum dividends permitted corporations which get Federal insurance on mortgages financing large-scale projects.

Stewart McDonald, F. H. A. administrator, said he believed this and other changes now decided on would result in "millions of dollars worth of new construction."

Reduction of labor costs in the building field, another subject of study by Mr. Roosevelt's new Housing committee, was received cooly, however, by William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor. He said he doubted the workability of a proposal that building workers accept lower hourly rates for a prospect of steadier employment.

Illustrated Talk Pleasing Feature

HASTINGS, Nov. 13—An illustrated lecture, showing scenes from the Holy Land, by lantern slides, was given by Father Galvin of Grafton, in the town hall on Wednesday night, before a fair attendance.

The lecture was under the auspices of the Hastings' Branch of the Catholic Women's League. The pictures showed many places where Jesus had made his home and visited, two thousands years ago, during his stay on earth.

A pleasing program of local talent helped make the affair a success. Jack Hennessy and James Cavanagh sang a duet, children of the Separate School sang a chorus and the young and talented Niel McKenty, played a selection on the piano.

Tired Business Men

Learn of relief for the nerves

More and more tired business and professional men are learning that when they are mentally and physically tired it is due to the exhaustion of the nerves. The lack of nerve force to concentrate the mind or to attend promptly to the daily task makes this perfectly clear and indicates the requirement of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore vigor to the exhausted nerves.

When you are tired in mind and body, the vital organs are also tired and sluggish in action. There is constipation, slow liver and kidney action, indigestion and feelings of discomfort generally.

So general have nervous disorders become, that doctors are accustomed to attribute from 60% to 75% of the ailments of their patients to an exhausted condition of the nervous system.

This may be the cause of your trouble, and if it is the treatment indicated is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You certainly cannot make any mistake by giving this treatment a trial for the average of cases in which it brings satisfactory relief is very high. Why not give it a chance to prove of benefit to you.

REMEMBRANCE DAY CEREMONIES HELD IN WESTWOOD HALL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Nov. 13.—Remembrance Day was fittingly observed by Asphodel township in Westwood Town Hall, with a fair attendance.

Reeve John McColl occupied the chair and spoke a few words of welcome and explanation.

"O God our help in ages past" was sung, led by a community choir with Miss Virginia Lobb at the piano. The scripture lesson and prayer by Rev. A. J. Preston, of Westwood Presbyterian church, were followed by the hymn "God of our fathers, known of old."

Two minutes of reverent silence were observed at eleven o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Preston gave a very impressive address with peace the dominant thought throughout. The meaning of the two minutes of silence was explained, it being the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month that peace was declared in 1918. Our condition during the war was compared to that of the Chinese of today, who are fighting ever in self-defence.

Tribute was paid to the late Col. Dr. John McCrae who died shortly after composing the famous poem: "In Flanders Fields". Mention was made of the beautiful cemeteries in France, where the bodies of our fallen heroes are resting. Three magnificent memorials in Flanders, Belgium and five memorials in France bear a wonderful tribute to the valor of those men. In Canada we have the Peace Tower in Ottawa where the Book of Remembrance, written in gold, will ever keep before the people of Canada the names of those brave soldiers who were sacrificed for their king and country.

A Stepping Stone to Peace

As a stepping stone to peace, the people of Canada should practice the spirit of self-sacrifice and unselfishness, dominant during the war; that we should be less critical and more sympathetic to our leaders, who are endeavoring to maintain peace, though often it takes more courage than to declare war. "O God grant that war may never come again," was a short and simple prayer for everyone to use.

"O Canada and the National Anthem were followed by all marching to the cenotaph, where the Province of Ontario wreath was placed by Miss Edith Douglas and the Women's Institute wreath by Mrs. F. E. Birdsall.

"In Flanders Fields" was read by Miss L. Buchanan and the choir sang "O Valiant Hearts."

GET GOOD PRICES AT FALLIS AUCTION

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Nov. 13 — Auction sales of farm stock and implements have been unusually numerous in this locality this season. One of the largest and most successful of these events was held on Wednesday afternoon, November 10, at the farm of the late Lewis Fallis, at Franklin. Ted Jackson was the auctioneer and bidding was lively during the long afternoon of selling. A good herd of Shorthorn cattle found ready disposal with several neighboring butchers bidding on those suitable for killing, a number going to Omemee market. Milk cows sold around forty dollars. Horses sold from seventy five to one hundred and five dollars and sheep at eight dollars. A good line of farm machinery was sold at comparatively high prices. A fine flock of Plymouth Rock pullets brought 87 cents a-piece. Several articles of household goods also found ready disposal, among them being a kitchen range which brought $63.00.

NEWSPRINT DEAL BOON TO CANADA

MONTREAL, Nov. 13—(CP). — A stabilizing effect on the newsprint export market was expected to-day from a huge deal that guarantees Canada about 75 per cent. of the newsprint purchases of Australia and New Zealand for the seven years beginning January 1, 1939.

Canadian Paper Company officials said the newly-negotiated contract, giving seven of this country's paper companies the major slice of the 200,000-tons-a-year Antipodean market, could be depended upon not only to steady the market for this country alone, but also to have the same effect on overseas newsprint trade in general.

A group of Australasian publishers have contracted for the Canadian paper. William Dunstan, general manager of the Melbourne Herald and the Weekly Times, who conducted the negotiations on their behalf, said yesterday their price for the seven-year stretch would be based on the price of Canadian newsprint in New York.

The rate for Australia-New Zealand, delivered at their chief ports, will be the New York price minus freight to New York plus ocean freight and insurance.

AUSTRALIA KEEPS MURDERED GIRL IN SPIRITS BATH

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 13. — Public interest has been revived in the "pyjama girl" murder at Albury, New South Wales, in 1934, most baffling crime in Australian police annals.

The reward offered for information regarding the crime has been renewed, and there have been questions in the New South Wales parliament asking whether the murder mystery is any nearer a solution.

More than three years have passed since the body of the murdered girl was found. It is still unidentified. The complete body, embalmed, lies in a bath of spirits at the museum of the medical school at Sydney University.

More than 3,000 people have seen the body, and nobody has been able definitely to identify the girl. No murder investigation in Australia has been so costly, and in no other case have the inquiries extended so far afield. The police departments of Great Britain, the United States, France, Germany, Italy, Japan and China have co-operated in seeking an answer to the riddle of the pyjama girl.

In the first month of investigation eighteen people gave postive identification. In each case the girl they named was traced and found alive, as were seventy-two other missing girls. What hampered the detectives, however, was that the first group of people who sought to identify the body saw a totally different girl from the one seen by later groups.

Those who saw her as she was brought into the Albury Hospital mortuary saw a ghastly body with a gaping hole in the forehead, apparently caused by a tomahawk. Dust smeared it, and her fair dyed hair was tousled.

There were singe marks on cheek and chin. The face was plumper than the girl's face was in life. This was caused by the effect of the battering on the head and an attempt to burn the features, probably to prevent identification.

Those who saw the body after the embalmers had finished saw the nearest approach of what the girl was like in life. The plumpness was gone. She had finely chiselled features and a delicately shaped and sensitive nose. Her hair had been brushed, her cheeks powdered and rouged, her eyebrows pencilled in and lipstick applied to her lips.

HON. D. MULLEN BEGAN CAREER IN LOCAL STORE

Now Alberta's Minister Of Agriculture

Hon. D. B. Mullen, Minister of Agriculture in the Aberhart Government of Alberta, was a week-end visitor at the home of his brother, Reeve George Mullen of Smith township, and is leaving on Tuesday morning for Toronto to attend the official opening of the Royal Winter Fair.

"We have brought 14 car loads of livestock to the Royal," Hon. Mr. Mullen told The Examiner, "and that is one of the reasons for my visit to the east. I am also going on to Ottawa to attend the meeting of provincial Ministers to discuss agricultural problems of the Dominion."

Thirty-one years ago Mr. Mullen conducted a meat shop at the corner of Rubidge and Dalhousie streets, where Fitzpatrick and Geraghty's store is now located. Attracted by accounts of the opportunities in the West, he sold his Peterborough business and went to Edmonton, where his abilities and industry have been abundantly rewarded. His interest in livestock as a boy and youth found the wide scope and outlet which became the basis of his success in the West.

Progress Was Rapid

On his arrival in Edmonton, then a city of 16,000, whose population today is 85,000, Mr. Mullen was first employed in a meat shop. One year later he acquired his own business, sold it two years later and became a packing plant salesman.

Then he branched out into the real estate field, and when the Edmonton stockyards were opened he returned to the livestock business. He also erected a large hog feeding plant at the yard, handling thousands of hogs which were finished for market. Mr. Mullen assisted in the organization of the Edmonton Livestock Exchange, was one of the original directors and later became its head. He held that position for four years, and was also president for one year of the National Livestock Exchange.

In 1927 Hon. Mr. Mullen produced more than 366,000 pounds of hogs, liveweight, or an average of 1,000 pounds a day, which he marketed and established thereby a claim to being one of the "hog kings" of the West. He operated a 65-acre farm in North Edmonton, where he has an average of 400 feeder hogs at all times, and six miles further north he owns a 240-acre farm managed by his son, John Donald Mullen.

Born Near Centreville

Mr. Mullen was born in South Monaghan, November 7, 1885, about a mile east of Centreville, and was educated there and at Donaldson's

GUARD OF HONOR MEETS DEATH SHIP

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 15 (C. P. Cable). — A guard of honor met the steamship Reina Del Pacifico as she slipped into port here to-day, bearing the body of Right Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's only Labor Prime Minister.

The body of the statesman, who died en route to South America in search of health, was taken to the cathedral here, to lie in state until taken to England, probably to-morrow, by the cruiser Apollo of the British West Indies Squadron.

Attended by passengers and crew a memorial service was conducted aboard the vessel yesterday by Rt. Rev. John Dauglish, Bishop of Nassau.

"We are remembering before God, a man who held under the King, the highest office in the State," said the Bishop. "He knew all the disappointments and disillusionments that high offices entail, but through it all he held firm to great simplicities, maintained by living with faith in God."

Tells of Death.

On arrival, the captain of the steamship told of the death of Mr. MacDonald on Tuesday evening.

The statesman played deck tennis in the morning, complaining of chest pains after lunch. A physician's examinations disclosed irregular pulse beats, a condition from which Mr. MacDonald said he suffered frequently.

He arose at teatime, but called a short time later for the physician, who found him gasping for breath. He died shortly afterwards, his daughter, Sheila, at his side.

Privy Council Has Strait-Jacketed B.N.A. Act---Cahan

"Clear Intentions of Framers of Constitution Have Been Frustrated in Many Instances"

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(CP)—The British North America Act has been confined "in a strait-jacket" by recent decisions of the Privy Council restricting federal authority on certain subjects, Hon. C. H. Cahan, former Conservative Secretary of State, declared today in an address before the Canadian Club.

The "clear intentions" of the framer's of Canada's constitution have been "admittedly frustrated," the veteran parliamentarian said, in many instances. Powers which the act's designers meant for the Dominion government have been handed to the provinces, he claimed.

Hon. C. H. Cahan

Those who have studied the Dominion's constitutional development, Mr. Cahan said "will frankly concede that the clear intentions of the framers of the Quebec conference resolutions, on which the act of 1867 was based, have in, many instances, been completely fruistrated by decisions of the Privy Council which our Canadian courts have been obliged to follow, despite their own opinions to the contrary."

Original Ideas Reversed.

When the provinces were given exclusive powers originally to make laws covering "property and civil right," he said, the phrase designated a restricted class of subjects. But the judicial committee of the Privy Council had so extended the legislative jurisdiction of the provinces in this respect "as almost to reverse the relations originally intended to exist between federal and provincial powers."

The committee, according to the House of Commons member for Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George, declined to give the words "the significance attached to them throughout a century of Canadian history, but have extended the meaning to apply to almost every phase of law, excepting criminal law."

He was convinced, he aid, that at the time of the Act's passage no

ROOSEVELT ASKS FOR REMOVAL OF TAX INJUSTICES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP).—President Roosevelt recommended removal of tax injustices " to encourage productive enterprise" today in submitting a four-point legislative program to the United States Congress.

In a message opening the special session which was read to the Senate and House of Representatives by clerks, the President asked "early action" on legislation on farm crop control, labor wages and hours, reorganization of the executive branch and planning of natural resources.

But of at least equal importance to members were these remarks on taxes:

"Unjust provisions should be removed provided such removal does not create new injustices. Nor can we at this time accept a revision of our tax laws which involves a reduction in the aggregate revenues or an increase in the aggregate burdens of those least able to bear them.

"We should give special consideration to lightening inequitable burdens on the enterprise of the small business men of the nation. In this way we may also find assistance in our search for a more effective method of checking the growing concentration of economic control and the resultant monopolistic practices which persist to-day in spite of anti-trust statutes. A further search for additional methods to meet this threat to free competitive enterprise is called for at this time."

Given Special Study.

Mr. Roosevelt did not ask action on tax revision at the special session, a course advocated by many members of his party. He noted that the question was receiving study of the Treasury and Congressional committees.

Again he reiterated he expected the next budget "can be brought within a definite balance" and directed special attention to business conditions.

"Since your adjournment in August there has been a marked recession in industrial production and industrial purchases following a fairly steady advance for more than four years," he said.

"The present decline has not reached serious proportions. But it has the effect of decreasing the national income—and that is a matter of definite concern."

Discussions with business men, large and small, and leaders of agriculture and labor, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, had made clear to him that "we have wisdom enough in the country to-day not only to check the present recession, but to lay the ground work for a permanent recovery."

Sour Note Injected Looking as if he had just bitten into a sour, very sour, pickle, Norman H. Thieves Forced To Leave Loot

PRESTON, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.).—Forced to leave their loot when interrupted by Constable Gordon Bogie, three thieves escaped early to-day in a waiting motor after having forced entry into the Red Front Department Store. Constable Bogie fired four shots after the car, but did not know whether or not he made a hit. Unable to give chase the constable telephoned Galt police, who stopped a car with three men who were questioned for several hours before releasing them. Thirty-five suits of men's clothes were dropped by the robbers in their getaway. Two years ago $1,000 in merchandise was similarly stolen from the store.

Ottawa Awaits Answer On Its Insurance Scheme

Decisions Of Provincial Premiers Are Expected To Arrive This Week

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—Premier Mackenzie King should be able this week to show how much favor with the Provincial Governments has been found in his proposal to establish a national compulsory unemployment insurance scheme.

Most of the responses heard last week were unofficial, but as the letter to the Provincial Premiers was sent from here on November 5 it is expected that either after the Cabinet meeting of Tuesday or Thursday a sufficient number of official replies will have been received to indicate whether or not the scheme is practicable.

When asked last week about the extent of agreement he thought necessary, Premier King said he believed it desirable there should be unanimous consent on the part of the Provinces.

Will Ask Amendment.

It is also conceivable that in such a situation the Federal Government might make known the fact that there is a preponderance of Provincial opinion in favor of the scheme, and the disclosure of this situation might have the effect of breaking down or dissolving the small residue of opposition.

Assuming the Provinces agree to the Federal Government undertaking a national scheme of insurance against unemployment, it is believed the joint address from the two Houses of the Canadian Parliament to Westminster will suggest an amendment to the British North America Act calling for the assignment to the Federal authority, under Section 91, of the specific matter of unemployment insurance.

It will be recalled that both the Supreme Court of Canada and the Privy Council in London decided that the unemployment insurance legislation of the Bennett Government was wholly ultra vires of the Federal Parliament in that it infringed property and civil rights over which the Provinces were assigned exclusive jurisdiction.

The procedure likely to be adopt-

Seven Killed And 12 Injured In Fierce Arab-Jewish Clashes In Holy Land

JERUSALEM, Nov. 15—(CP-Havas).—Arrest of prominent Jewish Revisionist leaders to-day followed a week-end marked by Arab-Jewish clashes in which at least seven persons were killed and 12 seriously injured. The casualties toll was the highest for one day in several months.

The British authorities, confronted with an increasingly serious situation marked by fierce Jewish reprisals, arrested Eri Jabotinsky, son of Valdimir Jabotinsky, leader of the Jewish Revisionist party, and 13 other Revisionist party members at Tel Aviv.

The men were to appear before the Tel Aviv district commissioner to-day. It was believed they would be sentenced to six months' detention.

They advocate forceful measures to make the Holy Land an independent Jewish nation. Their leader, Vladimir Jabotinsky, is barred from Palestine. Other Revisionist leaders were arrested at Rehovoth.

Wheel Drops Off Car Damages Second One

DRIVING a brand new car on highway 28, just beyond Springville on Sunday afternoon, William Beatty, this city, was the victim of an unusual mishap. He was meeting another car and when some distance away one of the front wheels dropped off the older vehicle. Running ahead of the car off which it had fallen, the wheel bounded, and bounced over the pavement making a bee line for the front of Beatty's car. It struck and damaged the front bumper and radiator grill and then mounting the hood of the engine continued right on over the top of the car marking up the shiny new finish. The car which suffered the loss of the wheel was said to have been driven by Joe Volcey of Blairhampton.

Sub - Freezing Temperatures Are General Throughout Western Canada

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(CP). — Ontario buttoned up its overcoat today after reading of gales and snow storms in Eastern and Western Canada and prepared for wintry weather. Colder weather with possible snow flurries were in prospect for Ontario.

Fifty-mile-an-hour gales swept Quebec and the Nova Scotia coast Sunday, while winter tightened its grip over Western Canada. Subfreezing temperatures were the rule throughout the west, while Ontario's average was a comparatively balmy 40 for the week-end.

Widespread damage was done in Quebec city and district, trees being uprooted and a hockey arena unroofed. Broken branches littered the countryside and the waterside suffered under a lashing gale. Breakwater and waterfront properties, mackerel nets and buildings were damaged throughout Nova Scotia.

Canada Been Big Contributor To Japan's Weapons Of War

Seventy - One Per Cent. Of Aluminum Furnished Japan Came From Canada

BRUSSELS, Nov. 15 (CP Cable).—Canada has been a substantial contributor to Japan's weapons of war, according to a statement issued by the Chinese delegation to the nine-power treaty conference today.

The statement analyses Japan's dependence on foreign supplies for war materials. It says that in 1936 Japan imported aluminum, used in aircraft manufacture, valued at 12,000,000 yen ($3,480,000). Of this Canada furnished 71.7 per cent., Switzerland 16.6 per cent., Norway 6.6 per cent., and the United States 4.1 per cent.

In the same year Japan imported 33,000,000 yen worth of copper, of which Canada furnished 97.11 per cent., and 11,000,000 yen worth of zinc, of which Canada supplied .5 per cent.

The statement further shows that of Japan's imports of oil in 1936, the United States furnished 64 per cent., the Dutch East Indies 25 per cent., and British Borneo 5.5 per cent. The British Empire as a whole controls more than 30 per cent. of Japanese imports of raw materials, and United States, with the Philippines and Hawaii, about 32 per cent.

London telephones are to have new bells with a pleasing silvery tone.

Is The Only Nation Of 19 Countries To Support War

Mussolini's Spokesman at Conference Is Checked by Senator Dandurand

BRUSSELS, Nov. 15—The nine-power treaty conference tonight adopted a declaration against Japan. Italy voted against it. The three Scandinavian states abstained.

The Italian delegate, Count Luigi Aldrovandi-Marescotti said he must vote against the declaration because Italy believed it presages a course which can lead only to complications.

The conference voted against sending a copy of the declaration to the Japanese government, then adjourned until November 22.

The declaration was prepared by the United States, British and French delegates.

What Will Next Move Be?

Asked what the conference would do at next Monday's session, Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Spaak said the clue was to be found in the last paragraph of the declaration.

It asserts that, while hoping Japan will not maintain her twice-voiced refusal to attend the conference, the states represented must consider what is to be their common attitude in a situation where one party to an international treaty insists its action does not come within the scope of that treaty.

The conference was called under the nine-power treaty, which pledges respect for the territorial integrity of China, in an effort to mediate the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

Denmark, Norway and Sweden abstained from to-day's vote. Their delegates expressed agreement in principle with the terms of the declaration, but regretted that conciliation had failed; therefore, they could not vote on the summarization.

Speaker after speaker supported the declaration, Great Britain, the United States and France particularly standing by the sanctity of the pledged word in international affairs.

Dandurand Checks Italian.

A remark by Count Aldrovandi-Marescotti brought intervention into the discussion by Senator Raoul Dandurand, leader of the Canadian delegation.

The Italian referred to a sentence in the Japanese reply that declined an invitation to attend the conference, in which Japan said she would be glad if the powers "could make their contribution to stability in Eastern Asia in conformity with the real situation."

Count Aldrovandi-Marescotti suggested that in accordance with this sentence a new approach might be made to Japan.

Mr. Dandurand, with Norman Davis, United States Ambassador-at-Large, and Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, opposed the Italian submission.

"It means reversing the roles," Senator Dandurand said. "We have been asking Japan to contribute by joining in conversation with the conference, or with a small group of delegates. Japan has consistently refused. It is Japan which invaded China with 300,000 troops. We are trying to get Japan to accept an armistice, Now Japan asks us what we suggest.

"We can suggest that Japan accept the invitation to negotiate. We shall be glad of any contribution Japan can make to the conference."

"Did the Italian delegate really believe," asked W. J. Jordan, New Zealand, "that Japan is really de-

CHINESE DEFENCES ARE CRUMBLING UNDER JAP ATTACK

SHANGHAI, Nov. 15 (AP).—Japanese forces endangered China's whole "Hindenburg line" defences today in a drive on Soochow.

The offensive westward from Shanghai, Japanese officers said, was the opening of a campaign against Nanking, China's capital, 125 to 150 miles west of the "Hindenburg line."

Advices from Nanking said Soochow was desolated by more than 70 Japanese bombs dropped on it within 30 hours.

The central government was known to be resolved to defend Nanking. Knowledge of that determination and of Soochow's fate hastened a heavy civilian exodus from Nanking by river, canal and road. Government officials remained.

Advance In North China

Another Chinese capital, meanwhile, appeared in imminent danger in North China. Japanese columns were reported within 15 miles of Tsinan, capital of wealthy Shantung Province.

Japan's converging forces on the Shanghai-Soochow front now hold an almost straight line from Chapoo, on Hangchow Bay, north to Paimaolou, on the south bank of the Yangtze River.

Chinese defences appeared to be crumbling under the weight of superior Japanese armaments, although the Chinese had about 400,000 troops in the field to Japan's 200,000.

After the Japanese captured Kunshan, a strong point near the centre of the "Hindenburg line" 35 miles west of Shanghai, they reported more than 50,000 Chinese fleeing in confusion toward Soochow. Japanese planes bombed the retreating line to turn the flight into a rout.

Experts predicted the fall of Kunshan would hasten the Japanese advance to Soochow, still 20 miles west of the Japanese vanguard.

Six Are Arrested In Cobourg Thefts

COBOURG, Nov. 15 (CP).—Police arrested six Cobourg residents during the weekend in a drive to stop coal thefts at the Canadian National Railways yards. Chief of Police W. J. Carey, Night Constable Gavin Reid and Constable R. Morden of the C.N.R. police laid in wait Saturday night and caught the six in the act of stealing coal. They are scheduled to come up for trial Tuesday.

Farmer Has Cash Instead Of Cow

WINGHAM, Nov. 15.—The hunting season is over. Herman Boettger, a farmer of the Port Elgin district, recalled as he thumbed a few bills given him by a party of four hunters who shot his Jersey cow in mistake for a deer.

The experience of this farmer was not the only one reported. A local photographer had a busy day when a party of hunters from London bagged only one deer. He had to take individual pictures of each one of the hunters, posed with the lone deer.

Three Drowned In Yamaska River

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Nov. 15 (CP).—A man and two women, all residents of St. Hyacinthe, were drowned early today when a motor car swerved from the highway and plunged 30 feet down a steep embankmen into Yamaska River, near here.

The dead are: Donat Pare, 45; Marie Gagendron, 36, and Mrs. Rose Gervais, 35.

Emile LaPlante, 30, driver of the taxi, escaped by smashing open a door of the submerged car and swimming to the surface.

LaPlante, who suffered severely from shock, said the victims were asleep. Suddenly Mrs. Gervais, seated beside him, awakened and clutched his arm, causing him to lose control of the car, LaPlante said.

Wage Increase Of Ten Cents An Hour Asked For General Motor Employees

Detroit, Nov. 15

LEADERS of the Committee for Industrial Organization—United Automobile Workers, failing in efforts to drive a satisfactory new bargain with General Motors Corporation, switched tactics today in an attempt to gain exclusive representation rights.

In the proposed new agreement, the union sought a blanket wage increase of at least 10 cents an hour, annual vacations with pay, seven-hour day and 35-hour week, and other points, but the corporation, informed sources said, denied each major plea.

Meanwhile, complicating any renewal of negotiations was a demand in turn by General Motors for the union's assurances against "wildcat strikes."

Four Are Trapped In Automobile Bottom Of River

Tragedy Is Discovered in Windsor on Sunday When Marks Are Seen Over Edge of Dock

WINDSOR, Nov. 15—(CP)—Drownings of four persons when trapped in an automobile that plunged 20 feet off a 300-foot dock into the Detroit river here was investigated today by police who sought to determine how long they remained in the water. The four, two men and two women, were believed to have drowned Saturday when the automobile toppled into the water. The tragedy was discovered Sunday when a fisherman saw signs of something having passed over the end of the dock.

The dead:

Frank Whitaker, 45, superintendent of Gar Wood Industries, Limited, Windsor.

Harold Golds, (107 Maple street) Timmins, Ont.

Marjorie Darraugh, 27, Windsor.

Mrs. Helen Reaume, 40, Windsor.

It was not definitely known what time the sedan toppled off the end of the dock which reached into the river from a little-used street in the west end of the city. Movements of the quartet for several hours before they were drowned were unknown.

Boards Scraped.

James Garrick, Windsor, noticed the plank dock bore marks that indicated a heavy vehicle scraped the boards when he went fishing yesterday. Police were notified and firemen called to the scene. After a few minutes' grappling the automobile was found in about twenty feet of water about 30 feet from the end of the dock.

The car was hoisted to the dock and the four bodies found inside. Whitaker was identified almost immediately by means of the license plates and later the names of the other occupants were learned.

Golds was here to purchase truck bodies from the company with which Whitaker was connected. He represented the Feldman Timber Company, Timmins. Whitaker was superintendent of an automotive industry owned by Phil Wood, brother of Gar Wood, well-known motorboat racer.

Golds' employer, in Toronto, telephoned Windsor police from there last night to say he would arrive here to-day and take charge of Golds' body. Whitaker's wife died 3½ years ago. He and Golds were said to be friends and who was driving the car remained unknown.

The accident apparently happened early on Sunday as a watch worn by Mrs. Reaume was stopped at 12.53. She and Miss Darraugh were seen leaving the former's apartment on Saturday night.

It took three hours to get the car from the water. Police, believing it was probably a stolen one—this method of dumping them in the river having been often used—were unprepared for the sight inside. A woman's hand was seen pressed against a closed window as the machine was raised above the water. Huddled in the back seat were the four bodies.

MUSICAL SETTING FOR FINE SERVICE

Of special interest to music lovers was the unusual service held in St. James' United church last night, featuring the life and hymns of Fanny Crosby.

With the pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik, in charge, the service was largely a musical one, the Scripture lesson selected, Psalm 103, being one of praise. In his brief story of the great hymn writer's life, Mr. Craik pointed out that many of her characteristics were Chirst-like and most worthy of emulation.

"Born in south-eastern New York on March 24, 1823, Frances Jane Crosby when but six weeks old, developed an eye disease, said the speaker, who went on to tell how a wrong diagnosis had resulted in life-long blindness.

This writer of nearly six thousand hymns, was, at the age of twelve, assisted by friends in entering the School for the Blind. Her first hymn was entitled "We Are Going Home to Heaven Above," and what had seeme dto be a tragedy and a handicap to this young girl turned out to be a blessing.

Fanny Crosby had a wide circle of friendship which included poets, teachers, missionaries, evangelists, and two presidents of the United States. She had a remarkable memory and was able to recite a large portion of the Bible, which she also expressed in many of her beautiful hymns.

In outlining her characteristics the pastor spoke of her as "a woman of prayer, tenderness, hope, trust, service and of religious security," quoting in each case, from her hymns to illustrate.

The musical program, as arranged by Cecil Lapp, the organist, was composed entirely of hymns written by Fanny Crosby. As guest soloist, Mr. H. C. Trender sang the beautiful selection "Open the Gates of the Temple," and also assisted at the organ. Selections by the entire choir included "Toiling On," and "Mighty to Save," while Mrs. H. F. Doig sang the lovely hymn, "Blessed Hour of Prayer." In duet, Marion Wood and W. Hogan gave a fine rendering of "Though Your Sins Be As Scarlet," while the quartette, Meedames Butcher and Monks, Messrs. Geo. Cuffe and H. Turner gave "Tread Softly." Miss Crosby's favorite selection "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break," was sung in duet by Mrs. E. Kitney and Mrs. W. McLaren.

sirous of opening conversations with the conference?"

Eden For Treaty Sanctity.

Mr. Eden rejected the Japanese plea that the conflict was a matter for Japan and China alone. In respect for international law and the pledged word lay the only hope for peace. "By these means, and by these means alone," he said, "can the world escape a further ordeal such as it passed through twenty years ago."

Britain could not accept the view that "dislike, however deep-seated, or abhorrence, however sincerely felt, for the form of government or the political institutions of one nation justifies another in interfering by force in its internal affairs," he said, in apparent reference to Japan's oft-stated declaration she intervened in China to prevent communism and anti-Japanese feeling from gripping the country.

Mr. Davis declared that the question of whether international relations shall be determined by arbitrary force or by law and respect for international treaties was the greatest issue that faced the world today, "and is one of the most momentous problems that mankind has been called upon to solve."

Similar positions were stated by France and Russia.

THREE CHILDREN SLAIN BY FATHER TAKES OWN LIFE

TORONTO, Nov. 15 (CP)—Almost every province was listed today in Canada's week-end toll of violent death. Quadruple tragedies in Ontario and Saskatchewan brought the fatality total to 17 including seven children. Only Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island failed to report a tragedy.

Saskatchewan was hardest-hit. Six lives were lost in that province during the week-end. Robert Paterson, 41, shot and killed his three children then turned the gun upon himself in the Paterson farm home near Sturgis, 175 miles east of Saskatchewan. No motive was known for the slaying.

"They are better off like that," Paterson told his wife when she returned home to find the bodies upon the floor. "I was the one who did it." The children, Gwendolyn, 10, Geraldine, seven, and Angus, nine, were killed Saturday; Paterson died of his wounds Sunday.

The bodies of four persons, two women and two men, lay for hours at the bottom of the Detroit River at Windsor, Ont. The four, Frank E. Whittaker, 42; Harold Golds; Marjorie Darraugh, 27, and Mrs. Helen Reaume, 40, were trapped in an automobile which tumbled from a dock Saturday night.

The car and its load of death were lifted from 20 feet of water Sunday. How the machine fell from the 300-foot-long dock was unknown. The tragedy was discovered Sunday when a fisherman arrived at the dock to fish and noticed the planked floor bore marks of something having passed over it. The car was found 30 feet from the end of the dock.

Government officials listed six Arabs and one Jew killed and seven Arabs and five Jews gravely wounded.

The disorders followed Jewish anger over the slaying of five Jews in a quarry near Jerusalem by Arab terrorists last week.

A fierce hand-to-hand clash between the other Jewish laborers and the Arabs on the roof ensued. Several were badly hurt.

Aberhart Minister

HON. D. B. MULLEN

Alberta's Minister of Agriculture is today visiting his brother, Reeve George Mullen of Smith.

Thirty-one years ago he sold his meat shop on Rubidge street and went to Edmonton where his success has been one of the romances of the west.

PRIVY COUNCIL HAS JACKETED B.N.A.

one imagined the measure gave the provinces jurisdiction over life and fire insurance, laws for the regulation of all branches of industry operating throughout the Dominion, employment and wages in industry, industrial insurance for the unemployed, days of rest, hours of labor, and pensions for the aged and the blind. Yet all these were now judicially declared to be within the "exclusive legislative jurisdiction of the provinces."

Intentions Frustrated

Federal power was given in the B.N.A. Act for the passage of "laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada," a familiar term which meant "the most extensive jurisdiction, consistent with Imperial jurisdiction, that was then deemed possible." But successive Privy Council verdicts had "so far frustrated the intentions of the founders of the Canadian Confederacy as almost to obliterate the residual powers of the Parliament of the Dominion to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada."

Residuary powers of the Federal Parliament in respect of peace, order and good government now were "restricted to cases arising out of extraordinary peril, such as foreign wars or domestic convulsions." This, together with widening of provincial powers, served to preclude, "as at present, the satisfactory solution by the Parliament of Canada of the complex economic and social problems which now confront the people of this country."

Mr. Cahan quoted Lord Sankey, then Lord Chancellor, as saying in 1929 that the B.N.A. Act had "planted in North America a living tree capable of growth and expansion within its natural limits." That statement, the speaker said, "has been arbitrarily repudiated by more recent decisions of the judicial committee, which have confined our constitution in a strait-jacket of their own making."

He called on the public for support. "That growth and expansion to which Lord Sankey referred," Mr. Cahan declared, "must now be determined by the development throughout Canada of an informed public opinion which must ultimately control our political destiny."

HON. D. MULLEN BEGAN CAREER

School and also in Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

Nearly four years ago he became interested in the Aberhart Social Credit program, later heard Mr. Aberhart address the Prophetic Bible Institute in Calgary and became convinced "that the movement was in the right direction." He became a Social Credit candidate in Edmonton in the general elections. For the six city seats, 27 candidates were nominated. Mr. Mullen was third highest when the ballots were counted. Six month ago he was taken into the Alberta Cabinet, as Minister of Agriculture, when W. N. Chant was ousted after he had refused to resign on Premier Aberhart's demand.

With such a background of achievement, Hon. D. B. Mullen personifies some of the romance of the West that singled out capable, adventurous Easterners who wrought fortune in the West and found it, and linked with his business achievement has been awarded political honors and fame.

Says Government Stronger

"The Social Credit Government is stronger to-day in Alberta than ever," Hon. Mr. Mullen stated to The Examiner. "Liberal and United Farmer governments increased the debt of Alberta by $5,000,000 a year on the average. We have been in power two and a half years, and outside of about $1,000,000 from the Dominion government for relief we haven't had to borrow a cent. And we have built more roads than any other government built in the same period of two years.

In the Turner Valley we had oil booms in 1919 and again 1928, and nothing came of them except heavy losses to many investors throughout Canada. During the last two years there has been no corresponding oil boom, but there has been sound and progressive development of the field. The area is now producing 7,000,000 barrels of oil a year, with an output that has increased five times more than before we took hold; and we have 12 to 15 other wells we expect to come into production that will boost the output to eight times more than before. Our present oil flow is sufficient for all the needs of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Since I became Minister of Agriculture we have saved $50,000 a year in administration costs. Just recently we leased a property of 21,000 acres that is stocked with 800 tons of hay. Work horses are being sent there from our dought area along the Saskatchewan border. We will keep them until Spring at a charge of $1.50 a month to those farmers who can afford it. Those who have not the money will get the service free. In this way we expect to assist five or six hundred farmers."

Mr. Mullen said that Alberta would have to undertake a project of reforestation in the area which had been stripped of woods and as a result was suffering from seasonal drought.

Press and Banks.

In regard to controversial policies of the Aberhart government, Hon. Mr. Mullen asserted that there was no intention of interfering with freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

"What we want the press to do is to present the truth of our policies. They can criticize us all they like, but we want the truth about the things we are trying to do. The Press Act also requires that letters appearing in newspapers be signed by the writers. Editors would have to divulge the names of any persons writing letters affecting the government. In the past a lot of things that are not true have been written in letters tha nhad anonymous signatures."

"One of the features of Social Credit in regard to the banks is that we are not interfering with their regular banking practice. We say that they are entitled to lend $100, but they should not lend $500 for every $100. They are simply monetizing the people's credit. That is all they are doing, and we contend the people themselves through their government, can do that and should do it as a service to themselves.

For instance a farmer owns a house and farm he has built up. It is part of the country's credit. That is obvious enough. He goes to a bank for a loan, but the banker tells him that they are not lending money on farm properties. We give that farmer a credit book, like a bank pass book, and issue credit to him on which he can issue social credit cheques.

Opposition within our own Cabinet has been one of the obstacles to the progress of our Social Credit program. Four ministers have parted from us, but the Cabinet and the party is stronger to-day than when we were elected. As you know our legislation is far from being complete. One of our measures has been held up by the Lieutenant-Governor, although we had 56 of the 63 members of the Legislature. We say that is contrary to democratic principle."

Hon. Mr. Mullen was married in 1911 to Bride Ryan of Peterborough, who died in 1934.

Miner Breaks Ice All Afternoon So Plane Can Get Injured Worker

Winnipeg, Nov. 15

For a while he was threatened with a forced stay in the camp because planes could not land until the lake ice was solid.

However, Sam Baker of Wadhope, Man., Irwin's employer, spent Friday afternoon smashing lake ice so a plane could land in open water. The ice was too thin for a ski-equipped plane.

Calves were steady and lambs 25 cents lower. Sheep held at previous prices levels. No cattle were left over from Thursday.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 7,030; calves, 1,840; hogs, 2,250; sheep and lambs, 2,320.

Fresh cattle supply included 2,100 head from the West. Good butcher cattle brought $6 to $6.25, with common downward to $3.25.

Butcher cows sold at a top of $4 and canners and cutters went mostly at $2 to $2.50.

Bologna bulls sold from $ 3to $3.25. A few good butcher bulls brought up to $4.25. Choice fed calves were $9 to $10, with medium quality at $6.

Stored cattle moved slowly with prices generally 25 cents down. Stockers brought $3.50 to $4.85. A few feeders reached $5.

Choice vealers brought $9.50 to $10 on the calf market. Common veal calves sold up to $5. Heavy Westerns traded between $4 and $6. Some Eastern grassers sold at $4.

Previous close on off-track bacon hogs was $8.50.

Good ewe and wether lambs sold at $7.75 off cars and $7.25 off trucks. Other grades went at $6 to $6.75. Sheep sold at $2 to $4.50 cwt.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 15.—(CP)— Reflecting weakness at Liverpool and Buenos Aires, wheat futures drifted around three cents lower on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Support generally was thin as values closed 3 to 2¾ cents lower. November at $1.17⅞, December $1.13⅜-½, May $1.10½-⅝ and July $1.04⅝-$1.05.

General liquidation, part of which was a carryover from Saturday, sent wheat down more than two cents at the start. Southern firms were credited with selling December future in fair volume.

Though trading was largely local in character, stop-loss selling came into the market when Liverpool slumped more than three pence. Beneficial rains in the Argentine also was a major bearish factor.

Liverpool closed 3¾d to 3½d down on selling by Australian firms, easier Argentine prices and December liquidation. United States wheat offers were cheaper.

Mrs. Stout has gone on a low-calory diet and changed her name to Mrs. Slim.

She catches a reassuring glimpse of trim ankle below snugly tailored skirt and murmurs, "No, thank you" when kindly Mrs. Plump urges, "Do have cake with your tea."

One small square of chocolate cake equals 350 calories. And Mrs. Slim's losing 2 pounds a week eating less than 1,200 calories a day.

For lunch Mrs. Plump had a pork chop, mashed potatoes, lemon meringue pie—800 calories—while Mrs. Slim ate a lamb chop, baked tomato, spinach, grapes—only 276 calories.

No wonder Mrs. Slim's friends say, "We've never seen you looking so well." Fruits and green vegetables in her low-calory diet are rich in important vitamins, minerals.

It's easy to reduce healthfully. Our 32-page booklet gives calory chart, 2 weeks' reducing menus, 3-day liquid diet. How to gain, too.

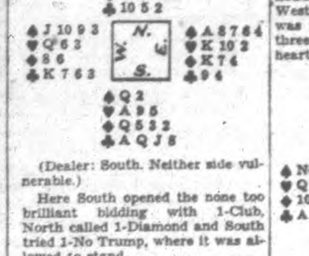
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DON'T BLOCKADE HIM

EVERY PLAYER should keep his eyes open to avoid blocking his partner in the run of a suit. Many a no trump defense depends entirely upon the bringing in of a single string of cards. If it is interrupted, through the shorter partner being unable to keep the longer one in the lead, disaster befalls.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Here South opened the none too brilliant bidding with 1-Club, North called 1-Diamond and South tried 1-No Trump, where it was allowed to stand.

The spade J was led by West, the 5 played from dummy and East, reading his partner for four cards of the suit, decided to allow South to win the first trick with the Q, so that when the diamond was finessed to him, his side could win four spade tricks and possibly set the contract.

When the declarer led a diamond to the second trick, East winning with the K, he laid down the spade A, on which West played the spade 3, not the 9, as he should. East then returned the spade 4, but as West had blocked the suit, only three tricks were taken in spades.

The declarer was able to make 2-No Trump on the hand, as, after winning the spades, West was obliged to lead another diamond. South then took the club finesse to West, who won with the K. A club was returned and declarer cashed three clubs, three diamonds, one heart and one spade.

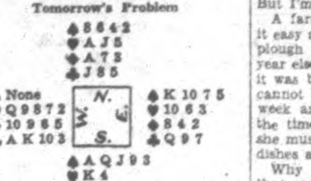
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What play by South enables him to make 4-Spades after the defense has cashed three club tricks?

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

Dear Friends:

Sometimes we condemn those who shring from stormy weather in their lives, but are we any better when we brave the storm, then sit back enjoying our reward when fair weather comes without preparing for the next storm which is bound to follow?

I'll grant you we are glad of a respite and that it is hard to keep ourselves on our toes all the time. Yet many of our failures come from lack of being prepared. And don't think I am better prepared than the rest of you.

We think when we have come through some sorrow that life should now be easier for us, and find as many more have done, that life is really a series of battles which must be fought from the cradle to the grave, and more so if we have set our hearts on accomplishing something.

When we have too much ease of body and mind, we tend to deteriorate. No general in a war wins one battle then retires to the rear and lays claim to winning the whole war. He gets ready for the next encounter knowing the end will not come until he has conquered the enemy.

And the enemy lies many times within ourselves. We can master difficulties from without, but how hard it is to conquer our own indolence and love of ease.

We can rise to an emergency and do prodigious things, but we find it so hard to master some fault like putting things off, or getting up early in the morning, or forgetting little slights, or doing what lies before us.

We either "strip ourselves in the sunshine and lie down by the wayside to be overlooked and forgotten or we brace ourselves to the struggle . . . and fall asleep in the stillness that follows."

Perseverance is what we lack, and the ability to plug along day after day until we have reached our goal. We forget that one swallow does not make a summer, nor a few bricks build a house. (And if you only saw how I am persevering to try and make this typewriter work. Boy oh boy it's like a major battle with the typewriter winning so far. But I'm not beat yet.)

A farmer cannot retire and take it easy after one good crop. He must plough and harrow and seed every year else his land goes back to what it was before he started. A woman cannot make all the meals for one week and have it easy the rest of the time, but three times each day she must prepare meals, and do the dishes afterwards.

Why then don't we understand that we cannot stand still, that we must keep going from one victory to another, or from defeat to victory? Sometimes we seem to be going just from one defeat to another, but somehow we are heading towards our goal even altho' we cannot see it.

So, let use neither quail at the storm, nor just fight while it is on, nor lie down expecting it easy in either case. Longfellow tells us this: "The talent of success is doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do without a thought of fame. If it comes at all it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after." Your Friend, ROBERTA.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLLE

For Tuesday, November 16.

According to the lunar and mutual aspects of major planets, this may be a day of conflicting conditions. While business aspects appear good, favoring dealings with important interests, yet there are other factors of opposition with hostility, enmity and jealousy to be met. However, an elderly person may prove helpful and there may be happy social activities.

Those whose birthday it is may encouter a year of splendid opportunity in business, with the co-operation of important persons, but it would be well to be ready to cope with enmity, jealousy and some tempestuous experience. In purely personal matters there may be happy adventures.

A child born on this day may be enterprising and ambitious but rather hostile and antagonistic in business relations, although pleasant enough in its private life.

Who Are The "Workers"?

There was a banquet in Brantford to pay tribute to Hon. M. M. MacBride on his elevation to the post of Minister of Labor in the provincial government. Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, was present representing Premier Hepburn, and in the course of his address remarked: "The present government intends to legislate in the interests of all classes, particularly the working class."

That would be a safe enough statement to make, because it has been uttered so often before and the person who uttered it never was called to account or asked exactly what he meant. But there ought to be something done about it, something which would show definitely who is in this so-called working class and who is excluded from it.

Truth is we have never known many people in this country who did not work. We recall the skipper of an ocean liner who never left the bridge for 37 hours because there was so much ice around; a doctor who in the flu epidemic of 1918 asked if he might lie down on a couch in a home where he was calling on a patient because the doctor had been on the go for night and day duty for over three days, and he could not keep awake any longer. We have both seen and experienced seasons where reporters had stretched the working day to 16 or more hours.

The terms "workers" or "working class" are not clearly enough defined at the moment. There are not many people in Peterborough who do not work, and yet those who make use of the term "working class" would probably claim that there were many in this city to whom it did not apply. Perhaps Mr. McQuesten, who used the phrase in Brantford, might on some future occasion give adequate explanation of the number and variety of people he intended to include in his general and commonly used phrase.

Why Keep Talking?

Japanese spokesmen declare the reason Japan went to war with China was because Soviet Russia was gaining too much influence in China, and the further claim is made that Russia is behind China in the present struggle. If Russia is behind China then it must be far behind, because so far China has been left alone to make the best of it.

Japan also claims that the war between that country and China is the affair of those two nations only. It is not the affair or concern of any other nation and therefore other nations may as well keep out and attend to their own affairs. It may be there was once a time in the history of the world when such a view might have been acceptable. But not today. We do things in a different way. If two men began a fight on one of our business streets we are certain the police would arrive and arrest them both. They might not have injured any other person, but they would be arrested because they were fighting. Admittedly world affairs are not yet adjusted to that scale, but the world is moving in that direction.

Meanwhile we find it hard to understand why the world in general should not proceed with an economic boycott of Japan. If there is such power in that weapon as is generally admitted, then why not apply it? We believe it would be more effective than all the speeches which diplomats can make or all the notes and warnings they may pen. If the baby-killers can be brought to time that way, then why not do it?

The Influence Of Fear

Dr. Alonzo Taylor, of Leland Stanford University in California, was called as a witness before the Royal Commission on Grain and Grain Marketing at Ottawa. He did not believe there could be a system by which marketing of wheat could be controlled on a world basis. He believed any such effort would stand a better chance of success during a time of war than in years of peace. During war people do what they are told to do far more than during peace years, but in times of peace according to Dr. Taylor: "Neither the exporting nor the importing countries have sufficient control over wheat or over the habits of their people."

And yet it is a plain fact that during the years we refer to as times of peace the fear of war is a great factor in determining what nations shall do. That fear of war has hit the Canadian wheat sales for years. This way: Germany, Italy and France all decided to become producers of wheat rather than large importers. They considered it would be better to produce their own wheat rather than buy it from Canada. We can sell them better wheat than they can grow, and we can produce it for less money, but France, Germany and Italy fear war. They always do. And to provide against a possible closing off of the supply from Canada if war were to come they decided to grow their own to make sure of a supply. So it is that even in times of peace what might be called the free preferences of individuals or of nations is not entirely active because in such periods nations are actually living and thinking and planning in terms of coming wars. The element of fear is one of the greatest factors in world business, although many times we fail to recognize it.

A Rather Pathetic Figure

Haile Selassie is living at that old watering place, Bath, in England, and he is living in a very modest way because he is hard up. The titles which were his mean little today—King of Kings of Ethiopia, Conquering Lion of Juda—he is but a frail little man who has apparently lost everything he had. He was encouraged by the League of Nations to go ahead and resist the Italian invasion, but the League did nothing to assist Selassie or restrain Italy. His people were sold up the river and Selassie and his family fled while the gate was yet open.

There were stories printed at the time which told of the wealth the little king took with him into exile. He had a couple of boxes of silver coins and some silver plate which was his own possession, and all his holdings have been since spent. He paid for having his representative attend the League of Nations and he paid lawyers to fight some of his battles and see what he could get.

In order to make some money Haile Selassie tried his hand at writing his memoirs, but when the publishers received his copy they found he had told at length the history of his people and had spent little space on the coming of the Italian invasion and the plight of his people in facing that crisis, so his memoirs were never published. Then he turned to the French courts to try and gain recognition of his rights to a block of stock in the French-controlled railway leading from the Red Sea to Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia, and he also was (and is) a stockholder in a French- controlled salt company. Courts in France pondered and they are still in that condition.

Today Haile Selassie, the figure which we regarded as heroic only a year or so ago, is wondering how he is going to make a living for himself and family and the Abyssinian Association of Britain has in mind making an appeal on his behalf and raising of a relief fund. The world cheered when he sought to fight against the greatest odds any man ever faced, but the same world is quick enough to reach for a basin of water and wash its hands of him in the hour of defeat.

Buying In Ignorance

John M. Godfrey, K.C., Ontario Securities Commissioner, had some plain statements to make to some of the small mining syndicates regarding the amount of money which they distribute as expenses and for office management. His objection is that too much of the money subscribed by the purchaser of shares is going that way, and insists that more of it shall be spent in the actual development of mining property. Mr. Godfrey found that a lawyer, who is also a director of one of the lesser mining syndicates, had been paid a fee of $691, and his advice to the lawyer was: "You can't expect $100 every time you come up to the Securities Commission and say 'How-do-you-do.'"

The plain truth undoubtedly is that a number of people go ahead and purchase securities about which they actually know very little. The licensing of a salesman does not guarantee the goods he has to sell, and there are dozens of men in every community who would be much farther ahead today if they had never done business with the salesmen even of recognized and well-enough known financial houses. Customers act entirely on the advice of the firm's representative who in turn receives his salary on the commissions he makes in buying and selling. The purchaser who does the buying will probably admit that he knows very little about the stock he is purchasing; he has never seen the plant, although probably is shown a financial statement by the salesman. He becomes a party to the deal because he believes there is some money to be made by the investment, but he is actually investing more in ignorance than from knowledge based on facts of the situation.

The more one sees of the way in which such business is carried on the more certain he becomes of the folly of trying to reach out for increased earnings based on an increased price of stock which may or may not take place. There are plenty of men today who would be in a much better position had they followed a course which would have at least conserved for them their capital. The eagerness of a sales man to sell and the willingness of a customer to buy makes a combination which has tripped up a good many otherwise sensible people.

As It Was On The Tenth

Ontario Associated Boards of Trade in session at Toronto heard a city man say the country was losing millions of dollars a year by poor farming methods, and heard also that farmers as a rule did not know how to deal with insect scourges. Then there was a resolution which started with a "whereas" and intimated that it was "desirable that the sons and daughters of our present farmers make farming their life work." And the meaning of that is that the boys and girls of the farms should stay where they are. Then there was something said about teaching agriculture in the earlier classes of the schools, and some one suggested it would hardly be right for a city boy or girl to be teaching in the country and try to tell the young folk anything about farming.

There is really nothing very new in any of this. Even in the days of the Tenth Concession there seemed to be something like resentment that any person should come along and try to teach people how to farm. We can recall once when there was some hog cholera in the country, and although it was not yet near the Tenth some government man was up and down the concessions and side lines looking for it and advising the people about symptoms and so on. At that time hogs used to live for such a prolonged period they had a good chance to catch a lot of things. There was no six months' limit or a 200-pound standing recognized then. If a hog didn't catch the cholera this year then he had a good chance to get it next year. And there was another man came to tell of the value of dehorning cattle. He explained how it was safer for the people working with them and better for the cattle too, and we think he said a hide was liable to fetch a better price if there were no horns around to muss it up. Both these chaps came to Lot 4, Concession Ten, driving a good horse and a nice rubber-geared buggy.

Grandfather always listened, but he never grew enthusiastic. Possibly he didn't warm up as he should as the various good points were set forth. Then occasionally there was a bit of literature from the Department of Agriculture, although distribution was not on the generous scale of today. Grandfather generally stayed up at night until we had gone about two miles down the road to the postoffice and general store at the cross-roads to get the mail, and when one of those government messages came and nothing else then grandfather went off to bed at once. He had a way of saying his mind and it ran like this: "If all these people know so much more about farming than we do then why do they not come out and try it?" And we can't recall ever having heard just the right answer to that question.

Canada's army team won the international military team jumping championship in New York, proving as the Mounties have often done, that Canada not only has good horses but also men who know how to handle them.

Ten thousand postcards have been sent to Prime Minister King asking for an embargo on war materials to Japan but it is not likely the consignment contains any from the International Nickel Company.

GRIEF

(By A. B. K.)

¶ Oh why do hobos from the road, unload on me of grief a load, and stew me in their woe; for as they stoke my slabs of beef, they tell me tales that drip in grief, I'm glad to see them go.

¶ They tell me when they reach my door, their arches and their corns are sore, their bunions hurt them too; and they are wobbly at the knees, their bones are chilled by northern breeze, they scarce know what to do.

¶ They tell of mildewed meals they get, of all the nasty dogs they've met, they scoff about the rich; they tell of tramping east and west, of culverts where they sink to rest, beside an open ditch.

¶ They also speak of better days, when they trod deep in comfort's ways, with cousins and with aunts; they speak about the cash they made, and faced the old world unafraid, they had two pair of pants.

¶ I feed them beef and pumpkin pie, but sorrow never leaves their eye, and they pass back for more; they lodge great lumps of woe in me, so that I'm very glad to see, when they have closed the door.

¶ I wish some hobo man would come, who'd whistle on his way or hum, I'd give him pie and beef; but as I see them come and go, I'm at the point where now
I know—I'll hear more tales of grief.

To date 16,500,000 masks have been manufactured and stored in selected distribution centres. Work is now being concentrated on supplying masks for Yorkshire and the North of England.

She's a Great Flyer.

JEAN BATTEN, New Zealand's great woman flyer got the inspiration that drove her to become world famous nine years ago when as a 17-year-old Wellington schoolgirl she enthused over the feat of Bert Hinkler in setting a new Australian record. Then and there she resolved that one day she would do the same.

Next year Jean accompanied her mother to England for the ostensible purpose of studying music but she had not been there long before she gave up her music and told her mother that she wanted to fly. Mrs Batten consented, reluctantly, and watched her daughter swap the keyboard for a joy-stick, the piano pedals for a rudder-bar and the tinkle of five finger exercises for the roar of an aero engine.

Jean was still learning to fly at the London Aeroplane club when her mother went home. Her money ran out and she had to sell her gift piano to pay for more air lessons. A few months later Jean pocketed her flying licence and looked to friends in New Zealand to buy her a plane to attempt the Australian record. For a while there was no response and the girl flyer was down to her last coppers when a cable arrived offering her a machine.

Twice she crashed on her attempts and had to come back to have her machine repaired. The third time she beat Amy Johnson's time to Australia by four and a half days. Next she took the England to Australia and back solo record, in 1935, became the first woman to fly the South Atlantic solo and last year she flew home to New Zealand beating Harry Broadbent's England to Australia record on the way. Now she has flown from Australia to England to beat the best previous mark by 14 hours and 10 minutes.

Many People Afraid to Purchase Cars

Better Roads Are Much Cheaper Than Accidents; We Do Not Yet Know How to Use the Auto

(From the New York Times)

SINCE 1920 THE number of motor vehicles registered in the United States has increased three times, since 1916 eight times. The early years of the depression forced the figure drastically down. Now with about 28,000,000 cars, we have reached another all-time high.

But, according to Dr. Miller McClintock of the Bureau for Traffic Research at Harvard University, there exists a "submerged market" for 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 additional cars. The people who might buy those cars are scared. They may well be when they read of a probable automobile death roll this year of 40,000, of 125,000 destined to be permanently disabled, of 1,000,000 temporarily laid up. If they are not scared, they see little to gain by trying to drive a car on streets and highways already congested.

Enough of them, however, will muster up courage and patience, if Dr. McClintock's reasoning is correct, to produce within "the next year or so a very critical situation of practical stagnation of traffic movement on the more important arteries of travel." A further result, again quoting Dr. McClintock, "will be a radical and highly uneconomic decentralization of urban activities, which will decentralize and distort property values and which will, in the long run, result in far greater traffic problems than those which the decentralization is seeking to avoid."

The truth is that the perfection of the machine has outrun the perfection of means for using it. The passenger car in cities goes at about one-fourth the gait it is built for. In the open (or once open) country its speed increases towards the maximum, but so does the number of injuries and fatalities it causes.

Undoubtedly the regulation of traffic and the severe punishment of acts which may or do cause accidents must go further than they have gone. The criminally reckless driver must be driven off the roads. But this step alone will not relieve congestion. We need more and better roads, on which high speeds will be safe. The cost of such roads will be heavy, but not so heavy as the cost of accidents.

The whole physical pattern of our rural civilization is involved. We cannot afford to bungle the job. We must find a way to use the automobile to its fullest extent, making it safe without crippling its powers.

Why Then Should We Start to Worry?

Prediction About Women Ruling the World; Will Not Take Place For Long Time to Come

(Ottawa Journal)

ONE OF THE easiest ways of breaking into the newspaper headlines, and a way discovered by many learned men not averse to a little publicity, is to predict the future. The distant future, that is, safely beyond the possibility of check by this generation.

Thus a "noted psychologist" does the trick by the statement that "an American matriarchy" is in the making, that a thousand years from now women will rule the United States, that man as "the boss" is doomed.

Now, if the good professor had said this was all going to happen in ten or twenty years it would have been something to worry about. But we cannot get excited over the possibility or even the certainty that ten centuries around the corner women will rule and men will be the hewers of wood and the drawers of water. We are not sure even that it would be a bad thing, because men have been running things for a good many years and nobody pretends they have made a great success of the job.

For this and other reasons the prediction leaves us cold, but it makes a good story. So do the scientific chaps make good stories when they tell us how the world will end, or threaten us with a new ice age, or describe with horrible detail what will happen when New York is bombarded by meteors or split by a prodigious earthquake. All of these things are to happen, however, hundreds or thousands or even millions of years away, and that makes them pretty safe predictions.

History, as a matter of fact, for the most part is the composite picture of day-by-day developments that in the making cause little public concern. Few world-shaking events, except upheavals in the physical earth, come out of a clear sky. Almost always there are signs and portents, but the shrewdest observer never can read them accurately for any long period ahead. In the middle of 1914 the world stage obviously was set for war—but many close students of events were able to prove to their complete satisfaction that war was out of the question.

So if our dim descendants see the dominance of women it will seem to them the most natural thing in the world, because they will have approached that condition by easy and almost imperceptible stages. Those stages will be apparent to the historian of that distant time, but from this end of the intervening centuries they are quite unpredictable.

Poverty in the Midst of Our Plenty

Rotation of Money Has Been Stopped; All Business Is Done on Borrowed Cash

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,—Much is heard, from time to time, of some new theory to account for the solar system, or of someone claims that he can "refute Einstein." Little is heard of new economic discoveries, though these latter may vitally affect our lives. The Rotation Theory of Money was adumbrated by John Law some two centuries ago, and was definitely formulated by Prof. H. B. Hastings and by Foster and Catchings. A similar theory has recently been elaborated by Keynes, Harrod, Joan Robinson and others. In roughest outline it runs somewhat like this. With trifling exceptions, every income in the country, all the cash that we handle, consists of "owed" money. It was originally borrowed (from banker or hoard) by Enterprisers (business firms or public bodies) and was distributed by them to individuals as "incomes," in the shape of wages, salaries, fees, interest rent, profit, dividends, etc. Every dollar of that money must be collected back from the public if those loans are to be honestly repaid. Every dollar of it must return to its source, in the form of "prices" or "taxes;" under penalty of either loss to Enterprisers, or increase of public debt. "We change nothing essential, if we imagine that every individual piece of money travels exactly the same route in every economic period (Schumpeter). This ceaseless circular flow of money is essential to national wealth and welfare: "no money-rotation—no wealth-creation." Any impairment or obstruction of that beneficent and indispensable rotary current of spendings, is as fatal to economic wellbeing, as a failure of the bloodflow is fatal to physical health.

The truth of this proposition is self-evident; perhaps it might better be called a new aspect of economic fact, rather than a new theory. Its implications are very far-reaching, and are shattering to many a cherished popular belief. In the light of it, the idea that taxation "impoverishes" mankind (while factors of production are available and idle all around) is patently ridiculous. The notion that a world, with huge reserves of productive capacity unutilized, cannot "afford" to use them, is simply laughable. Yet it is responsible for untold misery in millions of homes.

This simple concept provides a solid foundation for the new economics of abundance. It completely justifies the modern demand for the abolition of destitution, the cessation of forced idleness, and the final ending of that monstrous absurdity—Poverty in the midst of potential Plenty.

THE WOOD LOT.

(Guelph Mercury)

ANY CLOSE observer travelling along a rural highway can tell by the appearance of the wood lots by the roadside who are thrifty and intelligent farmers and who are not so. The shiftless ignorant owner allows his cattle to run in his lot, trampling the ground on the roots of the trees, and browsing on the underwood. No wood lot will stand such treatment for any great length of time. Cattle should be entirely excluded if the trees are to thrive and if the forest is to renew itself as the older trees decay. These ought, of course, to be removed, stem and branches; but selected young trees should be left to replace them. A forest lot so treated would be a perpetual profit and delight.

THOSE BIRTHDAYS.

(Chicago Daily News)

LIVING IS at best a chore of considerable proportions. It might be lightened for us more than a little if our birthdays were transformed by friends possessing humor and insight into points of departure toward new and enticing interests. Indeed, the art of making birthdays gratifying, even to those of mature age who reluctantly go on having them, ought to be cultivated, in the interests of higher civilization and lower blood pressure.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

AND, BEHOLD, there came a man named Jairus, and he was a ruler of the synagogue, and he fell down at Jesus' feet, and besought him that he would come into his house: for he had one only daughter, about twelve years of age, and she lay a dying. But as he went the people thronged him. And a woman having an issue of blood twelve years, which had spent all her living upon physicians, neither could be healed of any, came behind him, and touched the border of his garment: and immediately her issue of blood stanched. And he said unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace. While he yet spake, there cometh one from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying to him, Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Master. But when Jesus heard it, he answered him, saying, Fear not: believe only, and she shall be made whole. And when he came into the house, he suffered no man to go in, save Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden. And all wept, and bewailed her: but he said, Weep not; she is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorn, knowing that she was dead. And he put them all out, and took her by the hand, and called, saying, Maid, arise. And her spirit came again, and she arose straightway; and he commanded to give her meat.—Luke viii 41-44, 48-55.

School Problems Are Discussed By Attendance Officer

R. Keefe, B.A., Guest Speaker When Durham Trustees And Ratepayers Meet

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Nov. 15.—Russell Osborne, of Newcastle, president of the Durham County Trustees and Ratepayers' Association, occupied the chair for the semi-annual meeting held in the Town Hall, Orono, on Friday opening at 3 p.m., with a representative number in attendance.

The guest speaker of the afternoon, R. D. Keefe, B.A., Chief Attendance Officer of the Province of Ontario, was introduced by M. A. Campbell, secretary-treasurer of the O. E. A., his subject being: "School Health and its Relation to Attendance."

Statistics of a vital character were presented by Mr. Keefe in opening his address, including the fact that in Ontario there are 7,169 elementary schools; 812 Separate schools;" And it may surprise you to know that these are not all Roman Catholic schools; four are Protestant, three in eastern Ontario and one in Penetanguishine;" 225 High Schools and Collegiates; 208 Continuation schools; and 63 Vocational schools; a total of 7,850.

School Cars Help

"In addition there are seven schools cars in Northern Ontario that serve pupils who have no other way of gaining an education; said the speaker "the teacher and his wife and family live in part of the car, and the rest is fitted up as a complete school. The parents become interested and they come at night for instruction. I know of one place where this car stopped where not one family could either read or write, and not long afterwards there was not a family that was not reading the daily papers. We have also a correspondence branch with 2,000 scholars and sixteen qualified teachers; this is for children who cannot get to school because there are no roads leading to where they live."

One little girl in Frontenac County, who lost the use of both arms and legs through infantile paralysis, by means of the correspondence course, learned to read and write, accomplishing the latter by holding the pen or pencil in her mouth. In all there are 675,000 pupils enrolled in the schools of the province, which means that one out of every five in Ontario is interested in education, and in the whole of Canada one out of every four is directly engaged in educational work."

Reduced Attendance

Speaking of the reasons for reduction of attendance during the school year, which Mr. Keefe characterised as a very serious loss to the boys and girls, both educationally and financially, eight were mentioned and elaborated in detail: illness much of which may be prevented; home help, a thoughtless act on the part of parents keeping children away from school to give assistance with home chores; parental neglect; physical conditions, like stormy weather, bad roads, etc.; truancy, with emphasis laid upon the importance of having a qualified truancy officer appointed; privation, which includes lack of clothing, proper food, and so forth; irregular closing, allowing holidays for local reasons, which mitigates against attendance records and size of grants; municipal holidays. Figures were given to show the potential loss in wealth and service resulting in pupils losing time from school attendance, and mention was made of disease, largely preventible, that are responsible for such absence. Respiratory diseases make up fifty per cent. of the total, digestive irregularities, affections of the eyes and ears, headaches, and accidents comprising the remainder of the list.

Make Schools Comfortable

"Make the environment as good as you can; give the schools as good lighting and as good ventilation as possible; provide proper facilities for drinking, washing, sanitation, and for play; beautify the school grounds, and look after the cleanliness of the building. Our new curriculum pays much attention to health conditions. Better care of the clothing will considerably reduce the amount of illness. Give the children a better chance for better health, better living, and thus make Ontario a better place in which to bring up our boys and girls."

The vote of thanks to Mr. Keefe was sponsored by Mrs. F. W. Bowen, and Mr. G. Annis, and endorsed with prolonged applause. Business items included the appointment of Mrs. W. E. Lewis, of Welcome as delegate to the O. E. A. convention at Toronto at Easter, with Mr. Lewis as alternate, and a statement from the treasurer, S. E. Werry, of Hampton, showing finances in good condition provided a good collection was received at the evening gathering.

Contributions from the Rotary and other Service Clubs of Bowmanville had been much appreciated for the year's budget.

New Course Explained

"The New Course of Study" was explained by Colonel E. E. Snyder, P. S. I., in the course of his address, showing how it has been planned to meet the nature of the child; the choice of topics which a teacher may make to cover in the year with benefit to his pupils; and the fact that the teacher is the keynote upon which depends the success of the new curriculum.

"What a careful and anxious parent would like to give a child, the state is trying to give the pupils in this new course. It is based on the idea that education is a social process, and not just a mental process. If the teacher has a lot of initiative, all will go well; I shall base my report at the end of the year on what my teachers tell me. The course is not final, and may be much changed another year. The pupil is to get his own information, rather than have the teacher impart it, and the trustees will have to spend a considerable amount in buying necessary books for the schools."

"Since the teachers and the pupils are expected to choose the topics of study, you can see that there can be no uniform examinations; all promotions must be left with the teacher, and in this the parents must co-operate. The plan will give the pupil of average intelligence, and the pupil of under-normal capacity, a better chance for development."

Millbrook Next Meeting

Millbrook was chosen as the place of meeting for the annual gathering in 1938; on motion of L. H. Winslow and A. Coulter, and concluding the afternoon session M. A. Campbell, of Toronto, secretary of the Ontrario Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, gave the address which however took the form, largely, of a question and answer period that brought out much practical information. Mr. Campbell's two main points were: Equal education for all children; and the State should bear a great amount of the cost of education.

Tea was served in the basement of the hall at 6 p.m. by the Women's Institute, of Orono, Mrs. Rolph president, the vote of thanks to the ladies for the abundant meal being moved by Mr. Annis and seconded by Mrs. Whyte, with hearty endorsement by all.

The Speaking Contest

The highlight of the evening was the elimination contest in the Durham County public speaking program, for the championship shield, provided by the Durham Old Boys' Association of Toronto. Seventeen contestants were listened to with great delight by the large audience, practically every township and urban centre being represented. The entrants had been the winners in their local contests, and the winner on Froday night will compete in the district competition at Brighton on Friday, November 19; the winner there will go on to the O. E. A. Convention at Toronto during the Easter vacation."

Raymond Gilmour, of Newtonville, who spoke on "Winter Sports for the Farm Boys and Girls," was awarded highest place by the five judges, who had a most difficult task in reaching their decision. The judges were: Messrs. Knight and Wendt, of Oshawa; Roxborough, Orono; Davidge, of Bowmanville; and Rev. Mr. Beech, of Newtonville.

Shield Presented

The president, Mr. Osborne, presented the handsome oak shield to Raymond Gilmour, who will also receive a smaller shield which may be permanently kept; the large one is for annual competition. Each contestant received a well-bound book, after being called to the platform, the list including: Margaret Bennet, of Port Hope; Patsy Clarke, Bowmanville; Shirley Porter, Orono; Audrey Wood, Baliebore; Vernon McNally, Blackstock; Helen Cox, Darlington; Barbara Tickel, of Port Hope; Ruth Hutchinson, Bowmanville; Ray Gilmour, Clarke; Nan Fallis, Millbrook; Farncomb LeGresley, Newcastle; Robert Sheffield, Caesarea; Lloyd Kellogg, Welcome; Beryl Challice, Hope; and Jos Courtice, Darlington.

Adding variety between the speakers, vocal solos were contributed by Mrs. Drummond, and piano solos by Master Glen Tamblyn, each receiving a demand for an encore.

While the judges' decision was being arrived at, an address was given by J. W. Trusler, of Toronto, Field Secretary of the Ontario Educational Association, who particularly urged all trustees to join their local Trustees and Ratepayers Association, and thus become a part of the O.E.A. He also explained the new form which the Association is assuming, the fifth clause of the organization to take in all Women's Institutes, service clubs, chambers of commerce, and similar bodies in the whole province.

Organizing People

"We are trying to get the people so organized that they will demand that the Government pay a larger share of the cost of education, and we are going to ask the Federal Government to pay a larger share of this cost to the provinces. I urge you to give us a strong support in our undertaking. Better education for your children, and a smaller tax bill, is our aim."

In spite of the lateness of the hour Mr. Trusler was listened to with close attention, and the convention was closed with the National Anthem.

Little Damage Done In Motor Accident

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 15.—Unable to make the corner as he came down Church Street to Queen at 10.30 Sunday morning, Tim Connelly of Seymour West left the road narrowly missing a twenty-foot drop into the Trent River, and landed against a large pine tree in the front yard of Thomas Pope. The services of a wrecking truck were required to extricate him from the five-foot ditch in which the truck landed, with very little damage being done. Two minor accidents occurred on Saturday evening, and although both attracted a number of spectators, little damage was done in either, apart from scratched fenders. Neither accident was reported to the police.

Province Wins $210 Action Against Mayor Of Oshawa

Judgment Is Given To Ontario By Judge Sheldon Smoke Of Peterborough

WHITBY, Nov. 15.—A $210 judgment has been given in favor of the Province of Ontario in its action against Mayor Alex. Hall of Oshawa.

Judge S. L. Smoke of Peterborough heard the case in chambers here last Friday, with Solicitor A. O. Kline of the Attorney-General's Department, Toronto as special Crown prosecutor.

The action, which was lauched several months ago at Premier Hepburn's direction, and details of which were aired on various occasions by the Prime Minister during the course of the general election campaign, was to recover certain fees which Mayor Hall during his administration of the office of Crown Attorney for Ontario County several years ago had allegedly neglected to turn in to the Crown.

LAKEFIELD SOCIETY SPONSORS CONCERT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 13.—The Daisy Mission Band of Lakefield United Church held a successful concert and thankoffering meeting on Friday evening, November 5, in the Sunday School Room of the church. The president, Jimmie Webster, who recently moved to Peterborough returned for the evening and took his accustomed place in the chair. After the opening hymn, Jimmie delivered the address of welcome most capably. Then Mrs. W. W. Yale led in prayer. Mary Alice Renwick and Winifred Murphy sang a duet, entitled "In the Garden." Lillian Calberry's recitation, "Measles," was well received, after which the thankoffering was received. Joan Kelly led the offertory prayer.

The Junior children then sang a part song, entitled "Jesus Loves Me." Nancy Spring, a new member of the Band this year, treated the audience to a violin solo entitled, "I Will be True, for There are Those Who Care," and responded to an encore with "Abide With Me." Nancy plays the violin beautifully.

The big event of the evening was then staged, the senior play. The play this year was entitled "The Appeal of All Nations," and represented children from heathen lands appealing to the children of America for help in converting their nations to Christianity.

At the conclusion of the play a band of children representing America, and more particuuarly Canada, came on to the platform and promised their brothers and sisters in heathen lands that they would see that help was sent to the nations who were appealing to them for assistance.

The children then joined hands and sang together "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

The roles were taken as follows: Gladys Allen, Angel of Light; Harry Spence, A boy in the slums; Mabel Hopkins, A north American Indian girl; Mueretta Hull, A South American girl; Jean Frankish, A South Sea Islander; Joan Kelly, Arabian girl; Betty Millage, African girl; Ralph Millage, Chinese boy; Maxine Hunter, native of India; Jean Tanner, Japanese girl.

During the play, the junior children sang "Tell me the stories of Jesus" and "From Greenland's Icy Mountains". Miss Helen Kelly played the accompaniments.

At the conclusion of the play Freda Webster gave a recitation entitled "Sedate Wu San" after which Mrs. J. A. Porter told the children a delightful little story which they all enjoyed. It was entitled "The Tenth Leper."

After the hymn "Mothers of Salem" Mrs. R. Bullock thanked the ladies and all those who attended for their interest and support. Mrs. W. W. Yale then closed the meeting by pronouncing the benediction.

During the evening candy was sold. Misses Isobel Bullock and Freda Webster were in charge of the candy table which was decorated in green, yellow and white—the Mission Band colours.

ONLY ONE VETERAN ATTENDS SERVICE REMEMBRANCE DAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Nov. 15.—Armistice Day service, which was held in the United Church was well attended. The school children paraded to the church, and occupied the front seats.

The service opened with singing "Abide With Me" and reading the second chapter of Ezekiel, followed by prayer. N.S. Mrs. David Miller read the roll of the Dummer men who made the supreme sacrifice. Mr. Wilkinson spoke on the Day. The two minutes' silence was observed with all standing. James Hawthorne gave an address on Peace, and urged that children be taught unselfishness. Mr. Wilkinson said just a few words on the object of the service.

A hymn was sung and all repaired to the cenotaph, where Vivian Jackson gave the provincial wreath to Mrs. Mary Thompson, mother of L.C. Stanley Thompson, who placed it on the monument. Mrs. Robert Moore, an honorary president, placed the Institute wreath. The children sang the National Anthem.

Very few ex-service men from near Warsaw are here now, and of these few only Mr. Vivian Jackson was at the service.

David Drain is reported no better. His daughters, Miss Valetta and Miss Cora, came home on Wednesday.

Institute Meets

Warsaw Women's Institute held its regular meeting on Thursday. Mrs. Latta opened her home for the gathering, at which there was a splendid attendance. Mrs. Weller presided.

The National Anthem was sung, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The president welcomed Mrs. Birdsall and other guests. A letter of thanks for the use of screens and curtains from the Presbyterian ladies was read. An invitation to attend a meeting with Hall's Bridge branch on November 30 was accepted.

Cases of two families needing more or less care were provided for. Three dollars is to be sent to the crippled children.

Miss Jean Payne gave a song accompanying herself on the guitar. Mrs. Weller read a poem "L'Envoi" written by a soldier in May, 1916. Mrs. Latta read a reply. O Canada was sung.

Mrs. Birdsall gave an intensely interesting talk on Peace. The speaker spoke of peace as an enormously big problem. Mrs. Birdsall's address was one calculated to make her audience think. Mrs. David Tucker gave a reading. Mrs. George Taylor sang "Wonderful Peace" and Mrs. Arthur Edwards was heard in reading. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Birdsall for her most helpful talk.

A delightful social half-hour was spent in which more far-reaching methods were freely discussed over the tea cups. Mrs. Latta served a sumptuous lunch, in which she was assisted by Mrs. McQuaig, Mrs. Allan Moore, Mrs. John Morgan and Mrs. Arthur Edwards. Mrs. George Taylor moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Latta for opening her home and entertaining the branch as she did.

As a result of shock following a motor accident in which no one was physically injured, Mrs. David Drain was taken to Nicholl's Hospital on Wednesday afteroon.

Current Matters Are Discussed At Lakefield Board Meet

Father Is Bound To Support Son

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Nov. 15 (C.P.). — A father is bound under the law of Scotland to support his son—whatever the son's age and whether he is able-bodied or not — if the father has the means to do so and the son is unable to support himself.

This was the ruling of Lord Russell in judgment given in the Court of Session, Edinburgh, on an important test action concerning the administration of public assistance.

Fife County Council sought a decree against William Rodger, coal trimmer of the Methil, for reimbursement of £51 ($258) public assistance relief granted to his son William Rodger, Jr., 34, during a period of unemployment. Lord Russell granted the decree.

ST. JOHN, Kas., Nov. 15 (A.P.).—Diogenes might peer this way to see the sweet fruits of honesty. Ed Green bet a stranger at a filling station last fall that Alf. M. Landon would not carry Kansas for the United States Presidency. The stake was 10 pounds of honey.

More than a year later Green drove into the station and found the honey waiting. He still doesn't know the honest man's name.

Face Broke Out In Large, Red Pimples

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face; many a cheek and brow in the mould of beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost by the presence of skin eruptions.

Pimples are caused by the blood being in an impure condition, and are a source of embarrassment, and many of those so afflicted are ashamed to go out in company.

Burdock Blood Bitters drives out the impurities from the blood, and leaves the complexion clear, smooth and healthy.

Miss Phyllis Twiddy, Ivanhoe, Ont., writes:—"Last spring my face and back began breaking out in large, red pimples.

It was very embarrassing for me to go out in company, and people began to avoid me.

I tried several kinds of blood purifiers, but none of them seemed to help me. I heard of Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles, and my friends wondered where all the pimples had disappeared to."

SLEEPIEST GIRL IN PETERBOROUGH GETS BEAU

Remember how none of the boys would look at her twice—that lazy, dowdy, sleepy, half alive girl who couldn't be bothered even trying to look attractive? But, have you seen her lately? She's the most sought after girl in town right now.

The poor girl couldn't help being lazy. Poisonous wastes clogged her system, pain-causing uric acid remained in her body to cause headache, backache, rheumatic twinges. She was slowed down, robbed of a clear complexion, of pep and energy because inner wastes were not rinsed away.

But Fynnon Salt changed all that. It regulated her system; eliminated the impurities easily, naturally; drove out the painful uric acid deposits, bringing back youthful, snappy suppleness. Fynnon Salt does this because its corrective ingredients include Sodium, Potassium, Lithium—the very salts of the earth found in the waters of famous British spas. The Fynnon Salt she takes every morning puts a smile on the day. She's offsetting aches and pains in later years, too, because this pleasant-tasting saline is keeping her system free of the cause of these troubles.

Don't let a clogged, acid poisoned system get you down. Wake it up with Fynnon Salt and see how much brighter and better life will be. Your druggist sells Fynnon Salt in large 75c packages. If you have any difficulty getting supplies, write: Laurentian Agencies, St. Gabriel Street, Montreal. 47

HOW TO Win Friends AND Influence People

By DALE CARNEGIE
Author of the famous book of this name

SMILE..

"Your actions speak for themselves. When you meet a friend and smile, it is as though you said: 'I like you. You make me happy. I am glad to see you.'

"That is why a friendly dog makes such a hit. He is so glad to see you that he wriggles and jumps for joy. So, naturally, you are glad to see him."

FOR INSTANCE—

"I know of a large department store whose employment manager would rather hire a sales girl who hasn't finished school, if she has a lovely smile, than a doctor of philosophy with a stony face.

"You must enjoy meeting people if you expect people to enjoy meeting you."

"Everybody wants to be happy—and there is one sure way to it. That is by controlling your thoughts. Happiness depends not on outward conditions, but on inward emotions.

"What you have, or who you are, or where you are, or what you are doing does not make you happy or unhappy. Happiness is a state of mind!"

"Two people may live in the same place, do the same things, have about an equal amount of money and prestige — and one may be miserable and the other happy.

"Why? Because one's mental attitude is wrong, the other's right."

of Confederation. Ivan spoke with conviction, force and fluency, and in an earnest and confident manner. He should make a favorable impression in the Brighton finals.

John Lewis of Smith township is just a little fellow with a manly voice and a pleasing address. He spoke on "The Language of the Flowers." One of his sentences was: "Flowers are one of the enchanting graces of a world full of wonders." John undoubtedly received considerable attention from the judges in their award of the chief honors of the afternoon.

Margaret Johnston's subject was "My Favorite Book," the title of which was "The Secret Garden" by Frances Hodgson Burnett. Miss Johnston is in the fourth class of the school at Old Havelock. The quality of her voice was pleasing and her presence attractive. Miss Johnston was the only contestant who used occasional gestures to enhance the effect of her narrative.

Muriel Craft of the Sixth Line school, Otonabee, told in her address an interesting why the "Piper and Nutcrackers" by Sir Edwin Landseer was her favorite picture. She is a charming little bright-eyed girl with an easy delivery, and well deserved rank among the first flight of speakers.

An interesting summary of the life and work of the late James M. Barrie was the subject of the address by Everett Boulton of Burleigh. He referred particularly to Barrie's classic phantasy "Peter Pan and Wendy" with mention of "A Window in Thrums" and several other of Barrie's works. Everett spoke with deliberate and measured phrases and was a very creditable representative of the northern schools of the county.

"The Heroine of Vercheres" recalled an incident in early Canadian history as related by Rita Foley of Keene. Her subject matter was good, but she spoke a trifle too quickly.

Peterborough Pioneering

Of the other children Margot Clysdale of Pleasant Plains school, Dummer, built her address around pioneer days in Peterborough. Her subject was "A Character from Canadian History," and the personality was the Hon. Peter Robinson. She told about the organization of the immigration from Ireland, and of the kindly leadership of Peter Robinson after whom Peterborough was named. Margot's address gained special interest from its local background.

Leo Lynch of Fife's School, Asphodel, was the first of the thirteen contestants to address the judges and audience. "The Radio" was his subject with a tribute to Marconi, and some of the aspects and effects of the invention of wireless transmission of sound.

Ruth Thomas of Birdsall's School, Asphodel, chose the "Coronation of King George VI for her subject, and Joseph Towns of Moher's School, Douro spoke on "A Character from British History" King George V, "the humble and noble father to us all."

Ruth Nicholls of S. S. No. 5, Burleigh, north of Apsley, sketched the life of General Wolfe in her address, and Dorothy Telford of the Smith township school on the Chemong Road related features of the Coronation of King George VI.

Children Congratulated

In announcing the decision of the judges, Dr. Bannister complimented the children and their teachers on the noticeable improvement in all the speeches as compared with last year's contest. He advised the children to be as natural as possible in their delivery and to avoid mechanical expression, and also to be careful about the quality of their voices. Some of the children had sacrificed points by vocal flaws which could be corrected.

The first prize to Ivan Wade was a bronze medal from the Department of Agriculture which also gave the books that were presented to the other contestants. The shields and other prizes at fairs were also presented by Warden Brown who added his congratulations to the children and the school teachers.

About 90 per cent of the school teachers are already organized, Mr. Campbell said in advocating similar action by the ratepayers and school trustees of this county.

"One quarter of the population of Ontario is directly interested in education," Mr. Campbell stated. "When you count up the number of pupils and students and teachers, you realize that education is big business. Consider the amount of money spent by ratepayers and by the provincial government and you will realize further that the financing of education is a big problem. Our object is to have everyone in Ontario join up with the School Trustees" and Ratepayers' Association. It is the only association of its kind in the world."

Stimulation of public interest in school was one of the purposes of the Association, and another was to obtain larger grants from the province.

"Australia and New Zealand provide the entire cost of education, or 100 per cent. Prince Edward Island 59.1 per cent, Scotland 52, England and Wales 50, British Columbia 32.9 per cent, and Ontario is in the second lowest position with 11.5 per cent of education borne by the province. Quebec's grant amounts to 6.3 per cent. School grants represent service. The Department does not make grants to a school that does not give service in its community. Why should one county receive $2,500 for manual training and fifteen counties draw nothing? We should have more equal distribution of grants because education is a national service. By our organization we hope to bring out more of these facts to the general attention of the public."

MEN LOVE PEPPY GIRLS

IF you are happy and peppy and full of fun, men will take you places. If you are lively, they will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT, if you are cross and listless and always tired out, men won't be interested in you. Men don't like "quiet" girls. Men go to parties to enjoy themselves. They want girls along who are full of pep.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

ed by the present Government will be that followed in Australia in connection with various social reform measures. To surmount similar constitutional obstacles there were assigned to the Australian Commonwealth by the component States such specific matters as old-age pensions. Once unanimous consent from the Provincial Governments has been obtained, little difficulty is anticipated in the Federal legislative steps.

What variance from the provisions of the Bennett scheme will be in the plan of the King Government will be disclosed only if and when the legislation is submitted to Parliament this coming session. Under the scheme which was discarded by the courts, the unemployment insurance fund was to be made up of contributions from insured persons and their employers, together with a grant from the Dominion Government, which was, in addition, to bear the cost of administration.

Contributions payable in respect of adult workers were to be 25 cents per week from men and 21 cents from women, with like amounts from the employer. The main qualification for benefit under the Bennett plan was the payment of forty weekly contributions during the two years preceding the claim. The weekly benefit was to be $6 for men and $5.10 for women, with proportionately lower rates for young persons between 16 and 21 years of age.

Present Economic System Is Said To Be Not In Accord With Christian Principles

Dr. J. Lyons of Victoria College Addresses Men's Forum At George Street Church

The responsibility of sitting in judgment and advising mankind that its present economic system is not in accord with Christian principles was laid at the feet of the Christian church by Dr. John Lyons, theological professor in Victoria College, Toronto University, to a Men's Forum gathering at George Street United church Sunday afternoon. It is not reasonable of the church to teach its children in Sunday schools to "love thy neighbor" and send them out into the bitter survival-of-the-fittest struggle of economic life, he declared.

"The church ought to point out where the principles are not in harmony with the mind of God," he said. "The church ought to point out the needs and call the other agencies to their responsibilities."

System Wanting

Stating the economic system is wanting in its distribution of wealth, he said Canada is producing sufficient annual wealth that an equal distribution would give every man, woman and child $300. The fact that some are taking great sums as their shares of this wealth and many are getting nothing is a demonstration of the fault, he said.

"With all the advance and progress which figures show, year by year we have to raise these vast amounts for federated charities. The only conclusion we can come to is that there cannot possibly be a sufficient degree of improvement under the present economic system for a fundamental solution of human problems, with every man enjoying the right to work and to live decently."

Strained Relations

He blamed the present strained conditions which exist in international relations throughout the world on economics.

"It is all very well for us in Canada to talk of peace loving nations and to point the finger at Italy and Germany. I am not approving the horrible crimes that have been committed by these countries yet it is useless to condemn them and think the matter is done. The problems of distribution of world wealth, distribution of people, the problems of raw materials and markets are at the root of the trouble. As long as we have an economic system that makes nations think they must have profit I do not see that the menace of war can be overcome."

Fair Distribution

He declared a fair distribution of wealth and opportunity "should prevail throughout the world."

Speaking of the Christian church, he said, "Performing this function of judgment we have to say this system is un-Christian. The principle of our system is individual ownership with the right to use the ownership to get something for ourselves—get all you can for yourself as long as you do it legally."

He continued: "If a Christian analysis justifies the conclusion the economic system is faulty the church should recommend the cure. We must advocate that human ends take the place of the so-called sacred rights of property. Property should be the instrument of human good, we should put human values first with property rights in a subservient place.

Co-operation

"The church should advocate activity toward social co-operation. In place of the system of individualistic competition where a man will resort to any extreme to secure himself an advantage we should have a method of co-operation. One man's property should be another's prosperity."

Summing his views, he declared, "I don't see how we are going to do that without taking hold of property and industry."

Charles Elliott acted as chairman, Rev. Parr introduced the speaker, Leo Copp offered an opening prayer.

4-MONTH TERM IS GIVEN YOUTH

Telling the youthful prisoner that he had thrown away a previous chance and that he must be made to realize "the strength of the law," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., today sentenced Arthur Moore, 17, to 4-months in Ontario Reformatory, with an indeterminate sentence of 2-months.

Moore, who appeared on remand with a plea of guilty to a charge of breaking and entering the F and G Store at Aylmer and Hunter streets with intent to commit an indicable offence, was stated to be an adopted child. His foster mother who was in court wept when she heard the decision of the court.

Addressing the court on behalf of the accused, T. J. Carley, K.C., urged that although Moore was placed on suspended sentence early during the past summer for a similar offence, the youth had been misled by older companions. He asked the court to deal leniently, declaring the youth was at a difficult age where the whole course of his life might be influenced for good or evil.

After hearing Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., allege that Moore had shouldered open the door of the store during the night and been caught in the act of breaking open the till in the store, His Worship passed sentence as stated.

Addressing the accused the magistrate told him, "Only a short time ago you were here on a somewhat similar charge when you were accused and convicted of complicity in a break-in at Peterborough Golf Club. The only thing I see in your favor is your youth and that you have been misled by older boys. The strength of the law must be shown. You have had your chance and were allowed to go on suspended sentence on the first occasion."

PRESENT CHEQUE TO REV. CARROLL

Rev. C. J. Carroll, who was recently appointed from the staff of St. Peter's Cathedral to be parish priest at Norwood, was presented with an illuminated address and sum of money by the congregation of the Cathedral at a meeting in St. Alphonsus Lyceum Sunday afternoon. A. C. Wolff was chairman, the address was read by T. J. Ryan and the presentation made by Dr. E. M. Crough and John McCarney. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Rev. Dr. Masterson and Rev. Earle Grant were present. The address extolled the work Rev. Father Carroll had performed during the last six years in Peterborough, and wished him success and happiness in his first pastorate.

The program included vocal solos by Miss Geraldine Collins and Harold Coulson, with piano accompaniments by Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M. Short addresses were made by the representatives of the local clergy, and, among others who spoke, J. J. Duffus paid a special tribute to the parents of Rev. Father Carroll, who, he said, were pioneers of this county.

Father Carroll thanked the people of the Cathedral for their kind remembrance, and said he was grateful that his relations with them had always been pleasant.

DIVINE HEALING IS SERMON TOPIC AT PARK STREET

The Rev. C. C. Boyter, preaching from his own pulpit at Park Street Baptist Church on Sunday morning, discussed with his congregation the subject of "Divine Healing and the Bible."

"God's way to health," the pastor contended, "is first the observance of the six natural physical laws; secondly, the observance of His moral law; and third, the use of means to counteract natural causes."

While he said he believed in Divine Healing, the Rev. Mr. Boyter was not in agreement with those of the modern healing movement who said "we must not use means."

Mr. Boyter said he did not deny the power of healing by faith, but he believed the Bible wholly supported the idea of the use of means in healing.

Taking his text from Exodus 15, 23-26, he pointed out the text was used by those who denied the use of means in divine healing. Mr. Boyter also used the text in support of his argument in favor of the use of means.

The text, he said, contained the promise to God's people, "I am the Lord that healeth thee."

But, Mr. Boyter declared, when the occasion of the promise was considered it was seen God used a tree as an illustration. He also called on His people to observe the moral laws or commandments and gave to His people six natural laws of health.

The natural laws, in addition to the moral laws, as conditions of health, Mr. Boyter said, were first the law of sanitation; second, the law of sterilization; third, the law of quarantine; fourth, the law of hygiene and dietetics; fifth, the law of physical exercise; and sixth, the law of rest.

These laws, he said, were embedded in the statutes which God gave to the people of Israel. Breach of physical laws involved a physical penalty, while breach of moral laws resulted in sickness.

When sickness was due to sin, atonement had to be made and sin forgiven before there could be healing. God's way of health, he said, was observance of His physical and moral laws.

LINDSAY JUNIORS BEAT P.C.I. 27-0

Lindsay Collegians concluded their junior C.O.S.S.A. schedule at home Saturday by taking a 27-0 win over the P.C.I. Juniors. The husky homesters overpowered their inexperienced rivals and dominated play all through the fixture. They turned in a fine game, mixing hard straight grid tactics with fine open running plays and good kicking. The losers battled gamely but were outclassed. Warrian and Sharpe proved the spearhead of the Scugog squadis attack. It was the final game of the season for both teams, since Bowmanville won group honors. The teams:

P.C.I.: Flying wing, Elliott; halves, R. Gillespie, C. Gillespie, Scriver; quarter, Moldaver; snap, McMahon; insides, Dwyer, Scott; middles, Ainslie, Douglas; outsides, McPherson, Freeman; alternates: Havie, Northcott, Graham, Ferguson, McWilliams.

Lindsay: Flying wing, Maxim; halves, Ferguson, Maxwell, Sharpe; quarter, Warrian; snap, Karrys; insides, Kingsborough, Wright; middles Hill, Lamb; outsides, J. Nesbitt, Crowley; alternates: Cresswell, Tolmie, Bates, Baldwin, Hadley, B. Nesbitt.

Dr. R. F. Nott addressed Arthur Burrows' class at George Street Sunday School on Sunday, using as his subject one which he is most familiar with, the work of a doctor. He mentioned the fact there were four kinds of people who went through for a doctor, going on to tell of a doctor's training, after High School spending five or six years in college, and then training in a hospital before having a regular practice of his own. Dr. Nott told of his own experiences acting as company doctor at the Cape Breton coal mines. Gord Pammett moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for his fine address. Next week Charlie Shaw is to be the guest speaker, his subject being "Watch Ye."

MORTALS AND IMMORTALS

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "Because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ." (Galatians 4:6,7.) Selections from the Bible included the following from Jeremiah 17:5, "Thus saith the Lord; Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord."

BEAR EATS BEAR MARMORA HUNTER MAKES SAD FIND

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Nov. 15. — Sanford Lawrence, Marmora's noted hunter, is still adding fresh chapters to his history as such. You can't keep him out of the limelight when the hunting season is on. His latest experiences are worth relating.

A day or so ahead of the opening of the 1937 hunting season, Sanford went back to the Otter Creek hunting camp to get it ready for the arrival of the party which annually uses it, and to do a little trapping also. On November 2nd he shot two grown up bears and the following day, added a bear and its cub to the number. One of the larger carcases was strung up on a tree. Three days later, as the hunter returned to the scene, he noted fresh bear tracks leading to the tree and saw that the visiting Bruin had devoured about a third of the bear meat. "I have known about half a dozen instances," said Sanford "where a bear has eaten portions of dead bear in the spring, but this was the first time for me to see it happen in the fall."

On Thursday, Nov. 10th, Sanford got a buck and hung it also on a tree. eRturning the next day, he saw where he had unwittingly provided an Armistice dinner for another Bruin, the bear having shown a partiality for the hind quarters. That same day, Sandy Lummiss of Belleville, a member of the party, shot a cub and Will Flindall of the same city, despatched another large bear.

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "God is the Principle of man, and man is the idea of God. Hence man is not mortal nor material. Mortals will disappear, and immortals, or the children of God, will appear as the only and eternal verities of man. . . . Learn this, O mortal, and earnestly seek the spiritual status of man, which is outside of all material selfhood."

With Wings Clipped Skippy Is Back Home

SKIPPY, the pet talking crow, is back to his shed roost at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Curtis, Downie street, after city-wide wanderings which took him across Hunter street bridge and into East City despite the handicap of clipped wings. He was missing from the morning of Armistice Day until Saturday evening, causing his owners great anxiety.

A dozen telephoned reports tracing Skippy's movement Saturday came in to Mrs. Curtis following a report in The Examiner that he was missing. Finally Saturday evening a call came from a resident of the northern section of East City reporting he had been locked up and would be kept until his owners arrived.

"Skippy won't wander so far away again for awhile for we clipped his wing as soon as we got him back," Mrs. Curtis said. "He's mad at me for doing it but it's for his own good. As it is, I don't see how he got across the river without getting drowned unless he walked over the bridge."

Reporting that Skippy was talking to himself in good spirits again today, she expressed thanks to the Peterborough citizens who were kind enough to call her and report on the pet's whereabouts.

CAR SLIPPED OVER THIRTY-FOOT BANK

Roy Bengley, 596 Winona Drive, Forest Hill, Toronto, and his passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McCutcheson, 59 Alameda avenue, Forest Hill, had an alarming experience that was fortunately without serious consequences, when their car slid over a 30-foot embankment at the east end of Murray street at midnight Saturday.

According to police report, Mr. Bengley, the driver of the car, drove east on Murray street in his attempt to find an address on College street. After being given directions by a householder from whom he made enquiries, the driver backed out of the driveway at 14 Murray street, on to a grassy slope. The car slid backwards down the bank to a wire fence at the end of Murray street.

In his effort to get out of his predicament the driver of the car put on his skid chains and drove along the north side of the fence to an opening in the fence. He failed to notice there was a drop of thirty feet or so at the other side of the opening. The car landed on the roadway below on all four wheels, causing slight damage to the car and giving the three occupants a severe shaking.

Mr. Bengley told police he thought there should be a sign or fence to stop cars from going over the bank. He pointed out that once a car got on the sloope it was almost impossible to stop it sliding over the bank onto the roadway below.

LIBEL ACTION SETTLED

LONDON, Nov. 15—(AP).—Another "Rasputin" libel claim against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was settled to-day in favor of Prince and Princess Alexis Pavlovich Chegodieff. The terms were not disclosed.

In 1934 Princess Irina Youssoupoff received £50,000 ($249,250) in settlement for her libel suits against the producers of the motion picture "Rasputin the Mad Monk." Lawyers said it was the highest libel settlement ever paid in the world.

MINISTER URGES HOUSECLEANING AMONG NATIONS

One of the most impressive of the remebrance services held in the city during the past several days was that observed in St. Paul's Presbyterian church Sunday evening. Avoidance of war in the future by moral and spiritual house-cleaning among the nations was urged by Rev. Dr. J. T. Barr in a powerful and appropriate address.

Following the regular devotional exercises at the opening of the service, George Coleman, Jr., sang "There is No Death," and the choir rendered as its anthem Kipling's Recessional. Mr. Coleman and the choir taking the solo and chorus parts, "In Flanders Fields" was rendered and an impresive playing of the "March Funebre" by Martin B. Chenhall on the organ with a violin obligato by William Moorhead and a piano accompaniment by Mrs. Adam Sands followed.

Roll of Honor Called

Deeply stirred was the congregation as Dr. Barr called the roll of honor containing the names of St. Paul's men who gave their lives in the Great War. The congregation remained standing at attention for one minute of silence concluded by the singing of "O Rest in the Lord" by Miss Jessie Pattison. Jack Smith played the "Piper's Lament" on the bagpipes and the Last Post and Reveille were sounded.

"Wheresoever the carcass is, there will the vultures be gathered together" was the text on which Dr. Barr based his words. No man with any feeling could go through the experience of an Armistice anniversary without being touched, he declared. He urged that man rid himself of any notion that God is responsible for war. The crime of war is the major crime of man, he said.

Need More Than Pacts.

War can not be avoided by mere human pacts or treaties between nations, the speaker continued. The circumstances leading up to every war have been the same in the course of human history, he said. He pointed out that in the case of ancient Rome it was not political mismanagement or the fact its colonies were out of touch with the mother country but rather idleness, luxury, licentiousness and economic distress that "prepared the carcass for the carrion crows of war."

"The same may be true to-day," Dr. Barr warned. "Is there any country in the world which can say it is morally and spiritually clean?" Great Britain may also be in a decadent moral and spiritual condition as well as Germany, Italy, Russia, Japan and America, he said.

MACHINISTS HERE HAVE REORGANIZED

At a well-attended meeting held in the Labor Hall on Sunday afternoon, Lodge 435 of the International Association of Machinists was reorganized and temporary officers elected. Richard Riley of Toronto installed the newly-elected officers.

The International Association of Machinists, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, is now the fastest growing union in the A.F. of L. The average weekly increase in membership, it is claimed, is 2,800, and each month sees some 25 new lodges added to the roster. Prospects are bright for a large membership of the tool and diemakers and machinists of this city, the officials say.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AT A late hour Saturday night, folks around town were still talking about the Battle in the Mud—the 21-0 smear the Orfuns handed the Fliers on a greasy gridiron. The grounded Fliers can now start talking about hockey, while the triumphan. Turnbull crew can step into the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" semi-finals. It looks like they'll be going to Toronto next Saturday to tackle the City Club crew (formerly the Westsides), while Dundas and Sarnia meet in the other semi-final bracket. Orfuns won their round by a 22-5 score, showing a complete reversal in form from that 5-1 licking they took at the Airport a week ago. With the showing the Cobourg and Peterborough players made against Kingston and Trenton, it would seem that the calibre of football in quite a bit higher up this way, what?

* * * * * *

ABOUT 400 fans braved the weather—and don't Orfuns have awful luck in weather with home games?—to see this joust here. While it was too one-sided, yet they thoroughly enjoyed it all. Plenty of open thrilling play by Orfuns, lots of hard mixing, some screwy wallowing in the mud holes, and a nifty comeback win for the home team. The Fliers were licked to a frazzle from the start. A touchdown on the second play and four blocked kicks finished 'em. They kept battling but were never in the hunt. R.I.P. deed.

* * * * * *

NOT VERY many expected the soft victory for the locals. The Orfuns themselves and the scribes around Central Ontario—all but the Quinte guy—predicted a win here, but they felt it might be fairly close. We went so far as to say Peterborough would win by two touchdowns. Well, they won by four, but we're not kicking! The squad looked by far its best this season. They always were a good outfit potentially, but seldom clicked in all departments at once. They did it here on Saturday and if they continue the Orfuns ought to romp through to a title. The line looked like a million bucks in blocking, plunging, tackling and breaking up kicks. The secondary smeared plays right and left, the backfielders ran miles, and the home hoofer again came through in the clutch—as he did against Meikle—to make Gibson look like an over-rated kicker.

* * * * * *

YEAH, DON Crowe was booting 'em in okay style in the mud and water of Riverside Park in this fracas. And running well, too. Mike Loucks picks 'em up and puts 'em down like a frightened fawn, and how that big galloper can carry the mail! Archibald was all over the place and turning in a whale of a game, with Marsh again breaking up play after play to bust the Fliers' hearts. Hendren's tackling was good again, and E. Spencely bolstered the line like a load of bricks. We've just named a few that stood out—probably shouldn't have mentioned any without naming the whole team. 'Cause they all went fine, not a weak spot in the whole setup.

* * * * * *

THE ONLY tough part of it all was the injury to Bill Gerow. The hard-hitting lineman suffered a dislocated shoulder late in the third frame during a clash in the line. Something like the injury that has kept Mick Magee on the sidelines most of the season. It was no tea party in those line meetings, not on your tintype! The lads were playing for keeps and the Fliers, not being noted as good losers, roughed it up plenty. But so did the Orfuns! The latter are no pansies—they don't yell about rough stuff, they just fight the devil with fire. It was this fighting spirit that gave 'em the jump on the Aviators early and kept 'em hammering their rivals back all through the spasm. The team that beats Bill Turnbull's crew will earn the victory. And they'll feel like a soothing rubdown after the fray, too.
